Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Dates extend to the 12th Nov. The P. and O. mail of Sept. 1 arrived out on 9th Nov. The following items of news are from the Japan Mail:—

It is with feelings of no ordinary grief that we have to announce the death of Edmund Morel, Esq., Engineer-in-Chief of the Imperial Railways, which took place on the 5th Nov. Mr. Morel has for some months been in declining health, a constitutional weakness of the lungs having taken the form of rapid consumption, which was the cause of death. The death of his wife occurred some twelve hours after.

The newly appointed Minister of Education, in order to effect a thorough reform in all the departments of the Monbu Nankoo (formerly Kaiseijo) and in the Monbu-Tookoo (the Hospital Medical College), has partially and temporarily suspen operations in these two institutions. The vacation may about a fortnight, during which time new officers will appointed, students examined for admission or re-admission, new rules and regulations made and put into force, and other useful changes accomplished. The object his Excellency has in view is the establishment of these institutions on a sound European basis; the immediate consequence will be the reduction of the number of students of the English, French, and German departments, which numbered about 1,100, to nearly one-half, say 500; and the general result, concentration of effort and greater efficiency. Subordinate preparatory schools are to be established outside of Nankoo, but under the same general department. In the staff of foreign teachers no immediate changes take place, though it is intended eventually to employ none but professional teachers. The Minister's orders were issued on the 6th inst.

A Deliberative Council has been established under that of the Sanji, and of this Goto Shojiro has been appointed the President, Ito succeeding Goto at the Board of Public Works.

Lieutenant Brinkley, R.A., has received from the Japanese Government the appointment of Gunnery Instructor.

Mr. de Long arrived in Yokohama on the 6th inst. He reached Yedo on Saturday evening, but too late to join his colleagues at Hama-go-ten.

The autumn meeting of the Yokohama Race Club has taken place, lasting three days, and although a new feature was given to the races by the importation of twelve China griffins, the meeting was, on the whole, unsuccessful. The first day was windy and anything but agreeable; on the second day it blew a perfect hurricane, and the third, when there were few races and few spectators, the weather was all that could be desired. The racing was by no means up to the standard. Southern Cross was stale and could not run up to anything like his best form, Moctezuma was also under a cloud, Samurai, now getting old, did not rival his past performances, and in fact all the public favourities were amiss in one way or another. The Tartan stable was fortunate in the running of Chanticleer, and although it was in no way Mr. Morrison's fault, the walks over for the Challenge and the Shamrock Cups were viewed by the public with considerable distrust; and after the first of those two races no one could be induced to bet until the numbers were up, if a start was effected. Mr. Peter's Genseric turned out a dipping pony and will give the best ponies some trouble next meeting, while Eclair, very highly thought of by the stable, was only able to win the Consolation Plate, and will never be more than a good second-class pony.

A notification has been issued by Mr. Adams, the Charge d'Affaires, of the rules governing naturalised British subjects in Japan.

TEN DAYS' LATER ADVICES VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

The Pacific Mail steamer Great Republic arrived at San Francisco on the 17th ult., with advices from Yokohama to the 23rd Nov. The steamer brought the following passengers for New York: Capt. Phillippens, T. G. Lusan, C. McKean, G. D. Hammill and child, E. F. Young, H. G. Elpoke, Dr. J. P. Patterson, and three Japanese students; for Europe: G. Axity, and F. A. Cape. She also brought 12,705 packages of tea, and 261 packages of silk for New York, 1,811 packages of tea for Boston, 45 packages of silk for Hartford, 2,071 packages of tea for Chicago, and 25 packages of tea for St. Louis. The following is the summary of the news as telegraphed to New York:—

Advices from Yedo, received just as the steamer sailed, state that an Embassy, which will sail from Yokohama on Nov. 24, will be the most important that has ever left an Oriental nation for America or Europe. It is sent out by order of the Japanese Parliament and the Mikado, that the ruling classes may study for themselves Western civilisation, and not depend upon the reports of inferiors, as hitherto. Its head will be Jawkura, late Minister of Foreign Affairs; the new Prime Minister of Japan assisted by Kido, Chief of the Emperor's Privy Council, who, with the Chief Minister of Public Works, the Chief Minister of Finance, and the Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, compose the Embassy proper. They will be accompanied by eight secretaries, twenty-one officers of high rank, and twenty-one young noblemen travelling for information. They will proceed to Washington overland, visit the principal cities of America, thence to Europe and round the world. United States Minister De Long accompanies them to Washington. Charles Walcott Brooks, Japanese Consul at San Francisco, has been directed to accompany them around the world. All the officers will retain their positions while absent from the empire.

A fire at Hakodadi destroyed nearly the whole town, and property valued at over $500,000. Several officers of the frigate Colorado were presented to the Mikado. Orders have been issued by the War Department to the former Daimios to transfer all arms and munitions of war to the Government. United States Minister, De Long, returns home by the next steamer, to confer about the revision of the treaties. Moyena, the Mikado's Envoy to Hawaii, has, on his return, received an appointment of Collector of the port. The exports of tea are 1,000,000 pound in excess of last season, with a brisk demand. Silk is firm. Another embassy has been sent to Korea by the Mikado. The Japanese are discarding their dress for foreign styles.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Herald, dating 7th and 8th Nov., writes:—

We have not seen any of the regular line steamers from Shanghai at the Settlement Wharf since the Shantung left on the 30th Oct., owing to there being, these last seven days, insufficient water on the Taku bar. Besides the shallowness of the bar, several of the reaches in the Peiho have, during the last three months, become very much silted up, which even now, with the present high waters, interferes disadvantageously with the steamer navigation. Should the force of the down water during the winter not make the fairway in the river deeper, artificial means will have to be adopted next year to do so.

Several foreign passengers going by the Sin Nanzing leave here this morning in the tug-boat Pathfinder, acting at present as a lighter. The Chinese passengers for the same steamer left here last night in junks for the outer anchorage, after having waited for fully a week, expecting to get on board at Tientsin. Seeing these people would have to sit all night in the cold on the decks of the junks, they will naturally take an interest in the dredging of the bar and the deepening of the river, so that steamers can come up.

Business in imports is in a deplorable condition, and large quantities of manufactures and other imports are now stored in Chinese and foreign godowns, owing to the absence of a demand at paying rates. This year will not close satisfactorily for the Chinese traders in consequence of the stagnant state of trade for some time back, which cannot recover before the routes inland are closed by ice. We can only hope for better times.

The accounts which the Tientsin people give us of the quantities of rice, little rice, maize, wheat, and peas which were brought here by the authorities during the last three months, from Honan, West Shantung, and the west of this province, to feed the destitute population, are so very conflicting that I dare not as yet venture on a statement regarding them, so I must leave this subject for a future letter. The farmers were busy in their fields, and in many places the next year's crops were appearing above ground, a circumstance particularly noticeable in the case of wheat, which was two or three inches long, showing that the rains here at least, or the floods, if any, were not so serious as to retard cultivation. The case, however, is quite different round Tientsin, where, as far as the eye can reach, the whole country is covered with water, with the exception of some elevated patches here and there. The water still continues to pour into the suburbs of the city, through the breach in the embankment a little above the Custom-house. The natives are now making some efforts to patch up this breach, but their progress is slow, and their immediate success doubtful. In the meantime the water thus rushing in keeps up the flood on the country round, and inside the city itself. Here it has undermined and destroyed large portions of the old wall. The starving people are already beginning to sell their children; I myself saw a child three days backs, which a Cantonese had bought for five dollars from a starving family.

Yesterday and all last night we had the wind from the east, which raised the water on the bar at Taku, and enabled several steamers to cross and come up the river. This evening the Szechuen arrived at the Settlement Wharf, and four more steamers are in sight; in fact by noon to-morrow we expect to see eight merchant steamers off this place, busily engaged discharging their cargoes.

His Excellency Chevalier H. Calicé, the Austrian Minister, has arrived here from Peking, where he has been exchanging the ratified Austrian treaty. He leaves here in the Szechuen, Captain Patterson. Baron Hubener, formerly Austrian Minister at Paris, has also arrived here from Peking, where he has been for pleasure and information. He has gone down to Takoo in the French gunboat Scorpion, to go on board the Sin Nanzing, clearing for Shanghai.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices extend to the 16th Nov.; the French mail with London dates to the 29th Sept. arrived out Nov. 15. The following is from the North China Herald:—

The week has been very quiet, no incidents of importance occurring. The money market has been extremely tight, and still continues dear, extravagant rates being paid for interest from day to day. The Chinese have so drained the coffers of merchants and the treasuries of banks that there does not remain enough to make ordinary business possible. Dollars have been pledged against silver taels at interest of 1 per mil per diem; and other rates being given, according to the different kinds of security and the exigencies of the borrower, we have heard stated at two, three, four, five, and even ten taels per mil for the same brief space of time. The immediate cause of the drain is said to be the action of the Salt Commission in connection with the monopoly of that article for the year. The right to deal in it has usually been conceded to private tenderers, but this year the opportunity of making offers has been thrown open to the whole community by a system of lottery, eighty successful drawers in which receive licences at Tls. 3,000 each. As the business is a very profitable one, yielding some 30 to 35 per cent. on the investment, there are many desirous of tendering. In doing so, security money has to be deposited, and the number of offerers necessitates perhaps a couple of million taels being held in hand, instead of a couple of hundred thousand. Consequently, when this business is finished, i.e. in about a fortnight, money will be easier. A large proportion of the abundant capital held by the banks during the spring and summer has found employment elsewhere. The present high rate for money suspends business operations.

We had thought that ere this Shanghai had heard the last of compradore defalcations, but one more case has come out, though the amount is not heavy. The compradore of the Comptoir d'Escompte has, we understand, admitted a false balance of his account and the misapplication of a portion of the bank's sycee. The statement of the balance, agreeing as it did with the compradore's stock of sycee, was accepted by successive auditors as correct, and it was not till during the present run on the article that the amount in default was found to be represented by spurious sycee, silvered over and stamped so as to appear genuine.

Tseng-kwo-fan, Viceroy of the province, is expected in Shanghai shortly, and, it is said, is to make some inquiry about telegraphs and kindred foreign inventions, with a view to their adoption at last in China. We hear that another liberal project which is to receive his attention is that of selecting a number of Chinese youths for education abroad. This scheme has been mooted for some time, and has even received Imperial sanction, but the arrangements are being made with characteristic procrastination.

Digitized by Google

The intention is, we believe, to get together about thirty youths, and put them under the charge of a Chinaman qualified for the important task by his attainments in foreign knowledge, and also of a staff of native instructors. Under these the pupils will pass a probation of about six months in Shanghai, it is said, with a view to test their capabilities, when the more likely will be chosen for the ultimate purpose of foreign education. These will then proceed to America and enter upon a course of study of several years' duration to enable them to acquire that scientific and general knowledge, the practical results of which China wants so much. The youths, who are to be of good family, will have all their expenses defrayed by the Imperial Government, and the matter of finances will, it is believed, be settled by Tseng-kwo-fan. It is expected that candidates will offer themselves mostly from the Canton district, where the enterprise and aptitude of the natives render them willing and likely subjects for such a scheme. We hear that the directors of the scheme have been endeavouring, but hitherto unsuccessfully, to find accommodation in Shanghai for the candidates during the probationary period they must undergo.

The last homeward English mail carried away an unusual number of residents, some of whom have been prominent alike in their professional and social positions here. Among others, Dr. Sibbald, one of the oldest medical practitioners, who dates his Shanghai life from 1852; Mr. Jellicoe, the well-known and courteous agent of the P. and O. Company; Mr. Robinson, the loss of whose legal talents will be felt in our law courts, and several gentlemen connected with commercial interests, the departure of each and all of whom, we are sure, will be felt as a loss by the community.

The Amateur Dramatic Corps held a meeting, at which Messrs. Fearon, Little, Bayne, Cance, Murray and Pearson were elected a committee for the season.

Extracts from the Peking Gazettes show that the Chinese Government has once more taken exception to the cultivation of opium in the province of Szechuen.

On Thursday morning, about half-past ten o'clock, an alarm of fire was given, and an unusual volume of smoke was seen to be issuing from a chimney in Messrs. Adamson, Bell, and Co.'s hong, adjoining the club. Fortunately the fire was confined to the chimney, but nevertheless the energetic fire brigade, with several engines, were on the spot almost immediately, and ready for work, had their services been required.

We give to-day a report of the circumstances of the loss of the Corypheus, mentioned by us last week. We have pleasure in acceding to a request made by the chief officer of the unfortunate vessel, that we should, in the name of the shipwrecked crew and of himself, acknowledge in the warmest terms the kindness shown them by Captain Beard and others on board the Boreadis.

From Chinkeang we hear that the steamer Norna had left for Canton with rice; the steamer Acantha was loading and about to start, and the Shaftesbury was also loading. The Taotai was becoming alarmed at the drain occasioned by so many cargoes of rice being taken away, and it was reported likely that he would forbid further export.

HONG KONG.

The present mail brings dates to the 22nd Nov.; the P. and O. mail of the 6th Oct. reached this port Nov. 19. The following summary is from the China Mail and Daily Press:—

"The Kum-shune-tai v. H.M.S. Ocean."—In this running-down action, brought against the Ocean by the owners of a junk, Mr. Hayllar, for the defendants, contended that the "rule of the road" should be "governed by the principles of common sense." The second point of his argument was that the burden of proof lay with the junk. The next was on the conflict of evidence, and he asked the Court to presume that the junk did attempt to cross the bows of the Ocean. Great stress was laid by the junk people on the fact that they had no wind at all; but how could they account for the fact that they had made fifty-two to fifty-six miles in seven hours? for from the place they started to the place of the collision there was that distance. Against this evidence, the witnesses of the Ocean were positive that there was wind to allow the junk to come up to two or three points. The probability was that there was no look-out on board the junk, and she became confused when she found that she had come too near to the Ocean. The Acting Advocate-General said his learned friend had stated that easing the engines had saved the lives of the junk people; his case was, if extra caution had been used, the junk and cargo might have been saved too. At the conclusion of the evidence the Court was adjourned, and the Chief Justice was to have given Judgment on the following day, but he was unable to do so, owing to a serious attack of illness, which would, it was feared, prevent his sitting in the court for several days. The sessions which stood adjourned to the same day were, in consequence, further postponed.

The steamer Manila, late Lancefield, is shortly to proceed home under sail via the Cape, to be fitted with new engines on the compound principle, and to return via the Suez Canal. Her old machinery and boilers have been sold on the spot. It is said that her hull is in excellent order, so that when the alterations are completed she will make a first-rate vessel.

The Rev. Dr. Legge has intimated that he would commence a course of lectures on what might be called the Fourfold State of Man; or, Four Phases of Human Life and Character in Man's Progress from the Sinful to the Holy. The subject of the first lecture "Man's Natural State, Considered as a Pursuit of Good."

The screw steamship Chieftain, which has been for a long time on sale in Japan, is advertised for sale by auction at Yokohama on Dec. 14.

Mr. Drummond, a barrister, who has lately arrived here from Melbourne, was admitted on Saturday to practise at the bar of the Hong Kong Supreme Court. Mr. Hayllar, in moving his admission, apologised for not being robed, as he had supposed the Acting Attorney-General would have been present to make the motion. It may be supposed now, since Mr. Ball's reason for accepting his present post was "that each side might be represented by counsel," that he will feel justified in resigning his office under Government, which, apart from the difficulty which is now removed, is of course in every way incompatible with his duties as Summary Court Judge.

There was grand fighting over at Kowloon on Saturday, of course only in fun. The blue-jackets and marines of H.M.S. Ocean placed themselves on the defensive against an imaginary enemy, and, we conclude, were extremely victorious. To a non-professional observer the battle was not very intelligible. The ladies and other guests seemed to be the principal objects fired at, except when the little army formed itself into several groups and fired at everybody and in every direction promiscuously. The extraordinary activity of the guns was a matter of great interest. There were only two field-pieces, but these were in constant requisition, rushing about from one hillock to another, doing probably a good deal of execution and certainly making a fearful noise. It is most likely that the fight was very successful, for there was plenty of blank cartridge exploded.

The China Mail reports the following:—

Our Hong Kong Communicator gives us the following particulars of the shipwrecked men of the Yangtze:—Ten of the shipwrecked crew of the Yangtze (lost on the North Paracels) arrived in Canton, overland, on the afternoon of Sunday last, having lost their all except the clothing in which they stood. No sooner were they sent to the British Consulate than Mr. Consul Hughes sent round a circular to the community, requesting their kind assistance in the way of wearing apparel and pocket-money for the unfortunate mariners, who were thirty-five days in travelling overland. When they found themselves once more safe on terra firma they had the good fortune of meeting with a Chinaman who knew a little of pidgin English, and who, like a good Samaritan, accompanied the shipwrecked sailors all through to Canton. Being thus relieved of the chief difficulty of making themselves understood to the native authoities, their wants for keeping their bodies and souls together were provided for by the mandarins of the district as they passed through. The natives of the place, however, where they disembarked from their long-boats, being struck with the curiosity of chronometer and such articles, relieved the mariners of the trouble of being encumbered with them during their long overland journey. The captain, the carpenter, and four of the crew are stated to have perished by the swamping of the boat in which they were, and in which were also four of the ten survivors, who have thus escaped a watery grave. The shipwrecked mariners came down in the Poyan.

Some time about September last year the North-German three-masted schooner Ida was wrecked in some inhospitable region on the shores of the sea of Ohkotsk. The crew, numbering ten, made their way to some Russian settlement in the vicinity, but from thence they could get no means of transport, and were forced to remain there till some time this summer, when some errant trading vessel, calling at their Siberian Patmos, conveyed them to Hakodate, when the trim little schooner Sea Bird, of this port, brought them on to Shanghai.

HOW THE WORD "BYE-LAWS" IS SPELLED IN HONG KONG.

The Acting Colonial Treasurer asked by what rule the word "by-laws" was spelt with an "e:" he had never seen it spelt so.

The Acting Attorney-General was sure the hon. member had not seen it spelt any other way. Other members took up this most interesting point. Mr. Ryrie asked how the word was spelt as applied to cricket. The Colonial Secretary went out and returned with a ponderous "Webster," from which the Acting Colonial Treasurer's opinion was confirmed. The Ordinance, however, was not amended in this particular; and the Acting Colonial Treasurer admitted that though it was an interesting discussion, it had no great bearing on the Pier Company's interest. The Chief Justice, who spoke of the matter as an interesting philological discussion, remarked that the authority was not beyond discussion.

The Chief Justice was under the impression that the scale of charges should be approved by the Governor in Council, as well as the bye-laws. It was so in England, and though he knew little or nothing of commercial matters, he threw out the suggestion.

The Ordinance was then passed, and numbered 11 of 18 .

SUMMARY JURISDICTION AMENDMENT.

This Bill having been read a second time, a slight skirmish of a good-natured kind took place between the Chief Justice and the Acting Attorney-General, as to the authorship of the old

Digitized by Google

Summary Jurisdiction ordinance. The result appeared to be that this law had no known author, though it had been drawn up for the convenience of Chief Justice Adams; his present lordship certainly did not wish to have the credit of it.

After some further proceedings of similar character, but perhaps not of such absorbing public interest, the Council adjourned till further notice.

IMPORTANT SITTING OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The Legislative Council met on Nov. 6th, when the Chief Justice said that before the Council proceeded with the usual business of the day he wished to ask leave to read a statement with reference to himself. This being assented to, he proceeded to read the following paper:—

"At the last sitting of this Council I expressed an opinion that as Chief Justice I was not bound to vote according as the Governor should require me to do. On the 2nd I received a letter from the Colonial Secretary, transmitting to me by direction of the Lieut.-Governor, for my information and guidance, an extract from the Secretary of State's circular despatch of the 17th of August, 1868, intended doubtless for the regulation of all Crown Colonies. From that extract I read a short extract in reference to members of the Legislative Council in virtue of their offices and 'who cannot be deprived of their seats otherwise than by depriving them of their offices,' (of whom I presume the Executive Government of this colony holds me to be one). The rule is express that 'they may if necessary be required to support the Crown in the Legislature according to such directions as may be given to them by the Governor or Lieutenant Governor as the representative of the Crown.' There is a provision for excusing such officers from taking part, in case of conscientious scruples, on questions of religion or of high moral import. Although the regulation contains a reason which appears to me not to render the rule applicable to the Chief Justice, for he is not 'part and lot of the Executive,' yet it is not for me, but for the Governor, to decide as to that. I have to thank his Excellency for directing the extract to be sent to me, and to express my surprise that, although I have ever since 1866, as Chief Justice, when I thought it necessary, voted against the Government, I should not until the 2nd inst. have had the slightest idea that there was any written law on the subject. I spoke and voted against important measures proposed by Sir. R. MacDonnell, and when addressing his Excellency on his leaving for England I emphatically asserted my right to oppose his measures, and my address passed without remark, and was by command inserted in the Government Gazette."

I have ever since believed that, subject only to the additional bond of dutiful loyalty to Government, which every right-minded official ought to understand, I was as free in this Council as any non-official member. When I thought it right to ask for a legislative inquiry as to the police, I wrote to the Colonial Secretary a statement of my intention to move a postponement of the vote for the police until after such inquiry. In answer, the Colonial Secretary informed me that I was required to vote for the supplies. I then thought he wrote without authority; I now admit that the requisition was authorised. Things so happened that the vote for the police passed without a division, but I spoke and voted against one item of the supplies, that of $5,000 for the chancel. My right to so vote was unquestioned, but I now admit that the vote ought not to have been given by me, against the pledge given by the Governor as to that sum, if I had then known of the regulation. The regulation was, I believe, new in 1868. Chief Justice Adams conducted himself for nearly six years in the Council as if he was bound by no such regulation, but nothing is ever gained by denying or explaining away a fixed rule such as that of 1868, and I shall not attempt to do so. I feel it is binding until actually repealed.

The Colonial Secretary observed that the rules referred to by the hon. Chief Justice had been in force to his knowledge for the last thirty years; they had been amended by the Circular of 1868, but were to the same effect.

The Chief Justice said that he only felt that he had been acting under an entire misapprehension of his duties as a member of Council.

THE PIER AND GODOWN COMPANY.

The report of the select committee on the Pier and Godown Company was then laid on the table. It expressed the opinion that the erection of the proposed pier would be of great advantage to the colony, and that it should be supported.

THE LOSS OF THE "CORYPHŒUS."

The British barque Coryphæus left Foochow July 12th. August 23rd, after much bad weather, ship making course by compass, distance averaging about four miles an hour, second officer reported breakers ahead. The captain immediately proceeded on deck and called all hands to wear ship, himself being at the wheel. All efforts to save the ship were, however useless. At 7 A.M the ship buried in the reef, with her back broken and mainmast gone through the bottom. Got out the second boat with great risk, dividing the crew between the two boats. At 7.30 A.M. the chief officer took charge of the jolly-boat by the captain's request, with four hands in her, in order to pull to leeward of the island, the gig to remain to windward, but through some misunderstanding the gig also pulled around the leeward part of the island. Some natives were found and were very kind. The captain, with the mate, steward, and three seamen, went on board at great risk, as the breakers were running very high, and sent on shore some small sails and spars, in order to make a tent. No bread could be landed without its getting spoiled. By 4 P.M. got on shore all safe, and pitched tent, which afforded but little comfort, though the natives were very kind. On the 25th at 11 A.M. the gig arrived, the crew quite worn out, having had nothing te eat since they left the ship.

"We remained on the island eleven days, and found it was Ailu, in lat. 10.20 N., lon. 170.10 E. In the meantime we got boats ready for sea, and on the 30th Sept. left for Australia, steering S. Our boat parted company with the captain's on the 9th, and we experienced very boisterous weather up to the Equator, which we crossed on the 23rd, in lon. 167.30 E. From that time to the 26th we had fine weather, when it again became boisterous and squally, lasting so up to the 1st of Oct., on which date we sighted a ship bearing N.W. We immediately bore down towards her, our ensign flying down, and at 7.30 got alongside, and found her to be the ship Borealis, from London. We were received on board with great kindness. During the twenty-eight days we passed in the boat we were limited to three biscuits and a pint and a-half of water man each per diem."

SAIGON.

Dates extend to the 26th November.

We learn from the Courrier that complete tranquillity prevails in the colony, the goodwill of the natives increases, and, in many branches of commerce the production has been doubled in the course of the past year. The province of Sadec is especially prospering.

At Hatien the floods have risen to the uncommon height of three metres. In consequence of this circumstance numbers of wild animals—elephants, tigers, &c.—had been compelled to take refuge from the swamps in the higher ground, to the terror of the villagers.

A small steamer, owned by some Siamese in Bangkok, has been through Hatien with merchandise for Puompenh. The success which has attended the first voyage of this vessel, and the short time occupied by it, afford great promise of increased trade between Cochin-China and Siam.

Generally speaking, the prospects of the rice harvest are good, and much activity prevails in the erection of public buildings. A market-place has been commenced at Travinh. The church at Vinh-long is completed. The works in the fort of Hatien are rapidly advancing.

A Chinese theatre was opened at Cau-ong-laugh every evening—a sign of increasing confidence and sympathy between the Annamese and their "country-cousins."

By an omission not uncommon with the French mail, but which we hope better arrangements will soon rectify, our file of Straits papers and correspondence is not to hand. Dates extend to the 30th November.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Business in Woollens had been very limited, and only a few transactions in Alpacas, Mousselines, and Cloth at former prices had transpired. Black Lastings remained saleable at $12 to 12.50; Scarlet Camlets at $19.50 to 20. The demand for Blankets had subsided. Cottons were very dull, but prices had not undergone any material change. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., $2.20 to 2.21½; 8 lbs., $2.50 to 2.52½; 9 lbs., $2.80 to 2.82½. Black Velvets, $9.50 to 9.75. Cotton Yarns, 16 to 24, $37·50 to $38.25; 28 to 32, $43 to 44.

SHANGHAI.—At the time of the present mail's departure an import market did not exist, no sales had been effected, quotations there were none, the whole concern having been salted, i.e., for the privilege of dealing in salt the mandarins had adopted a system of lottery—there were about eighty prizes, but all who go in must take Tls. 3,000 or thereabout of hard sycee, to deposit before he can go in for a chance. The profit on the licence to deal in salt is something very considerable; it is said that each ticket drawn is immediately saleable for about Tls. 8,000 to 10,000. So that whilst only about a quarter of a million taels is absolutely required, speculators desirous to try for a chance have sent up some three million taels, and hence for the time the place was quite bare of sycee and the most exorbitant interest was being paid from day to day on loans for short periods. This state of things cannot last long, but in the meantime there were no transactions in textile fabrics, and consequently quotations are entirely nominal.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Market without change.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Market fairly active, considering that there was but a small stock on offer. A line of common Hohows had been taken at Tls. 15 to 18, presumably for the Continent, and there had been a good demand for all teas above common. Stock small, and season nearly at an end. Settlements, 8,000 chests; stock, 9,500 chests. Green: The extreme tightness of the money market had induced teamen to ask lower prices. The market was generally quoted easier, but there was little business doing. The arrivals had been trifling. Further supplies of Pingsueys had come forward, for which high prices were asked.

FOOCHOW.—There had been an active demand for all descriptions of Congou and Souchong at an advance on previous quotations; other kinds had been comparatively neglected. In Congou operations had been on a large scale, and all classes, with the exception of dust and siftings, showed an advance of from Tls. 1 to 1½ per picul. Settlements 23,787 chests at Tls. 3½ to 24. Arrivals 6,300 chests. Souchong: Settlements for the week amounted to 2,417 chests at Tls. 12½ to 32, prices having advanced from Tls. 1 to 1½. Arrivals nil.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been but small business, owing to holders being disinclined to reduce prices. Mybash and Sinchu realised $750 to 760 for best, and $680 to 700 for medium inferior. Oshu, extra, was worth $780 to 820.

SHANGHAI.—The market was quite paralysed, owing to the high ruling rate of exchange. Native interest was also very high, and the reduction they were willing to make on their silks was not nearly equivalent to the rate of exchange. No quotations. Stock, 4,500 bales.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The quietude usually apparent in the market for imported produce at the present season has been observable during the past week, and very little business has been done.

The TEA market has been unusually quiet, even for the time of year. The paucity of arrivals having left us barely supplied with useful kinds of Congou, there has been no inducement for buyers to add to their stocks; and this, coupled with the usual Christmas holidays, has curtailed business to such an extent as to leave little subject of remark under the different heads, prices showing little, if any, change. During the last few days there have been several arrivals, and with a better assortment on offer we may expect to see a fair business done at full prices after the holidays.

Digitized by Google

There is no change in the SILK market, which keeps exceedingly firm, with more business doing than usual at this period; full rates are paid for good Tsatlees and Cantons, and the general tendency is towards stiffer rates for silk. Deliveries are still very satisfactory, the total from 1st to 27th inst. showing the following figures:—

China	2,384	1,999
Canton	787	570
Japan	645	257
Bengal	314	215
Total ...	4,130	3,041 bales.

The position of other articles calls for no special remark. The market for COFFEE is closed until the 4th, and that for SUGAR till the 2nd proximo. Meanwhile a small private trade is being done in both at firm prices. Business to some extent is also being transacted in MANILA HEMP by private contract, but prices paid have not been allowed to transpire. Straits TIN is firm at £146 on the spot, £145 to £146 afloat. In other articles there are no transactions to record.

MARINE INSURANCE.

MORRISON v. THE UNIVERSAL MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The case—tried at Liverpool on the 22nd inst., before Mr. Justice Blackburn and a special jury—was a new action to try whether the plaintiff was entitled to recover £500 on a policy of insurance effected upon the chartered freight of a vessel called the Cambria, of which Mr. Morrison was the owner. The matter was tried before Chief Baron Kelly last summer, and reported in our issue of 18th August, but no verdict was arrived at, as the jury could not agree.

The following are the facts of the case:—The plaintiff had carried on business at Union-court, Liverpool, for a great number of years, under the name of Morrison and Co. He was the owner of a vessel called the Cambria, which sailed in May, 1870, on a voyage from Cardiff to Bahia with coals. She reached Bahia on the 9th of July and left on the 18th of August, bound for the South-west Passage, one of the mouths of the Mississippi, for orders. On the 9th September a charter party was entered into between the plaintiff and Messrs. M'Mahon and Co., of Galveston, by which it was agreed that the Cambria, which was classed A 1 at the American Lloyd's, should, with all convenient speed, proceed to the South-west Passage for charterers' orders (which were to be given within twenty-four hours), sail thence to Galveston, Texas, New Orleans, or Mobile, or so near as she could, and there to load a full cargo of cotton in compressed bales, and go on to Liverpool, or as near thereto as she could safely get. The freight payable in respect of that was £5,000. The ship arrived at the South-west Passage on the 3rd October, and having received orders proceeded for Galveston on the 4th. On the 18th August, when the vessel left Bahia, the Captain, J. Owens, wrote home informing the plaintiff that all was well. Nothing more was heard of her for some time, and as she had not been spoken with up to the 8th of October, the plaintiff became very uneasy, as he had neither insured the vessel, which was worth £5,000, nor the chartered freight. Accordingly on that day he wrote to Messrs. Previté and Greig, brokers, 3, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London, as follows:—"Please insure the Cambria; £5,000 on ship, valued thereat, home to Liverpool with cotton; and £5,000 on chartered freight, valued thereat. She sailed from Bahia in ballast on the 18th August, and I have not seen her spoken since, so I am a little uneasy. Do it on the best terms you can, as I don't like to run any more risk. I suppose you will have to pay something like ten guineas per cent." After despatching that letter he closed his office and went home to his residence at Liscard. While seated with his family, one of his sons drew his attention to a paragraph in one of the Liverpool newspapers, to the following effect:—"Cambria (? Callao), from New Orleans, aground North Breaker," which is near Galveston. On the following Monday the same paper announced "that the vessel reported yesterday on the North Breaker as the Cambria, is stated to be the Cameo, from New Orleans." The plaintiff very early on Monday morning telegraphed those facts to the brokers, and asked them if they could find out any more definite news at Lloyd's. The reply he received was that the vessel appeared to be the Cameo, and not the Cambria. Plaintiff telegraphed back that although the news he had received was a great relief, he had been so frightened that he wished insurance to be done on the best terms. In one of his messages he desired that the matter should be closed immediately, "as any minute might bring a cable message." On Oct. 11 Messrs. Prévite and Greig wrote as follows:—"We have now insured on chartered freight, per Cambria, upon a voyage named by you as follows: £3,150 at six guineas per cent., and £500 at eight guineas per cent. on a cotton cargo to Liverpool." It was the latter insurance which was disputed. The following day Mr. Morrison telegraphed to his brokers, "Finish the insurance; will even give ten guineas." They replied, "Have done £500 more on freight at eight guineas per cent. Fear can't do more. Underwriters afraid of hurricane 17th and 18th September, which this vessel might have encountered.' The Cambria sailed for Galveston on the 4th of October, and all went well until the 6th, when it seemed that the master, not having calculated the strength of the current, drifted a considerable distance out of his course, and ran his vessel on to the North Breaker, making her a total wreck. The master went on shore at Galveston, and saw the American Lloyd's agent, who telegraphed the accident to the agent at New York. He also sent a cable message from Galveston, the same evening, to "Charles Morrison and Company, Castle-street, Liverpool," as follows:—"Ship Cambria ashore near here; full of water; lost." According to the Post-office authorities, that telegram, which was addressed to "Charles Morrison and Company, Liverpool"—the words "Castle-street," being omitted—arrived there on the 7th October; but Mr. Morrison denied ever having received it.

The Jury retired to consider their verdict, and after an absence of an hour and three-quarters, returned into court and said they could not agree. They were sent back, and after a further absence of about two hours, they returned with answers to questions which his Lordship had put to them, the effect being a verdict for the defendants, and an exoneration of the plaintiff from any imputation of fraud.

LITERATURE.

The Cornhill for January contains an amusing paper on "Quaint Customs in Kwei Chow"—that strange outlying tract of highland territory which runs through the Southern centre of the Chinese Empire and yet is virtually independent of it. Its inhabitants acknowledge no allegiance to the Emperor, entirely ignore the authority of the mandarins, and hold only just as much communication with their more civilised neighbours of the plains as suits their purposes. No European has ever ventured into their retreats, and Chinese travellers never willingly trust themselves among them. The paper before us has therefore more than common interest, but the rest of the number shows that the editor was determined to commence the new year well. The fourth sketch in "Hours in a Library" (Thomas Fuller) is scholarly and genial; the "Story of the Plebiscite" is valuable at the present moment; and "Lord Kilgobbin" is spiritedly continued, though we must confess we are getting rather desirous for it to end.

The Music Lesson of Confucius, and Other Poems. By Charles Godfrey Leland. London: Trubner and Co.—Few humourists have sprung suddenly into such esteem and popularity as "Hans Breitmann," the author of the well-known ballads. The drollery of these verses was at once recognised as being as remarkable as their sarcastic truthfulness and applicability. But few of the readers who have laughed over the first little volume of the new author would have been likely to suspect that under the mask of raillery he concealed a true poetic temperament, fine feeling, and great culture. We now, however, find Mr. Leland, putting off his pseudonym (we trust only for a time, for we cannot spare Hans Breitmann), and presenting us with a volume of tender, thoughtful, and aspiring verse. If we cannot assign to Mr. Leland so high a place as a poet as that which he occupies by general consent as a humourist, we can yet safely commend his last little book to our readers as one which embodies many graceful thoughts and throws out many more suggestive ones.

THE following appointments have been made to the China Station to replace those officers whose terms of service have expired:—Lieutenants Palmer, K. Smythies, Alfred Carpenter; Surgeon E. B. Broster; Assistant Surgeon Peter Burgess; Midshipmen Henry Leah, George A. Primrose.

THE LOSHAI EXPEDITION.

The Loshai expedition, says the Globe, promises for some time to come to be a subject of interest. Nearly fifty years ago the King of Ava, having pushed some of his troops into the Company's territories in the direction of Cachar and Arracan, attacked an island on the Arracan coast, and put to death some of the small guard stationed there. When asked to explain the King threatened to invade Bengal; and so, in May, 1824, began the first Burmese war, which ended in the beginning of 1826 by the Burmese losing Munnipoor, Assam, Arracan, the Martaban coast, and their having to pay us a million sterling towards the expenses of one of the most costly wars on record. So began our first acquaintance with the Golden Foot, which eventually added Pegu, a province larger than Belgium, to our Eastern possessions. Since then, led on by the force of circumstances to punish the lawless or refractory tribes beyond the countries on the north-eastern frontier of Bengal, our expeditions appear to be leading us to the extreme east, amongst varieties of strange people. The first Burmese war gave quite new features to our study of Asiatic character; the second, immediately after the capture of Rangoon in 1852—styled by The Times of the day "a brilliant feat of arms"—made us acquainted with many peculiar races; and now the present Loshai expedition bids fair, not only to make the Calcutta merchants better acquainted with south-western China, if not by a land route, by the Irrawaddy from Bhamo to the new and rising Liverpool of Chin-India, Rangoon, but to introduce us to interesting tribes belonging to regions where the civilising and enlightening influence of the daring and inquiring traveller has yet to be cast. We trust that, while entering new fields, the Loshai campaign may do something towards breaking the exclusive spell of Western China; but before this can be done we must be prepared to encounter the passions and prejudices of many tribes around the former Burman Empire.

THE MONT CENIS TUNNEL.

Several correspondents have forwarded us their experiences of the transit through the Mont Cenis Tunnel, and we are glad to state that in each case the report is of a favourable character. One letter—in this instance from a lady—says:—"After the cruel severity of my journey through France, during which I was, despite all precautions, well-nigh stupefied with cold, the atmosphere of the Tunnel was delightfully warm, and I only wished it was tunnel all the way. There was no offensive smell, no difficulty in breathing; the passage was well lighted, and quite as unalarming in appearance as the Metropolitan Railway in London—indeed, infinitely less disagreeable to the olfactory sense." Another correspondent also speaks well of the route, and says:—"The transit occupies exactly thirty minutes, there is no objectionable gas, and the air is pleasantly warm. As a matter of course, in summer the Tunnel will be pleasantly cool."

PROPOSED BREAKWATER AND DOCKS AT COLOMBO.—The Scotsman, writing on this subject, which has been fully discussed in our columns, says:—We have now the report of Mr. Townshend, the superintendent of the great Plymouth Breakwater, employed purposely by the Ceylon Government, as to the feasibility of a first-class breakwater there. The entire trade of the island, amounting to ten millions sterling annually, has its seat at Colombo, and thirty or forty large Indiamen are often riding in the roadstead, taking in their cargoes of coffee, spices, &c. Still it is only an open roadstead; but the engineer's report shows that for the sum of £700,000 or £800,000 an excellent breakwater, with two wet docks covering sixty acres, and affording shelter at all times, with every facility for discharging cargo, or coaling, or refitting, can be obtained. A great and growing want would thus be met, and the Ceylon Government may be trusted to prosecute the matter with energy. Its credit stands high, and the money would, for such a national purpose, be at once forthcoming. If to the above is added the probability of a navigable channel for large ships being made betwixt Ceylon and the mainland, and thus reducing the passage to Calcutta and other places in the Bay of Bengal by several days, this country will have done something to redeem our supineness in facilitating our commerce with India and the East.

RELIGIOUS PAPERS.—We must confess that we are at a loss to understand the spirit of the religious press this week. In two of the most respectable and influential of this kind of journal—the English Independent and the Weekly Review—we find religious papers followed by panegyrics on whiskey—whiskey general and whiskey particular—the manufacture of a firm whose name, lest we should, like our contemporaries, incur the suspicion of puffing it, we forbear to mention. Articles of this kind are certainly rather spirituous than spiritual; and if the praise of the "mutchkin" is to be sounded at all in the columns of our sober contemporaries, we would suggest that the saving clause, "Advt.," should be prefixed to such effusions, lest they should be suspected to proceed from the editorial pen, and editorial temperance made liable to the imputation of being, like the whiskey, "above proof."

A DEPUTATION from the Municipality of Brindisi has waited upon the Italian Government for the purpose of recommending various measures for the improvement of the port and the town. It seems that a company has been formed which is willing to construct warehouses and docks, and which has already deposited a million of lire by way of guarantee with the Bank of Naples. The deputation suggests that the Government should advance to the town, for public improvements, two millions of lire, to be repaid without interest in forty years.

H.M.S. Princess Charlotte, hospital-ship at Hong Kong, is to be replaced by a new vessel. It is probable that one of the wooden three-deckers now lying at Portsmouth will be selected for the service, surveys having been held to determine which is the best ship for the purpose.

The troopship Simoom, Captain Madden, will leave Queenstown this day with the 80th Regiment for embarkation this week on board the troopship Orontes at Portsmouth, for Hong Kong.

REAR-ADMIRAL JAMES H. COCKBURN will proceed in H.M.S. Glasgow to the Hooghly, where he will receive the King of Siam on his Majesty landing at Calcutta.

THE SINGAPORE RAILWAY.

WE regret to learn that the Straits Government has it in contemplation to undertake the construction of the Singapore Railway, and not to allow the capitalists who are prepared with funds and estimates, and the merchants whose interests are chiefly involved in it, to construct in for themselves, as they are quite prepared to do. This is a step in the wrong direction, and we are at a loss to decide whether it will prove more injurious to the prestige of the Government, or to the prosperity of the Settlement. It requires no extraordinary perception to see that in the proposed measure the Government of the Straits is flattering itself with the idea that it is but following in the wake of the Government of Ceylon. But the Singapore Cabinet must be exceedingly prejudiced, or strongly self-willed, if it fails to perceive that the two cases have nothing in common. It is one thing to strike out a line of railway eighty miles long in a flourishing colony which owes everything to the judgment and enterprise of its Governor, and another for a Government which, through a series of failures, has become an object of mistrust, to insist on depriving a mercantile community of the opportunity of connecting their wharves and warehouses by a short line of some five miles which they were the first to point out the necessity of. The assumption of the little Singapore Railway by the Government can only mean one of two things. It is either a pretext for new taxation, on the ground of increased expenditure, or it is an excuse for giving further contracts in a direction where contracts for public works have hitherto been very unsatisfactory. Surely the Straits Government cannot shut its eyes to the fact that it has long ceased to possess the public confidence as regards the expenditure of the public money. Surely the lamentable fiasco of the Waterworks must have convinced that august body that its surveyors are not precisely the kind of men to whom the regulation of gradients and other engineering necessities can be entrusted with much hope of either economy or efficiency—for the water supply, notwithstanding the great outlay to obtain it, is still utterly insufficient for the requirements of the town? Surely the Government's experience of the heavy losses that have accrued on its steamers; and surely the utter confusion of the estimates, which calculated the cost of Government House at precisely one-half of its real cost—£20,000 for £40,000—can hardly justify the supposition that the architects and contractors hitherto employed should be re-engaged on a work so important as the railway? The truth is—and it is better that the Straits Government should recognise it now than leave it to be forced on its attention hereafter—that there is a shrewd suspicion abroad that the present step is only an excuse to "make work" for persons whose work the public have often expressed dissatisfaction with. Is the Government, which has neglected to provide anything of the kind for so many years, and which is gravely suspected of not having laid out the public money to the best advantage in other works, to step in, profit by the experience and enterprise of the mercantile community, wrest an undoubtedly useful work from their hands, and raise the money required—not by private subscription, where shareholders can look after their own interests, but by the taxation of the whole settlement, the disposal of whose funds can never be fully investigated—for the purpose of furnishing employment for a few favoured individuals whose work has hitherto been as unsatisfactory as its cost has been extravagant? The bare idea of such a proposition as the one before us, coming from such a Government as that of the Straits, is preposterous; and if our friends in Singapore allow themselves to be coerced or misled into it they will have only themselves to blame for the increased drain on the public purse, which will certainly "loom in the future" as soon as a Government contract is signed for the new line. Private enterprise created the necessity for it, private enterprise has funds and plans ready to construct it, and private enterprise ought not to submit to be dictated to by a Government which has utterly failed to "set its house in order."

THE AUDIENCE QUESTION.

THE article on this subject which we extract from Macmillan will commend itself to our subscribers by the truth of its views and the force of their expression. Fact after fact is brought before us with startling rapidity, until the reader sees at a glance not only the present situation, but the causes that have led to it and the right way to cut the Gordian knot of difficulty in China. By a war which cost six millions sterling certain Treaty rights were obtained; among these was the right of audience with the Chinese EMPEROR; this dear-bought right Lord RUSSELL directed our Minister to waive ten years ago—and the consequence has been that our relations with China have been growing more and more unsettled ever since. The only way to restore them is to insist on the revision of the Treaty which has lately expired It is well known that he is not, and has not been for a few years, a minor; but, if we are to wait till his majority is acknowledged by the literati, there is every reason to fear that the treaties will have become mere waste-paper, and that it will be impossible to restore them without, at least, the threat of war. Prompt and decisive action in the revision of the Treaties, is, our contemporary thinks, the only way to avoid such a calamity. We heartily agree with him, and feel that he has rendered a public service by bringing a subject so important, but one in which so many may not have felt an interest previously, before his readers. Mr. WADE, in his recent despatch, confirms the experiences of his predecessors as to the unreasonable and almost undisguised spirit of procrastination displayed by all the members of the Chinese Government, including those who have long endeavoured to take credit for liberality and friendliness to foreigners. This being the case, it is evident that the longer the settlement is deferred the less becomes the chance of any settlement at all being arrived at without force of arms. What outrages the populace may be incited to beforehand it is easy to surmise, and with common firmness we believe it easy to avert. If Lord GRANVILLE neglects the opportunity so clearly explained by his own Minister as becoming less and less available the longer it is put off, the country will certainly not hold him guiltless of the sacrifice of life which another war would cause.

ANOTHER REMARKABLE INSURANCE CASE.

EXTREMES meet. Last week, when commenting on the Blackadder insurance case, we felt it our duty to express a decided opinion on the disposition of underwriters to dispute losses for which they could not, morally or legally, avoid holding themselves liable. This week we have to record another insurance case which bears in a diametrically opposite direction. The action Morrison v. the Universal Marine Insurance Company—reported in another column—was, no doubt, very justly decided in favour of the defendants; but we think our readers will agree with us that it ought never to have been brought at all; and that, as it was brought, the verdict should not have been unaccompanied with some severe expression of censure from the jury. For the honor of commerce generally, and for the protection of the vast and special interests involved in cases like these two, it would be well that a moral as well as legal force should be given to verdicts, by way of "rider," so that frivolous and vexatious proceedings—whether on one side or the other, whether arising from unjustifiable greed on the part of plaintiff or defendant—should not only fail, but that their failure should bring with it something more than merely money loss. Such cases give rise to apprehension that in both contracting parties in Marine Insurance there is growing up a class who are disposed, coute qui'l coute, either to avoid fair responsibility themselves or to fasten responsibility unfairly on others. The evil effects of such a canker in the insurance world cannot be exaggerated. Associations for securing individuals from the ruinous consequences of accidents beyond their own control now form a necessary part of our social institutions. It is of the first importance that the conditions of their risks should neither be misrepresented nor tampered with; and the new and mighty influence of the telegraph now affords facilities by which unscrupulous persons will be continually tempted to aggrandise or recoup themselves at the expense of their neighbours. In both the cases before us, no doubt, the loss was accidental and unavoidable. In the former the jury found that the claim should never have been resisted, in the latter that it should never have been preferred. We agree with the principles of both verdicts—no twelve men of business could have agreed on any other.

But, leaving the broad questions of commercial morality involved in these cases to be settled—as they are sure to be settled—by the silent but irresistible influence they will exercise on marine insurance in future, we cannot fail to see that in this last action a great measure of progress has been gained, and a new stand-point established. It is one that will be equally acceptable to all right-minded and well-meaning men, whether insurers or insured, whether shipowners or underwriters. Mr. Justice BLACKBURN, in endorsing the validity of the "slip" as a deed of contract between parties, has set at rest a vexed question which has more than once been raised by obstinate or unscrupulous persons. The confusion that would have arisen if these small but most important pieces of paper had been held to be valueless would have re-acted to the injury of both merchant and underwriter; and we cannot regret the loss of time and money in pressing the case of Morrison v. the Universal to a second trial—especially as the costs willl fall mainly on the plaintiff, and the information obtained will be of inestimable value to the Company—seeing that, for the future, it will form a precedent by which every class of the shipping interest cannot but be gainers. And we cannot close our remarks without expressing our opinion that the commercial world owe a great debt of obligation to the Directors and Officers of the Universal for their firmness in resisting this claim, which they have succeeded in getting disallowed alike by the verdict of the jury and the ruling of the judge.

THE TRADE OF FRANCE AND THE FAR EAST.

The Customs tables for 1870, just issued by the French Government, contain a return of the direct trade of France with China and the Far East, compared with the two preceding years. The imports were as follows:—Silkworms' eggs, from China: 1870—arrivals, 87,500 kilos.; taken for consumption, 52,200 kilos.; 1869—arrivals, 4,064 kilos.; for consumption, 3,950; 1868—3,595 kilos., all taken for consumption. From Japan: 1870—none imported; 1869, 88,853 kilos. and 67,389 kilos.; 1868, 234,922 kilos. and 189,934. Cocoons, from China, arrivals, 1870, 56,100 kilos.; 1869, 59,780 kilos.; 1868, 42,979 kilos., all taken for consumption in the first two years; 42,909 kilos. in 1868. Raw silk: arrivals 1870, 800,500 kilos.; 1869, 681,122 kilos.; 1868, 1,012,976 kilos.; taken for consumption in the three years 585,600, 509,898, and 488,531 kilos. Tea: Arrivals, 1870, 287,070 kilos.; 1869, 238,996 kilos.; 1868, 291,454 kilos.; taken for consumption in the three years, 231,128, 151,660, and 173,929 kilos. These latter figures do not represent the entire consumption of tea in France, as in each year an almost equal quantity was imported indirectly, chiefly from England. Porcelain from China, 1870, estimated value, f.145,833; 1869, f.136,819; 1868, f.82,799; from Japan, in the same years, f.4,907, f.13,696, and f.34,816. China Crape, 1870, 137 kilos.; none in 1869; 76 kilos. in 1868.

The direct exports consisted only of leathern goods to Japan, of which 1,869 kilos. were sent in 1870, 5,392 kilos. in 1869, and 5,018 kilos. in 1868. The exportations of silver were as under:—To China, in 1870, 29,030 hectogrammes in weight, in specie; in 1869, 22,560 hecs. in bullion and 173,050 in specie; 1868, 32,860 hecs. in bullion and 64,650 in specie. To Cochin China: 60,000 hecs. in 1870, 263,700 in 1869, and 84,730 in 1868. The hectogramme is equal to 3 1-5th oz. troy.

The only article of importation from Cochin China in sufficient quantity to be specified is rice, of which 2,346 tons were brought direct to France in 1870, 7,176 in 1869, and 3,568 in 1868. The other articles from that country are comprised in the general head "other countries."

The Journal du Havre says:—

"The attention of the Government appears to be at this moment directed to the colonies, the riches of which, hitherto neglected, may be made to relieve the charges of the Budget in a considerable proportion. The Minister of Marine and the Colonies has with this view given orders for a greater extension to be given to the cultivation of rice in Cochin China, which has not received sufficient attention for some time past. The commercial relations between China and Cochin China are also likely to be shortly increased. Lieutenant Rouchoux, one of the most distinguished officers in the navy, has been sent on a mission, with leave of absence for three years, to organise a service of steamers and transports to touch at the different ports of the two countries."

The Journal Officiel also publishes a note on the same subject. It says:—

"The transport service by Government vessels between France and the different colonies having been defective during the last few years, the Minister of Marine, preoccupied with that situation, and desirous of introducing all possible improvements in an organisation on which the health and comfort of persons depends, has recently adopted different measures, the effect of which will be to modify completely the situation of passengers on board Government vessels. A regular service is now established at fixed dates every two months between Toulon and Cochin China. Three large transport vessels are being fitted up for that purpose in a uniform manner, which will completely transform the hygienic state of the passengers on board, and especially of the sick and convalescent returning from Saigon to France. As a complement to those measures, it must be mentioned that those same transport vessels will in future carry only 600 passengers to Cochin China instead of 800 or 900 as formerly. Strict orders have been given in that sense, and there will be no longer any grounds for complaints of over-crowding as formerly, so prejudicial to the health of the troops and seamen on board."

THE SILK TRADE.

An important meeting of the Silk Committee of the Macclesfield Chamber of Commerce has been held, the Mayor in the chair. Mr. Brocklehurst, referring to Mr. Consul Robertson's recent report, said there was nothing so desirable for this country as that our consuls in different parts should send home all the information in their power with reference to the produce of the raw materials with which this country is supplied. Mr E. Clarke contended that the hasty and inattentive reeling had been brought about chiefly by the European buyers taking anything and everything which had been brought to the market. Mr. Bullock drew attention to a matter which deserved more interest than had been taken in it. It had reference specially and entirely to the silk which was bought and received and used in this and other towns with which he was connected. It was well known that the trade was subject occasionally to heavy loss from cut and damaged silk being found in bales that were sold and bought as sound and perfect silk, and his object was, if possible, to get compensation for this secret cut silk, and so put an end to the dishonest practice of packing such in bales and representing them to be sound. These cut slips, as was well known, could not by any possibility be seen until the bundles of silk were opened. The books or bundles might appear all right until they were opened, and then came these concealed slips of nearly worthless material, for which at present the purchaser could get no compensation because there was no evidence that it came out of a certain bale. A similar state of things formerly existed in the cotton trade, but the manufacturers determined to put a stop to it, and by taking united action upon the question they brought into operation a system to the following effect:—That if any damaged article is found inside a packed bale of cotton the man who takes it out goes before a magistrate, makes an affidavit of the fact, and the owner is thereby enabled to obtain compensation for the damaged material so found. Now he (Mr. Bullock) contended that there ought to be a similar law with reference to silk. (Hear, hear.) There was a good opportunity now of pressing the matter, if the Silk Committee concurred with him in the opinion that it was a proper subject for agitation. Mr. Brocklehurst, Mr. Cornes, and Mr. John Smale expressed their concurrence with the object Mr. Bullock had in view, and expressed their opinion that, by united action, it could be attained.

WE understand that the Foreign-office has intimated to the Chairman of the Straits Settlements Association, that the Treaty lately made with the Dutch Government in regard to Sumatra, will be ratified to-morrow.

THE AUDIENCE QUESTION.

(MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE.)

Were the unsatisfactory position of what is called the Audience question recognised as an efficient cause of all our unbroken failure, some effort might possibly be made to adjust the matter. The position of that question appears to be this. Acting on their assumption of universal sovereignty, the Chinese authorities refuse to receive the foreign ministers as the representatives of independent States; and the latter are denied access to the Emperor, except on the impossible condition of their prostrating themselves in token of vassalage. The result is, that the foreign ministers are without power or influence, and greatly compromise the dignity of their countries by their residence in Peking under the irksome restraints that are put upon them. The negotiators of the British Treaties intended to guard carefully against this state of affairs, for they saw very clearly what Mr. Wade so well expressed, that the foreign minister who should take up his residence in Peking and "not insist on an audience, would not practically gain access to Peking for any diplomatic purpose." The whole history of our legation is a commentary on that text. We have not got to Peking for any diplomatic purpose, and therefore might as well have had our Embassy at Timbuctoo.

While we are pharisaically pluming ourselves on our humility in promoting China to equality of rank with ourselves, she is in reality spurning us from her footstool. It is China that refuses to acknowledge not only the "comity" of nations, but the existence of any nation save one. It is the Emperor who, as Heaven's Vicegerent, wields the sovereignty of the whole world, and commands the obedience of all the petty chiefs, such as the Queen of Great Britain and the Emperor of Germany.

As this Audience question is really the pivot of our relations with the Chinese Government, and will be the rallying-point in the unfortunate event of our again getting into difficulties with China, it is worth while to discover, if possible, what weighty considerations have induced our representatives to waive their right in the face of the disastrous experience of Lord Elgin. It will be observed that Article III. of the Treaty of Tientsin rather takes for granted than expressly stipulates for the right of audience; but its meaning is rendered unmistakable by the interpretation put upon the clause by Mr. Bruce, himself having been mainly responsible for the wording of the Treaty. In a despatch to the Chinese Commissioners, dated Shanghai, June 8, 1859, he informs them that he is resolved to proceed forthwith to Peking, there to exchange the ratifications of the Treaty, "and to deliver in person the letter committed to my charge by my gracious Sovereign to his Imperial Majesty." And the supreme practical significance of this right was fully recognised by Mr. Bruce, as appears from his despatch to Lord Malmesbury, dated July 13, 1859, in which he says:—

"According to it (the Treaty of Tientsin) the British Minister is to be accredited as a representative of an independent equal Power, and the Chinese Government in its treatment of him is called upon finally to abandon the assumption of superiority which it asserted uncompromisingly during Lord Amherst's Embassy, and so lately as three years ago, when Count Putiatine first proposed to visit Peking."

And similarly Mr. Wade, at that time Chinese Secretary to the Legation, and now Minister at Peking, observed:—

"It is only by insuring the attention which must be yielded when the question of equality is no longer in dispute, that we can hope for a peaceable settlement of misunderstanding with a people whose bigotry, arrogance, and insincerity are kept in check only by their fears."

This privilege, then, of personal reception by the Emperor of China, implying the equality of Great Britain, which had been virtually surrendered by Lord Elgin in 1858, was recovered at the cost of a war in 1860; and by the Convention signed at Peking, on October 24 of that year, it was provided that—

"The arrangement entered into at Shanghai between Lord Elgin and the Commissioners Kweiliang and Hwashana is at an end, and that the Queen of England resumes the unqualified exercise of the authority accruing to Her Majesty under Article III. of the Treaty of Tientsin."

But if so practised and hard-headed a statesman as Lord Elgin succumbed, even once, to the cajolery of the Chinese, it was hardly to be expected that those who came after him should be able to withstand their insidious attacks. By what means our representatives in China have been persuaded to connive at the loss of our dear-bought privileges is a secret chapter of the history. From what has been written and published we should infer that, Sinensiores ipsis Sinensibus, they found excuses for the non-fulfilment of the Treaty which the Chinese themselves did not deign to put forward. A despatch written by Lord Russell, on the 9th January, 1861, formally authorising the ambassador to waive his right of audience, has rendered nugatory our whole diplomatic intercourse for the last ten years. But the representations from China must have been of a very emphatic character to have induced the Foreign Secretary thus to sign away the fruit of a war which had just been concluded at a cost of six millions of money. It is unfortunately always easier to forego than to maintain rights, and circumstances in this case were eminently favourable to the laissez-faire policy. The old Emperor had fled to Yehol, where he died in 1861; his successor was then, and is still, a minor. It is not clear whether the Chinese ministers urged this as an apology for their non-fulfilment of treaty; perhaps they found no excuse necessary, since foreigners themselves were only too officious in discovering reasons why it would be injurious to China to make a public acknowledgment of the equality of barbarous kingdoms. But the minority of the Emperor has been so industriously put forward by the parliamentary mouth-pieces of our own Foreign Office as an argument against the assertion of our true position in China, that we cannot wonder if the Chinese Government make the most of the ready-made pretext, and prolong, as they are reported to be doing, the minority of their sovereign far beyond its natural term. The doctrine that the minority of the sovereign releases the nation from its engagements would hardly be a convenient one for general acceptance; but, as applied to China, the doctrine adapts itself but too easily to the natural negligence with which affairs are treated when removed to so safe a distance from public supervision. It is true, nevertheless, that a day of reckoning is coming, and it will be found that delay in grappling with the Audience question has not rendered its pacific solution the more easy. In fact, had our representatives in China and our Foreign Office at home conspired to sow the seeds of another war with China, they could not have proceeded by a surer method than by encouraging the Chinese authorities in the belief that their treaty obligations may be disregarded with impunity.

Would we, then, have had our representatives to cut their way into the presence chamber and present their letters to the Empress Regent or the young Emperor at the point of the bayonet? Before it becomes necessary to discuss such an awkward question, peaceable means must first have been tried without effect. So far as the official correspondence can enlighten us on this subject, there is no evidence of any serious effort ever having been made to obtain an audience of either Emperor or Regent. Expressions of impatience occasionally escape the Ministers, as when Mr. Wade reproached Prince Kung with not having "ventured boldly to declare to the Empire that foreign Powers are the equals of China, and that the Treaties are engagements with Sovereigns the equals of the Emperor; that foreign Ministers are spoken of as if they were not only the subjects of the Emperor of China, but the subordinates of the Chinese Minister addressing his Majesty." But by a tacit understanding no answer is expected to such communications, which, therefore, fail of result.

An admirable opportunity was thrown in our way three years ago of marking our sense of the treatment of the Queen's representative by the Chinese Government, supposing, that is, that our own Government do not feel aggrieved by that treatment, which seems somewhat doubtful. A Mission was despatched from China to foreign countries, headed by an American gentleman, with two Chinese officials as "co-envoys.' At the best this travelling embassy was only calculated to supersede and stultify the functions of our own Minister at Peking, and we therefore could have lost nothing by holding aloof from it. The suspicion of falsified credentials and other irregularities from which the character of the mission has only been ambiguously cleared, might have afforded additional reasons for caution in dealing with so singular an embassage. To admit under any circumstances Mr. Burlingame and his "co-envoys" to an audience of the Queen while Her Majesty's representative was being treated with contumely at Peking, was clearly to condone the latter offence, and to throw away a means almost providentially provided of protesting with effect against a national indignity. What Lord Clarendon ought to have done was surely this—to refuse to receive the Burlingame mission until Sir Rutherford Alcock had been received in a satisfactory manner at Peking. The Chinese envoys and those who sent them would of course have sacrificed the success of their mission rather than have bought it at such a price; but, nevertheless, such a decided stand made by us would have produced a most wholesome effect on the Chinese authorities, and at least paved the way to a settlement of the Audience question. On the 23rd November last another Chinese Embassy was reported to have been received by the French Government, also without any conditions as to reciprocity having been exacted, whence it appears that the statesmen of France are no more intelligently alive to their true position in the Far East than Lord Granville or Mr. Hammond.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Dec. 27.

By decree of the German Parliament the triennial census of the whole Empire was taken on the 1st inst., but there has not been time yet to furnish the results. The returns for Hamburg have however been made up, and show a satisfactory increase. Three years ago the population of the Hamburg State was 306,507; this number has in the meanwhile increased by 31,433, and now amounts to 337,940, being an augmentation of 10¼ per cent., which would have been considerably greater but for the losses occasioned by the late war and the epidemy of the small-pox, which has been very destructive to human life here this year, the number of deaths reported in the civil Registers being 3,200 more than last year. Of the whole population 235,365 are living in the city and its suburb, 60,053 in the nearer rural district, 33,263 in the more distant parts, 2,758 were living on board ships in harbour on the day when the census was taken, and 1,501 persons belonged to the garrison.

Nothing further has been settled respecting the fate of the Hamburg Bank Valuta; the Chamber of Commerce has made another attempt to save it by drawing up a second masterly memorial, but as yet no reply has been returned by the Senate. In the meantime the coining of the new gold money has already commenced at Berlin, and some of the other Mints mentioned in my last. It is now officially reported that they are able to strike off 2,220,000 pieces per month, of which 1,650,000 are the produce of the three Prussian Mints—Berlin, Hanover, and Frankfort—200,000 in Bavaria, 180,000 in Saxony, 100,000 in Wurtemberg, 50,000 in Baden, and 40,000 in Hessen. But still it will take three or four months to coin the 100,000 lbs. of gold provided for the first requirements, which will go but a very short way to replace the silver currency now in circulation, and a very large additional quantity of gold will be wanted.

The German Bank at Berlin has doubled its capital by an issue of new shares, and is taking steps to establish branches at Shanghai and Yokohama, with a view to extending its field of operations by obtaining the banking business of China and Japan.

Some time ago I informed your readers that by joint agreement of the Senate and Burgerschaft the Honorary Freedom of this city had been voted to Prince Bismark and Field Marshal Count von Moltke. The diplomas have now been made out, and in an artistic point of view leave nothing to be desired. They have been for a few days on show at the Gallery of Arts, and are to be forwarded to Berlin to-morrow to be presented to the recipients on New Year's Day.

Mr. P. B. Cuningham has been appointed Vice Consul for the King of Sweden and Norway at Canton under the Consulate General at Shanghai.

COMMERCIAL.

In consequence of the holidays business is generally very quiet, and there is but little to report to-day. A few hundred chests of tea have been taken for consumption, and 400/8 chests of Congou, 300 of Imperial, and 950/16 of Gunpowder have been sold for delivery on arrival. No alteration in Rice. Cassia moves off slowly at 11½ to 11⅞ sch. bco., and Flores is firm at 16 to 16¼. Pepper is decidedly cheaper and difficult to sell; nominal value, 6¾ to 6¼. Of Spelter 3,000 centners have changed hands at 14⅜ mks. bco., and the article has a tendency to a further rise.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 27.

The Christmas holidays have brought politics to a standstill. Notwithstanding that Christmas holds a less high place in our calendar than in those of England and Germany, the festival is, nevertheless, made the occasion for family reunions, and but very few people find time for business. Our principal item of news comes from Berlin. Some days ago a pamphlet was handed to me, entitled "The European-Asiatic Railway: Rotterdam and Tientsin," edited by Dr. Meissel, of Berlin (Hermann Peters, publisher). The author finds many faults in the present railway system of Europe; the communication is far from direct, and much time is expended in the service of small stations, with which the general interest has nothing to do. He thinks the time has now arrived to reorganise this system by the construction of lines of extreme length, which will bring very distant countries in close communication with each other. He goes on to say a good deal about the construction of railway carriages, grumbles much about the want of comfort we now find on Continental lines, and he finally brings forward his project for a railway between Rotterdam and Tientsin, thus placing Western Europe in direct communication with China and Japan. The author endeavours to make it clear that this enterprise would give large dividends, the principal guarantee for which he finds in the transport of merchandise. The principal stations on his proposed line are Jekaterinburg (Ural), Moscow, Wilna, Berlin, and from thence in a northerly direction via Urinstorf to Rotterdam. With an addition of 5 per cent. for branch lines he reckons the distance to be as follows:—

From Rotterdam to Berlin	87·7	Geographical miles
„ Berlin to Wilna	117·0	„	„
„ Wilna to Moscow	111·4	„	„
„ Moscow to Jekaterinberg	201·0	„	„

To reach China from Jekaterinberg the route via Irkutz and Kiachta must be followed—a distance of 132 geographical miles. From Kiachta the line would run via Urga, and Karachoto to Peking. The Asiatic part of the line (from Jekaterinburg to Peking) would have a length of 799 geographical miles. If no shorter communication can be found the distance between Rotterdam and Peking (Petchili-bay) will be 1,319 geographical miles, viz.:—

Holland	25	Geographical miles
North Germany	156	„	„
Russia	891	„	„

The line would pass through the following principal towns: Emden, Wunstorf, Magdenburg, Berlin, Stettin, Bromberg, Russian frontiers, Wilna, Witebsk, Gshatsk, Moscow, Wladimir, Balachna, Jekaterinburg, Tara, Tomsk, Krasnojarsk, Kansk, Birjusinsk, Nishne-Udinsk, Irkutsk, Kiachta, Urga, Karachoto and Peking. The author advocates Rotterdam as the point de départ because there is a very complete communication between England and that town, as well as with France, Belgium, Western Germany, and America. The harbour of Tientsin, the other terminal point of the line, affords the best communication by water with the other China harbours and with Japan. Water and coals are to be found everywhere along the proposed railway in abundance. The entire cost is calculated at 1,080 millions of thalers, and the question remains whether this enormous capital can be raised. But it is not my province to speculate thereupon; I have to relate facts, and I think the project one of much importance.

The several chapters of the Budgets have already been under examination in the sections of the First Chamber, which will resume business to-day. Some of the Ministers have already replied to the report, and I find that Mr. Gericke, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, has declared that he shares the regret of some members at the termination of the Papal mission. The whole population is anxious to know not only what the Lords will ultimately do about this question, but also respecting the action of the King with regard to the addresses which have been forwarded to him, requesting the maintenance of this mission, signed by tens of thousands of Roman Catholics. The relations between the Catholic and Protestant population become more complicated every day. The majority of the sections are favourable to the Bill proposing the cession of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa to England, and the new Treaty about Sumatra is also approved of. It is not the least doubtful but that both these measures will pass.

Mr. Thorbecke is still very ill, and serious fears are entertained of a fatal result. His death would greatly complicate the political situation. His successor would have to steer the ship of State through dangerous breakers, the Liberal Government would have to fight for bare life, and all must then depend upon the management and the tact of the new chief, whom nobody knows where to find. Nothing is settled about the successor to Mr. Engelvaart as Minster of War; Mr. Brock, the head of the Naval Department, has been charged ad interim with the portfolio.

The commission appointed to investigate the cause of the fire on board the steamer Willem III. has issued its report, in which it is stated that the fire most probably arose from spontaneous combustion of the cargo.

I hear that the Prins van Oranje sailed yesterday from Gibraltar.

Business has come to a total standstill, as usual at this season.

Advices from Berlin state that the Russian Government no longer oppose the desire of the Egyptian Khedive to see the Suez Canal neutralised in war as well as in peace. It is also believed that Mahmoud Pasha, the new Turkish Premier, though standing up for the sovereign rights of the Sultan over the canal, will be less exacting than his predecessor was in opposing onerous conditions upon the proprietors should the canal change hands.

The transfer books of the Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company (Limited) are closed, preparatory to the payment of an interim dividend for the year ending the 30th September last.

The P. and O. Steamer Peshawur, 3,782 tons, has arrived at Southampton from the Clyde. She is appointed to leave for Bombay direct, through the Suez Canal, on the 13th inst.

The numbers are published of the bonds of the Suez Canal Company, drawn to be paid off at par and at premiums. Of the latter, one gains, when paid, f.150,000, one f.25,000, two f.5,000, and twenty f.2,000 each.

The ordinary general meeting of the City Bank is convened for the 16th inst., to receive the report of the directors, and to declare a dividend.

Messrs. G. and A. Worms will, this day, pay the coupon due on the Dutch-Indian State Railway Preference Loan.

Owing to the Christmas holidays, the conferences between the committee of merchants and that of steamship owners, on the revision of the Bills of Lading, have been interrupted, but the matter will be probably concluded this week.

There has been launched from the ship-yard of Messrs. J. and G. Thomson, at Govan, Clyde, a screw steamship of 2,000 tons and 200-horse power, for Messrs. Thomas Skinner and Co.'s "Castle" line of steamers, from London to the Straits and China, via Suez Canal. The Drummond Castle is the second of four first-class steamships building by Messrs. Thomson for the same line.

Our Rotterdam correspondent's letter contains a notice of a proposed railway from that place to Peking! What shall we say now for Dutch enterprise? Certain it is that if they did succeed in so vast an undertaking it would be well done.

A circular now going the rounds of the Chambers of Commerce contains the proposition that the existing cables and Newfoundland land-lines should be purchased by the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, with a view to the reduction of the rate to one shilling a word at first, and afterwards to a less sum. The total cost of these lines is estimated at about £5,000,000, which might, the projectors believe—be obtained on the joint guarantee of the English and the United States Governments by granting annuities of five per cent. for thirty years. We doubt if the English public is yet prepared for the adoption of such an advanced scheme.

The market for Bar Silver has been very quiet, and there has been but little demand for the East; prices have, therefore, again declined, and the nearest we can quote is 60½d. per oz. standard. The Simla has taken £244 270 in Mexican Dollars to China and the Straits, and has thus cleared the market of the large amount lately received. Prices are not quite so firm, but there is no quoted alteration.

The Realm Marine Insurance Company have appointed as their underwriter Mr. A. T. Burrows, who has been for many years deputy underwriter at the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company in London.

CASUALTIES.

The Psyche, of London, lying in Penarth Dock, coal laden, for Shanghai, has the whole of her after part destroyed, having caught fire Dec. 22, when she was scuttled.

Part of the cargo of the Australie, Lucas, from Batavia to Amsterdam, which vessel was towed into Nieuwe Diep in a sinking state, and put aground, had been landed in tolerably good order, and sent on to Amsterdam by lighters, but the remainder is too much damaged to be forwarded.

The Erasmus, Hulshoff, which sailed from Sunderland Dec. 13 for Java, and put into Yarmouth roads, after being ashore at Cromer, had received damage, and would be towed round to London to have the same repaired.

The Sir Harry Parkes (ship), Chapman, which arrived at New York 12 Dec., from Hong Kong, reported having experienced strong S.W. gales in the China Sea, from Aug. 2 to 14, during which she had some sails split, and carried away foretopsail yard; she had also lost maintopsail yard when off the Cape of Good Hope.

A further survey had been held on the Matador, Kimnie, from Ilo Ilo to London, which vessel put into St. Helena, Nov. 5, leaky, when it was again recommended that she should discharge more of her cargo, in order to find out the leak; from 500 to 600 tons had already been landed.

A telegram received from Singapore, dated Dec. 26, states as follows:—"The Rollo, Way, from Hong Kong to London, which put in here dismasted, requires docking, new masts, rigging, &c.; some of planks are chafed; she will probably discharge entirely."

Although there is no statement of all the goods saved and landed from the Saida (str.), from London to Konigsberg, wrecked near Ronne, a quantity of the cargo has been saved, viz., up to the 17th Dec. there had been landed at Vang, 4,200 chests of tea undamaged, and about 1,000 chests of tea damaged. On the 17th tea and other goods were being got out rapidly in a damaged state; but on the 18th and 19th nothing could be done in consequence of unfavourable weather. In the opinion of experts the vessel may possibly yet be saved, provided the stormy weather of the last two days causes no impediment. A salvage steamer has since landed at Ronne 311 chests tea, in a damaged condition.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Hope, from Sunderland to Galle, which vessel anchored off Yarmouth, Dec. 19, on account of a portion of the crew having refused duty, proceeded on the 22nd for her destination.

At ST. HELENA.—Nov. 18, Gipsy, Bernier, from Ilo Ilo, and sailed for Liverpool; 23, Ambassador, Duggan, from Macao, and sailed for London; 24, Schiehallion, Levack, from Foochow; Pekin, Seymour, from Canton; 26, Serica, Innes, from Shanghai, and all three sailed for New York; 27, Windsor Castle, Dinsdale, from Sourabaya, and sailed for Falmouth; Benefactor, Berry, from Foochow, and sailed for New York; Annie Bow, McLean, from Shanghai; 28, Webfoot, Sturrock, from Pasaroeang, and both sailed for Amsterdam; Rookwood, Hopgood, from Macao.

Off ST. HELENA.—Nov. 25, Lauderdale, from Foochow; Caroline Hutchings, from Colombo, both for London; 27, Otto, from Batavia, for Rotterdam; Araby Maid, from Canton, for Hamburg.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

AND OINTMENT.—DERANGED STOMACH—SICK HEADACHE.—Our comfort, happiness, and security depend on the knowledge that most diseases originate by apparently a trifling beginning, and the large proportion of them spring from inattention to the state of the stomach. Professor Holloway has turned this knowledge to useful account by discovering medicines which rectify the error as soon as it is seen, and save the system from loss of appetite, strength, and energy, which are without exception the attendants on disordered digestion. They ward off, likewise, the torturing sick headache. The Ointment shouldbe well rubbed twice daily over the stomach, liver, and bowels; to them it penetrates, and upon them it immediately exerts its renovating influence.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The advices by Pacific mail, with dates from this port to the 23rd November, due last week, have not yet been received.

NAGASAKI.

The following items are from the Nagasaki Express:—

The arrivals of men-of-war at this port have been somewhat numerous during the week; the French gunboat Linois on the 14th Nov., from Ne-e-gata, and the French ironclad Alma, Cap. Pritzbuer, bearing the flag of Admiral Gisolme, on the 17th, the latter receiving the customary salute from H.I.R.M. corvette Vetias, on anchoring. The same evening H.I.R.M. corvette Almaz, with Admiral Fedorofskoy on board, arrived from Vladiwostock, whose flag was also saluted by the Vetias. H.I.R.M. gunboat Sobol, and the French gunboat Lamothe Piquet, are expected to arrive at any moment.

The schooner Samson was successfully launched on the 15th Nov. from Messrs. Bell and Taylor's yard, by whom she had been built of the best materials throughout and sheathed with yellow metal. She is specially designed to carry a large cargo on a light draught of water, her builders' measurement being 105 tons. The builders have sold her, and we believe it is intended to run her between here and the Takasima coal mines. At the time of the launch the Samson was decorated with Mr. Bell's flags of order and the St. George's ensign.

A fatal accident, arising from the capsizing of a boat, which resulted in the deaths of three persons and injuries sustained by three others, occurred on the 14th to a party of natives who were fishing. The bodies have been recovered and buried.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

No additional foreign vessels of war have yet arrived for the protection of foreign interests. A few days back there was a report in town that Le-hung-chang had fixed to leave here for Pautingfoo on the 6th of the Chinese moon (our 18th Nov.), but we now learn that owing to his Excellency having some important business to attend to at Tientsin, the former arrangement has been altered, and he will stay here some days longer.

The thermometer went down to 30 deg. Fahr. last night, and it will be lower to-night, as the weather is becoming colder every hour with the present north gale.

Not far from the temple where the Tawang snakes are kept, a fire burst out last night, and destroyed over thirty houses, besides burning to death some three or four people. Many of the sufferers barely escaped with their lives, not having even time to clothe themselves. The fire burnt very rapidly, owing to the strong wind blowing.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port extend to the 23rd Nov.; there had een no mail arrival since that of the 29th Sept., but the P. and O. mail of Oct. 6 was expected on the 24th Nov. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the Union Steam Navigation Company was held on Monday. The accounts made up to 30th September show a balance of unappropriated profits of Tls. 53,325,48. The Report and Accounts were passed; a dividend of 12 per cent per annum for the half-year declared; 5 per cent. bonus to contributing shareholders allowed; and the auditors' fees raised from Tls. 50 to Tls. 100.

An S. V. C. parade was held on Thursday for presentation of prizes won in the last rifle competition, and for drill. There was a small muster but a very enjoyable outing. The prizes were presented by Mr. John Dent, chairman of the Municipal Council.

The shooting case which occurred on Oct. 2, through an unfortunate culmination of a newspaper quarrel between the editors of the two French journals, came up for hearing at the French Court yesterday. It will be seen that Mr. Lepissier was mulcted in a fine of f50, confiscation of the weapon, and Court costs.

On Tuesday nearly all the Consuls of foreign nations paid official visits to Tseng-kwo-Fan, at the Kiangnan Arsenal. The first to arrive were the Japanese Consul and Mr. Robert Hart, who had their interview with Tseng and left before the next party came. Shortly after noon the steam launch of the Austrian frigate Fanasa was observed coming up the river, and after repeated attempts the occupants effected a landing by passing over some Chinese boats, and from thence climbing, as best they could, up a dirty plank, which feat accomplished, they stood on terra firma. The party consisted of the Austrian Consul, the British Acting Consul and Vice Consul, and others from the same Consulate. When all had got ashore, they moved in order towards the building where Tseng was located, followed by their sedans and an immense crowd of the unwashed "braves." In about twenty minutes after entering the Yamen the visitors took their leave, to make room for another lot. The latter came up river in the U.S.S. Monocacy, which anchored opposite the arsenal, and as her passengers went over the side into the launch a salute was fired. Amongst those who landed were the United States, German and Spanish Consuls, with their interpreters, also Captains Kimberly and McCrea, of the Benicia and Monocacy. A landing was not effected without difficulty, and when fairly ashore the party were in doubt which way to turn, as there was no one to receive them. Fortunately they met one of the Arsenal foreign officials, who invited them to his house, and their arrival was announced. Tseng was, however, not ready to receive them, and they had to wait a considerable time, during which they were entertained by Chen. In due time they were admitted into Tseng's presence; and shortly afterwards the representatives of the Telegraph Company, with an interpreter arrived. To-day Tseng repaid the visits in the Settlement.

We understand that the community of Shanghai have got up a subscription for the benefit of the widow of the late officiating consul, Mr. John Markham. It is a matter of regret that such should have been the result of twenty years' occupation of distinguished offices in the British Consular service.

A correspondent of the N. C. Daily News avails himself of the presence of Mr. Hart, Inspector General of Customs, in Shanghai, to remonstrate against the recently instituted system of passes for the re-exportation of foreign goods, which he designates as cumbrous and clumsy in the extreme, and urges that, while it brings an enormous amount of extra trouble and bother to the foreign merchant, it simply relieves the foreign employés of the Custom House from a certain supervision which they are paid to exercise. He argues that there is no reason why "passes," or "ship's names" should be required at all for foreign goods which have once been imported, and therefore have presumably paid duty. If they have not done so, the fault must lie with the Customs officials, and if they have, their re-export to coast or river ports cannot affect the excise in any way.

The Overland Trade Report says:—Although the immediate cause of the tightness in the market for sycee was the necessity for sending large sums up the country in view of the settlement of the salt tax, it is probable that there will be a recurrence of a demand for money among the natives for some months to come, and this may probably be felt with some severity at the new year. That the withdrawal of the funds sent up country in view of the salt monopoly should have produced such severe effects indicates a general stringency in the market, which no doubt must be alleviated by the return of any part of this sycee, but may be brought up to a crisis again at any moment by a similar contingency. The extensive transactions which have taken place in imports, and the large stocks on hand, must have had the effect of locking up a great deal of capital, and any extra demand springing up under such circumstances will be certain to raise the price of money to a very considerable degree. Unless, therefore, large supplies come forward in the meantime, the prospects for the China New Year are not encouraging, and it may be feared that it will not pass by without some failures. There is no doubt sufficient time yet to elapse; but it is difficult to see anything likely to arise in the meantime to alter the general state of the money market at present existing.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22, 1871.

I have been for some time absent on a visit to Japan, and while there saw so much to interest an old resident in China that I had no time to write. The contrast is remarkable between the stolid Chinese and the active and intelligent Japanese. In Japan we see railroads, telegraphs, steamers in full career. We see troops drilled, armed, and clothed after the European model, and even fed on beef and beer to make them in all respects alike. We see towns with roads, drains, jetties, sea walls, &c., all made and maintained by the Japanese without assistance from the foreign residents. At Kobe you may remember that the sea wall was entirely carried away about three months ago during a typhoon. It is now rebuilt by the Japanese at their own expense, so that no one could tell there ever had been a typhoon there. The town of Hiogo or Kobe is laid out with wide roads and elegant substantial houses, and the railway to Osaka will soon be open. The city of Osaka is a most interesting place—a large thriving city, with roads and bridges over its wide river in perfect order. The Mint is at full work, and already two or three large and commodious mansions, erected for the employés, equal to any in England. The whole are situated on the bank of the river, and command a beautiful view of the river, plain, and mountain. At Osaka I observed several dredging machines for deepening the river and bar. Nothing of the kind has yet reached China, every river of which is filling up and obstructed by bars at their entrances.

Yokohama is a very pretty town, equal to any of its size in England. The private residences on the Bluffs are exactly like those about Sydenham, the scenes being very similar and equally beautiful. Here again we have a railroad about to be opened to Yedo, but there is already a good carriage road between Yokohama and Yedo—twenty-four miles—and coaches running daily; such a convenience as this is unknown in China. The roads and avenues of trees at Yedo approaching the Temple of Sheba are equal to anything in Kensington Gardens. The temples in Japan are moreover kept in order, as are the roads and houses, not like the mandarin-ridden country of China. Another contrast is the number of Japanese who travel, and many first-class, by the Pacific mail steamers between Nagasaki, Kobe, and Y do. In the steamer Oregonian there were eighty first-class Japanese passengers who conducted themselves with as much propriety as if they had been living in Paris or London all their lives.

On returning to this country what a contrast; obstruction to all improvement, taxes levied on all sides with oppressive exactitude, not one farthing of which is laid out in public works or in any improvement, all embezzled and made away with. An enormous sum levied on foreign ships and trade without any return. A few lighthouses have been put up after thirty years' waiting. The rivers are all obstructed by bars; steamers and ships with valuable cargoes kept waiting for days, mail steamers delayed, and not a single dredging machine in China up to this hour; railroads and telegraphs forbidden, mines not allowed to be opened, rivers not allowed to be navigated; trade hampered and choked in every place through squeezes; and, what is worse than all, the restriction of trade to the licensed guilds.

In the communications from Sir R. Alcock to the British Government, he attributes the disastrous results of trade to the Lekim taxes, to the opening of the Yangtsze, to the folly of the foreign merchants, and to the local pressure and quasi wars at Canton and elsewhere; but I can point out, with nearly thirty years' experience of China, a more potent cause of the failure of foreign merchants than all these put together, viz.—"the restriction of trade to the licensed guilds." Against this, as contrary to the letter and spirit of our treaties, our government and merchants ought to make a most determined stand. In my opinion, the restriction of trade is now as great as it was in the time of the Hong merchants at Canton, before Sir H. Pottinger ever appeared in China, in regard to the Treaty of Nankin, now thirty years ago. No Chinese can sell tea or silk to a foreign merchant at any of the ports, unless he belongs to a guild which is licensed by the mandarins, and subject to certain rules and regulations, the least of any of which subjects a member to expulsion and loss of his business, or to being arrested, tortured, beaten, starved, and, if necessary, killed, by order of this guild—any, or all of which atrocities are winked at by the mandarins, in consideration of the squeezes paid to them. These guilds regulate the prices beforehand of all goods bought or sold, so that they have complete control of the whole trade, import and export.

The result of this system can be seen by any one in the enhanced price of exports. Tea and silk are dearer than they were twenty years ago, while, by all the rules of open trade, they ought to be cheaper, being produced in much larger quantities, at less cost. On the other hand, all imported goods are selling at or under cost price. All this is owing to the system of guilds, which tell to the benefit of the Chinese. Another illustration is in the chartering of ships. When Chinese wish to charter foreign ships, which they do every day, you never can get one Chinaman to outbid another on the same day; but if a higher freight is offered, it is only with the sanction of the guild, when a lower sum will not be accepted.

Another question which ought to be agitated is the enormous sums paid by ships as tonnage dues. Are the shipowners of London and Liverpool aware that their ships are paying three-shillings a ton every time they enter a Chinese port to a Government which will not expend a shilling in improving their harbours, which has, after thirty years, not provided a single dredging-machine to increase the depth of water on the numerous bars in their rivers? It is a wonder to me that the shipowners have not taken up the question long ago; and now, when freights are so low, I should commend it to their notice, and recommend them to bring it before Parliament and the Government.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 29th November. The outward mail, French, of 13th Oct. arrived on the 25th Nov. The following summary is from the China Mail:—

Our readers will doubtless be interested to hear of a very gallant action performed by Mr. John Dodd, at present U. S. Consul at Tamsui, Formosa, on the occasion of the wreck of the French barque Adele, which, it will be remembered, took place in a typhoon on the 9th August at Kelung. At nine o'clock on the evening of the 9th Mr. Dodd swam off to render assistance to the British schooner Anne, and at 1 A.M. of the 10th he swam off to the Adele with a rope, one end of which was held by the people on shore. He succeeded, after many narrow escapes from being dashed to pieces on the rocks and pieces of broken spars, in reaching the ill-fated vessel, whose crew were of course delighted to see him. After some persuasion on his part, four of the crew were induced to trust themselves to the rope, and reached the shore in safety. Mr. Margary, of the Consulate, then swam off with the assistance of the line, and he and Mr. Dodd took a man with a broken leg on shore between them. In about half-an-hour all hands, with the exception of two men in the fore part of the ship, were rescued; and as the ship was breaking into two, it was difficult to get at them. Mr. Dodd made an attempt, however, but at first was unsuccessful, he being washed overboard by a tremendous sea and sucked under a lot of wreck. It seemed almost as if he must be lost, but after some little time he freed himself from the wreck, not until he had been most severely bruised and cut. Mr. Dodd, although in this sad plight, succeeded in reaching the ship once more, and by daylight of the 10th had saved the whole of the crew. Mr. Dodd, of course, suffered for some time from the exposure he had been subjected to, having been in the water for about eight hours during the night; but we are glad to hear he has now entirely recovered. We understand that the French Consul has written to his Government in most (deservedly) flattering terms of Mr. Dodd's bravery; and that gentleman will, we hope, receive some recognition of his successful and humane efforts.

We are glad to welcome the new steamer Hai Loong as an addition to the mercantile steam fleet in these waters. She is simply a second edition, on a small scale, of the well-known steamer Kwangtung, and is intended, we understand, for the Formosan trade. It is interesting to mark the gradual but certain inroads which steam vessels are now making upon sailing vessels in every branch of the sea carrying trade. Hitherto the smaller sailing vessels have had all their own way in this branch of the business, and, if we are to judge from recent reports of the Customs' Commissioner, they might seem likely to continue to rule the route. The Hai Loong, however, and similar steamers, which we understand are in course of construction, will, we should think, prove to be the most powerful competitors to the small sailing vessels which have hitherto monopolised this carrying trade. Our anticipations are the more likely to be realised from the fact that she is owned by well-known merchants largely interested in the trade between the island of Formosa and the neighbouring Chinese ports.

From what we have seen of the Hai Loong, and from her satisfactory trial trip from Aberdeen to Hong Kong, we should think thas she is pre-eminently well adapted for the trade for which she has been built. Her outside passage was very creditable in every way. From the start to Port Said she was 15 days, and from Port Said to Singapore, direct, only 25½ days; she made rather a long passage from the latter port to Hong Kong, but this was owing to a very steady N.E. monsoon. She is well fitted in every way for foreign and native passengers; is commanded by Captain Farlow, who is well-known on the East Coast; and she is under the orders of Messrs. Douglas, Lapraik, and Co. in Hong Kong, and Messrs. Elles and Co. in Amoy. As to her construction and machinery, it is sufficient to say, that they are the work of the well-known firm of Messrs. Hall, Russell, and Co., of the Granite City.

We regret to learn from Shanghai of the death of Mrs. Bridgeman, widow of the late Dr. Bridgeman, author of the well-known "Chinese Christomathy," and long a missionary in this country. The deceased lady faithfully laboured in the same cause, until she, too, was called away. She now rests beside her husband in the old burial-ground at the above-named port.

We learn from Canton that the Viceroy of Canton and the adjoining province visited the Polo temple, below Whampoa, on the 17th. He went down in the Feilong, and her commander has of late been honoured more than once in this manner. In connection with these trips the question has arisen whether the crew of a Chinese gun-boat should be called upon to perform the ko-tow, or simply salute after our fashion, in acknowledgment of the gratuity usually bestowed by the high officials when travelling on these steamers. Some time ago several of the men belonging to the Hoppo's cruiser, Peng Chao Hai, refused to ko-tow, and their dismissal immediately followed.

A Canton letter says:—Some little excitement has been caused amongst the Chinese by the steps taken by Messrs. Dent and Co.'s trustees in clearing the land belonging to the estate at Canton opposite Shamien. They are acting in full accordance with their duty to the creditors, but it has been found necessary to get the Viceroy to issue a proclamation enforcing the rights of the trustees.

We hear that the Chinese merchants at Shanghai have subscribed money to aid the sufferers by the Tientsin floods; and the latest accounts from the North announce that they have advertised for the charter of two steamers to convey rice to Tientsin. In Hong Kong, we are sorry to say, there is no movement of the kind, though the appeal has been most touchingly put, and has been made in various forms. There would seem to be little love lost between the Northern and Southern Chinese.

The Steamer Azof, now on the rocks in Amoy harbour, has been sold at auction by the underwriters for the sum of $7,250.

While thousands of coolies are cast into the holds of coolie-ships at Macao, kidnapped, decoyed, or otherwise, a few hundreds, it is gratifying to note, have the good luck of escaping the fate shared by their fellow-countrymen. We learn that 940 coolies have been placed in the care of the Canton authorities, during the month of October, by the emigration officer, to be conveyed to their respective districts.

The following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank-notes in circulation in Hong Kong during the month ending 31st Oct., 1871, is published for general information:—

Banks.	Average amount.	Specie in reserve.
Oriental	$481,963	$300,000
Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China	602,796	250,000
Chartered of India, Australia, and China ...	253,050	100,000
Hong Kong and Shanghai	1,591,552	600,000
Total	$2,929,361	$1,250,000

The first pile of the new pier was driven in yesterday afternoon. (28th). We understand that a powerful steam pile driver is very shortly expected from England, and that the progress of the pier will then be correspondingly accelerated.

The departure of coolie ships from Macao during the last fortnight have been French barque Silence, with 217 coolies; Peruvian ship Peru, with 400; and Portuguese ship D. Maria Pia, with 329; all for Havana.

The insurance offices which had accepted risk on, or, rather, have ere this paid the policies of, the British ship Cingala (lost on the coast of Philippine Islands in August last) will no doubt be gratified to learn that a considerable portion of her cargo has been saved. According to the inventory prepared by the master of the unfortunate vessel, the cargo saved from the wreck consists of 1,340 cases and bales cassia, 338 rolls matting, 202 cases tea, 291 cases fans, 777 cases straw hats, 20 cases cassia buds, and 210 packages sundries, which are to be sold to the highest bidder at Ilo Ilo, on or about the 5th December. It will be remembered that the vessel was bound for New York from Whampoa.

H.M.S. Ocean left Hong Kong for Singapore on the 22nd Nov., taking with her Admiral Kellett. Lieutenant Annesley remained behind on the Princess Charlotte, it is presumed in reference to the collision case in the Supreme Court, in which judgment has since been given against the Ocean.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

Dates extend to the 27th Nov.; the French mail of Oct. 13 arrived out Nov. 16. The following items are from the Advertiser:—

The rainy season is fairly over. The mornings and evenings are cool. The tides are high, and reports from Ayuthia are that the inundation in that region has subsided more than twenty inches. All say that the yield of the paddy fields is abundant. By late advices from the province of Petch'aburi we learn that the rice crop in that province looks splendidly. The present indications are that the crop will be the best for many years.

The new canal from Bangkrok, on the Petch'aburi river, to Bangkaboon, has been opened for travel and is a great advantage, as it shortens the distance between those places two hours and a-half. Last week there were twenty-seven foreign ships in port; all these vessels will receive prompt despatch, and the glowing prospects of the new crop will doubtless be the basis of a brisk business this year. During the past week fourteen foreign and native vessels have arrived; their reported tonnage is 4,300 tons. One of the departures was the H.B.M.'s gunboat the Teazer, bound for the coast.

Various vague rumours are afloat as to the amount of damage and loss of life occasioned by the collision of the steamer Rangoon with some floating houses. Since the making of the treaties which now exist with nearly all the great Powers of the West, foreign commerce has greatly increased, and natives, officials, and merchants have become owners of ships and steamers, which are constantly passing up and down the main river. This has made the line of floating houses on both banks of the rivers and the native mode of laying large nets and their bambu floats across the river a serious inconvenience. The steamers make a swell that makes it hazardous to be on the river in a small boat. Floating houses and fisheries, if a necessity, ought to be located in positions where they will be no impediment to ships and steamers. Good streets, and ferry-boats running regularly, horses, carriages, and carts to facilitate the conveyance of people and goods to all parts of the city, would render floating houses unnecessary, and the river would be clear for the passage up and down of ships and steamers. For months the old Siamese ship Walter has been lying on the west bank of the river off Wat Lamp'u, leaning at about an angle of 45 degrees. Her masts stand in her, but are not kept in place by any rope fastenings; small boats are passing by her constantly, day and night, and we apprehend that some day we may be compelled to report sad events from the falling of those masts, or the lurch of the vessel from the force of the downward current.

We learn that Captain John Bush, an English master mariner, who has for many years been in the employ of the Siamese Government, bearing the title of Luang Wisut Sak'oradit, has been promoted to the rank of Phra Wisut Sak'oradit. The title indicates the office of the Harbour Master and Master Attendant. In popular language this official is termed the Chowt'a. The new title and decoration of honour entitles him hereafter to be designated "The Honourable John Bush, Knight of the White Elephant."

The death is announced of Mr. Alfred Nelson, who first came to Bangkok in 1865 as a practical engineer, and was for a season in the service of Mr. Allen, having in charge the care of the tug steamers, the Jack Waters and the Wyckoff (now the Weazel). He set up the machinery of the tug steamer Fairy. In 1867 and 1868 Mr. Nelson and Elder were the proprietors of a foundry at Garden Reach. The Siamese Government had secured his services to construct and set in operation a Government machine shop and foundry, of which he was to be the superintendent. He was expected to teach annually a number of natives all the details of work to be manufactured at this Government machine shop and foundry. The establishment was to be erected on the west bank of the river, near the Siamese Temple, Wat Rak'ang. The buildings were in course of construction at the time of his death. Mr. Nelson's interment in the foreign cemetery was attended by a large number of his countrymen. We also learn that Capt. Meyer, of the Siam barque Advance, died at sea, Nov. 14.

SARAWAK.

The following items are from the Sarawak Gazette:—

An important step has been taken by the Government in passing a rule for the protection of sago workers in the territory. From the 1st January, 1872, a duty will be levied on all raw sago exported from the territory of Sarawak to foreign countries, at the rate of four dollars for every hundred packages, commonly called "tampings," and the said "tampings" shall not weigh more than forty catties each; or if the raw sago be carried in bulk, then the duty to be levied at the rate of four dollars on every koyan of forty piculs. All manufactured sago free of duty. Such an enactment seems absolutely necessary for the encouragement of manufacture here. It may also have a good effect in producing larger importations of coolies, and possibly of native capitalists into the country.

In consequence of the population having of late years more and more relinquished the cultivation of rice, the Rajah has granted a sum of $210 to be awarded as prizes for the best and largest farms and crops of paddy in the three successive years 1873, 1874, 1875, within a radius of three miles of Sarawak Proper, and on the banks of the river between Tana Lintang and Sungei Tengah.

The Dyak force which was assembled at Mujok under the notorious Mumbang, with the intention of making a descent upon the Sakarangs or Entabai, is reported to have dispersed, and the warriors who formed it have quietly returned to their homes.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 6th Dec. The P. & O. Mail arrived on the 23rd Nov. with London dates to 20th Oct., and the French mail came in on the 28th Nov. with London advices to the 27th Oct. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The last Gazette contains the detailed expenditure, but we have as yet seen nothing of the regular Estimates, which ought to have been ready long ago. On the 1st Aug. last two tabulated abstracts of the revenue and expenditure for the last three years, and the probable amount for the present and ensuing year, were issued from the Colonial Secretary's Office, from which it would appear that the revenue has not only reached its maximum from present sources, but is now declining, while the expenditure is constantly increasing.

In these tables we find the revenue and expenditure set down as follows:—

	Revenue.	Expenditure.
1868	$1,301,843.34 ...	$1,197,177.91½
1869	1,313,046·54 ...	1,164,354·57
1870	1,378,748.09 ...	1,259,376·03
1871 (Estimated)	1,364,302.00 ...	1,294,400·88
1872 (Estimated)	1,341,678·00 ...	1,327,980.32

In 1870, therefore, according to present indications, the revenue reached its highest figure, and during the present year it is expected to decline; the expenditure, however, is still going up.

H.M.S. Ocean, the flag-ship of the China squadron, arrived on the 1st Dec. from Hong Kong, with Admiral Kellet on board, who is waiting here for the arrival of H.M.S. Iron Duke, shortly after which he will start on his homeward voyage.

The steamer Danube, from London 17th Sept., arrived here on the 3rd Nov., and sailed again on the 5th for China, but ran aground on the Royal Captain shoal, in the Palawan Passage, remaining fast for thirty-eight hours. She was got off by jettisoning a portion of her cargo, sustaining the loss of her forefoot, and damaging some of her bottom plates. It being impossible for her to reach Hong Kong, owing to the strength of the monsoon, she put back to Singapore, reaching here on the 24th Nov., and is now undergoing repair in the Tanjong Pagar Dock. Some anxiety has been felt regarding the fate of the part of the crew of the wrecked clipper ship Taeping. It will be remembered that about two months ago the captain and eleven men arrived in boats at Saigon, and inquiries were at once made regarding the other boats. The second officer and four men were picked up by the British ship Serica, and were landed at Anjer. The chief officer (Mr. F. J. McLachlan) and eight men were, we are glad to learn picked up by the French barque Omer et Julie, after having been six days in their boat, and were landed at Batavia on the 17th Nov. The entire crew of the ship are now safe, there having been only twenty-five in all besides the captain on board.

The coolies who murdered Messrs. Küng and Meyer late of this place, at Deli, Sumatra, have been very speedily punished under Dutch law, seven of them having been hung and ten sentenced to transportation for terms of eight and ten years.

Last week a Dutch prisoner named Fontein, undergoing sentence of imprisonment for six years for embezzling N. I. Government funds, who had escaped from jail at Samarang, arrived here in the Samarang steamer, but the telegraph had forestalled him, and on reaching the wharf he found the Netherlands Consul General, attended by a police officer, awaiting him. He was arrested and taken before the police magistrate, who gave him up to the custody of the Netherlands Indian Government.

The Glenartney, on her passage to Calcutta, took on board a young tiger, which got loose in the between-decks amongst some 300 passengers. After clawing one or two, all the passengers rushed on deck, and the animal jumped through a port-hole into the sea.

The Spanish steamer Emiliano, Capt. Arrinaga, from Liverpool 1st, and Barcelona 19th Oct, via Suez Canal and Galle, arrived Nov. 30th.

It is gratifying to observe that the estimates for 1872 make provision for the erection of a new market at Clyde-terrace, to replace the disgraceful collection of sheds that now serve the purpose. This work has long been projected, and it is now to be hoped it will be carried out without further delay than is absolutely necessary. The cost of the new building is estimated at $37,889—including, we believe, the cost of reclaiming the ground at the rear of the present market, and we learn it is to be a commodious and elegant building—which cannot fail to improve the value of the Government land adjoining.

At an election for the Municipal Commissioner, Mr. H. Reid, whose term had expired, was re-elected.

PENANG.

Our advices are to the 8th Dec.; the P. and O. mail, with London dates Nov. 3, arrived out on the 6th Dec.

The steamship Cheops, which left London on 13th October, arrived on Sunday, the 26th ultimo, after a very fine passage, having made the run in forty-three days, including stoppages and detention at Colombo to land 100 troops.

A telegram received on the 2nd of December announces that the departure of his Majesty from Siam has been definitely fixed for the 16th, and that Penang will have the honour of welcoming the royal visitor before the close of the year.

There is no longer any doubt that, on the arrival of Sir Harry Ord, Colonel Anson will at once proceed to England on twelve months' leave.

Captain T. C. S. Speedy the Superintendent of Police P. W. Island, left for England on the 23rd Nov. in the P. & O. steamer Australia, on leave. We hear that one of our Salengore heroes. Mr. Cox, has been appointed to Penang, in the place of Captain Speedy, and that Mr. Inspector Hayward will relieve Mr. Cox at Malacca.

Captain A. R. Ord arrived on the 22nd instant in the Ocean Steamer Diomed, and resumed his appointments of Police Magistrate and Commissioner of the Court of Requests. The return of Captain Ord has displaced Mr. Presgrave, who, we believe, will revert to his appointment in the Municipal Office.

Digitized by Google

There is a rumour that Mr. Skinner will return to Singapore shortly, and that another of the Administrator's particular friends will be appointed Police Magistrate of Province Wellesley. Mr. Skinner has not been a popular man, and has himself to thank for it.

The Salangore pirates have been at last convicted at the criminal session, and nine of them sentenced by Sir William Hackett to transportation for life. The sentence having been translated to the prisoners by the Chinese interpreter, they begged they might be immediately hung, as they preferred that punishment to transportation for life.

The following items are from the Argus:—

At a meeting of the Municipal Commissioners on the 1st Dec., an estimate for the construction of a covered way at the jetty and certain extension of the present wooden jetty was laid before the commissioners. The amount of the estimate was, in the opinion of the president, very high, and the secretary stated he had received another estimate for $1,200. During the discussion that took place on the subject Mr. Herriott gave it as his opinion, 1st:—That the Municipal Commissioners had not the right to make any buildings unless for the good of the whole community. 2nd, That the people who made this covered way ought to have the privilege of charging wharfage to others; and that, as it was hard to say when the wharf would be built, it would be as well to commence at once making this charge on every package landed at the jetty. The President reminded this honourable gentleman that Penang was a free port, and that he could not allow any charge or tariff to be put on the landing of goods. He moved that tenders be called for: meanwhile the plan and estimate already submitted to the Municipal Commissioners are to be laid before the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Herriott complained of the scarcity of bank notes in Penang, and Province Wellesley. He said it was a well-known fact that thieves would never steal a bank-note, but would take a dollar, and it was an inconvenience not to have more notes in the market. The President informed Mr. Herriott that it was not a matter they could take cognizance of.

Commercial Report.

HANKOW.—Sales of the chief fabrics had been small and only practicable at lower rates. Grey Shirtings: The greater portion of the business had again been in 7 lbs., at Tls. 1.71 to 1.72 for good chop; very slight inquiry for 8¼ lbs., and quotations nominal. White Shirtings: Small sales of 64 reed. T-Cloths: Dull, and prices tended downwards. Drills: No inquiry. Jeans: A slight demand, met by holders at Tls. 2.38 to 2.40 for fine. In Fancy Cotton small contracts at rather easier rates. Woollens and Worsteds; Little change. Camlets: Small sales at last quotations. Lastings: Nominal. Long Ells: Only Scarlet saleable at Tls. 6.15 to 6.20 for standard chop. Spanish Stripes: Weaker and dull. Metals.—Lead: Slightly improved, holders asking Tls. 4.80 to 4.90 per picul. Quicksilver: 170 flasks sold at Tls. 73.50 per picul, but closing weaker.

SHANGHAI.—Transactions had again been almost nil; sycee remained scarce, and the Chinese were continuing to pay an enormous rate of interest. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that all textile manufactures had fallen considerably in value, or that we cannot give a true quotation for any article, with the exception, perhaps, of English Drills, for which a good demand had existed. Of these there were buyers and sellers at Tls. 2.90 to 2.95 per piece for fine qualities of 15lb. goods. Jeans: Quotation for English Tls. 2.25 to 2.30 and for Dutch Tls. 2.40 per piece; sales by importers. English Sheetings: Sold by Importers at Tls. 3.40; the same price could not now be obtained. In Fancy Cotton or Woollen Goods there had been nothing done. A small sale of Damasks at Tls. 4.80 had been the only reported transaction. Coal: Rates continued high. Cardiffs: No arrivals, holders very firm; English wanted at Tls. 9.50 to 10 per ton, from ship; American wanted, and prices fully upheld. Metals: Lead: A better feeling in Hankow has caused an advance of 1 mace per picul. Nailrod Iron: Very dull, owing to the financial crisis, no change in prices.

MANILA.—The market had been quiet, and the amount of business done had been moderate. Prices were somewhat irregular, some importers holding for an advance on late rates, whilst others were ready sellers at old prices, and, in some instances, slightly less had been accepted. Dealers were not, however, showing much anxiety to buy for forward consumption, the state of the retail trade not offering them any inducement to do so at present, although the impression was general that rates must shortly considerably advance. Coloured goods continued to improve slightly in inquiry, but little advance in values had taken place, owing to considerable quantities having been forced on the market at auction.

HONG KONG.—Business in Piece Goods had been upon a very limited scale, caused by the absence of many of the native dealers and the unsatisfactory nature of advices from Shanghai. Cotton Yarn: Values of English 16/24s unaltered, but only low qualities saleable. 28/32s inquired for for shipment to Japan, but business small at last mail's rates. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. still difficult to move, even at a decline of 2 to 3 cents. Sales of 8.4 lb. to a large extent at auction, to the detriment of sales of sound goods; 9 to 10 lbs. are very quiet. White Shirtings: Common 54/60 reed in small request at late quotations, but it was difficult to move the better reeds. T-Cloths: Stock o 6 lbs common qualities limited, and consequently prices were firm; 7 lbs. declining. Mexican 6 lbs. out of demand; best make of 7 lbs. found few buyers, but inferior neglected; 8 lbs. not in request. Drills: Stock of English very restricted and prices consequently rather better. Sales "to arrive" made to a moderate extent at prices varying with the time of delivery. Sales on the spot at $4.10 to 4.20, and to arrive at $3.92½ to 4.10 per piece for "Dragon" chop. Dutch and American also in very limited stock. English Jeans: Quoted at $2.90 to 3.10 according to chop; stock small. Fancy and Dyed Cottons: Nothing to report. The Woollen market was rather flat, and quotations were nominal. Metals showed generally an upward tendency, but business restricted. Nail Rod Iron 5c.; Hoop and Round 15c. to 30c. higher. Tin Plates very scarce, and wanted at $6.70 to 7.40 per box. Lead about 500 piculs sold at a rise upon previous values of 10c. per picul.

SINGAPORE.—39-inch Grey Shirtings: 6 lbs., in small stock and enquired for at $1.90 to 1.92½; 7lbs., in very limited demand at $2.12½ to 2.15; 8½ lbs., weaker and freely offered at $2.47½, moderate transactions. 45 inch: some inquiry for 9 lbs. at $2.87½ to 2.90. Grey T Cloth: Prices steady but demand very limited; 5 lbs., 1.37½; 6 lbs., $1.62½ to 1.65; 7 lbs., $1.82½ to 1.85; 4 lbs., $1.05 to 1.07½; 4½ lbs., $1.17½ to 1.20. 32-inch Grey Madapollams: In fair request, stocks reduced, holders firmer. 36-inch Grey Supers: More inquiry for No. 1 at $1.07½ to 2.00; No. 2, limited demand at $2.07½; No. 3, dull at $2.15. 36-inch White Shirtings: A fair business has been done, but prices rather weaker; low goods unsaleable. 45-inch: In no demand. Dyed Shirtings, Plain and Figured: In very limited demand. Woollen Goods: No change, and nothing doing. Grey Yarn: 16s to 24s and 30s., quotations quite nominal, there being no demand; speculative demand for 40s, with moderate sales at $113, closing at $116 to 117. Green: In moderate demand at $79 to 81. Other colours dull. Iron: Firm, and prices hardening. Govan Flat Bar: Worth $2.60 to 2.70; common qualities, $2.50 to 2.55. Nailrods: $2.60. Hoop: $3 to 3.05. Swedish Flat Bar: $3.60 to 3.65. Lead: Quiet, but firm, a small sale of common at $5.70; L. B. & Co., no transactions.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Supplies had been somewhat heavier, and Siangtam Teas were more saleable. Quotations were—Oopacks, common to fair, Tls. 15; Oonams, common, Tls. 8¾ to 9½.

KIUKIANG.—Black: No settlements, and only 11 chops had gone forward on native account. Green: 24 chops had been shipped on native account; the export was 500,000 lbs less than at same time last year, and it was very probable that this difference would not be made up.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer & Co.'s Report:—Black Tea: During the fortnight, business has been restricted to a few buyers, who have cleared the market of all grades above commonest Shuntams, at rates which show an advance of 1 to 2 taels o former quotations, and at the present rate of exchange 1d. to 1⅛d. per pound over rates current at home, per last advices for the same classes of Tea. Settlements amount to 8,900 chests and 7,500 half-chests at Tls. 13 to 13.5 for common Shuntams, Tls. 15 to 17 for common Hohows, Tls. 18 to 21 for fair Ningchows and Oopacks. Stock is estimated at 12,000 chests, all of very common quality. The export of Congou to England is 65½ millions, against 54½ millions, and to America 1½ millions against ½ million at same date last year. Green Tea: We have no change to advise. Settlements reported are 28,000 half-chests, and 6,000 boxes of Country, and 900 half-chests of Shanghai packed Tea. But little has been taken for the English market, rates ruling leaving little, if any, chance of profit. Prices paid have been Tls. 27 to 33 for Shanghai packed, Tls. 30 to 38 for medium to fine Fychows, Tcenkais, and Moyunes, and Tls. 40 to 47 for fine to finest, and for Pingsueys Tls. 38 to 50 proportion. Export to England is about the same as last year, to America it is in excess about 1 million pounds.

AMOY.—Further moderate purchases of Oolongs had been made at prices showing a slight decline for the lower grades and maintained rates for the better descriptions. The stock was 11,260 half-chests; and quotations were—common cargo, $17 to 19; fair, $20 to 22; good, $23 to 25; superior, $27 to 30; fine, $32 to 34; finest, $35 to 40 per picul nominal. The J. F. Erichsen had sailed for New York, leaving the Catharine Fullerton and Agnes on the berth, and the Clementia expected for the same port.

FOOCHOW.—The active demand noticed in our last report had continued, and prices showed further advance. Congou: Transactions again on a large scale, and a further advance of half a tael to a tael quoted in all descriptions. Settlements, 22,932 chests at Tls. 3½ to 20; arrivals, 8,400 chests. Souchong: 2,424 chests settled at Tls. 17 to 28½, showing a rise of from Tl. 1 to Tls. 2. For the few parcels now remaining teamen were asking extreme rates. Arrivals, nil. Oolong: 3,351 half-chests, at Tls. 14 to 24, or at a slight reduction on previous quotations. The rates demanded were still too high to induce large purchases. Scented teas: No transactions. At the close there was very little for selection on offer, the stock of Congou being reduced to 8,847 chests, and consisting chiefly of the commonest descriptions, whilst the bulk of the recent arrivals was of the most undesirable character. Daily receipts from the country were becoming very small, and it appeared that the estimate of 610,000 chests for the season would prove about correct.

CANTON.—Teamen had been very firm holders, and as there had been but few buyers in the market, and the Teas on offer, with very few exceptions, of poor and common quality, business had been checked. Small settlements of Orange Pekoes had been made at an advance upon previous prices, and high rates asked by holders for Scented Capers had prevented any extensive transactions in those kinds, although a moderate inquiry had existed. Good common and medium Canton Gunpowders had been fairly bought at last figures. Settlements, 1,000 boxes Scented Orange Pekoes, 5,500 boxes Scented Capers, and 5,000 boxes Gunpowders.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Since our last issue we have had an unprecedented pressure in the money market, brought about by the numerous applications for Government salt licences, for which enormous sums have been remitted from all the Treaty ports to Yangchow; so scarce was sycee at one time that natives were paying for interest as high as 200 per cent. per annum on short loans; this necessarily caused exchange to advance, and it touched during the fortnight 6s. 3¾d. for Bank paper. Under ordinary circumstances this pressure should have had the effect of lowering the tael price of Silk. In proportion to the rise in exchange, but dealers have exhibited great firmness and still hold out for extreme quotations for all classical chop Silk, in Blue Elephant, Kukee Chin Jan and Tsatlees of lower grades there has been a drop of 10 to 20 taels per picul, which has been fully counteracted by the rise in exchange. Szechuen and rereel Silks have been fairly dealt in at former prices. The following quotations will show the course of our market:—Kukee's Chin Jan, 27s. 3d.; Kukee's Chin Hock, 26s. 2d.; "Eukefong," Blue Elephant, 27s. 3d.; Tingfong Green Elephant, 25s 11d; Re-reeled Hainin, 29s to 29s 7d; Ordinary Hainin, very common, 21s 9d; Fine Szechuen, 20s 3d to 20s 8d.

CANTON.—There had been little or no business doing, and rates remained unchanged. The 6th crop had all come forward, and there only remained the arrival of the few bales constituting the 7th crop to close the season. The expectation entertained that prices would not go any higher has so far been realised, but buyers were holding off for a reduction. Stock small, and estimated at 1,165 bales Tsatlee Reel, 75 bales Loongkongs, and 150 bales of medium and common Re-reeled sorts. Native dealers were unable to buy from the countrymen, owing to the high rates demanded and inferior qualities offered.

THE SINGAPORE RAILWAY.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The article in your last issue on the subject of the Singapore Railway surprises me, unless I have misconstrued its tenor. I can understand that Singaporeans may dread the construction of the railway by the local government, if it is to be carried out in the haphazard style which appears to prevail there with respect to public works generally; but the system under which all future railways in India are to be made by Government would doubtless be adopted in the Straits, as in other colonies, and, if so, there can surely be nothing alarming in the construction by Government of such a railway as private enterprise would undertake with a view to profit. You have so consistently advocated Government aid in the improvement of Galle harbour and other useful works in Ceylon, Brindisi, and elsewhere, I should like to know what peculiar objections there can be to the docks already existing at New Harbour being utilised by means of a short line of railway constructed by Government when in another part of your paper an expenditure by Government of £700,000 or £800,000 is recommended for the formation of a breakwater and docks at Colombo.

—Yours truly,

A SINGAPORE MERCHANT.

London, Jan. 2, 1872.

THE troopship Orontes, which has been selected to convey the 10th Regiment to Hong Kong, was docked at Portsmouth last week She has had the inside of her bottom carefully examined and reported on, and the condition of the plates, whether free from corrosion, and the state of the cement, has been as far as practicable carefully ascertained. The 10th regiment embarked at Kingstown in the Simoon on the 5th inst. for conveyance to Portsmouth, where the regiment will re-embark in the Orontes, which will sail for China this week.

ACCORDING to the Navy List for the present month there are two Japanese officers serving in Her Majesty's vessels, viz., Etchiroe-Nagahisa-Etrynkie, as sub-lieutenant on board the Hercules, and Senzo Hatori as midshipman on board the Defence.

HIS Highness the Prince Higashi Fusimi no Miya, the Prince Imperial of Japan, who is now in England, has given sittings for his portrait to Mr. J. Edgar Williams. The Prince is still under the tutorship of the Rev. J. J. Daniel at Warminster.

ACCORDING to a telegram, 472 bags of mails have been recovered from the wreck of the P. and O. steamer Rangoon at Galle.

NAI BIN SURAWOGSE, a young Siamese nobleman, cousin of the Supreme King of Siam, is on a visit to Sir John Bowring, at Claremont, Exeter.

"PHILOLOGY" IN THE HONG KONG COUNCIL.

THERE are not many of the "minor miseries" of life that cause more shame or pain than those which result in the conviction that our partners or representatives are unable to comprehend the responsibility of their duties, or unfitted to preserve general respect for the important duties they have to fulfil. The sufferings of the educated man who finds his wife "dropping her h's," and the pangs of a woman of refinement at the gaucheries of a vulgar husband, have been set forth—with not too great exaggeration—from the days of GOLDSMITH to those of THEODORE HOOK. We had hoped that, with the demise of the last-named wit, the "silver fork" school of satire had become no longer necessary; but we are, reluctantly enough, forced to alter our conviction by the perusal of the account, given with cruel fidelity by the China Mail, of the proceedings in the Legislative Council on the passing of the ordinance for the new Pier and Dock Company. Not only was the public time wasted on this occasion by the absurd and irrelevant discussion of a question of spelling which would be satisfactorily answered by any monitor in the Blue Coat School, but the opportunity was absolutely seized by several members for no other apparent purpose than the display of their own ignorance. The question was—credat Judæus!—whether the compound word "bye-laws" should be spelled with or without the "e!" The Acting Colonial Treasurer was the first to air his pedantry. Forgetting the fact that COLMAN'S "Lord Loggerhead always spelled physician with an f," this official asked by what rule the word "by-laws" (which by-the-way is no word at all) should be spelled with an "e." Unfortunately, instead of giving his brother official the plain and simple answer that the word was spelled so because that was the right way to spell it, the Acting Attorney General—they seem to be all "acting" just now, though not well up in their parts—took the somewhat offensive position of declaring that "he was sure the hon. member had never seen it spelled any other way," which was equivalent to saying that he had never seen or written it at all. In this we fear the A.A.G. may have committed himself to an untenable position—because he cannot be certain that he has seen the A.C.T.'s peculiar way of spelling on every occasion. But, in order to increase the imbroglio, and not improbably from malice prepense, Mr. RYRIE here broke into the discussion with the inquiry how the word was ordinarily spelled as applied to cricket, thus leaving it (satirically enough) to be surmised that legislative enactments should be spelled on the authority of Lord's at home, rather than that of the Commons of Hong Kong. Of course every schoolboy knows that the word "bye," when used substantively as expressing something not directly under the first scope of an idea, is always spelled with an "e," to distinguish it from the preposition "by." Such, however, is the state of the Legislative Assembly at Hong Kong in the year of grace 1871, that the Colonial Secretary absolutely went out for "a ponderous Webster," from which the A.C.T.'s opinion was confirmed, but appeared still so ridiculous that the spelling in the Ordinance was not amended. The debate was closed by the Chief Justice, who seems unable to make up his mind about anything, and to be never weary of displaying his indecision in the most glaring light, describing it as "an interesting philological discussion"—what an euphuism for a schoolboy looking up a word in a lexicon!—observing that "he knew little or nothing of commercial matters," and adding that "the authority of Webster was not beyond dispute."

This conversation then dropped, but the proceedings were shortly resumed by the untiring Chief Justice with yet another confession more damaging than any he had made before. He made the astounding statement that he had been acting under an entire misapprehension of his duties, the regulations for which, the Colonial Secretary declared, had been in force for the last thirty years! Surely no words could add to these disclosures of intellectual poverty and moral indolence exhibited in the proceedings of the assembly, humorously called "Council" in Hong Kong.

THE SINGAPORE RAILWAY.

THE remarks in our last issue with reference to the construction by the local government of the railway from the town of Singapore to New Harbour have produced a letter from a correspondent, to be found in another column. We are not to be understood as indicating objections to the system which we are aware has now been adopted by the Governments of India, Australia, and other colonies. Works of public utility, like railways, or docks, and harbours, so much required for Singapore, Ceylon, &c., need substantial aid and encouragement from Government. We certainly had no intention of objecting to the principle of lines of railway being constructed under the immediate superintendence and responsibility of Government, whether in Singapore or elsewhere. When we said that "surely the Straits Settlements cannot shut its eyes to the "fact that it has long ceased to possess the public confidence "as regards the expenditure of public money," and supported our view by a reference to the Water-works and other abortive undertakings in the colony, it was enough to show that our criticism applied rather to the modus operandi than to the character of the works themselves. It is unquestionable that the proposed railway in Singapore, to connect the town with the wharves and docks in New Harbour, would be of great public benefit; but what we want to see is, that it shall not be or become a local job, and that if the construction of the line is to be undertaken by the local government, the Singapore public may be guaranteed against a further patronage of the costly incapacity from which the Settlement has already suffered so much. As a Government measure it is probable that the railway would not be confined to facilitating the traffic between New Harbour and the town, but might include an extension to the Johore territory. The traffic in that direction appears to have already suggested the introduction of road steamers—a very unsuitable conveyance, which we have already condemned—but, whatever form it may assume, it is surely necessary that the consequences of incompetent management in the execution of a work of so much importance should be guarded against. It is probably no reproach to the artillery officer who does the duty of colonial engineer in the Straits Settlements that he wants the practical knowledge requisite for the construction of a line of railway, and for such works engineers from this country ought to be provided.

WE have great pleasure in recording an act of munificent liberality, on the part of the Japanese Government, to Mr. EDMUND MOREL, which shows how highly the ability and zeal of the late Engineer-in-Chief of the Imperial railways was appreciated. When Mr. MOREL'S illness became serious, the Japanese Government not only begged him to proceed to Yedo, and placed the highest medical advice at his disposal, but they accompanied these offers with a cheque for 5,000 dollars. With such an instance of kindly feeling and liberality before us, it is painful to reflect on the contrast which the conduct of the Japanese Government towards our countryman presents to that of the two engineers, whose cases we lately commented on, when they threw up their engagements, and obtained heavy verdicts against the same Government, for reasons which were by no means satisfactory to us, as being not likely to increase the confidence of the Japanese in English employés, or to maintain the personal regard so generously evinced towards the late Mr. MOREL, OFTEN as it has of late been our pleasing duty to record new instances of the liberality and progressive spirit of the Japanese, we do not recollect any occasion when we could express more sincere satisfaction than that afforded by the despatch of the new expedition from Yokohama. Without arrogating to itself the title of, or the ceremony required for, an embassy, the proposed tour of some of the highest representatives of "Young Japan" with the noble object of "studying for themselves Western civilisation" is entitled to no less respect, and may in fact be entitled to take higher rank from the promise it holds out of results more generally beneficial to mankind than any merely diplomatic mission. The new expedition, which, as our readers are aware, is under the excellent guidance of some of the most advanced members of the Japanese Government, will proceed to England via San Francisco and the United States. While calling attention to this we may add that SAMESHIMA SOBEN MUSHI, the Chargé d'Affaires in Paris, was presented to the French President at the audience on the 1st inst. Japan has therefore, by establishing Foreign Ministers in Europe, set an example to China which we hope the latter will soon follow—especially after the intimation of the French President to CHUNG HOW.

THE first Bombay mail was despatched from the General Post-office, for Brindisi, via Calais and the Mont Cenis Tunnel, on Friday evening, in charge of Captain O'BRIEN. This mail is due at Brindisi at 5 A.M. on the 8th, and will be carried all the way by special trains, by which, however, no passengers are allowed. This regulation will occasion great inconvenience, and we hope that the P. and O. Company will secure arrangements for mail trains to carry passengers. The next China mail by this route, as will be seen by our Time-Table, is on the 12th.

IT would appear from the report of the running-down case—the junk Kum-shun-tai v. H.M.S. Ocean—tried in the Court at Hong Kong, when the Chief Justice was unable to attend to give judgment, that our remarks on the state of the Supreme Court and Hong Kong Government offices generally, in a recent issue, were not made a day too soon.

MR. EDWIN BALDWIN MALET, C.B., whose appointment as First Secretary to the Legation at Peking we lately noticed, has left for his post via Bombay, calling at the Indian Presidencies and the Straits Settlements en route.

THE JAPANESE EXPLORATION OF THE WEST.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

The telegram relative to Japan seems to indicate the commencement of a new era in that most original and interesting of Asiatic countries. We are told that an Embassy of unprecedented rank and importance is now on its way to our shores, and that the Mikado is willing to open up the whole country to foreign intercourse, if a united request for that concession be made. There is a curious statement, also, to the effect that the new Embassy is composed of members of the ruling class, in order that persons belonging to that order of society may study for themselves Western civilisation, and no longer be dependent on the reports of inferiors.

It is only eighteen years since the American wedge was driven into Japan by Commodore Perry, and from that time Mr. Harris, Sir Rutherford Alcock, and Lord Elgin and others have succeeded in giving several hearty blows to drive it in further, and force an entry for the Anglo-Saxon race into a country whose people really have an extraordinary amount of qualities in common with us. When we reflect that for two hundred years the Japanese had maintained utter isolation from all the world, except a few Dutch traders, the progress we have made with them since 1854 seems most extraordinary. In a commercial point of view, there seems some reason to doubt whether communication with Japan will prove so signal a boon as many at first imagined. There is a good deal which Western nations like to have from Japan, but Japan appears really to be in want of little from them, and, moreover, her artisans are so marvellously skilful, and their imitative power is so surpassing, that in all likelihood any European or American fabric which might become popular in that country would probably, ere many months were over, be produced at a less cost—for the population is dense and labour abundant—there. Be this, however, as it may, it must always be a subject of congratulation, and an incident memorable in the annals of the latter half of the nineteenth century, that a people whose worth and ability excite the interest and admiration of every intelligent foreigner, and whose country is in many respects the most curious under the sun, should have been brought into friendly intercourse with the rest of mankind. "I have been everywhere," said a blasé traveller, "and Japan is the only place which didn't disappoint me." Even Sir Charles Coldstream, although he had looked down the crater of Vesuvius, and found that "there's nothing in it," must, we eel convinced, have given a different verdict anent Japan.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION INTO CALIFORNIA.

(NEW YORK TIMES.)

Congress undoubtedly has the power to prevent the introduction into this country of Coolie or any other species of slave labour, but it has no more right to forbid the free immigration of Asiatics than of Europeans; and it is contrary to the whole theory of our government, and especially to the liberal and impartial principles of the Republican party, to make any distinction of race, creed, or colour, in the rights and privileges granted to citizens, or those who desire to become citizens, of the United States. Americans are certainly not called upon to draw any such distinction against the Chinese at the dictation of another class of foreigners who have sought an asylum here. It is well known that the chief objection to the Chinese in California comes from the Irish population. It was from this class that the Democratic party used to draw most of the political capital which it gained by fostering the prejudices against the negro. Fleeing to this country, as they claimed, to escape British oppression, the Irish immigrants always made haste to join the ranks of the oppressors here. They voted almost to a man with the Democratic party during the long years which that party championed the cause of negro slavery; and now that slavery is abolished, we find them in the front rank of the haters and persecutors of the Chinese. The Republican party of California made a great mistake in trying to secure their votes by catering to their unreasoning and illiberal prejudices. It should have maintained the true ground which constitutes the chief glory of the party—equal rights and privileges to all. The question of Chinese immigration will settle itself, in the long run, if not to the satisfaction of all, at least in accordance with those immutable laws which no free Government can afford to contravene or attempt to thwart. If, as Governor Haight says in his farewell Message, "California may be said to lack nothing but population," it is difficult to see why China, its nearest foreign neighbour, should not be allowed to aid in supplying that lack. Whenever the immigration ceases to be advantageous to the State, it will naturally cease for lack of encouragement. At any rate, the American nation, which offers itself as an asylum for the whole world, cannot be expected to refuse a welcome to the Celestial merely because he is distasteful to the Celt.

THE RIVAL PORTS IN CEYLON.

The Shipping and Mercantile Gazette, on this subject, says:—

Galle was originally selected, not for any merits it possessed, bu simply because it was the only one available for the purpose in the direct route. Moorings of the heaviest character have to be provided for the large steamers, and since the opening of the Suez Canal the anchorage has been most inconveniently crowded. We have pointed out the defects of this dangerous open place on several occasions, but although ship after ship is lost there, nothing has been done towards affording shelter to shipping, or in protecting the embarkation and disembarkation of passengers, mails, and merchandise. The loss of another of the Peninsular and Oriental Company's fine steamers at this exposed locality has attracted notice to the risk run in having to stand off and on Galle, and among a nest of submerged rocks; but whether the question will now receive a practical solution may be very much doubted.

Colombo is the commercial capital of Ceylon, and the entrances and clearances of its shipping amount to about 1,500,000 tons annually. The mercantile establishments are mostly centred in Colombo, and, consequently, the chief trade of the island is conducted there. Negombo is seventy miles further along the coast, and, therefore, not so well situated for the mail services. Colombo is an open roadstead also, but a trifle safer than Galle. As a question of local interest, the Government of Ceylon favours the improvement of Colombo, in preference to that of an Imperial benefit. The produce of the island is shipped at Colombo, and the leading merchants and planters are therefore more desirous to see a good haven provided at the chief trading port than to spend money in making a secure harbour as an entrepot for mail steamships. This preference given to commerce over that of correspondence was the indirect cause of the last proposition—namely, for expending £350,000 on a breakwater at Galle—being defeated.

Mr. Townshend's plans and estimates having been published have given rise to the old system of local warfare, and the same conflicting interests are likely to defeat the two schemes. It is said, on the one hand, that the cutting of a channel through the rocky islets lying between Ceylon and the Indian coast would do away altogether with the necessity of calling at Galle, and that not one penny should be spent on a port which is likely to be abandoned at no distant date. The geographical position of Galle, however, points it out as the best for steamers plying between Aden, China, and Australia; besides which, if the fleets of long steamers now passing via Suez were all to go to Colombo, a difficulty would soon be experienced in accommodating them.

At Colombo there is a large sheet of water covering 300 acres, near the sea, known as the Lotus Lake. This water serves a double purpose—that of cooling the immediate atmosphere, and sluicing the district. Mr. Townshend proposes to fill in 200 acres of this lake for tramways and approaches, and seawards to build capacious docks, protected by a breakwater jutting out from the headland at Custom-house Point. He estimates that the cost of constructing those works would be about £750,000.

We would recommend that the works at Colombo should be constructed by the Ceylonese Government, by capital raised on the security of that possession; and the breakwater at Galle, by an Imperial guaranteed loan as the works advance. The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company have sunk capital enough in that wreck spot at Galle to have made a sea wall, and, as an insurance fund, they would, no doubt, consent to the imposition of harbour dues on the completion of the works. We cannot, however, disguise from ourselves the fact that the work of making a breakwater at Galle would extend over many years, for the operations are likely to be seriously interfered with during the monsoons.

Foreign Intelligence.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 3.

The members of the First Chamber have passed in great haste the several chapters of the Budget, so that they were enabled to leave the Hague before New Year's-day. The debates were, of course, uninteresting. The principal topic of discussion was the question of our mission at the Papal Court. The Ultramontanes had laid all their hope upon our Lords, and the addresses of the Bishops and of the laity had no other object than to urge the Upper House to outvote the Budget for Foreign Affairs as a mark of disapproval that the Second Chamber had refused the money to maintain the Embassy. The Chamber, however, approved of the Budget by 23 ayes against 12 noes. The position of the Minister Gericke was very difficult. He had asked for the credit and advocated the matter in the Lower House with great ability, and he had now to mix his wine with water, if he did not wish to cause a political crisis. His speech was one of much tact, and was, in fact, a model of diplomatic ability from beginning to end. He stated that the Ministry deplored the vote, but they did not think the question to be of so much importance as to risk the placing of the two Chambers in opposition to each other. While the Government were desirous for a time to maintain the mission, still they were not of opinion that it was necessary that Holland should always be represented at the Papal Court. The last hope of the Clericals has also faded away—the King has ratified the Budgets. The movement of the Catholics has wholly failed, and the question now is—What will they do next? The debate upon the Colonial Budget, which was most uninteresting, ended in its passing by 32 against 3 votes The Minister of the Colonial Department declared himself to be a promoter of moderate Liberal principles. The principal complaints were that foreigners were now admitted unconditionally into Java. The Minister, however, demonstrated that it was but a weak policy that Java should be closed to the civilised world. He further stated that the coffee culture would be maintained, but on an improved basis. The system of consignments would be given up gradually. The Agrarian Law is now a dead letter, and therefore the Minister will persevere with his intention to alter the well-known decree of his predecessor; but the period at which this alteration will take place was not named by Mr. van Bosse. These and more explanations were given by the Minister, as he gave them some weeks ago in the Second Chamber.

I am glad to state that the illness of the Premier has not proved fatal, as was feared; it is even rumoured that his condition improves from day to day, so that he will perhaps be able to resume his duties in a short time. A Minister for the War Department has not yet been found, and it will indeed be very difficult to find an able person who is inclined to accept the portfolio, because the Second Chamber has made it understood that the members are not inclined to throw away any more money for military purposes. Notwithstanding that Mr. Engelvaart has resigned, his troubles are not yet over. The Parliamentary Commission appointed to investigate the unhappy question of the ex-captain Janssen, has published a report which is anything but favourable to Messrs. Engelvaart, Gisser, and Keyzer, whose behaviour is much censured. It appears, indeed, that the Minister acted in a most arbitrary and "Prussian-like" manner. If the Chamber approves the conclusions of the Commission it is pretty certain that Mr. Janssen will be restored to his lost honours.

The Staats Courant published yesterday a Bavarian telegram, stating that Mr. Loudon and family had arrived at Batavia, and that he was installed as Governor-General on New Year's-day. The telegrams from our East India possessions are coming more and more scanty. When there was no direct telegraphic communication with Java the papers published every fortnight commercial and shipping news from Batavia. But now we do not hear anything by telegraph, except now and then of the arrival of a vessel, whose owner is kind enough to give the papers a copy of his private despatch. In this way the "Neuerland" Company notified the arrival of the steamer Prins Hendrik, after a quick passage of thirty-nine days, at Batavia. The same company's steamer, Prins van Oranje, has arrived in Texel, and she will proceed to Glasgow for repairs. The management of the directors of this company, and the misfortunes their steamers have met with, are sharply commented on in our papers. It is widely rumoured that one of the directors will resign, in consequence of the report of the commission on the causes of the fire by which the Willem III. was destroyed. The shares of the company are not much in demand, and the prices are consequently very low. The shares of the East India Railway have, on the contrary, much improved, and they close at 51 per cent., that is about 6 per cent. higher than a week ago. The reasons for this favourable change are not precisely known; perhaps the project, which the Minister of the Colonial Department laid before the members of Parliament, to provide Java with a railway net, have brought these bonds into so much favour.

According to an official communication, published by the Staats Courant, the mails for and from East India will be forwarded via France and Italy, and not any more through Germany. The despatch of the mails will take place on the evening of every Thursday, and from Rotterdam on the morning of every Friday. Up to this moment they have been despatched on Saturday morning. Perhaps some further alterations will soon be made, as the railway communication between Moerdyk and Dordrecht was opened yesterday, by which our communications with Belgium and France are materially facilitated.

According to the Opmerker Mr. C. J. van Doorn, engineer of the Amsterdam Canal Company, has been engaged by the Japanese Government as engineer in chief. He will leave Holland early next month.

The King has approved the appointment of Mr. O. Sielcken as Consul at Batavia for Germany.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

As usual the holidays have put a stop to business, and the resumption of operations has been as much as possible deferred until after the turn of the year. Consequently there has been very little stirring in the Produce market during the week, but a healthy tone prevails for most leading articles, especially for Coffee and Sugar, in which more activity would no doubt have been perceptible, despite of the influence on business transactions of the present festive season, but for the reservedness of holders. Both articles are in good demand, and prices have an upward tendency. The new year opens upon the whole under favourable circumstances. The peace of Europe seems to be fairly consolidated for some time to come, and trade and industry are gradually recovering the serious losses suffered during the late war. Notwithstanding serious apprehensions were entertained some time back in regard to disturbances in the money market, to arise from the present financial position of France, the rates of discount have gradually receded of late to normal figures, and money remains easy at low quotations. The winter seemed in the early part of last month likely to be very severe, but the weather has since been unusually mild, and continues so, which encourages the hope that re-opened navigation will soon permit our trade to re-assume its wonted course, and thereby relieve the great nuisance caused by the insufficiency of railway conveyance to the interior, as well as to Germany and other foreign countries.

Among the changes in commercial firms taking effect with the commencement of the year we note the following in connection with the China, Japan, and Straits trade:—Mr. Charles Freeman retires from the firm of Ashton and Co., Hatton-court, Threadneedle-street. Mr. Frederick Bower retires from the firm of Bower, Hanbury, and Co., of Shanghai, and Bower and Co., of St. Mary Axe, London; the firm will in future consist of Mr. Egbert Iveson in Shanghai, and Thos. Hanbury and Andrew A. Rankin in London, where business will be carried on under the style of Hanbury and Co. The business of Messrs. Fraser and Co. Mincing-lane, will be carried on by Mr. Arthur A. Fraser, Mr. J. M. Fraser, the senior partner, having retired. Mr. John Brough Hallam, son of the late Mr. S. J. Hallam, has become a partner in the firm of Arthur Capel and Co. a partner in the firm of Ewart, Maccaughey, and Co. Messrs. J. C. im Thurn and Co. have admitted Mr. John Conrad im Thurn, jun., into partnership, and Mr. G. W. Speth, who has hitherto held the procuration of the firm, retires.

We are glad to learn by the last mail that the panic in Shanghai, announced by telegram about a month since, was not caused by speculation in the share market, as was at first reported, but by pressure for money on the part of the Chinese contractors, in order to enable them to pay in to the Chinese Government the necessary deposits on their tenders for the Salt monopoly.

Mr. Holt has issued a a circular to shippers by the Holt Line of steamers, offering to cover goods by insurance in open policies, the rates outward being f.p.a. to Singapore 17s., Hong Kong 19s., Shanghai 23s., nett. The Alphington, from Algoa Bay, has arrived in London, with a portion of the cargo of the North German barque Alida, from Nagasaki. This vessel was loaded in September, 1870, when the breaking out of the war caused her to remain in Nagasaki Harbour until the following May, when she sailed, and fell in with bad weather, which caused her to put into Algoa Bay, where she was condemned, part of her cargo being sold and part transhipped to the Alphington. The portion by this vessel consists of 450 boxes tea, 56 boxes ground nuts, 391 bales tobacco, 144 cases cassia, and about 500 packages sundries.

The profitable employment which has been found in the conveyance of pilgrims from Singapore to Jeddah by homeward bound steamers from China, has induced some shipowners to give orders for the construction of large steamers, with three passenger decks, specially for this traffic. We need hardly remind them that their vessels will have to be brought under the Passenger Act, and consequently may not carry so many as they reckon.

The export of Grey and White Shirtings to Shanghai for December was 22,971,615 yards, and to Hong Kong 7,253,371 yards, the totals for the year being—Shanghai 404,321,757 yards, and Hong Kong 106,892,434. To Shanghai the increase over 1870 is about 130 million yards, and 258 millions over 1867. To Hong Kong the increase is 30 millions and 56 millions respectively.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 3rd inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £485,800, and to Bombay, £14,200. The minimum price was fixed as before at 1s. 11d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders at 1s. 11¼d. will receive about 11 per cent. ; those above in full. Average rate on Calcutta 1s. 11·36d. ; and on Bombay 1s. 11·25d. These results show a further diminution in the demand for remittances to the East.

The demand for Bar Silver has slightly increased, and the price has improved, the quotation being 60⅝d. to 60¾d. per oz. standard, buyers at the former, sellers at the latter rate. Mexican Dollars of the old coinage maintain their last price, viz., 5s. 0¼d., but the new description have receded ¼d. in value, as there is but small demand for them, and are quoted 4s. 11d. The Candia has taken £48,920 to China and the Straits.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Candia, which left Southampton on the 4th inst., was—in gold, to Bombay, £5,000—in silver, to Penang, £14,400 ; to Hong Kong, £24,870 ; to Shanghai, £4,650 ; total in gold, £5,000 ; in silver, £43,920.

THE OPENING OF 1872.

The new year has opened with a greater degree of activity in almost all branches and seats of British industry than has existed at the same season for many years. The shipbuilding trade especially has made remarkable progress. The returns of the past year from the yards on the Clyde, the Tyne, the Weir, and the Thames, are all exceedingly favourable ; and the effect of the increased demand on wages is shown by the fact mentioned by Mr. W. S. Lindsay—once a large owner in the China trade—in a letter to the Daily News, that, since several contracts for steamers now in progress have been entered into, the market value of steamers has risen three pounds per ton. In other words, an owner who is fortunate enough to have a steamer of 2,000 tons now building for him can part with his bargain off-hand at a profit of £6,000. In sailing ships, a branch which has been of course neglected of late years, good employment now prevails ; many new vessels are being ordered, and it is only to be hoped that the enterprise thus excited may not be overdone, as it has too often before.

In the same letter Mr. W. S. Lindsay reminds us that when our shipowners saw that it was vain to seek for any renewal of protection they asked that they might be relieved from all special restrictions and burdens, and allowed to buy in the cheapest markets whatever they required for the construction, equipment, and navigation of their ships. The Legislature, with great wisdom, instead of buoying them up with false hopes and special favours in the shape of subsidies, and so forth, granted their request. The consequence has been that American clippers have entirely disappeared from the China seas and Indian Ocean ; and iron screw-steamers, with the English ensign, have taken possession of the trade between the two countries which twenty years ago was all but monopolised by the famous American liners. In 1870 the shipping of the United States had declined to 4,150,000 tons, and that of the British Empire had increased to 7,150,000 tons. Nor does the increase of British ships up to the close of 1870 appear to have exceeded at any time during that period the legitimate demand for them. Even in our own oversea carrying trade our ships have hardly kept pace with our exports and imports. While the value of these increased from £346,000,000 sterling in 1860 to £503,000,000 in 1870, or at the rate of about 47 per cent., the shipping of the United Kingdom has only increased 24 per cent. ; but as the half of that increase consists of steam vessels, which perform in a given time three times the work of sailing vessels, the difference is not so great as appears by the Board of Trade returns between the quantity of goods transported and our means of transport. We are not merely the oversea carriers for our own people, we have become to a far greater extent than ever we were the carriers for the world, and now we own as many ships as all the world combined. Therefore we must consider the wants of other nations as well as our own ; and when we learn that the ships of the United States have decreased by more than one million tons during the last ten years, that those of France fall very far short of keeping pace with her commerce, that the tonnage of Holland is now 25 per cent. less than it was in 1860, that almost every branch of the carrying trade is about to be conducted by iron screw-steamers instead of sailing vessels, and that we are now not merely the carriers but also the builders for other nations—the enormous increase of iron screws during the year just closed may be less of a "mania" than it appears.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The week has again been one of extreme quietude in this market. There have been no public sales, and only a very limited amount of business has been transacted, the prices paid showing no alteration.

The following is Messrs. A. Capel and Co.'s annual Circular :—The chief feature to notice during the past year is the very great increase in the deliveries, both for home consumption and export, which has most materially relieved our market, and saved importers from heavy losses, which would otherwise have resulted from the excessive shipments during the early months of the season. The market thus closes with a bare supply of all good and useful kinds of Congou, and this in the face of an increase of nearly 27,000,000 lbs. in imports as compared with last year, prices in nearly all instances showing an improvement, the only exception being in Teas of low quality, which have been very difficult of sale throughout at gradually declining rates. We give the figures for the year as follows :—

	Imports. lbs.	Delivery. lbs.		Stock. lbs.
1870 ...	140,402,000	Home consumption 117,620,000 Export 30,800,000	148,420,000	79,997,000

The quantity afloat is 36,100,000 lbs., against 47,500,000 lbs. last year. The market has, on the whole, been steady, the demand having generally been good, whilst the supplies have been, with one exception, on a moderate scale, enabling importers to quit their stocks without forcing sales. This exception was during the month of August, when about 30,000,000 lbs. arrived, causing considerable alarm, and sales were pressed, both privately and at public sale, without reserve, the losses in some instances being very great. The quantity of the black leaf Congous has generally been considered below that of the previous year, though the finest chops did not come to this market, having been taken at Hankow by Russian buyers for direct export to that country. The Foochow Teas were certainly better than those of the previous year, both in strength and freedom from dust, but they are still sadly below the standard of a few years back, and leave much room for further improvement. Oolongs: Fine Formosa kinds have been in demand; other kinds generally rather difficult of sale. Souchongs: The quality, with few exceptions, has been below that of previous seasons. Flowery Pekoes: Supplies have been larger, but they have generally sold well at high prices. Scented Teas: Capers have been largely in excess of previous years, but they have all found buyers, though at a considerable decline in prices. Orange Pekoes: The scent has hardly been up to previous years. The quantity has been larger. Prices have been fairly steady, whilst fine have maintained full prices. Canton-made Teas: The Congous have not been equal to those of former years, but have sold well at full prices; the Scented Teas have been deficient in scent, and the earlier arrivals of Caper were excessive in quantity, came to a very bad market, and lost heavily. Orange Pekoes being in more moderate supply, though dull of sale, resulted better for importers.

The quality of Green Teas has been scarcely up to last season; fine Teas have met with a steady sale at full prices, but common to medium kinds have been only saleable at low irregular prices throughout; prices for such kinds have also ruled low in the United States. The supplies of Japan Tea have especially latterly largely exceeded the requirements, and, for all the commoner grades, prices have declined considerably, and they are now in very limited demand.

SILK.

The market continues very firm, importers showing a disposition in many cases to hold for an advance upon the current quotations. Tsatlee, Nos. 1 and 2 stands at 29s. 6d. to 30s. 6d.; No. 3, 28s. 6d. to 29s.; Red Peacock, 25s. 9d.; fair 4 to 4½, 25s. to 25s. 6d.

We take the following from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular:—The past year must, on the whole, have been one of considerable success to all engaged in the Silk Trade, especially to Throwsters and Manufacturers, who have been employed in a measure almost beyond precedent, and who commence the new year also with their hands full of orders. The leading feature of the past year has been the steady general demand for China Silk, and its wonderful firmness at all moments, for even in the periods of pause and dulness which fall at regular intervals on the Silk market, and the disastrous state of affairs in France in the spring of the year, the fluctuations in value of China Silk have been really very small, at the outside 2s. per lb., the lowest moments being in April and May, when everything looked gloomy in Paris, and reports of the European crops came favourable, Red Peacocks then declined to 24s. The highest points were in January, when the market opened with the new year at 25s. 6d. to 26s. for Red Peacocks; in August, when the first arrivals of new silk sold at 26s. for the same chop; and again at the close of the year, when 25s. 9d. was the current quotation.

The home trade have been steady and large buyers throughout the year, but from the Continent demand has been of an unusual character, almost nil from France during the spring months, and then giving place to sudden inquiry, resulting in shipments of extraordinary magnitude, when the imposition of a duty on raw Silk in France seemed probable, then again as rapidly subsiding and remaining flat and dull, with little, if any, improvement ever since. From other continental markets the demand has been regular and good; this, in conjunction with home demand, supporting the market in dark political moments, and maintaining the steady course of prices as we have seen. Canton Silk has been in almost as much favour as China, and it is evident that it is seriously occupying the attention of many manufacturers who a few years ago declined to use it; the Silk is becoming very popular, and the deliveries show what an important position it holds as an Asiatic Silk; prices have been easy throughout the year, and probably from that cause it has found its way into new channels of consumption; the prospects are good, and the closing prices of the year, 17s. to 22s. 6d. for fair market to extra curio Tsatlee reel, and 18s. to 22s. for good to finest Loong Kong, although showing an advance of 6d. to 1s. during the month, are still such as render it comparatively the cheapest silk offering. Of Japan silk we have a very different story to give; it has been fluctuating heavily from time to time; business has generally had to be forced, and the only moments of activity have been speculative, when prices seemed to have receded so low as to render operations safe and profitable; unfortunately, no real consuming demand has stepped in to help this silk, and importers have for months been helpless in a stagnant market. There is a little better feeling of late and with more business doing, prices a good 1s. better during the month, but still low.

The following is our usual table of statistics, and although figures seem by comparison with last year very heavy, yet it must be borne in mind that Silk has come forward this season with unusual rapidity, owing to the success of the Suez Canal route, and that during the seven months of this year, in which only the residue of the present season's Silk can arrive, consumption, if it continue on the scale of the past year, will soon begin to tell upon stocks, and every month must materially diminish the assortments offering; altogether the new year opens cheerfully for all engaged in the Silk trade.

COFFEE.

The market was reopened on the 4th inst., and the public sales went off with an activity fully confirming the recent advance by private contract for both colours and pale kinds, and the whole was disposed of; 82 casks, 9 tierces, 16 barrels, 12 bags Plantation Ceylon sold—triage, 65s. 6d. to 69s.; small, 70s. to 72s.; middling colours, 75s. 6d. to 79s.; good middling to good bold, 80s. 6d. to 87s. 6d.; pea berry, 85s. 6d. to 86s. 100 bags yellowish Java sold at 72s. 6d., bold at 78s. 6d. Privately good ordinary Native Ceylon has been sold at 69s. 6d.

SUGAR.

The market re-opened on the 2nd inst., with a quiet tone, and the transactions at the public sales have not included any parcels of East India descriptions. Privately the market has been firm throughout, and full rates have been obtainable. We note the sale of 5,000 bags good clayed Manila (duty 4s.) at 30s. per cwt., the only transaction in East India descriptions during the week.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The Market is quiet at £38 to £38 5s. for Ceylon.

CUTCH.—The market is firm, and Pegue has sold, in bags, 23s. 6d.; fine, in boxes, 25s. 6d. to 26s.; S.M. Elephant and G.W. marks, at 26s. to 26s. 6d.

CAMPHOR.—China is in active speculative request, and sales have been effected commencing at £4 per cwt., and closing at £4 2s. 6d.; about 800 cases have been taken. Japan: No transactions.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed quiet at 12s. to 12s. 6d. Cassia at 5s. 9d. to 6s.

GAMBIER.—This import is in demand for arrival at advancing prices; sales have been effected of about 650 tons at 19s., ex ship, and a large portion has been subsequently re-sold at 19s. 3d. to 19s. 6d.

GALLS.—We note the sale of 100 cases China afloat at £3 per cwt.; also of 100 cases on the spot at the same figure.

HEMP.—No business in Manila.

PEPPER.—Black: A moderate demand prevails, and about 500 bags Penang have been sold at 5½d. to 5¾d. White: In auction 329 bags of old import, 70 bags sold, Penang at 10¾d. to 10¾d., Singapore at 11d.

RICE.—The market is very dull, and there is no business doing.

SAGO.—A good demand has prevailed during the last few days, and sales of fair small pearl of some extent in bags have been made at 17s. 6d., at which there are further buyers.

SPICES.—Without transactions.

TIN.—The available stocks of foreign tin in England and Holland at the close of the past year were less by 700 tons than at the commencement, and we believe both smelters and consumers are bare of stock. Judging from the activity of trade in Europe and America, we may fairly assume that a large consumption will be maintained, and even an increase would not be surprising. On the other hand, the high prices ruling should stimulate production. It is remarkable the small quantity of Banca tin held by the Dutch Trading Company, amounting to 1,700 tons only, both landed and floating; we do not, therefore, expect at their spring sale more than 70,000 slabs can be sold. All things considered, there is no reason to expect much reduction in price for the next few months, on the contrary, should speculation deal much in the article, we may see a great rise in the price, whether enduring or not depending upon the strength of the speculator. The current quotations are—Straits, on the spot, £145; afloat, £143; Banca, £145; Billiton, £145 per ton

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—DEC. 23.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular:—Our last was under date of November 20, since which the demand for Tea (other than Oolongs), has been light and business limited. The total of sales reported from first hands are—9,700 half-chests Green (4,400 of which are to arrive), 1,900 half chests Japan, 40,000 half-chests Oolong (including 25,000 old Foochow, ex Orpheus), and 1,200 half-chests Souchong. Prices realised for these goods indicate no material change in values, of any description, and the market closes without animation, though with a fair degree of firmness.

The following are the current quotations (in gold, duty 15c. paid):—Greens (Moyune, Teenki and Fychow, new crop): Gunpowder, first quality, 105c. to 110c.; second, 80c. to 85c.; Imperial, first, 85c. to 90c.; second, 70c. to 75c.; third, 50c. to 58c.; Young Hyson, first, 95c. to 105c.; second, 75c. to 85c.; third, 55c. to 62c.; Hyson, first, 80c. to 85c.; second, 67c. to 72c.; third, 50c. to 58c.; Hyson Skin, 33c. to 43c.; Foochow Oolongs (old crop), common and good, 39c. to 46c.; superior and fine, 52c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 90c.; Amoy Oolongs (new crop), common and good, 43c. to 54c.; superior and fine, 57c. to 67c.; finest, 70c. to 80c.; Souchong and Congou (old and new crop), common and good, 27c. to 38c.; superior and fine, 43c. to 55c.; finest, 60c. to 70c.; Japans (new crop), common, nominal; medium, 52c. to 54c.; good medium, 56c. to 58c.; fine and finest, 62c. to 72c.; choice, 75c. to 85c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to Dec. 18, 1871, were as follows:—Greens, 19,478,741 lbs.; Japans, 14,087,158 lbs.; Souchongs, 3,726,528 lbs.; Oolongs, 14,560,815 lbs.; other sorts, 490,347 lbs.; total, 52,343,589 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 16,748,661 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 69,092,250 lbs. as the total supply. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 18, 4,776,113 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 46,675,971 lbs., there remains a total of 17,640,166 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from Nov. 18 to Dec. 18 amounted to 2,824,544 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 2,125,794 lbs.; and the exports to 182,697 lbs.

SILK.

The following is Mr. O'Donoghue's report:—The Silk market has received quite an impetus since the 20th ultimo, the demand being for re-reeled Tsatlee and Cantons. Of the latter, large lines have been taken at $5 75-100c. for ordinary quality, transactions being confined entirely to manufacturers, who are anticipating their wants for the Spring trade, in view of the advance in cost in China and a prospective short stock, the shipments being nearly all received. In the finer grades, sales have not been so frequent, but they are in fair request and firmly held at quotations. Re-reeled Tsatlee have met a ready sale, but as noticed in our last circular, always at a concession for large deliveries. Re-reeled Haineens have not been so active; inquiry moderate, with fair stock. Usual Reel Tsatlee and Taysaans are rather neglected, the demand being limited to small parcels for actual consumption. Stock large. Japans: No sales.

Prices current for China and Japan Silks (currency prices):—China:—Tsatlee, No. 1, $9.1-4; No. 2. $8.75; No. 3, $8.1-4 to 8.1-2; No. 4 to 5, none. Taysaam, No. 1, $7.75 to 8; No. 2, $7.1-4 to 7.1-2; No. 3, $6.3-4 to 7. Canton, re-reeled, No. 1 Cotingoun, $7.25 to 7.1-2; No. 2, $6.50 to 6.75; No. 1 Cumchook, $6 to 6.1-4; No. 2, $5.75; Mahang and Hongtang, $5.25 to 5.50. (Six months' terms): Tsatlee, re-reeled, best, $8.1-2; fair, $8 to 8.25; medium, $8. Taysaam, none. Haineen, re-reeled, best, $8 3-4 to 9; fair, $8.1-4 to 8.1-2. Japans:—no stock, prices nominal.

Imports: In November, 802 packages, $519,655, gold value; corresponding month last year, 611 packages, $393,506 gold value.

COFFEE.—Favourable advices from Rio have given an impetus to the market, which has been both active and buoyant at an advance of three-quarters of a cent per lb. in gold. There is also a perceptible increase of demand from the interior, but nothing of any great magnitude is expected at this period of the season. The buying, therefore, has been chiefly speculative by dealers and others, in anticipation of the wants of the country during the early months of 1872. The prices now current are ½ to ¾ of a cent per lb. above the highest rates obtained at the close of October, before the reaction which then set in. East Indian descriptions have been quiet; there have been jobbing sales of Java to a moderate extent at 23c. to 25½c. gold and the cargo of 15,287 mats per Galileo was sold before arrival on private terms.

CORDAGE is steady at previous rates—say 21c. to 22c. for Manila, 20½c. for Tarred Manila, and 19c. to 20c. for Sisal Rope.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 16c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $3; Cassia, $2.25 gold (duty paid).

GUNNY CLOTH.—Stocks of both India and Domestic are held firmly. There has been a movement in Borneo, 750 bales having changed hands at 9¼ cents gold, in bond. Native may be quoted 14½ cents currency, duty paid, and Borneo 16. Domestic very firm at 15 cents.

HEMP.—There is nothing doing in Manila, nor, indeed, in any other description, manufacturers holding off at this period of the season. The market is consequently very dull, but we have no change to note in prices, which for Manila are nominally quoted 13½c. to 13½c., gold.

INDIGO.—The market is very quiet, and we have no business to report.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $9.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 70c. to 100c. currency (duty free).

RICE.—There is a steady demand, and, owing to light supplies, prices show an advancing tendency. Of Rangoon, the sales have been 1,600 bags, at $6 80 to 7 currency, and 1,500 bags—part to arrive—at $3.25 to 3.37½ gold.

SUGAR.—Market is very dull, and prices generally are one-eighth of a cent lower. There is an almost total absence of demand from refiners who only purchase to keep their reduced machinery in working order, or, perhaps, in some instances to provide for their wants in January next. The Trade are scarcely in the market at all. Holders, as a rule, offer sparingly, and refrain from crowding the market, but the lack of buyers tends to dulness, and the decline noticed has been pretty generally submitted to.

SPICES.—For whole parcels there is still little or no inquiry, and we hear of no business. Cassia, under an increased supply, is lower, and Pepper is not so strong. Other descriptions are unchanged. There is a steady moderate demand for jobbing lots, which dealers are supplying at $1.42½ to 1.45 for Mace, $1 for round lots of Penang Nutmegs in cases, and 97½c. for casks. China Cassia is quoted 35c., Pepper 18c. for small parcels of Sumatra, and 19c. for Singapore, all gold. It is somewhat remarkable that there are few descriptions of Spices, especially of those imported from the Eastern Archipelago, that can be laid down here and sold at the prices now current, except at a loss. This seems to indicate that the trade expect lower prices in the primary markets before the active spring business sets in.

TIN.—The market is very quiet, and we hear of no business. The nominal quotations are—for Straits 38½c., English 38c., and Banca 43c., gold.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

YOUTHFUL INFIRMITIES.—With symptoms scarcely perceptible at first, which this restorative medicine would radically remove, the young become prematurely enervated and debilitated. They lose alike their looks, energy, and confidence. The general cause of this melancholy state is a disordered stomach or deranged liver, which Holloway's Pills will regulate. By improving digestion and purifying the blood they work wonders. They act so kindly, yet so certainly, upon every organ necessary for healthy digestion that the nervous system soon recovers and the wonted good spirits speedily return with strength, vivacity and vigour. The most delicate may safely take Holloway's Pills. They cause no violent effects upon the system, and gradually accomplish their end without much restriction in diet or pleasure.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 26th Nov.; the French mail, with London dates Sept. 29, arrived out Nov. 17. The following summary is from the Japan Mail and the Japan Herald:—

The following grades of Government offices, down to the 10th class, and rates of monthly salaries, have been fixed by the Japanese Government, to be paid in cash in lieu of rice as formerly. There are a few perquisites and advantages enjoyed by some of the officers which increase the remuneration they receive, but it will be manifest, when we mention that the Prime Minister, who heads the list, is only paid 800 rios a month, and the Chiji of the Kanagawa Ken but 250 rios, that the remuneration paid to officials in the public service is calculated upon a much lower basis than obtains in Europe—too little to support the dignity and importance of the more important offices. If the number of officials could be reduced, say by one-half, and the best officers only retained, at double the present rates, a great improvement would be effected, by thus offering sufficient inducement to the best intellects of the country to engage in the service of Government:—

"The cry is still they come," for we learn that the Japanese Government, with the object of pushing on the civilisation of the country, and bringing it to as high a pitch in as brief a time as possible, are continuously engaging foreigners from abroad to enter their service. Without mentioning the American citizens who will presently arrive here to fill various capacities, we hear of the engagement of twenty-three French military instructors for the Imperial army and ten English instructors for the Japanese navy. Further, twelve beer brewers from Bavaria have been ordered, and a number of shoemakers (country unknown) will shortly arrive to teach the craft and mystery of bootmaking. Amongst the imitative movements of the day may be noted the establishment of a shoeblack brigade at Yedo, which is in course of formation, to be composed of street boys and men destitute of other employment.

An accident occurred on board the Japanese steamer Komei Maru, on leaving Yedo for Yokohama, which was the cause of the death of two and wounding of three passengers. By some means the clogs to the capstan gave way, driving the poles with great force in every direction. The same steamer met with a mishap to her machinery, and was forced to anchor, and return her passengers by another vessel to Yokohama, where they arrived late at night.

Our readers may remember that some time since a man by the name of Rogers was tried by the late Mr. Lemuel Lyon, the U.S

Consul, at the instance of the Japanese Government, for forging kinsats, but owing to the feeble state in which the native witnesses appeared, the Consul refused to proceed with the case; the man therefore was admitted to bail to hold himself liable to be called on to appear at any time. We hear that he has forfeited his bail by his escape to Shanghai, where his re-arrest was caused by the Japanese authorities, and he has been again admitted to bail there, awaiting further instructions.

A gold-lace fever has now infected the Japanese, owing to several of the Daimios having decided on supplying their troops with a new dress, on the occasion of the present Japanese year. The Japanese new year begins about the middle of February, and several of the native merchants are paying foreigners exorbitant prices to obtain supplies from Europe by that time. They are, however, backward to enter into any contract unless the foreign merchants can guarantee that the lace will arrive here by the middle of February, or March at the latest. But few, now that the year is so near its close, would care, even by telegraphing home, to take this risk. Some of the Japanese have been beforehand in the matter, and we hear of one of the merchants at Yedo who, two months ago, ordered through one of the mercantile houses here over 20,000 yards of gold lace of different widths, from the manufacturers at Belgium.

A court-martial was held on board the Alma on Roslin d'Ivry, a seaman, who, it will be remembered, shot a Japanese scindo at Yedo some short time since. He was sentenced to be imprisoned for two years, and to pay a fine of £600.

An embassy left Yedo a few days since for Korea. What has the Mikado to say to the formerly subject Korea requiring two embassies in one year?

A hospital for Europeans employed in the railway department has been opened on the Bluff, at the quarters lately occupied by the British Legation Guard. Dr. Purcell, of H.B.M.'s 10th Regiment, is in charge of the hospital in Yokohama, and Dr. Wheeler of the British Legation in Yedo.

The underwriters of the cargo of the French ship L'Arabie have consented to pay in full the claims of which our readers have heard so much, a concession the liberality of which is calculated to cause the more surprise that a similar course would certainly not have been adopted at home, in view of the manner in which the claims were stated. Great labour has been expended in bringing about the result, and it is only due to the companies who accepted the claims, viz.: the Batavia Sea and Fire and the Colonial Sea and Fire, both of Batavia, to acknowledge the honourable liberality which induced them to pay a manifestly incorrect claim, not because they were compelled to do so, but because, as they say, they were desirous to prevent further loss to the innocent assured.

HIOGO.

Dates extend to the 17th Nov.; the Pacific mail, with New York advices Sept. 24, arrived out Oct. 31, and the P. and O. mail of Sept. 22 on the 16th Nov.; telegrams from London had been received to the 26th Oct.

The following items are from the Hiogo News:—A plot of ground situate at the corner of the Ikuta Baba and the Concession, and containing 359 tsubos—the rent of which is paid up to November 1st, 1874—was sold at public auction, by Messrs. A. de Ath and Co., for Mex. $700, to Mr. F. Blake.

Lot No. 12, on the Osaka Concession, with a building thereon was sold by public auction by Messrs. Johnson and Co. to Mr, Klein for Mex. $1,000.

M. Gaston Dutronquoy, whose death at an advanced age we record in another column, was one of the pioneers of Kobé, and the roll of those who fought at and survived Waterloo bears one name less. M. Dutronquoy had been in his time no mean traveller, and his mind must have been stored much above the average even of travelling humanity with recollections of strange scenes. In the East he had visited Singapore, Borneo, and Batavia; in South America, Chili and Buenos Ayres; in North America, California twice. He was also one of the pioneers of the gold rush to Melbourne. He arrived in Hong Kong in 1847, and afterwards visited various places in China, leaving Hankow for Kobé a short time before the opening of this port, only staying sufficiently long, we believe, at Nagasaki on the way to prepare a house which might be immediately erected on landing here. It is told of him that on his arrival here he opened a sort of drug shop, and when a customer required medicine, of which M. Dutronquoy pretended to no knowledge at all, he would first take a dollar, and then suggest that the customer should help himself according to his own discretion.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, Nov. 13, 1871, VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

I last wrote on the 3rd instant, via Brindisi, and now continue my series of letters more for form's sake than anything else, as the interval has been almost a blank. The mails of the 15th and 22nd Sept. reached this on the 4th and 13th inst., fifty and fifty-two days respectively. The movements of the vessels of war have been as follows:—H.B.M.'s gunboat Midge received orders per telegram, and hurriedly took her departure for Tientsin on the evening of the 7th instant, and, although very late in the season, it is expected that she will find the river open, as strong southerly winds have been blowing here during the past two or three days, which makes the weather here feel most unseasonably warm. The arrivals have been the French corvette Cosmao, 5th, from Chefoo; Russian corvettes Isambroud and Vitias, from Honolulu and Tuam, on the 6th and 11th instant, all of which vessels remain in port. The French ironclad Alma and some others of this squadron are expected to visit this port, and several of the Russian fleet will probably winter here. The Almay goes home—her place being taken by the Vitias.

Nebukin is 360 bus per $100; exchange on London, 4s. 7d. per dollar. Freight to London nominal, in the absence of a vessel on the berth.

The export of coal from this port, as reported by the Nagasaki Gazette, is as follows:—

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent, writing under date Nov. 23rd, sends the following items:—

The waters are much as when I last wrote, and the gap half way up to town is not yet closed. The authorities are receiving small dribblets of grain from Leaoutung, and a Chinese gunboat has again come with a few hundred piculs of maize and millet from Newchwang. The quantities of grain which have come during the last three months from Honan and the west of Shantung are much about the same as usually came from those places. The Szechuen has been lightered from Takoo by the millet, and she and the Appin both clear to-day for Shanghai.

We have now every morning ice at the river side, and I imagine the next strong north blow will close the river half way to Takoo. It is true the large volume of water this year may prevent it freezing over so early. In former years there has always been little water in the bed, owing to strong northerly winds. As we have this year a great deal of water running down night and day, it will not freeze so easily, and we may see the river close later.

H.B.M.'s gun vessel Midge arrived here five days back, and she and the Leven are both being housed in.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port extend to the 30th November; the P. and O. mail, with London dates Oct. 6, arrived out Nov. 23. The North China Herald supplies the following items of news:—

The chief event of the week has been the visit of Tseng-kwo-Fan to the port. His reception is said to have cost the city of Shanghai ten thousand taels, and if all the other cities which he visits in the three provinces under his rule are put to proportionate expense, a viceregal tour must be rather a costly proceeding. Tseng arrived on the 22nd Nov., accompanied by the Acting Futai, the Taoutai, Chen, the Mixed Court magistrate, and a number of smaller mandarins. A guard of native soldiers went in front—a fairly presentable body of men—one party carrying flags, and another being armed with rifles and fixed bayonets. After these came banner and umbrella bearers, a few officers on ponyback, and in rear of the procession the usual following of yamen loafers.

The Viceroy is a well built man, somewhat stout, of heavy expression of countenance, with dark grey beard and moustachios, his face deeply lined. The Futai looks an intelligent man, of apparently the same years as his superior. Entering at the French side, his Excellency first visited the French Consul General, from thence passing to the Spanish Consulate, thence to the Danish Consulate (Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.'s), and next to the British Consulate. Here a guard of Marines was drawn up and saluted as he came in, while the bugler sounded welcome, and six guns were fired from some small cannon in the grounds. His Excellency was received by Mr. Davenport, Acting Consul, at his house; Mr. Fraser, Acting Vice-Consul; Mr. McClatchie, Acting Interpreter; Mr. Spence, of H.B.M. Consulate; C. W. Goodwin, Esq., Deputy Chief Judge; the senior naval officer, Captain Baird, of H.M.S. Juno; Captain Boyle, of H.M.S. Curlew; Colonel Winstanley, of the Feng-wan-shan Drilled Force; Mr. Mowat, Law Secretary, and several private gentlemen being also present. The interview was entirely taken up with the usual complimentary remarks and inquiries, which Tseng acknowledged in very brief terms and with a very bland manner. We believe there are some questions pending of a commercial nature, which have been referred to the city for his Excellency's opinion, and which he promises to inquire into. Having expressed a desire to look into the Supreme Court—a kind of foreign building, which he said he had not yet had an opportunity of seeing—he was conducted there. Mr. Goodwin showed him the Bench, and explained, through Mr. McClatchie, the position of jury, counsel, parties, and witnesses, when business was going on.

His Excellency admired the arrangements, but thought the jury-box was a contrivance for extorting confessions from refractory prisoners. To the Taoutai, who leaves Shanghai for Wuchang, to become provincial judge of Honan, he remarked jocosely that he feared he would not find such a Court there—the Chinese Government could not afford such fine buildings. His Excellency took a look at the ruins of the late Consulate, and expressed his regret that it should have been so unfortunately destroyed. Leaving here, his Excellency went to the Hongkew side, and called at the Austrian, American, German, and Japanese Consulates, being received at the last mentioned with true Oriental courtesy. Returning to the English side, the procession made its way to the city, choosing the less public way of the Soochow Bund and through the Settlement by the Szechuen, Peking, and Honan-roads.

Those who witnessed the Viceroy's retinue must have been rather struck with the grotesque state which attended the spectacle. To foreigners, accustomed to smart soldiery, gay caparisonings, and rich equipages, the surroundings of the ruler of sixty millions of people on a ceremonious occasion could not but appear invested with a splendour more peculiar than real. It was curious because it was Chinese, but we feel bound to say it was far from imposing. We have already remarked that the men were not an unpromising lot of fellows, and might look well if they were subjected to rigid foreign discipline, including proper attention to the arms entrusted to them, the regular use of soap and water, and the wearing of serviceable uniforms, instead of tawdry coverings terminating in ragged continuations and worn-out shoes or straw sandals. These things do not seem at all to offend the Chinese eye, however, and we suppose foreigners should look on and admire. The cavalry of the escort was, if possible, more squalid in its style—mounted on some ill-fed, ungroomed, meanly-equipped ponies. Possibly, however, his Excellency's followers where compelled to leave their troop horses in the interior, and put up for the occasion with the local stud from the Taoutai's stables. The chairs of the Viceroy and Futai were the only respectable things to be seen. While the party where on the Bund, there occurred a characteristic episode. A market coolie paused to indulge his curiosity, a basket of carrots swinging from his shoulder. The braves cepied the tempting esculent, "requisitioned the lot" and parted them among themselves, each securing a couple or so. But the coolie had learned what it was to live in a free settlement, and made an outcry which brought up one of the Viceroy's officers, who ordered the braves to pay one cash each, at the same time selecting two carrots for himself at that price. Then the coolie wanted to be paid for the tops of the carrots, which had proved as acceptable to the ponies of the cavalry as the roots did to the foot; but we suppose the soldiery thought it was a swindle to have to pay anything, and no more than the one cash per man could the unfortunate vendor of carrots obtain. It was very amusing also, at the British Consulate, to see a brave appealing to a marine to remove a bayonet which clumsy treatment had fixed to the rifle, the scabbard also adhering immovably to the bayonet. Amid much laughing, the marine complied. But the faults of the native soldiery are less of a personal nature than the result of the system.

On the 24th Tseng left the Kiangnan Arsenal for Woosung, in the No. 4 gunboat, followed by Nos. 3 and 1, containing his suite. It had been intended to hold a review at Woosung of the Franco-Chinese Contingent, but this did not come off; and an attempt to blow up a junk with torpedoes failed through the imperfectness of the electric apparatus. His Excellency visited the district city of Paoshan, returning on the 25th to Woosung, whence he started in one of the Arsenal gunboats for Nanking.

Complaints not loud but numerous are to be heard among the Chinese upon whom members of the Viceroy's retinue have been billeted. One case is worth noticing. A Chinaman engaged in foreign employment had modelled his house and furniture after the Western fashion, and done it in very handsome style. The Taoutai intimated that the owner must turn out, as the house would be required for a high mandarin. And as the new occupant was strongly anti-foreign in his views, the place must be denuded of everything which could suggest the abhorred presence. The walls must be stripped of their papering, and the house dismantled and altered to the style of a native dwelling. Above all, the unhappy owner must look pleasant under the infliction and play the smiling host. We have heard a Chinaman estimate the loss to the owner of the house at Tls. 2,000, and are assured that redress against the Taoutai is out of the question, in fact that a squeeze is pretty certain to be imposed as well. Here at least our early notions of mandarin power are amply borne out, and the theory of paternal government touchingly illustrated

The salt excitement at Yangchow is over, the "farmers" selected, and the deposit-money is coming back. The Hupeh brought Tls. 1,000,000 to Shanghai, so the tightness of our money market is effectually relieved. The concourse of applicants seems to have caused high times in Yangchow; report says a regular spree has been going on there.

The Viceroy is said to be endeavouring to restore to Nanking the important wood trade which used to be carried on there before the rebellion; in the course of events this gravitated to Chinkiang, but Tseng-kwo-fan is now exerting his authority to re-establish it in its former position. It is said that large hongs are about to be built for the purpose; and certainly the amount of rebuilding which is going on in the Southern capital should guarantee a large trade.

The Taoutai has paid a visit to the Austrian frigate Fanasa, accompanied by Chen and several other officials. The party remained on board about an hour. The steam launch belonging to the frigate was placed at their disposal. When they were leaving the vessel a complimentary salute was fired.

The Austrian treaty has been ratified, the signatures being the Fantai, for China, and the Chevalier Calicé, the Austrian Minister. The treaties were exchanged at the Mixed Court, where the Taoutai, Mr. Schlik, Austrian Consul, Chevalier Funk, commander of the Fasana, and interpreters, were also present. A dinner has been given at the Austrian Consulate in honour of the event, at which the Chinese officials were guests, and they returned the compliment subsequently at the Fantai's residence.

There is a rumour in Peking, which we give for what it is worth, that Li has been ordered to proceed North to settle certain boundary questions with Russia; the latter is said to have been again encroaching. The Peking Gazette announces the promotion of Chang-chih-wan, now Futai of Kiangsu, to be Viceroy of Fohkien and Chekeang, vice Ying-kwei, the present incumbent, ordered to remain in Peking. Hoching, now Viceroy of Shansi, is to succeed Chang at Soochow.

The first meet of the Paper Hunt Club for the season has been held, and unfortunately resulted in two bad accidents. During the run the foxes crossed the scent, whereby the hunt became divided. The first man in to accept the congratulations of his backers was a celebrated lightweight on Emblem, who has frequently distinguished himself on the flat. It was discovered that the hunt had entirely missed the real line of paper; hence no prize was awarded, the foxes having doubled back too closely on the outward scent. As already stated, two members of the hunt met with accidents—one dislocating his shoulder and the other breaking his ribs. We are glad to hear, however, that both are progressing favourably, and may soon again be seen in the pigskin.

The Yacht Club have held another regatta. Nine yachts entered—the Emily, Charm, Pretender, Lucy, Fearless, Eureka, Phantom, Julia, and Fairy. Four, however, were disqualified in the start. The race was won by the Charm. We are informed that another cup has been presented by a member of the Yacht Club, to be sailed for on the 2nd Dec.—the course to be round the Red Buoy and back.

The Philharmonic Society have given their opening concert for the season. It was a very successful performance and gave great gratification to a crowded house.

A meeting of the Shanghai Gun Club was held on the 27th November. The accounts showed a balance in hand of $144, out of which it was decided to give two cups to be shot for by members. Messrs. Dallas, Waller, Twigg, Chambers, and Martin were elected a committee.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this opportunity extend to the 6th Dec. The outward mail, from London of 20th Oct. arrived on the 2nd Dec. The following items are from the China Mail:—

The St. Andrew's Dinner was held in St. Andrew's Hall (30th Nov.), when a party numbering about eighty sat down. In decoration, ornamentation, and general comfort, the affair was a great success. Hon. W. Keswick presided, supported by Commodore Shortt and Colonel Kennedy; Mr. James Greig acted as vice chairman, and Rev. Dr. Legge and Mr. Tonnochy acted as croupiers. After the usual loyal toasts, the chairman gave "The Pious and Immortal Memory of Saint Andrew," which was drunk in solemn silence. "The Land o' Cakes" was next proposed by the vice-chairman, in a few pithy remarks, and drunk to with enthusiasm. Mr. W. Legge gave the "Heroes of Scotland in a short but stirring speech, recalling to mind a few of the great names of which Scotland was ever rightly proud. "The Literary Worthies of Scotland," which was the next toast was proposed by Dr. Legge, in the speech of the evening. He said that he was embarrassed with the riches which presented themselves in such a field of worthies, as Scotland had attained the top of the tree in almost every department of intellectual effort. After enumerating nearly all the branches of science, theology, literature, and adventure in which many Scotchmen shone with great lustre, the rev. doctor brought down the house by his genial, discriminating, and just estimate of Burns, Scott, Carlyle, and George MacDonald. "The Lasses" was given by Mr. Tonnachy, and responded to by Lieut. Burn; while the "Guests" was proposed by Mr. Scott, and responded to by Mr. N. B. Dennys (for Englishmen) and by Mr. Elwell (for Americans). The evening was passed very pleasantly, a number of songs being sung by gentlemen of all nationalities present, and the company broke up before midnight.

A Chinese burial-ground has been set apart at about a quarter of a mile north east of Yau-ma tee, and in future this will be the only lawful place of interment for the Chinese inhabitants of British Kowloong.

the city of Victoria, and at 5 per cent. for houses in the villages of the island. The fire brigade rate for houses in Victoria is fixed at ¾ per cent., the lighting rate at 1½ per cent., and the water rate at 2 per cent. per annum. The rates are payable quarterly.

The ordinance relating to the admission and enrolment by the Supreme Court of barristers, attornies, solicitors, and proctors, and to the examination of articled clerks, and to provide for the registration of public notaries, has been approved and confirmed by Her Majesty.

The conditions are made public under which the privilege of farming the granite quarries in Hong Kong and Kowloong for 1872 will be granted.

His Excellency Governor Sir Richard Graves MacDonnell, K.C.M.G., C.B., being expected by the incoming French mail, the community are invited by the Colonial Secretary to attend his Excellency's landing at the Government Wharf, which will probably take place shortly after the steamer shall have anchored.

The Austrian treaty with China was ratified at Shanghai on Monday, November 27th, the signitaries being the Fantai, for China, and the Chevalier Calicé, the Austrian Minister. The treaties were exchanged at the Mixed Court, where the Taoutai, Mr. Schlick, Austrian Consul, Chevalier Funk, commander of the Fasana, and interpreters, were also present.

We learn that Baron de Hubner left Canton in the Chinese steamer Peng-chao-hai, after having seen all the sights and visited the local authorities.

We hear that it is in contemplation to establish a private steamer-service between this Port and Manila, which, if done, will be very convenient for correspondence, as it is impossible to insure the departure of the mails sent by sailing ships with anything like regularity. It often happens now that a steamer arrives unexpectedly and leaves for Manila during the time which elapses between the closing of the mail and the actual departure of the ship, which sometimes does not leave for three or four days after the time announced.

Mr. P. J. Hughes, Acting Consul at Canton, will, on the return of Mr. D. B. Robertson, proceed to Hankow.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company (Limited), was announced to be held on the 13th Dec., for the purpose of confirming the resolution passed at the last meeting: "That the sale by the directors of this company's Bienhoa property and of the Lakhan estate to Mr. Victor Kresser, and the arrangements made in connection therewith for the settlement of the company's claim on Messrs Wahee, Smith and Co. in respect of the third call on the shares held by them, and for the cancellation of the contract of the 21st April, 1870, for the sale to them of certain sugars: as set forth in the report submitted to this meeting by the directors are approved of, ratified and confirmed, the same being manifestly to the benefit and advantage of this company."

At the time when the mail left the trial of Abdool Moussa and Noor Mahomed Camissa for conspiracy, which commenced on the 1st Dec., before Chief Justice Smale, was still proceeding. The Acting Advocate-General and Mr. Drummond appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Hayllar for the defence. By next mail we have no doubt we shall receive the full report of the trial and verdict, and until then we reserve any further comments on the case.

The Ocean Regatta was announced to take place on the 7th December, the P. and O. tugboat Dragon being placed at their disposal to follow the race. It has been suggested that yachting sports in Hong Kong would be much increased by those who care for it entering small yachts for harbour races.

SAIGON.

Dates extend to the 10th Dec.

Mr. J. G. Caswell, British Consul at this port, has resigned his office in consequence of his approaching departure from the colony. Having regard to the growing importance of British interests in Saigon, we trust that the Foreign-office will see the advisability of appointing a special Consul to succeed Mr. Caswell, as the duties of the office which that gentleman ably fulfilled in the comparative infancy of the Settlement have now grown too heavy to be efficiently discharged by a merchant. It will give some idea of the rapid development of Saigon to state that the rice export amounted last year to no less than 5,000,000 piculs, and it will also show the extent to which British shipping is interested to add that, in the same year, no less than 250 vessels loaded in Saigon under the British flag.

We are glad to learn that Sir Richard McDonnell, Governor of Hong Kong, on his recent visit to Saigon, en route for the seat of his Government, was very warmly received by the Governor and officials of the sister Settlement.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Business in Cotton Yarn had been on a fair scale, Nos. 28 to 32 meeting with most favour, and for these counts an advance of $2 per picul had been established. Grey Shirtings had also been in good demand, but without any change in value. Alpacas were saleable at quotations, while other Woollens had been neglected. Quotations were as follows:—GE Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.20 to 2.22½ per piece; ditto, 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.50 to 2.55; ditto, 9 to 9¾ lbs., $2.80 to 2.82½; GE White Shirtings, $2.60 to 3.05; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.85 to 2.10; Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, $38 to 38.50 per picul; ditto, Nos. 28 to 32, $44.50 to 46; ditto, Nos. 38 to 42, $40 to 41; Alpaca, 42 yards, $7.40 to 7.85 per piece; Camlets, S and BBB, $13.50 to 14.50; ditto, SS, $12 to 13; ditto, SSS, $9 to 10; Cloth, medium and broad, $1 to 1.75 per yard; Lastings, $10.25 to 11.25 per piece; Long Ells, assorted, $6 to 6.50; Lead, $5.50 to 6 per picul; Iron, Nail Rod, $2.60 to 3.20; Bars, $3.50 to 4; Hoop. $3 to 3.30.

HIOGO—OSAKA.—A good demand existed for Cotton, and with the exception of Yarn prices were well maintained. Woollens were somewhat weaker. Cotton Yarn: Little inquiry, and quotations nominal. Grey Shirtings: In fair inquiry throughout the interval, without much change in value. Black Velvets: A somewhat large business done, but the demand had fallen off slightly at the close. Turkey Reds likewise taken to a fair extent, the market remaining steady at quotations. Chintzes: In somewhat more favour. Taffachelass: Slightly weaker, although prices were nominally as before. Camlets: A trifling business only at a reduction on last quoted rates. Black Lustres: Placed to a fair extent, but closed weaker. The deliveries of Mousselines de Laine were rather smaller; favourite patterns, however, still met a ready sale. Blankets: Without any active inquiry. Nail Rod Iron: Nominally higher, but no sales reported, in consequence of the absence of supplies. Quotations ruled as follows:—Cotton Yarn: No. 16 to 24, per bale, $111 to 113; 28 to 32, $126 to 128; 38 to 42, $111 to 113. GE Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs, 38 yds. 39-in., per piece, $2.18 to 2.20; 8¼ to 8½ lbs. 38 yds. 39-in., $2.50 to 2.55; 9 lbs., 38 yds. 44-in., $2.80 to 2.85. White Shirtings, nominal; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.75 to 2; Drills, Dutch, 40 yds., $3.90 to 4.06; Handkerchiefs, assorted, per dozen, $0.62 to 0.80; Brocades and Spots, white, per piece, $2.50 to 2.75; dyed, $2.90 to 3.10; Chintz, assorted, 24 yds. 30-in., $1.60 to 2.55; Turkey Red, 24 yds. 30-in., $2.50 to 3.25; Turkey Red Cambrics, 24 yds. 30-in., 3 lbs., $2.40 to 2.85; Velvets, black, $8.50 to 9.25; Victoria Lawns, $1.15; Taffachelass, double warp, 12 yds. 43-in., $3.20 to 3.45; single, $2.40 to 2.80; Camlets, SS, scarlet, $17 to 17.50; black, $12.50 to 13; assorted, $14 to 15; Lastings, black, 30 yds. 31-in., $12.50 to 13.25; Crape Lastings, 30 yds. 31-in. $5.50 to 7; Orleans, figured, 30 yds., $4.75 to 6; Orleans, black, plain, 42 yds. 31-in., $7 to 8.20; Alpacas, nominal; Cloth, black, 56-in., $1.10 to 1.70; union, 56-in., $0.55 to 0.70; Long Ells, assorted, 12 lbs., $5.75 to 6; Blankets, per lb., $0.40 to 0.46; Iron, Bars, per picul, $3; Nail Rod, $3.15 to 3.20; Hoop, $2.62 to 3.20; Lead, $6 to 6.37.

NAGASAKI.—Messrs. Gribble and Co. report as follows:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.50 per piece. Turkey Reds, 24 yards 2¼ catty, $2.73. Dyed Shirtings: dark and light blue, $3.42 per piece. Camlets: SS scarlet, $18; green, $15.90; gentian, $14.80; black, $13.15; dark blue and purple, not in favour, $14.25 per piece. Lastings, black, $13.70 per piece. Lustres: plain black, best, 30 yards 32-in., $5.75 per piece. Velvets: black, $8.75 per piece. Blankets, scarlet, green, black, gentian, and dark blue, 42c. per lb. Metals: Nail Rods, up to 3-16 in., $3.60 per picul; stock nearly exhausted. Lead, $6.50 to 6.75 per picul, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Grey Shirtings: During the monetary pressure the price of 8¼ lbs. common chops touched Tls. 1.74 per piece, and 7 lbs. were sold at Tls. 1.59 to 1.60, but with the return of sycee came a sudden reaction, and, under the firmness displayed by importers, many of whom, it was said, were acting under orders from home, the decline had been nearly recovered. The last sales gave the following rates:—7 lbs. ord. chops, Tls. 1.67 to 1.70 per piece; 8¼ lbs., common, Tls. 1.84 to 1.86; and eagles, Tls. 1.90, cash. A large lot of 8¼ lbs. goods sold by a foreign bank to whom it was hypothecated by a native who was forced to succumb during the late crisis, had also materially aided in strengthening the market for this fabric. The dealers counted on getting their wants supplied from this source at their own prices, but they had been disappointed, and were compelled to conform more to the ideas of holders. Heavy Shirtings continued saleable at last quotations. Drills were the only other textile that had shown any decided signs of improvement. English Cloth, which was sold at Tls. 2.90, could not be had under Tls. 3, and a fair inquiry prevailed. T-Cloths: Of these the sales were small, low prices offered preventing business. The common counts, however, were in some request, and the market wears an improving aspect; it has been unduly depressed. White Shirtings: No change. Jeans and Sheetings as last quoted, with very little demand. The same remarks applied to Fancy Cottons and Woollens, of which there had been scarcely any settlements. Metals.—Lead: No demand; Nail Rod Iron: No transactions. Coal scarce; arrivals small, and importers very firm.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A fair amount of business had been done, and settlements amounted to fully 5,000 piculs, consisting of all grades, from common to fine, but principally of medium; prices for the lower kinds ruled easy at about the same as last quoted, but for anything of the higher class full prices were maintained, finest and choice, being nominal. Stocks were slightly reduced, and consisted chiefly of second and third crop Teas, the quality of which as usual was very inferior. The Alaska took 154,973 lbs. for New York, and 28,992 lbs. for San Francisco; the Mikado sailed on the 17th November, for New York, with 531,551 lbs. The Walton and Lizzie Iredale were loading for New York. Quotations:—Common, $18 to 20 per picul; good common, $21 to 23; medium, $24 to 27; good medium, $29 to 32; fine, $35 to 40; finest, nominal, $42 to 50; choice, nominal, $52 upwards.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Business had been upon a more moderate scale, owing to scarcity and higher prices of desirable parcels of fine and choice descriptions. The bulk of the Tea in stock consisted of good medium and the lower grades, for which prices had declined. Settlements were reported to be 2,200 to 2,300 piculs, leaving a stock estimated at 5,500 piculs. The Bertha Marion was loading for New York; the Pacific mail steamer took about 50 tons. Quotations:—Common, $16 to 18 per picul; good common, $19 to 22; medium, $23 to 26; good medium, $27 to 33; fine, $34 to 41; finest, $42 to 49; choice, $50 to 55; choicest, $56 and upwards.

NAGASAKI.—Purchases had been on a small scale, prices being considered too high, until near the close, when about 1,000 bales had been settled. The steady decline in the value of dollars prevented business. Stocks were large of Common to medium at $13 to 18, Medium to Fine being only in moderate supply at $18 to 23 per picul. Finest, none.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Transactions only amounted to 478 chests, at Tls. 14 to 16 per chest for common Oonahm kinds. Of the very few parcels remaining of quality superior to these Teamen were firm holders. The stock was 15,000 chests, almost all of the lowest kind. The total export to Great Britain was in excess of last year's to date 9¼ millions of lbs., and last season 6½ millions more went forward from date; of this there was no chance during the present season. Green: A good business had been done during the week. With the exception of a few common chops bought for England at high prices, the settlements had been for America. Prices continued high. Settlements, 21,300 ½-chests; stocks, 37,500 ½-chests.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Although telegraphic advices from the home market had been of a depressing character, yet the market had continued fairly active, and a moderate amount of business had been done, but chiefly by continental houses, and settlements may be taken at about 700 bales, of which hank sorts formed the bulk. Prices were without change, previous quotations being fully maintained. Silkworms Eggs: Purchases for the season to date were estimated at 1,250,000 cards, and shipments by present mail would probably close the season's export.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Transactions had been small, settlements being only estimated at 95 bales of 80 catties. Dealers had been very firm, and had succeeded in forcing up prices to the extent of $40 to 50 per picul; at the close they demanded still higher rates, reporting that Silk was dear and scarce in the interior. Quotations were:—Idah, fine to good, 26s. 7d. to 27s. 8d. per picul; Sodai, medium to good, 25s. 5d. to 27s. 3d.; Aetchizan, medium to good, 24s. to 25s. 10d.; Nagahama, medium to common, 21s. 5d. to 23s. 7d.

SHANGHAI.—Owing to easier rates in exchange, the market had been a little more active. The settlements amounted to fully 200 bales, and consisted of chop Silks purchased at Tls. 572½ to 577½ for No. 3 Tsatlee; Red Peacock, at Tls. 507 to 510; Re-reels, common Taysaams, and other sorts; these prices showed a slight advance on last mail quotations. The market closed firm, the Chinese not being anxious sellers, the return of money from Yangchow having greatly reduced the rate of interest with them. Stock was estimated at 4,700 bales.

SHIPBUILDING ON THE CLYDE.

We have received from our correspondent an account of the work done on the Clyde for the Eastern trade during 1871, with a list of orders on hand, which will be especially interesting, because it will be extremely difficult in future to obtain information of a similar kind, as the Association of Engineers and Shipbuilders have passed a resolution to the effect that no further information on this subject is to be supplied.

The return of vessels launched during the past year shows that 245, with a tonnage of 191,800, were sent afloat during that period, being an increase in the number of vessels over the two previous years, and an increase of 2,000 tons over 1870, but a decrease in tonnage when compared with 1869 of 2,200. Of the work completed no less than 45 were steam vessels built for the Indian and Far East trades, with the large tonnage of 79,887. The following are the particulars:—

By Messrs. Barclay, Curle, and Co. Shobcross:—Penguin, 1,741 tons and 180 h.p, for Messrs. Seater, White, and Co. for their Indian trade, via Suez Canal and Colombo; and Benledi, 1,557 tons and 160 h.p., for Messrs. W. Thomson and Co., for the same trade. By Messrs. THE MONT CENIS ROUTE.

(THE TIMES.)

The 5th of this month marked, as an Italian Correspondent points out this morning, the date of an important step in the progress of our communication with India. On that day the Overland Mail was, for the first time, made to travel by the route of the Mont Cenis and Brindisi. It left London in the evening of last Friday and arrived at Brindisi in the morning of the ensuing Monday, taking for the journey twenty-four hours less than by the Marseilles route. It is not unlikely that far greater advantages may be reaped from the opening of this new channel of commercial intercourse. But, in the meanwhile, we must congratulate ourselves on the final removal of the obstacles which so long stood in the way of this important achievement. It is not uninteresting to look back on the various stages by which modern ingenuity and enterprise have almost daily brought us nearer to our vast Asiatic possessions. An immense gain was made when, in exchange for the tedious navigation round the African Continent, a short cut was traced across the Desert from Alexandria to Suez. But from England to the Delta of the Nile there were several routes, and it was soon found that it was easy to avoid the circumnavigation of the Spanish Peninsula, and look for another short cut through France, by Calais, Paris, Lyons, and Marseilles. Independently of the shortness of the road, it became evident that a railway train was, in many respects, a more convenient as well as a more rapid means of locomotion than the best of steamers ; and the maxim that "no one should go by sea where it was possible to travel by land" re-asserted all its popular authority. The maxim, however, admitted of a larger application, and, if it had been found inexpedient to sail to India round Africa and round Spain, there was also no reason why one should not strike at once across Italy, rather than make the tour of her western and southern coasts. From London to Alexandria the most direct line would pass through Calais and Paris to Mâcon, the Mont Cenis, Turin, Bologna, and Brindisi. The only obstacle lay in the chain of mountains constituting the barrier between France and Italy, but by the opening of the great Alpine tunnel of Mont Cenis that last hindrance was removed, and a railway train can now proceed, without interruption, from the old French port in the Channel all the way to the ancient Roman harbour on the extreme coast of the Adriatic.

It might seem idle to inquire why the Mont Cenis line, which was opened in September, is only now coming into operation. The Marseilles line, and the steamers connected with it, had for several years deserved well of this country. Nothing could exceed the speed and punctuality, the diligence and civility, which attended the service of our Overland Mail all along its progress through France. But the day was drawing near in which such profit as might accrue to her from this traffic had to be shared with Italy, and French self-interest naturally for some time rebelled against that law of progress which must always be a law of necessity. Even when she at last resigned herself to what could not be helped, France only half yielded, and with no very good grace. The Mail which left London on Friday evening had not its retinue of ordinary passengers. It was conveyed by special trains the whole of the way, and only the officer in charge, Captain O'Brien, and the Postmaster-General of India travelled with it. This may be only a temporary arrangement, and matters may improve with the success of the first experiment. It is hardly to be supposed that any difficulty can arise in the establishment of such accommodation for passengers along the new route as is provided for the "limited" mails on the main lines to Scotland and Ireland. But till such reasonable anticipations are justified, travellers on their way to India, if pressed for time, will be compelled to follow the new route through Belgium and Germany, rather than expose themselves to all the delays and vexations which are still to be met on the French railways by the ordinary trains between Macon and Modane. Owing to the want of a good understanding between France and Italy on this subject, the direct postal communication between England and Italy via the Mont Cenis is now interrupted, and the mails must go over the Brenner, a longer and more expensive route, the rate of postage between the two countries having been raised in consequence, both on letters and also, and in considerably larger proportions, on parcels, books, and newspapers. A correspondent was the other day calling our attention to the absurdity that a newspaper sent from England to Florence or Rome cost three times as much as one forwarded across two oceans and a continent to Australia. So far as Italy is concerned, there seems every disposition to do away with such inconveniences. The Italian Government, having no other means of counteracting the ill-will and jealousy of France, are determined to put upon her all the pressure which can be exercised by the competition of the Brenner line with the Mont Cenis line. The Italian Postmaster-General, Cavaliere Barbavara, feels confident that by a proper management of the Italian railway lines, and by an intelligent agreement with those of Austria, Germany, and Belgium, he will be able to reduce the difference between the two lines to about six hours' time. The new railway and postal arrangements on all the Italian lines were expected to come into operation yesterday.

It is full time that both France and Italy should become aware that the tide of human progress waits for no man. While they are striving with one another for the privilege of conveying our mails across their territories to the coasts of the Mediterranean, enterprises of a far more gigantic character than even those of the Mont Cenis or the Isthmus of Suez threaten to open new outlets for human enterprise, far away from the shores of that inland sea, all across the Asiatic Continent. Our own shortest overland route to India lies through Germany, Austria, and Turkey to the Bosphorus, and hence along the valley of the Euphrates to the Persian Gulf. But, even in that undertaking, it seems that we may expect to encounter the competition of Russia, who, from the shores of the Volga, where her railways have now their termini, is said to be contemplating a prolongation of those lines all the way to India, achieving across Asia a work analogous to that accomplished by America throughout all her continent by the Pacific Railway. There is, however, nothing in the prospect of these world-wide schemes, whether they come soon or late to maturity, which need put the nations bordering on the Mediterranean out of conceit with the signal advantages attached to their position on that sea, which has now again become what it was in ancient times—the great centre of the world. Unless the nations of the South of Europe, and especially the French and Italians, from want either of courage, or of industry, or of money, fail to give to the intercourse through the Isthmus of Suez the full development of which it is capable, a very substantial part of the Eastern trade must necessarily go through their hands. The Perseveranza of Milan, while descanting on the importance which the improvement of all the means of communication is sure to give to the port of Brindisi, considers that that port will at the utmost only monopolise the traffic which may conveniently be forwarded by railway trains—the mails and passengers and the lighter merchandise. For goods of larger bulk or weight water conveyance will always offer the advantages of greater economy, and the largest vessels coming up to the Adriatic or the Mediterranean will always find it convenient to push on to the inner harbours of Venice and Trieste, of Genoa and Marseilles. Not improbably, however, there will be enough to do for all those ports. It is wonderful to think how the natural advancement of the human race has been, is, and will be, almost unconsciously bringing back the ancient traffic to those original channels which had run dry and been forsaken since ancient and mediæval times. Equally wonderful is it to see how harmoniously political events shape and fit themselves to scientific achievements, so that the opening of those new channels of Eastern trade finds the countries most interested in its development in the position which best enables them to secure its advantages. Had Italy in 1870 been the mere geographical expression, the mere aggregate of enslaved and divided States, it was twenty years ago, one can scarcely conceive how even the opening of the Suez Canal and of the Mont Cenis Tunnel could have sensibly promoted her prosperity. Had the Pope, and the Bourbon, and all the Powers of Misrule had their own way to the end, where there are now railways and harbours there would only be, as formerly, frontier barriers, Custom-houses, police offices—all imaginable hindrances to material, mental, and moral movement. But, as it happened, political emancipation managed to keep pace with commercial advancement. Men and things went hand in hand. A providential combination of simultaneous causes led to unhoped-for, unlooked-for effects. Before that tide of fortune which, however tardy, has surely borne Italy forward, can there be a doubt that individual interests, petty local jealousies, and selfish national aspirations must needs give way? It seems hardly credible that it should be France which stands in other people's light. It is unworthy of her, while allowing a free passage to the Overland Mail, to hamper the service with restrictions which, to a great extent, limit its usefulness, and tend to frustrate its object

LEGAL.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

DENT V. NICKALLS.

This was a case of considerable importance to stockbrokers and others, and it arose out of the following circumstances:—The plaintiff, a merchant in the City, formerly held 160 shares in the Bank of Hindostan, China, and Japan (Limited), and in September, 1866, he instructed Mr. Cope, a broker, to sell them. Mr. Cope sold 100 of them to the defendant, a jobber, at £3 5s. for account. Before the account day came the defendant had effected a sub-sale at 52s. a share profit to Mr. Porter, a broker, who was acting for Messrs. Newburn and Saltham, brokers of Manchester, who were employed by Mr. Edward Eaton. When the name day came Mr. Eaton gave that of his son, "George Eaton, of Upton, Macclesfield, drysalter," and the transfer was registered in his name. George Eaton was a lad, seventeen years of age, a clerk in his father's counting-house, the father being a drysalter. The bank got into liquidation, and in July, 1869, Vice Chancellor Stuart removed the name of George Eaton from the list of contributors, upon the ground that he was a minor, and substituted that of the plaintiff, whereby the latter became liable to pay calls to a large amount. The plaintiff thereupon commenced the present action, contending that the defendant was liable to indemnify him against any liability which he had incurred in consequence of not receiving a proper name as transferee. At the trial before the Lord Chief Justice in London a verdict was directed for the plaintiff for the nominal sum of £7,000 odd; but the question now raised was, whether a rule should be made absolute for a new trial, upon the ground that his lordship had acted wrongly in directing a verdict for the plaintiff, when in fact there was no evidence to support the verdict.

The Court granted a new trial, upon the ground that the evidence which had been given as to the custom of the Stock Exchange was ambiguous.

COLONEL SYKES'S CASE.—An application has been made before Vice-Chancellor Sir James Bacon, by the official liquidator of the European Central Railway Company (Limited), to enforce payment of a sum of £22 per share on twenty-five shares held by Colonel Sykes, chairman of the board of directors. The case made by the applicant was that the chairman and his co-directors, although they had paid up the whole amount of capital due upon their shares, had made an improper use of their power of paying calls in advance. It was alleged that they had paid calls in advance in order to create a fund out of which their fees might be paid; so that they not only got paid, but contrived to escape all future liability in a failing company. The Vice-Chancellor held that the course which had been taken by the directors was a mere device to escape the liability which they were bound to share with the other shareholders, and granted the application with costs.

The directors of the British Ship-owners Company have issued their report for the past year. The profits on completed voyages amount to £41, 741, out of which it is proposed to pay a dividend of 7½ per cent. per annum, carrying £15.000 to depreciation account, leaving £2,684 to be carried forward to new account.

The Danish frigate Tordenskjold, which it will be remembered took an active part in laying the China and Japan section of the Great Northern Telegraph cable, (on her homeward voyage,) arrived at Gibraltar on the 3rd inst.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Jan. 9.

It is a characteristic sign of the times and a proof of the confidence placed in the future peaceable march of events since the conclusion of the war, that in Germany so many industrial undertakings should have sprung into existence in the course of the last few months, and in full recognition of the principle that union is strength they have assumed the shape of joint-stock companies, which has the advantage of enabling smaller capitalists to come forward and take an interest in enterprises from which they would otherwise be excluded by the limited means at their command, their want of connections, and not understanding the details of the business in which they embark as shareholders in a company. This is further much facilitated by the system of practical "limited liability" generally pursued on the Continent, and which is found to work perfectly well and afford the greatest security. It is simply this: the shares are fully paid up, and are not made out in any name, but payable to the bearer. This simplifies the business very much, and the transfer of shares in the books of the establishment becomes superfluous. Besides, it offers great facilities for obtaining temporary loans by merely depositing the shares as security. Banking establishments, railways, steam companies, breweries, distilleries, and other industrial undertakings are now all formed and carried on on this principle with great success.

In a great commercial emporium like Hamburg, with extensive connections in all parts of the world, it is not an unreasonable desire of the merchants here to emancipate themselves from their dependence on foreign nations for the needful supply of vessels to convey to them their own cargoes from a want of a sufficient number sailing under the German flag, and in the present advanced state of machinery, and the daily improvements and economies that are being made in the engineering department, when we shall probably in a very few years live to see sailing vessels totally superseded by steamers, it is but natural that this awakened sense of self-defence and independence of foreign assistance should more particularly take the direction of creating new lines of steamers, for which the steadiness, orderly conduct, and economy practised by the Germans, adapt them admirably to compete with the whole world. Of this we have two striking proofs in the Hamburg-American Steam Company and the North German Lloyd at Bremen, both of which are admirably conducted, and without any assistance or subsidies from their respective Governments have been able to stand on their own legs from the very beginning—some ten or twelve years ago—and not only compete successfully with subventioned companies under foreign flags, but pay their shareholders very handsome dividends—sometimes as much as 20 per cent.

This desire to extend the field of operations for the national flag at sea has been much increased since they have had a really national flag, and still further developed since the restoration and reconstruction of the Empire of Germany, and now that all fear of fresh complications or another war has subsided the nation is turning its attention to cultivating in good earnest the arts of peace by the extension of its trade and navigation. It is now just two months ago that a project was formed here for establishing a line of steamers to run (for the present) fortnightly between this port and South America. The original promoters of the scheme being first-rate houses of this city, who enjoy the unlimited confidence of the Exchange, the rush for shares was so great that seventy-five times the amount required was subscribed on the day fixed, so that a reduction had to be made in the distribution of the allotments in such a manner that those who had subscribed for 160 shares only got one.

In the meantime this thirst for establishing new lines of steamers has extended to the interior of Germany, and especially in Berlin and Frankfort. On New Year's Day we were agreeably startled by the announcement that two powerful steamship companies were in course of formation, one of which has already completed its arrangements and issued its prospectus. It is called "the Atlantic," the promoters consisting of the following highly respectable firms:—Des Arts and Co., Rudolf Brach, Hundeiker, and Abegg, F. Laeiss, B. Schonfeld, Ross, Vidal and Co., R. M. Sloman, A. Tesdorpf and Co., all of this city; M. Matthiessen and Co., of Altona; and the Berlin Handels-Gesselschaft, the Deutsche Bank, Mendelssohn and Co., and Schickler Brothers, at Berlin, who have subscribed for all the shares; but a certain number will be offered to the public in order to evade the charge of exclusiveness, and it is also in the interests of the company to admit others to participate in the expected profits. The total share capital is fixed at seven million thalers, of which one-half is to be issued at present, and of this half one million thalers are to be offered to the public at par.

The second of these two steam companies has not yet issued its prospectus, but from private information I am enabled to state that the capital will be ten million thalers, and that among the directors are the Anglo-German Bank and the following first rate firms:—A. J. Schon and Co., L. Behrens and Sons, August Behn, J. F. W. Reimers, Siemssen and Co., Vorwerk Bros. and Co., Carl L. D. Meister and Co., Julius Huhecken, H. H. Eggers, Berkefeld and Michahelles, all of this city, and Messrs. Knauth, Nachod, and Kunne, of New York.

The Deutsche Bank at Berlin has doubled its capital, as indicated in my last letter, by the issue of new shares to the amount of five million thalers, and having thus an available working capital of ten million thalers, intend to go in with energy for a monopoly of the banking business with China and Japan. For this purpose they have founded a Filidle or branch establishment in this city, as manager of which they have engaged the services of Herr Wilhelm Probst, for many years a partner in the firm of Wm. Pustau and Co., of China, who, from his long residence in that country, and an intimate knowledge of its commercial affairs, may be expected to fully justify the confidence reposed in him by the Bank in giving him such a responsible appointment. In addition to this the Bank are taking steps for the establishment of branches in China and Japan, and Herr Mammelsdorff is appointed the manager at Yokohama, and Herr Soeligmann in a similar capacity at Shanghai. Both these gentlemen were directors of the branch establishments of the "Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris," in China and Japan respectively, but were obliged to throw up their appointments in consequence of a general resolution to dismiss all Germans when the late war broke out.

Your readers are aware that the Germans in Japan and China have sent over a collection of curiosities illustrative of the commerce, manufactures, and industry of those countries, as a patriotic contribution to the National Fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of the Germans killed in the late war. It will therefore interest them to learn that the collection has safely arrived in Berlin and been placed for public inspection in one of the saloons of the Minister of the Interior, where they form quite a little ethnical museum, and excite much interest and sympathy. The proceeds of this extemporised bazaar are in aid of the funds of the Kaiser Wilhelm Stiftung. The Crown Prince and Princess of Germany take a great interest in this collection of curiosities, and it has, in consequence, become the fashionable lounge of the day.

The Census returns for Bremen have just been published, from which it appears that the total population of that city, including the suburbs, amounts now to 82,996, against 74,574 at the last triennial census, showing an increase of 8,416 souls.

COMMERCIAL.

Business has recommenced after the holidays, but in a very quiet manner, but it is to be expected that in the course of this month more animation will prevail than has hitherto been the case. The only alteration to notice in the quotations is in Pepper, which commands more attention, whilst a better feeling exists, and prices are rather higher, so that a further rise is expected. Singapore has been sold at 6¾ to 6⅞ sch. bco., and Penang at 6⅞ to 6⅞. Of Cassia Lignea 13,000 chests have come to hand, but they are not yet in the market, and their arrival has as yet had no influence on the prices. From the firmness exhibited by the holders of Spelter, it is highly probable that prices will go up; in the meantime no transactions are reported.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Emulation, from Canton and Whampoa; Humboldt, from Rangoon; Araby Maid, from Canton.

SAILED.—Alice, to Macassar.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 10.

We are still without a Minister of War. Some papers—and amongst them the influential Handelsblad—hint that the Naval department and the Ministry of War will, for the future, be united under one Minister; but the majority of people are of opinion that it would be better that the portfolio of war should be entrusted to a civilian instead of a military chief. In the meanwhile, rumours are current that Mr. Stieltjes will be appointed to the post, and a good many see in him "the right man in the right place."

There is now a serious contest going on between our principal merchants and manufacturers with reference to the revision of the Java tariff, a question with which Parliament will deal very shortly. A number of the cotton manufacturers of Twenthe have forwarded an address to the Second Chamber, in which they urge that if the differential duties are abolished in Java—as the Minister proposes—their interests will be so greatly injured that all their capital will be lost, because it will be impossible for them to compete with English manufactures, if they are not protected by a differential duty in our colonies. On the contrary, some Amsterdam houses of high standing have addressed the Chamber in approval of abolishing these differential duties—because they say free trade is the only vital element of prosperity. They show by figures that our manufacturers can compete with the English, especially since the revival of our cotton trade, which enables spinners to provide themselves with the raw material in our own markets. They refute the grievances expressed in the address from Twenthe, and urge the Chamber to pass the measure. They go so far as to request that a lower import duty shall be fixed, than that proposed by the Minister, and that all the export duties in Java shall be abolished. They are, for instance, of opinion that it is an enormous injustice to levy an export duty on so important an article as sugar. This address is much applauded, and it will be followed by another from the principal traders of this town, couched in similar terms. It is very strange that there are still merchants to be found who seek their sole aid in Protectionism, which has for years crippled our commerce. Is it, for instance, not to be regretted that Mr. W. S. Lindsay is quite right in stating in his letter to the Daily News that the tonnage of our shipping is now 25 per cent. less than it was in 1860? It has, in fact, decreased from 511,519 tons in the last named year to 441,995 tons in 1871. Last year our number of vessels diminished by 73, their number being 1,508, against 1,581 in 1870, and still every week East India merchantmen are being sold because they cannot make profitable voyages. The produce from Java, which is imported on private account, is for the greater part carried by vessels of other nations, and our shipowners are grumbling over what they imagine will be the evils of Free trade, instead of approving of the measures, which will enable them to compete with other nations on equal terms. I, however, have to mention one fact which shows that our traders are not altogether "Droogstoppels."* Some of the principal mercantile houses have furnished a capital of about f.50,000 to organise an expedition to the east coast of Africa, to ascertain whether it is possible to do business there. Two gentlemen well known in the African trade have started to make the necessary investigations, and when they return a company will be organised on the same principle as the African Trading Society.

At the Bourse there has been an extensive rise in nearly all securities chiefly due to speculative investments. The money market is in a very sound condition, and a large capital is seeking employment.

Mr. Boelen, one of the managers of the Nederland Company, has retired. It is not known who will be his successor.

A principal topic of discussion is the national festival at Brielle on the 1st April next. There is not much sympathy displayed by the public in the matter, and if the Catholics had held their tongues instead of protesting against the project, I believe it would have been a failure.

The Earl Gruan de la Barre has published another book to demonstrate the rights of the Bourbon family, established in Holland, to the throne of France. His work is entitled "La Branche Ainée des Bourbons, veuve et Enfants du Duc de Normandie Louis XVII. devant la justice."

Messrs. Motké and Sprenger van Eyk will start by next mail to Java. Mgr. P. M. Vrancken, Bishop of Colophon, papal vicar of Batavia, has arrived at Maastricht. His health is too precarious to permit his return to the East.

H.M. has granted permission to Sub-lieutenant J. A. Lindo to enter for four years into the military service of Japan.

H.M. has approved of the appointment of Mr. G. von Bultzingslowen as Consul for the United States at Sourabaya.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Hardly any alteration worth notice is to be reported in the genera, features of our Produce Market, which remains devoid of animation owing to the season of the year, which, although the weather remains mild, deters export buyers from operating for fear of a renewed interruption of navigation. Prices of the leading articles are upon the whole well supported.

COFFEE.—Although transactions remain on a limited scale, the market looks firm, and good ordinary Trading Company's Java is not to be met with under 43½c. Sales have been closed of the following shipments of private importation:—1,675 bales Timor and Macassar, ex Vier Gebroeders; and 2,404 bales Java, ex Voorlichter.

RAW SUGAR.—Firm, with little doing, there being hardly any parcels for sale in the market.

TEA.—Steady, but there is only demand for actual wants.

JAVA TOBACCO.—The only sale to report is 239 bales, head mark Demangan.

TIN.—Some revival took place a few days since in the demand for this article. Banca was sold at f.87 to f.87½, but towards the close of the market there were sellers at f.87, without meeting buyers.

INDIGO.—The late arrivals of Java, per Voorlichter, are in course of being sampled, and will soon be placed on the market. The demand remains active.

HIDES offer nothing of moment to report, but remain in a healthy position.

DRUGS.—There is still but little stirring in the articles under this head, but 35 baskets and 48 piculs India-rubber, ex Noach II., were sold by private treaty on secret terms, besides which 525 chests Preserved Ginger, and 25 chests do. Mandarine, ex Cama, from Hong Kong, sold at public auction, the former at 75c. to 83c., and the latter at 139c. to 147c.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Hardly any demand, at late prices, which are barely supported.

RATTANS.—Sales have been closed on secret terms of 57 piculs, ex Vier Gebroeders, and 100 piculs, ex Triton.

RICE continues in the same quiet position, without any alteration in prices.

SPICES.—I have to report continued firmness for Nutmegs, but transactions in this article, as well as in Cloves, have been small. Sales have been closed of 14 chests Mace, ex Noach II., on secret terms, whilst the shipment of Black Pepper, lately arrived per Noach II. from Batavia, has nearly wholly found buyers, in all 2,160 bags having now been disposed of.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Jan. 4, at Texel, from Batavia, Cornelia; 6, at Texel, from Batavia, Reichstag; 8, at Brouwershaven, from Sourabaya, County of Berwick; from Rangoon, Australia; 9, at Texel, from Passaroeang, Webfoot; at Flushing, from Akyab, Peruvian Congress; 10, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Krimpen van de Lek; from Samarang, Susanna, Elisabeth Maria; from Sourabaya, Æolus.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Cornelia, Mr. Doelman and family.

* "Droogstoppel" is well known in India. It is a cant word for a man without energy.

THE LAST "COLLISION" CASE AT HONG KONG.

THE running-down case—euphemistically described as a "collision"—between the junk Kum-Sheong-Tai and H.M.S. Ocean, of which we had full reports by the last mail, is remarkable and important from more points of view than one. The moment we cross the threshold of the suit we stumble over an unexpected obstacle—we find one of her MAJESTY'S most responsible officers appearing against the Crown, while the QUEEN'S ship is defended by a gentleman of unquestionable ability and honour, who, however, labours under the difficulty of having been, very recently and somewhat obtrusively, thrust forward by a local journal. They manage public affairs in such a refreshingly free and easy way in Hong Kong that we are at a loss which to admire most—the professional courage of Mr. HAYLLAR in appearing in opposition to the Crown under such circumstances, or the professional hair-splitting of the Acting Advocate-General in endeavouring to explain what he called, with undeniable truth, his "very peculiar position." After the recent debate on the right way of spelling "bye-laws," of course nobody expects the officials of Hong Kong to be very well up in syntax, prosody, or the other "humanities;" and every allowance should be made for their short-comings in these respects, seeing that they evidently make such industrious use of the "ponderous edition of Webster," which is probably the only dictionary in the settlement, and is evidently so much wanted in Council that it could be ill-spared for the reference of the lawyers of the Supreme Court, which ought to possess one of its own. On this ground we are quite willing to condone the blunder by which, in the report before us, the defendants' counsel is described as the "Acting Queen's Advocate"—and we have no doubt his title will be amended when we remind him that Her MAJESTY is not "Acting"—though he undoubtedly is.

Putting aside, however, the question of the extension of elementary education to the Council and Supreme Court of Hong Kong—in both of which places we feel sure the Hon. Chief Justice will recognise its advantage—we will proceed to the running-down case, which was tried before that gentleman, and yet one more "acting" official—the Acting Harbour Master. After a careful perusal of it, we think we can safely congratulate the "Acting Queen's Advocate," and Mr. HAYLLAR upon having, by their united exertions, let in just as much light on a very disputable point as will enable the natives to make their craft more and more an impediment to the navigation of Her MAJESTY'S and merchant ships. At the same time, we must endorse the judgment of Mr. SMALE—who cast the Ocean in damages, the amount to be assessed by the registrar and merchants. We fully appreciate the trouble and danger incurred by the clumsy and foolhardy navigation of the junks; but, without going so far as to say that "every ship should alter her course for the sake of every junk," we cannot put out of sight the fact that every ship ought to give every junk the opportunity of altering hers. Under the present system, as exemplified in the case of the Ocean, there seems to have been a heedlessness, which, without amounting to wilful injury, was still rightly held to render her liable for the consequences of a collision which was certainly not avoided with the caution required. There is a homely old Saxon proverb—"Let every one take care of "himself, as the donkey said when he danced among the "chickens!"—which not unfairly describes the reckless sailing too much in vogue among raw officers with native craft in China and India; and we hope that the judgment in the present case will exercise a salutary effect.

THE REVISION OF THE JAPAN TREATIES.

THE news from Japan becomes every week more important and interesting, as the time draws on for the revision of the existing treaties between Japan and the foreign Powers, together with the tariff and trade regulations annexed thereto, on and after the 1st of July next. It will be remembered that in anticipation of this event Mr. ROBERTSON, H.B.M.'s Consul at Yokohoma, issued a circular requesting English merchants to express their views with regard to the improvements most desirable to be introduced with special reference to Great Britain. The mercantile community at once appreciated the opportunity thus afforded them, as well as the liberality of the spirit in which the offer was conveyed—which contrasts to the painful disadvantage of Her MAJESTY'S representatives in China under very similar circumstances, to which we need not now more particularly refer. The Special Committee of the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce, appointed to take the subject into consideration, in their turn invited the opinions and suggestions of the whole mercantile community interested in the Japan trade, whether they were members of the Chamber or not. This was as it should be, and will no doubt call forth many valuable suggestions from various important Chambers at home, especially as the English minister, Sir HARRY PARKES, and the German Chargé d'Affaires, Mr. VON BRANDT, and the French Minister, Baron OUTREY (who was a passenger by the present French mail), are all, by a most fortunate combination of circumstances, now in Europe. We learn also from our local contemporary, the Japan Herald, that the American minister is likely to avail himself of leave of absence very shortly, and we have no doubt these gentlemen, one and all, will give cordial and valuable assistance to the good work in their respective capitals.

As the report of the Committee of the Yokohama Chamber has not yet been issued, and no official utterances have been made, we do not wish to press forward our views on the present occasion, the rather because we know that they correspond with those of the parties most interested, and because we feel that the matter is in very good hands as things stand. For these reasons we cannot but express some regret that the Japan Herald should somewhat precipitately have come forward with its own budget instead of waiting for a due time for the Report of the Committee, of which our contemporary confesses, rather pettishly, that he is entirely ignorant. No doubt it is within the province of a public journalist to advise, as well as to criticise, public measures—but we think it scarcely dignified to break in upon deliberations, which there is no reason to imagine are being negligently conducted, simply because he may not have been called into the Council. There is another and a more important reason why our contemporary would have done better to postpone the publication of the article under notice—by urging his own views too soon or too vehemently it may prejudice the proceedings of the committee in the minds of the Japanese, and furnish an excuse for the anti-foreign party—no contemptible minority—to protest in limine against the Herald's crude propositions, and afterwards refuse to admit the more temperate, well-digested, and complete scheme of the Committee. This is simply "playing into the enemy's hand." We repeat that there is no reason to believe that Mr. Consul ROBERTSON'S invitation will be coldly received by our mercantile community, either in Japan or at home—they know their business too well for that—or that the Yokohama committee will prove unequal to the task of compiling an exhaustive, suggestive, and thoroughly valuable report. Should they do so—which it would be idle to surmise—we shall be among the first to criticise their shortcomings; but we cannot approve of the system of airing our own wisdom by "crying out before we are hurt"—more particularly when such a course may prejudice the cause we have at heart. The intelligence which our contemporary himself sends us, mail by mail—and especially by the one last to hand—forbids the idea that the ruling and enlightened classes in Japan will approach the revision of the treaties in any bigoted or illiberal spirit. The matter which will be found in our Japan column to-day sufficiently proves that it is only by asking too much, asking too soon, or asking too peremptorily, that we can hinder the strong tendency of the Japanese mind to the adoption of our institutions. For all these reasons we forbear at present from entering into the discussion raised by our contemporary, though we have no doubt that, when the proper time arrives, we shall find much in his arguments with which we can cordially agree.

QUARTERLY RETURN OF CHINA CUSTOMS.

WE have this morning received the usual quarterly volume of the Customs Gazette, containing the Reports of the Commissioners of Customs for the fourteen treaty ports for the quarter ending September, 1871. In our present issue we have only time to give the totals of the returns, which are :—

Import duties	Tls.	540,040
Import duties on opium		475,903
Export duties		2,538,924
Tonnage dues		65,538
Coast trade duty		128,873
Transit dues		60,189
Duties on native craft		587
Total	Tls.	3,819,058

In our next issue we shall give our usual résumé of the Reports of each of the fourteen ports separately.

THE appointment of Mr. W. H. GREGORY to the Governorship of Ceylon, which we announced some months ago, appeared in the last issue of the London Gazette, and we understand that the hon. gentleman will take his departure by the mail leaving Brindisi on the 29th inst. Long as is our experience of similar appointments we can scarcely recal one which appeared to give more general satisfaction than that of the retiring member for Galway. A man of varied and progressive views, a speaker whose oratory is more convincing than rhetorical, and a statesman intent on healthy development as opposed to sensational or claptrap measures, it affords us peculiar pleasure to congratulate our friends in Ceylon on the acquisition of a Governor in every way so competent and so well disposed to follow in the steps of Sir HERCULES ROBINSON, and to carry out the schemes for the improvement of the island which the retiring Governor has so successfully initiated. Mr. GREGORY was born in the year 1817, and was educated at Harrow, and afterwards at Christ Church, Oxford. He entered Parliament in 1842 as a Conservative, representing the city of Dublin, but at the general election of 1854 he failed to secure a seat, and did not again enter Parliament until 1857, when he was returned for Galway county. He has retained his seat from that time to the present. He is well known in the world of art and of art education, and has taken an active part in general politics, especially where Ireland was concerned, in the House of Commons. We are glad to see by an announcement which will be found among our "Domestic Occurrences" that Mr. GREGORY was married on the 11th to Mrs. BOUDOIN, widow of Mr. J. T. BOUDOIN, so that our friends in Ceylon have every prospect of the hospitality of Government House being as well cared for as the graver duties of the Governor's office. We understand that Captain MAXWELL, of the 80th Regiment, has been appointed aide-de-camp to the new Governor.

WHATEVER may be the issue of the French elections, it must be admitted that the young Republic does not seem to have enlisted much sympathy or respect in foreign nations —in the Far East especially. It is rumoured that the Emperor of CHINA and his Council have resolved to postpone the establishment of the permanent Chinese Embassy at Paris, proposed by M. THIERS, until France possesses a more strong and settled form of Government. This is no more than we anticipated from the unsatisfactory reception of CHUNG HOW on his mission to condone the Tientsin Massacre.

A TELEGRAM has appeared to the effect that the P. and O. Company are negotiating with the Italian Government for a mail from Venice to India and China. This is evidently sent by a person ignorant of the nature of the negotiations now going on, which are simply to carry the Italian mails from Venice and Brindisi to Alexandria, in order to supersede the line now running, known as "Palmers" Line. These negotiations were announced by us a month since, and we shall probably be able to give the full particulars in our next issue.

A GENERAL meeting has been called at Copenhagen of the shareholders of the Great Northern and China and Japan Extension Telegraph Companies, in order to unite the two associations with a capital of £1,500,000. Propositions will also be brought forward at the meeting for a new telegraphic line between England and Denmark, and the establishment of a telegraphic station at Amoy. Mr. G. J. HELLAND, of Hong Kong, is to be made a director. Other details will be found in our advertising columns.

A TELEGRAM published this morning states that "Mr. DE "LONG, the American Minister to Japan, has accepted a Ja- "panese mission to the great Powers of Europe and America "similar to that of Mr. BURLINGAME." This statement is, we believe, without foundation. Mr. DE LONG simply accompanies the travelling party of Japanese nobles who, as stated in our issue of the 1st inst., were to leave Yedo during the month of December for a tour through the United States and Europe.

WITH reference to the case of Fraser versus the charterers of the steamer Hibernia, which was recently reported and commented on in our columns, an application on behalf of Messrs. J. and L. FRASER for a new trial has been acceded to. A new trial has also been granted of the case "Morrison v. the Universal Marine Insurance Company," and a request for the re-hearing of the case of Messrs. WILLIS against the underwriters of the Blackadder is under consideration.

ADVICES from Havana by way of New York inform us that great consternation exists among the Chinese plantation coolies of Cuba in consequence of a decree having been promulgated that all those whose engagements have terminated will be compelled to enter into fresh contracts at the wages of $12 per month. This standard of remuneration will be better appreciated by our stating the fact that the lowest rate paid for negro labour is $17.

ACCORDING to our Hamburg correspondent's letter, to be found in another column, the Deutsche Bank of Berlin has opened a branch at Hamburg and appointed Mr. WM. PROBST, late of Messrs. WILLIAM PUSTAU and Co., of China, as manager. The opening of this branch is chiefly in connection with the new branches in China and Japan.

TELEGRAMS from Calcutta report the arrival of the King of SIAM from Bangkok. Our Government have, we understand, given instructions that a suitable reception be given to the King. As such reception would not be complete without a man-of-war, H.M.S. Glasgow was ordered by the Admiralty to be in attendance.

A TELEGRAM published on the 11th inst. announced that Sir HERCULES ROBINSON was on board the homeward Messageries steamer Donnai, but a subsequent telegram states that he is a passenger to Hong Kong by the Messageries steamer Mei-Kong.

THE wrecked hull of the Dutch steamer William III., as she now lies at Portsmouth, has been sold for £20,500. This will reduce the loss sustained by the underwriters very considerably.

THE Gazette of Friday last notifies the appointment of JAMES HUGH MCCLOSKY and CHOA-MAH SOO, Esqrs, to be Members of the Legislative Council of the Island of Labuan.

A MEETING of the Straits Association has been held, but we are informed that the proceedings are not to be made public at present.

CHUNG HOW AND THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT.

THE following droll squib—which purports to be the confidential letter of a member of CHUNG HOW'S suite to a friend at home—deserves more consideration than attaches to the majority of such productions. It appears in the Morning Post, in which it is described as being written in excellent French, and giving a faithful description of a Chinese mandarin's impressions of Republican France :—

FROM TE-TO-TUM IN PARIS, TO HIS FRIEND POO-POO IN PEKING.

Turn to our Sacred Tablet or Lord of a Myriad of Years and be thankful you were not born in France. Accept from the heart of friendship, wafted by the wings of love, this epistle. Year of the Barbarians, 1871, when traced, but despatched from Lyons in 1872. We arrived here in France, as you know, in order to express the regret of the Son of Heaven or sublime Teen-Tsye for the massacres which took place in Tientsin, originating in the demoralising attempts of the missionaries of a people who practise the religion of a devil, who seek to turn us from the morality of the Divine Confucius. Our "Four Books" record nothing in the history of humanity compared to the great satire our mission embodies. We came to regret the murder of a few men who, uncalled for, came amongst us to insult our faith, and what did we find here? Since the foundation of Christianity wars have never ceased; sometimes religious wars, but always wars; but as barbarian civilisation increases, these bloody conflicts of the Christians augment in destructive magnitude. Their science is mainly directed now to the means of destroying human life on a more extensive scale. The greatest triumph of European science is to be able to place half-a-million men before half-a-million of other men, each and all provided with fiery instruments of death, which sweep down the duped gaily-dressed multitude on either side without the contending hosts having any opportunity of displaying their war courage. We arrived here when the French, who must always be going to war with some other people, had invaded Germany, and were being beaten home again. No one can tell you why they invaded Germany; but, having got the worst of it, everyone—statesmen, soldiers, and politicians—all now say they were opposed to the war. From the great Emperor Napoleon, down to all the old senators and deputies who voted and cheered the war, all denounced it. If we did not know how to esteem the chivalry of the great French nation, we should suppose all the world indulging in falsehood. Their civilisation has not only brought them to endless wars. Ah, no! That is not all. We found the French eventually, because they could not successfully fight the Germans, fighting amongst themselves. The Parisians revolted; the troops of the Government besieged Paris. The Parisians then murdered their priests, their own priests; they had a Tientsin massacre amongst themselves. Ah, no! that is not all When the Frenchmen, the soldiers, came from Versailles, to storm Paris they killed each other by thousands. Ah, no! that is not all! The Parisians then set fire to their own city, burning the Ten-Tsye Palace, and destroying the monument of all their war glories. To the people of this nation we came to apologise for the small outrages of our own offended ignorant people. Our Ambassador on more than one occasion tore the peacock's feather from his cap in the excitement of humiliated dignity. . . . These people teach us religion, civilisation—give us a better guide than we find in our Yu or our Fo! As we watched from Versailles the burning of the Tuileries, we remembered how these French and the English had robbed our Emperor's palace. The arrowy flames lighted the heavens, so we saw more plainly than before the God of Justice. You will not believe what I have written; but permit me to ask you to imagine what our monkeys would do if let out of their cages. These French require the bamboo stick more than any other people, from high caste downwards. I have now a sunlight and flower-perfumed communication to convey. We have made arrangements to establish a religious house in London and in Paris for the reception of our missionaries. Our Ambassador thinks it is our duty to give the French especially the benefits of a true religion, which must improve their habits and morals. We believe Buddhism will best suit these barbarians. We shall, therefore, despatch to France some priests of Buddhism faith, and hope for the blessing of Heaven. We shall not work like the Christian missionaries in China, and pretend to convert the low and abandoned classes. We shall hope to convert M. Thiers, M. Guizot, and the Bishop of Orleans. In England we reckon on Lord Granville, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Spurgeon, and some bishops. Chinese civilisation is much wanting in these parts of the world. We must do our duty. Place my devotion at the feet of all dear friends, and on the grave of my grandmother.—Love your brother, TE-TO-TUM.

P.S.—The President of the Republic is sending a commission to Peking to study our form of government. He says France has tried all European forms of bamboo stick, and none of them suit her.

THE CHINESE IN PERU.

The following particulars, obtained from the coolie-passengers from Peru and Honolulu, are published in the China Mail:—

It is satisfactory to observe that a great change has come over the treatment of the coolies who have been shipped to that place under the name of "free emigrants." The unfortunate coolies, to some extent, can now seek for redress in the Peruvian Courts of Justice. Of the passengers of the Cecilia, forty-eight embarked from Lima; all these men brought with them large sums of money, and with the exception of one, who had only a few hundred dollars, the average possession of each of the rest was about 3,000 dols., including two of them who owned over 10,000 dols. a-piece.

Lima has a Chinese population of about 350,000, most of whom work in the fields and guano pits; a comparatively few are employed in family houses as domestic servants, and some are time-expired emigrants who have earned a little money and opened shops there. Those who are employed as servants receive very good treatment, earning larger wages than the labourers by two dollars a month. They have very easy times. The case of the labourers employed in plantations called jaggers is just the reverse. They are made to work from five in the morning until six at night. Their food is of the worst description, consisting of rice of inferior kind, and not in sufficient quantities, thus almost compelling them to steal, and when they are caught they are flogged without mercy, or when they are a little slack in their work the lash is relentlessly applied, so that some have died from the effects. These are the conditions which the coolies of Callao are in, but those in Lima or near it are more fortunate, as they have easy access to the courts of law. The labourers in Callao finding their oppression unbearable, frequently place themselves beyond the reach of their employers by committing suicide. On one occasion, about sixteen months ago, a Chinese was beaten to death. He was employed in one of the jaggers owned by a very wealthy man in Lima. The Chinese resolved to avenge the death of their countryman, and for this purpose formed themselves into a company, subscribing large sums in aid of the prosecution. The version of the affair given by the accused was that the man died of opium poison administered by his own hands, but the post mortem examination revealed the presence of three clots of blood. In spite of this evidence the accused had, by means of his great wealth, managed to delay the proceedings, and the case up to the present moment has not been settled, although he offered to compromise with the Chinese with a large sum of money, which the Chinese refused. Our informant further informs us that the practice of applying red hot iron to the cheeks of the coolies was in existence prior to his advent, and he believed this act of cruelty is still carried on in out-of-the-way places.

The Chinese in Lima follow principally the avocation of shopkeepers, where everything is very dear and offers very fair profit for Chinese merchandise. Gambling, and many gambling houses are opened in consequence. They actually form public gambling companies, issuing shares, at so much a share, in exactly the same manner as any other business company is formed. The Peruvian laws prohibit gambling, but they manage to bribe the police and the authorities.

At Honolulu the Chinese is on a much better footing, possessing all the rights and privileges of a free citizen, but the means of making money are not so great as in Peru. The Chinese population there is between 3,000 and 4,000.

Monetary and Commercial.

Subscriptions are invited for £4,000,000 Northern Pacific Railroad 7 3-10ths per cent. first mortgage Land-Grant Bonds, at the price of 85, in instalments extending to the 1st of July. The line is to run from Lake Superior to Puget Sound on the Pacific, a distance of 2,000 miles, of which 255 have been completed, and the company have a grant of lands from the United States estimated at about sixty million acres. The creation of bonds is limited to £10,000 per mile of road; these bonds are to be received at par in payment for land, and each £100 bond is to carry a right of 250 acres. According to the allegations of the prospectus, the line "passes through the best wheat-growing region in the world," and will, as compared with the passage from San Francisco, save 700 miles in the ocean route to Japan.

Messrs. Chadwicks, Adamson, Collier, and Co. invite subscriptions for 22,000 shares of £10 each in the Australian and Oriental Coal Company, established with a capital of £300,000, in shares of £10 each, for the purpose of supplying the ports of India, China, Japan, the Pacific, and the Australasian colonies from collieries at Newcastle, New South Wales. The demand from these ports is very large, and a contract has been entered into for the purchase of two coal mines at and near Newcastle, New South Wales, which are to be disposed of in consequence of the intended dissolution of partnership of the proprietors. From information obtained by the board these mines are considered capable of putting out half a million tons of coal per annum, of excellent quality for steam and gas purposes, and now used for the latter by the Bombay, Singapore, and other gas companies. The price of the two collieries, including the six miles of railway, buildings, and lands, is £130,000, and the plant is to be paid for by a valuation which is not expected to exceed £50,000. Of the whole purchase money £80,000 is to be paid in deferred shares not ranking for dividend until the ordinary shareholders have received 10 per cent. for five consecutive years, and the balance in cash. The total net profit is estimated at £81,250 per annum.

The directors of the Oriental Bank Corporation have resolved for the future to make no charge on deposit accounts for postage, stamps, &c., but in lieu of these expenses a commission of one Silver has again increased slightly in value, the quotations for fine bars being 60¾d. to 60¼d. per oz. standard. Mexican Dollars have also increased in value, the new coinage to 59½d., the old, owing to scarcity, to 60½d. per oz. The Candia has taken £43,000 to China.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for December last and for the entire year 1871, show for the first time since April last a decrease in the general volume of our trade. So far as the imports are concerned, we gather from an official note appended to the tables that the deficiency exhibited in several cases is only apparent, and is caused by the fact that in former years the account for December included the record of large quantities of goods which had been imported in previous months, but not registered until the "Landing Accounts" had been received. By the system which was introduced a year ago, the transactions of each month are strictly included within the period to which they refer, and thus the figures for December, though useless for the purpose of comparison with the corresponding month in previous years, give for the first time a reliable summary of the actual import business in the closing month of the year. We find that during 1871 the imports amounted to £326,834,647, being an increase of £23,577,154 on the imports of the previous year, and £31,374,433 as compared with 1869. During the month of December last our imports were £25,444,758, against £38,473,169 in December, 1870, and £40.893,498 in the same month of 1869. As above stated, owing to the change in the system of registering the returns, no comparison is practicable.

As regards the exports during the month of December the returns show a falling off, the declared value being £16,965,293 against £17,178.058 in the corresponding month of 1870, and £15,594,978 in December, 1869. The value of the exports for the year ending Dec. 31, 1871, is £219,319,071, against £199.586,822 in 1870, and £118,953 957 in 1869. These figures show an increase for last year of nearly 10 per cent. over the preceding year and more than 15 per cent. over 1869. Every branch of industry has participated in the movement; but the greatest relative increase has been in the silk, woollen, and iron and steel trades, cotton manufactures figuring more moderately. Owing, however, to the vastness of that trade, a slight augmentation in connection with it is of more importance than a great one under other heads. The following are the degrees of increase :—Coal, 11 per cent.; cotton yarn, 3 per cent. (and 6 per cent. in quantity); cotton manufactures, 1½ per cent. (and 4 per cent. in quantity); earthenware, 5 per cent.; haberdashery, 23 per cent.; hardware, 11 per cent.; iron and steel, 9 per cent.; linen manufactures, 4 per cent.; machinery, 12 per cent.; silk manufactures, 42 per cent.; woollen yarn, 22 per cent.; woollen manufactures, 25 per cent.; and miscellaneous, 13 per cent.

The following is a summary of those figures which relate to our Export trade with China and other countries in the Far East :—

TEA.

The business of the past week has been very much restricted, owing to the firmness of importers, and a general slackness in the demand of the dealers.

The accumulation of stock in first hands since the holidays, equal to 15,000,000 lbs. China, and 1,500,000 lbs. Indian Tea, has proved too much for the market, even though its statistical position is unsually sound and promising; therefore, when business was resumed a week since, it was impossible to get due attention to samples, and many easy sales were made the first two or three days; more recently, however, since dealers have had an opportunity of examining the samples and gauging the tone of the market, they evince more disposition to business, especially in Congous from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. per lb., and it is probable that the demand may harden prices for these current consumable grades. Small sales of Shantaam kind have been made at 10½d., but at ½d. less these could be moved in quantity. Common to fair red-leaf Congous must be quoted ½d. per lb. lower. The Official Accounts for the year past, just published, give a total of imports 170,716,140 lbs.; deliveries: Home consumption 123.529,544 lbs.; export 41,192,152 lbs., total 164,721,696 lbs.; and stock 83.866,069 lbs., the deliveries being 1,000,000 lbs. in excess of our estimate given in the annual report.

Red-leaf Congou siftings and broken leaf, of new import, have sold at full prices. Fair to good common from recent supplies have sold about ½d. per lb. lower. Fair to good Kaisow kinds have found buyers from 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 5d. per lb. Fine to finest show no alteration. Pak Lin kinds have been in request. Black-leaf kinds: Low qualities remain as before. Fair to good common have sold at a decline of ¼d. to ½d. per lb. Fair to good medium have been taken at former prices. Fine to finest have only been in limited request. Amoy kinds show no alteration. New-make Canton kinds have sold steadily from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. for fair quality. Oolongs: Some sales of good to fine have been made from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 4d. In Souchongs and Flowery Pekoes but few transactions have taken place. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been sold from 11d. to 1s. 6d. for common to good quality. Foo Chow kinds at about former prices. Orange Pekoes, Canton make, have sold from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 8d. for fair to good kinds; Foo Chow kinds from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. for fair to good kinds; fine at previous prices. Uncoloured Japans show no improvement, the common kinds being quite neglected. Green Teas: The market has been steady, prices showing no material alteration. At public sale yesterday 3,745 packages China, per steamer Hector, were offered without reserve on the day of sale, on account of the importers, and all disposed of, consisting of 2.935 packages Ping Suey Green, 216 packages of Moyune Green, and 594 packages Congou. The Green met a fair competition, and the No. 1 and fine qualities brought full prices; the medium and lower lines sold with less depression at rather above those previously current. The Congou (a chop) went very cheaply at 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb.

SILK.

The market continues very strong; a steady business is doing at full rates in Chinas and Cantons, and there is more enquiry for Japans of good quality and clean Silk at better prices. Deliveries are very good, being from 1st to 10th inst. as follows:—

COFFEE.

The favourable tone with which business was resumed last week at the close of the holidays has been confirmed, and during the present week the market has been active and buoyant, large supplies, consisting chiefly of Ceylon, being actively competed for, and realising advanced prices, the demand being for both consumption and speculation. The improvement in Plantation Ceylon has reached about 1s. per cwt., and in other sorts nearly that extent. The rates realised have been Plantation, triage 66s. to 72s., small grey to coloury 73s. to 76s., low middling grey and dull 76s. 6d. to 78s., middling coloury 79s. to 82s. 6d, good middling 84s. 6d. to 85s. 6d., good bold 90s. 6d., peaberry 85s. 6d. to 88s 6d. Ouvah native Ceylon of the new crop per steamer, good ordinary, 69s. 6d., bold 71s., peaberry 72s. 6d.. 125 bags ordinary at 66s. to 68s. 6d. bold 70s., and 835 bags chips and garblings at 53s. 6d. to 56s. There has been an active demand privately for Native, and about 1,000 tons have found buyers—800 tons on the spot, 200 tons for arrival—at 70s., guaranteed good ordinary. The other sales reported are 450 bags Java, from Cape Town, sold, pale at 74s., brownish 78s. 6d., chiefly sea-damaged at 72s. to 76s. 6d., and 150 bags mixed pale Singapore at 73s. per cwt.

SUGAR.

We have again to report an inactive market; the inquiry has been very limited, and consequently transactions have been greatly restricted, the dull tone being confirmed by the firmness of holders, who decline transactions at anything below previously ruling rates. This is especially the case with Manila, which description is in good demand, but at lower prices than holders will accept. The only transaction in East India to report has been the sale privately of 400 tons good Taal unclayed at 26s. 3d, 3,600 bags superior Manila (duties 4s. and 4s. 9d.) at 30s. 6d. to 31s. per cwt.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At auction 100 cases Ginger were bought in at 1s. 2d., 40 cases dry ditto at 1s. 2d., and 50 cases Chow Chow at 1s. 1d.

CAMPHOR.—China is still in speculative demand, and sales amounting to about 800 cases have been effected at 82s. 6d. on the spot, and 85s. afloat. Japan: No transactions.

CUTCH continues active, large sales having been made during the week at 26s. to 26s. 6d. for fine Pegu, including Elephant mark.

GALLS.—China continue in good demand at gradually advancing prices; early in the week 400 cases sold at £3, subsequently 88 cases at £3 1s., and yesterday 57 cases were quitted at £3 2s., a portion dusty and broken realising £3 0s. 6d. Japan: No business done; 12 cases at auction withdrawn.

GAMBIER.—The advance of last week is sustained, and a considerable business has been done in floating parcels at 19s. 6d. ex ship; cubes bought in at 25s.

HEMP.—About 2,000 bales fair current Manila have been recently disposed of at £46 to £46 10s., since when a steadier tone has prevailed, and 1 500 bales have been sold for spring delivery at £47.

JAPAN WAX.—Of 925 cases offered at auction, 232 cases sold—fine saucer, 87s. 6d. to 88s. 6d.; one lot overtaker, 90s. 6d.; stained, 86s.; fair to good, 85s. to 87s.

HIDES.—Notwithstanding a heavy amount of East India Kips offered by auction yesterday, an active demand prevailed throughout, and nearly the whole was disposed of at higher prices. Ox and Cow: Of 3,450 Penang and Singapore offered 3,046 sold, light 6⅝ to 7¼ lbs. at 10d. to 10½d., heavy 8¾ lbs. at 9½d, extra 12¾ to 14¼ lbs. at 9½d. to 10d., small 5½ lbs. at 10½d., calf 3 lbs. at 10d., thirds 7½ lbs. at 7d. Buffalo: Of 5,698 Singapore and Penang offered, 5,311 sold, light 10⅝ to 17¼ lbs at 6½d. to 7¼d., first heavy 21½ to 36¾ lbs. at 4¾d. to 5¼d., seconds 23⅜ to 34⅜ lbs. at 4¼d. to 5d.; 1,259 Batavian withdrawn.

PEPPER.—Black: The market is quiet, at barely previous quotations,—Singapore has sold, good at 6¼d., Penang fair at 5⅜d. White has brought an advance of about 1d. per lb., Singapore having been sold at auction commencing at 11¾d. and closing at 1s. Privately Singapore has sold at 1s., and a few lots at 1s 0½d.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: Of 135 bales Ceylon, 90 bales sold, low to middling, first sort, 2s. 2d. to 3s.; second, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 9d.; third, 1s. 8d. to 2s. 6d.; fourth, 2s. 4d.; spurious, 8d. to 9d. Cloves: 60 bags Amboyna bought in at 4d. to 6d., and 3 cases Penang at 1s. 6d. Nutmegs: Of 24 cases Penang, 7 cases sold, 71's at 3s. 8d., 77's at 3s. 7d, and 82's at 3s. 5d. 22 casks low small limed Java sold at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 10d., and 46 bags wild Singapore at 6d. Of 14 cases Penang, 9 cases sold, low dark, broken, partly mouldy, 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10d.; middling red, 4s. 4d.

SAGO.—In auction of 1,703 bags about 1,000 bags sold at fully previous prices, fair small 18s., medium 18s. to 18s. 6d., large 18s. 6d. to 19s.

TAPIOCA.—Of 150 barrels fine Rio about one-half sold at 5½d., 355 bags good Penang sold at 2½d. to 2¼d. chiefly the former price; of 469 bags Singapore 160 bags sold at 2½d. to 2¼d., Eastern sorts being slightly dearer. Privately about 700 bags, chiefly Singapore, have been sold at a similar improvement at 2⅝d. Pearl: 47 bags large sold at 19s.

TIN.—Some parcels of Foreign, principally Banca, have been forced for sale, as low as £141 10s. having been accepted; but we hear of no more to be had at that price. The closing quotations are—Straits, on the spot and afloat, £143; Banca, £143; Billiton, £142.

CASUALTIES.

The Tanah Merah (str.), from Glasgow to China, &c. (via S. C.), which put into Belfast to repair, had side ports in bulwarks, started; but after having the same strengthened, she proceeded on the 8th Jan. for her destination.

Advices from St. Helena, dated Dec. 11, state that the Matador, Kimme, from Ilo Ilo to London, which put in there leaky, Nov. 5, had discharged a further portion of her cargo. By means of a diver a bad place was found in the after hooden ends, and the vessel was dipped by the head to bring it out of the water, when a few sheets of copper were stripped, and the soft parts caulked, which caused a slight diminution of the leak. The surveyors recommended that she should receive back her cargo, but not be loaded beyond a draught of eighteen feet, and that as a precaution four additional hands should be shipped.

The Agincourt, of London, Cator, which vessel sailed from Sunderland for Shanghai, Dec. 31, with coal, put into Shields Jan. 3, leaky, having grounded 4½ miles from the Spurn Floating Light, but on the 7th she returned from Shields to Sunderland.

The Vidar (str.) left Ronne, Dec. 31, for Copenghagen, with 861 chests tea, which had been sold by auction, being a portion of cargo saved in a damaged condition, ex Saida (str.), bound from London to Konigsberg, which stranded to the south of Vang.

The J. L. Hall, Smith, which arrived at New York, Dec. 27, from Batavia, was thrown on her beam ends during a S.E. gale, Aug. 28, in lat. 11 S., lon. 84 W., when she shifted her cargo and started stanchions, &c.

The Cotopaxi, Carr, which vessel sailed from London for Colombo Dec. 21, has put back to the Downs with cargo reported shifted.

Advices from Cape Town, dated Dec. 5, received at Amsterdam Jan. 8, state that the Annie S., which vessel had received damage on her passage from Algoa Bay to Simon's Bay, was loading the remainder of the cargo of the Aldebaran, Meyboom, from Batavia to New York, condemned at Simon's Bay, and would probably leave for New York on Dec. 10.

Further advices received from Ronne, dated Jan. 10, state that the Hvidt (str.) had sailed for Pillau, with tea, &c., ex Saida (str.), Carter, from London to Konigsberg, which vessel stranded near Vang.

The Thracian, Hay, from London, for Yokohama, previously reported as having been in collision in the Downs, had her mizen-topmast carried away and also received damage to covering board, rails, and wheel, and slipped from an anchor and cable; she has returned to London, and is discharging her cargo in the West India Docks in order to repair the damage sustained.

Advices received from Rotterdam, dated Jan. 10, state that the Webfoot, Sturrock, arrived at Texel from Pasaroeang, had lost an anchor and chain while entering the harbour.

Advices from New York, dated Dec. 30, state that the Life Brigade, from Colombo, which arrived there 29, reported having experienced a succession of north-west gales, from Nov. 29 to Dec. 24, during which she sprung foretopmast, lost sails, &c., and that on the 19th Nov. the master (Kirby) had died at sea.

The Cotopaxi, Carr, from London, for Colombo, previously reported as having put back to the Downs, Jan. 9, with cargo shifted, has put into Sheerness to restow the same.

HELENA.—Nov. 28, Questembert, Guilbad, from Padang, and sailed for Amsterdam; Amazon, Svinhufvud, from Batavia, and sailed, 30, for Rotterdam; Dec. 3, Edith Churnside, from Singapore, and sailed, 4, for Boston; 4, Stanley, Fraser (in charge, the late master, Doughty, having died, Nov. 21), from Amoy, and sailed, 6, for New York; 5, Elizabeth, Feenstra, from Batavia, and sailed for Amsterdam; 6, India Packet, Diepering, from Batavia, for Amsterdam; Marlborough, Larkins, from Zebu; 8, Elise, Lauritzen, from Ilo Ilo, and sailed, 8, for Liverpool; 9, City of Agra, Ellwood, from Manila, and sailed, 10, for New York; 10, Stirling Castle, Hamilton, from Colombo, and sailed, 11, for London.

THE NEW P. AND O. STEAMSHIP PESHAWUR.—On the 6th inst. the P. and O. Company's new screw steamship Peshawur, commanded by Captain C. A. White, had her official trial at the measured mile in Stokes Bay, when, under the adverse influence of a strong westerly wind and short "chopping" seas, she attained an average mean speed of 13·816 knots per hour, one run being made with the wind in four minutes, or 15 knots per hour. The total weight of coals and stores on board was 975 tons, and the vessel's draught of water was 17ft. 3in. forward and 18ft. 5in. aft.; steam, 46lb.; vacuum, 27 inches; revolutions of engines, 61 per minute. The dimension of the Peshawur are as follows:—Length between perpendiculars, 378ft.; breadth of beam, 42ft. 9in.; depth from top of floor to spar deck, 33ft. 2in.; register tonnage, 2,103; gross ditto, 3,781. She is fitted with compound engines of 600-horse power nominal, which indicated 2,962 during the trial; diameter of cylinders, 62 and 104 inches; length of stroke, 4ft. 6in.; heating surface of boilers, 11,720 square feet; firegrate surface, 316·8 square feet; condensing surface, 6,059 square feet; diameter of screw, 17ft. 6in., and 4ft. 3in. long, with pitch increasing from 22½ to 24 inches; weight of screw, 12½ tons. The Peshawur was built by Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock, and is a sister ship to the Khedive, Mirzapore, and Pekin, by the same builders, which have been added to the company's fleet during the past year. These vessels are all provided with accommodation for a large number of first and second class passengers, mails, specie, baggage, and over 2,000 tons of cargo, and are fitted with the latest improvements in every department. A large number of the P. and O. Company's directors and officials and other scientific gentlemen were on board the Peshawur, and her performances gave great satisfaction. The Peshawur left Southampton on the 13th inst. as an extra steamer for Bombay via Suez Canal, calling at Malta, Port Said, and Suez, and also taking cargo for transhipment at Bombay for China.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS—CHEST PRESERVATIVES.—At all seasons of the year the rate of mortality from diseases of the lungs is very great. Holloway's Ointment, well rubbed upon the chest, aided by his Pills, arrests all mischief. These cleansing medicaments exercise the most salutary and restorative influence over the entire contents of the pectoral cavity. Air-tubes, nerves, blood-vessels, and all other tissues feel their wholesomely potent power, more particularly in their thoroughly purifying both venous and arterial blood, by promoting the free circulation of air. Neither Ointment nor Pills contain any noxious ingredient whatever, but their balsamic nature nourishes rather than irritates the system, and kindly subdues all untoward symptoms till all is well once more.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Our advices extend to 7th Dec. The outward mail per French steamer of 15th Oct. arrived on the 30th Nov. The following items are from the North China Herald:—

We are glad to hear that the matter of provision for the Chinese poor has been taken up, the Council having resolved to carry on the Sinzah Refuge similarly to last year. The same foreign superintendent has been appointed, and last year's plan having been found to work well is also followed in other particulars. The cost of working the Refuge will be defrayed from the Council's vote for charitable purposes, to be assisted by private subscriptions from the foreign and native community, who no doubt will give aid as liberally as heretofore.

Shanghai and the neighbouring districts are contributing a large supply of cotton quilted clothes for the sufferers by the late floods in Chih-li. It is said that some 20,000 have been already collected.

The Peking Gazette contains an outspoken memorial by Censor Liu Kwo-kwang on the rather delicate subject of Imperial household expenditure. The Emperor seems to want more income, and asks for the "surplus" Customs' revenue. Liu very plainly says there is no reason why the Imperial household should cost more now than it used to do, and that a time when the metropolitan province is starving is not appropriate for such an application. To talk of "surplus" Customs' revenue is humbug. The collectors already squeeze intolerably, and would make the Imperial demand an excuse for further extortion. The last Peking rumour is that Tseng-kwo-fan is likely to retire, and to be succeeded at Nangking by Li-hung-chang, the present Viceroy of Chih-li. We give the report only for what it may be worth.

The body of a marine belonging to H.M.S. Juno has been found near the village of Pao Shing-yao, a little beyond Sikawei. The deceased, whose name was Joseph Blake, had come on shore with a comrade on leave, on the previous day, and they had hired ponies and ridden out to the Bubbling Well, drinking a good deal before they parted. There was no marks of violence on the body, nor sign of struggle on the spot; and money was found in the pocket. The inference is that Blake somehow deviated from the straight road, either at Cross-road or at the Defence Creek, and worked back towards Sikawei, where he must have been thrown from his pony and wandered till he fell from exhaustion, fell asleep, and died from cold.

The second Paper Hunt of the season was won by Mr. Bidwell, on Screw. Another yacht race has been sailed, the course being from off the Recreation Ground round the Red Buoy. Eight yachts entered, and the prize, the Christmas Cup, was won by the Phantom.

The new S.S.N. steamer, recently put together at the company's lower (Hongkew) wharf, has been successfully launched. She is named the Honan, and is a vessel of very light draught, but of considerable length, and will carry about 1,500 tons. She will be admirably fitted to run on the Upper Yangtze—when it is opened.

The sons of Saint Andrew, as usual, held high festival on St. Andrew's Day, in honour of Scotland's patron Saint; two parties—the St. Andrew's Society and the Scottish Freemasons—vieing which should most hospitably celebrate the occasion. About sixty members of the society sat down to dinner at the club, under the presidency of Mr. David Reid, supported by Mr. F. Henderson as vice-chairman, and Mr. J. Anderson and Dr. Henderson as croupiers. About thirty-five Freemasons sat down to the banquet given by the "Cosmopolitan" Lodge, under the presidency of the master for the current year—Bro. C. M. Donaldson.

The case of the schooner Anne, Mr. James Fox, master, which was stranded at Kelung, on the 9th or 10th of August, and has since been abandoned by the master and crew, came before the Naval Court of Zamsui on the 12th Oct., when the Court found that no blame was attributable to the master or crew. All possible efforts were made for six weeks to get her off, before she was sold at the recommendation of survivors, and the Court approved of such sale.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 13th Dec. The outward London mail of 25th Oct. arrived on the 8th Dec.

The Overland Trade Report has a very pertinent article on the altered conditions of trade in China, consequent on the introduction of the telegraph, in which it is attempted with much justice to relieve resident partners in future from the sole responsibility of "bad seasons," now that the wire has brought them within a day's communication with their seniors. The observation is a true one; and there can be no doubt that the reputation for "recklessness," which our contemporary says is a "household word among commercial men," as applied to China merchants, will not longer attach solely to their representatives abroad, unless indeed the resident partners should not choose to be guided by the instructions flashed to them from home—a contingency which our contemporary seems to have overlooked.

The following items are from the China Mail:—

In China matters political are much the same, so far as outward appearances reveal the situation. An important document has been published, in which Count Rochechouart gives what is regarded as a preliminary reply to the Missionary Circular, and which is sent to the Tsung-li-yamen pending consultation with other Powers, especially England. It is spirited and firm, and foreshadows a policy which we trust will be vigorously followed up. A rumour is in circulation that Tseng-kwo-fan has resigned, and will be succeeded in the Vice-royalty of the Two-Kwangs by Li-hung-chang, a younger but very able mandarin. Disturbances are reported in the western districts of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, and Yu-nan, and in the latter province it is stated that the third son of the Taiping Wong has been declared Emperor of Southern China; troops are being sent to the districts under the insurrectionary influence. The floods are now stated to have been immediately caused by the laziness and negligence of a mandarin, aided by the rascality of a yamen-runner, who suppressed reports of the danger.

H.E. Sir Richard Graves MacDonnell, Governor of Hong Kong, &c., landed at the Military Wharf, Parade Ground, on the 8th Dec. His Excellency was brought on shore in the Governor's barge, accompanied by H.E. the Lieut. Governor, Hon. J. G. Austin, Hon. C. C. Smith, Mr. Russell, and the Governor's aid de-camp. On the wharf to receive him we observed Messrs. Moorsom, Stewart, Mitchell, d'Almada, Lister, Dr. Dods, and others; while on the Parade Ground there was a very large concourse assembled, consisting of leading residents, several ladies and many Europeans and Chinese. We were sorry to observe that his Excellency's stay at home has apparently had so little effect in re-establishing his previous vigour of body; and we sincerely trust that the bracing air of our island home during this season may result in his complete restoration. Sir Richard when he landed wore the Order of St. Michael and St. George—an honour conferred upon him since his departure, as reward for long and distinguished services.

No official preparations were made for his Excellency's reception, and general dissatisfaction has been expressed at the bungling way in which matters were managed.

His Excellency visited the gaol during the afternoon, so that he did not allow the grass to grow under his feet; and we would again remind heads of departments and all concerned that Sir Richard is again at his post. Verbum sap!

Mr. T. C. Hayllar has been provisionally appointed Acting Attorney General, in room of Hon. J. Ball (Small Court Judge) resigned.

Abdool Moussa and Noor Mahomed Camissa were convicted of having conspired to defraud certain Chinese silk-merchants in Canton by attempting to make it appear that the debts of Fazulbhoy, Mahomed Essa and Co., of Bombay, were the debts of one Abdool Rahman Jahmal. Sentence has been reserved, pending decision on certain reserved legal points in the case.

Some surprise has been occasioned by the course adopted by the agent here of the Great Northern Telegraph China and Japan Extension Company, on the occasion of the temporary stoppage of communication between this port and Shanghai. The public were not informed of the break in the line, and paid messages were received for two or three days after the line was unserviceable; and though the money for the said messages has been returned, great inconvenience and some vexation has resulted.

St. Andrew's-day was celebrated both here and at Shanghai by Scotchmen, at semi-public dinner assembled.

Captain Punchard, of the late steamer Azof, has had his certificate returned by the Marine Court of Inquiry, and has been pronounced entirely blameless as regards the loss of the vessel.

SARAWAK.

The census for the Sarawak territory gives a general total of 141,546, but it does not pretend to strict accuracy. It is the generally received opinion that the whole population of the Sarawak territory numbers nearer 200,000 souls than 141,000.

The N.E. monsoon having set in, the fair way buoy on the bar at the Santubong entrance of the Sarawak river has been removed, the channel being no longer safe for large vessels.

A report reaches us from Kalaka that Minggat, the Dyak chief who distinguished himself in the late expedition, intends to start with a considerable force to attack the people living on the Kanowit river above Mujok.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates from this port extend to the 20th Dec. The P. and O. mail of the 3rd Nov. arrived on the 8th Dec; and the French mail, with London letters to 10th Nov., on the 14th Dec. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The financial position of the colony has been very ably reviewed in a paper laid before the Legislative Council by the Auditor-General, which, together with the debate on the Supplementary Supply Bill for 1870 and Estimates for 1872, has only been recently published. The Auditor-General has endeavoured to refute the charges of extravagance from time to time made against the colonial administration, but throws out of his calculations the cost of Government House and the new steamers—including, we suppose, the loss on the Peiho—as exceptional and extraordinary items, which should not be taken into account as evidences of general extravagance. The argument loses some of its force from the fact that the expenditure during three years of Colonial rule are contrasted against that of only one year under the Indian Government,—and that year one in which the New Court House was being built,—while the cost of New Government House and new steamers have been omitted in reckoning the Colonial expenditure. It is gratifying to learn, however, from the debate, that the expenditure as a rule does not reach the amount named in the estimates by a long way, while the revenue is generally in excess of the amount anticipated, and that the public are not to take the estimates as a measure of the probable expenditure, they being framed to cover possible deficiencies in any of the various departments.

The reduction that is to be made in the military strength of the garrison here is one of the most important movements that has been decided on since these settlements became a colony. Some time ago, it was proposed to raise a local corps somewhat on the principle of the Ceylon Rifles, to replace the Madras Native Infantry, but the Sepoys, and also the half battery of Royal Artillery stationed here are now to be withdrawn, and no local corps has been raised; and the entire military strength of the colony will be merely one regiment of European infantry. We of course are unaware what further measures are contemplated at the Colonial Office, but believe an augmentation of the police force, or the alternative of a local military corps, will be necessary.

On the 14th December H.M.S. Iron Duke arrived, bringing out Admiral Shadwell to relieve Sir Henry Kellett in command of the China squadron. Admiral Kellett was waiting here in H. M. S. Ocean, to be relieved, and proceeds home as passenger by the present mail steamer.

Singapore saw very little of the eclipse, but that event was followed by three remarkably high tides, which were not predicted by Mr. Saxby, and further, found every one totally unprepared for them. A considerable quantity of produce, stored in godowns in the low parts of the town, was damaged the first day, and at night a heavy swell aided in the destruction of one or two landing piers, the police stations at Teluk Ayer and Tanjong Rhoo, as well as many of the buildings on piles at the latter place, and several cargo boats, which, with their cargoes were lost. The damage, however, was not so serious as might have been expected, considering that parts of the town were three feet under water.

A difficulty and inconvenience which has been experienced in getting the Mirzapore alongside the P. and O. Company's wharf, and which was a serious annoyance to the passengers and to every one else, should lead the P. and O. Company to extend their wharves. The large steamers are much too long for the present wharf, and besides the difficulty of making the steamers fast, it more than once happens, as it did in this instance, that the gangway cannot be brought abreast of the wharf. The mails were delayed nearly an hour owing to this cause alone.

We hear that the appointment of Police Magistrate here has been given to Captain Walshe,—a military officer hitherto serving at the Colony of Sierra Leone, on the West coast of Africa.

PENANG.

The present mail brings dates to the 22nd Dec.; the P. and O. mail, with London advices to the 17th Nov., arrived out Dec. 20.

Mr. I. S. Bond, on behalf of Mr. G. P. Tolson, the managing assistant in the firm of Lorrain, Gillespie and Co., has moved the Supreme Court for a rule nisi calling on the sheriff to show cause why a mandamus should not issue commanding him to have been duly elected as Municipal Commissioner of Prince of Wales' Island, at the election of a Municipal Commissioner holden on the 5th December. Sir Wm. Hackett decided that it would be a waste of the public time, and the money of the litigants to allow a mandamus to issue.

At a public meeting, held at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, to consider what arrangements should be made for the reception of the King of Siam, it was resolved that a public reception should be given to the King, and that a requisition be made to Government to place at the disposal of the public an adequate sum, as was done at Singapore on a similar occasion. A "Jetty Reception Committee," a "Levee Committee," a "Procession Committee," and a "Ball Committee" were appointed.

We are informed that a letter has been received from the Rev. Mr. Moreton, in which he stated it as his intention to return to Penang by the first mail in March. Mr. Moreton, it is said, brings out with him an assistant for the Free School.

Titipapan and its neighbourhood have been in a state of great alarm during the earlier part of the week, in consequence of tumultuous parties of armed Jaweepakans and Malays, assembling and committing assaults and other excesses on persons who had refused to become members of a secret society, newly established in that locality under the auspices of Mohomed Cassim. The police are doing all they can to screen the offenders. A police-sergeant, it is said, is one of the head men of the society.

SHANGHAI.—Grey Shirtings: The business had been irregular, but showed a marked improvement in extent, if not in prices realised. 7 lbs. and 8¼ lbs. goods reported sold at Tls. 1.60 to 1.71 for the former, and Tls. 1.75 to 1.78 for the latter; Chinese had resold about 80,000 pieces 8-4 lbs. at from Tls. 1.75 to 1.88; one foreign sale of about 40,000 pieces 8-4 lbs. Eagles and other chops reported on a basis of Tls. 2 for Eagles—delivery, with customary prompt, after China New Year; one small sale of 9 lbs. at Tls. 2.04. White Shirtings: 1,000 pieces, supposed 60 reed, sold at Tls. 1.75. T-Cloths: Very moderate business in 7 lbs., at Tls. 1.35 to 1.59, and from Chinese holders at Tls. 1.46½ to 1.58; 7 lbs. Mexicans rather weaker; inquiry for 6 lbs. lowest quality at Tls. 1.12 to 1.14; 8 lbs. not in favour, and only a few pieces changed hands at Tls. 1.80. Drills: Quotations for Dutch and English advanced 10 to 12 candareens, and holders asking a further rise; stocks of all kinds fallen off; English, Tls. 2.90 to 3.03; 14 lbs., Dutch, Tls. 2.90 to 2.94. Woollens: Very limited demand at unchanged rates. Lead: A few sales at Tls. 4.55 cash for L.B. Coals: Without change.

HONG KONG.—Only a limited business had been doing in the market, and prices generally had a downward tendency. Dealers appeared to be well supplied with goods, and did not care to operate unless at values which importers were not anxious to accept. Cotton Yarn: Business of a most trivial character, 16/24s nominally down $2 to 3 per picul, 28/32s no change. Grey Shirtings: Although 7 lbs. were in limited supply values had not improved, owing to the absence of demand, and a reduction of about 3 cents per piece has to be noticed. Stock of 8.4 lbs. was upon too large a scale for requirements; inquiry exceedingly dull, and quotations nominal; 9 to 10 lbs. are not wanted. White Shirtings: Saleable to a very small extent, inquiry chiefly for 54/56 reed of the common descriptions. Fine makes 64/66 reed changed hands at a decline of 5 cents; White Irishes are in no request. T-Cloths: 6 lb. common chops continued in request, and advanced about 2 cents; 7 lb. in fair supply, and a slight pressure to sell had established a fall of 3 cents; 6 lb Mexicans unsaleable; 7 lb. of really fine quality found buyers, but other descriptions had a drooping tendency; 8lb. neglected. Drills: English makes of 14 lb. asked for, as supplies were limited; 15 lb. arriving in fair quantities, and values rather weaker; stock of American and Dutch still upon a small scale. English Jeans could not be moved. Fancy and Dyed Cottons.—Handkerchiefs and Velvets improved, owing to a rather better inquiry, but supplies are moderate, and importers firm for an advance. Blue Drills, Spots, Brocades, Damasks, and Chintzes all in trivial demand at about former quotations. Woollen and Worsted: Market exceedingly quiet, the late advance in prices having tended to stop business. No transactions recorded in Spanish Stripes, Long Ells, and Camlets, and the tendency appeared to be towards a lower range of values. Metals: Advices from home of a good advance in the price of Iron had led to a slight rise, and induced firmness on the part of importers. Nail Rod Iron of good assortment sold at $3.05, showing an improvement of 10c. Bar Iron also showed an upward tendency, but Hoop and Round Iron remained unaltered. Tin Plates declined owing to arrivals 20c. to 30c. per box. Quicksilver sold at $94 to 98. Lead without improvement; importers are offering to sell "to arrive" before March at $6 picul for "L.B." During the fortnight about 3,500 piculs have changed hands on the spot and to arrive. Quotations:—Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $110 to 117.50 per bale; 28 to 32, $117.50 to 122.50. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.12 to 2.15; 8.4 lbs., $2.37½ to 2.47½; 9 to 10 lbs., $2.80 to 3.45. White Shirtings, $2.15 to 3.25; finer qualities, $3.65 to 4.75. Grey T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 32-in., $1.60 to 1.62½; 7 lbs., 32-in., $1.80 to 1.82½; 6 lbs., 32-in. Mexicans, $1.70 to 1.75; 7 lbs., 32-in. Mexicans, $2 to 2.20; 8 to 8.4 lbs., 36-in., $2.30 to 2.35. Grey Twills, English, 14 to 15 lbs., $3.95 to 4.10; American, 15 lbs., $4.20 to 4.30; Dutch, 13½ to 14½ lbs., $3.95 to 4; Jeans, 8 lbs., $2.90 to 3.

BATAVIA.—Messrs. Houghton and Co. report as follows:—During the past month our market has, in accordance with the season of the year, been very quiet, and rates generally have undergone little change. Our usual wet monsoon having also now set in we cannot look for prices improving for some time to come; at the same time it must not be forgotten that stocks here are not at all large, so that whenever an active demand sets in rates generally should considerably advance. Cambrics: 45-inch x 12 yards continue in fair request, but no advance in price; fine makes 15/16s f.4.40 per piece; medium f.4.25 to 4.30; ordinary f.4.15 to 4.20 per piece, short credit. Shirtings—White, 40 yards: Can only be placed in small lots; 45-inch, f.10 per piece; 40/41-inch, f.8¾; 35/36-inch, 64/66 reeds, f.7¾, four months' credit. Grey, 38½ yards: No change; 39-inch, 7 lbs., f.6.20 to 6.26; 8½ lbs., f.7¼ to 7⅞; 45-inch, 8 lbs., f.7½ to 7¾; at these figures, however, many houses refuse to sell, holding for an advance. Maddapollams, 24 yards: In little demand; Dutch White, 32/33-inch, f.4.30 to 4.55, 40/41-inch, at f.5.75 to 6; Grey are in better demand than White, but with only small transactions, 34/35-inch, f.4.80 to 5; 43/44-inch, f.5.80 to 6; English Grey, 3 lbs., placed in small lots at f.2.75 to 2.80 per piece; 2¾ lbs., at f.2.60 to f.2.65; White Ship Maddapollams move off at f.2¾ per piece. Prints: Little doing, Printed Jacconets, 9/2 x 24 yards: Suitable patterns placed at f.5¼ to 6 per piece. Dyed Maddapollams, 9/8 x 24 yards: Orange f.3½ per piece. Coloured Yarns: Fair inquiry for Turkey Red Glasgow dye at $127½ to 130 for 10½ lbs., and $135 to 137½ for 12½ lbs.; Imperial Red, dull at $68 to 69; Dark Green in limited request at $80 to 81. Woollens—Spanish Stripes: In less inquiry. Camlets: 32 lbs. Scarlet worth $18, and assorted 16.50; stocks very small. Scarlet Long Ells, 12 lbs. quoted $7¾. Scarlet Bombazettes: 5 lbs. very dull at $3. Lastings: Neglected. Metals—Iron: Firmly held for full prices; Govan Flat Bar $2.70; other descriptions $2.55 to 2.60. Nailrods: Asked for at $2.60 to 2.65. Hoop is dull. Swedish Flat Bar: Limited inquiry at $.60; large arrivals expected. Yellow Metal and Copper Sheathing have been held for higher prices. PENANG.—The market was extremely inactive; transactions during the fortnight had been on a very limited scale, the demand having been small, but prices were, notwithstanding, firm, and had in some instances advanced.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Buying had steadily continued, and the previous range of values was maintained. The Walton and Lizzie Iredale were still on the berth for New York; and for the same destination the Bertha Marion was loading at Hiogo.

HANKOW.— About 1,500 chests settled at full prices, and 4,000 chests forwarded to Shanghai on native account.

KIUKIANG.—No business reported, but fair quantities of both Green and Black shipped to Shanghai.

SHANGHAI.—The following is Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s report:—Black: The business of the fortnight has been so limited and unchanged in character as to call for but few remarks thereon. Prices have ruled as last advised, ranging from Tls. 13 for very common Shuntams to Tls. 16 for common Oonams and Hohows, anything a little better than common to fair in Hohows, Ningchows, or Oopacks being worth Tls. 18 to 21. Stock is 14,000 chests, composed almost entirely of Tea under the grade of good common black leaf. All the late arrivals have been of the same class, and the season must be considered closed for good consumable grades. Export is 66 millions, against 56¼ at same time last year, or say 3¾ millions in excess of the entire quantity of Black Tea shipped hence to England last season. To America the excess is one million pounds. Green: We have to advise a more active demand compared with the business of the previous fortnight, settlements being 5,000 half-chests and 5,000 boxes in excess of the quantity then reported. American firms have continued to compete with each other for the most desirable parcels offered, keeping rates up to the high standard which has been current for some time past. Some buyers make prices considerably easier, but a comparison with former settlements shows a falling off in quality fully equal to the reduction in tael quotation. We quote Shanghai packed Tls. 28.5.0 to 35.0.0, medium to fine Fychows, Teenkais and Moyunes Tls. 33.0.0 to 41.0.0, fine to finest Tls. 42.0.0 to 51.0.0, prices which do not offer inducement to buyers for the English market. There is a marked absence of common country packed Teas, what few have come forward have been almost unsaleable; we do not therefore expect any large supply of them, nor do we anticipate that the supply for season will exceed the total of last year. Export to America is 1¾ million in excess of the quantity sent up to the same date last year, whilst to England the quantity is about equal to what had then been shipped. Stock is, say, 40,000 half-chests, against 69,000 in 1870.

FOOCHOW.—Arrivals of Congou continued on a small scale, and only a moderate business had been transacted during the week; Oolongs had been in demand. Congou: Settlements, 3,198 chests at Tls. 3¼ to 20¾. Prices on the whole showed little alteration. Arrivals 3,250 chests. Souchong: Settlements, 511 chests at Tls. 12 to 26¼. Arrivals, nil. Oolong; Settlements, 7,727 half-chests at Tls. 14 to 21½, being about previous rates. Arrivals, 3,100 half-chests. Scented Teas and Flowery Pekoe, nil.

AMOY.—A steady demand had existed for Oolongs, and the better grades on offer had been readily taken at generally firmer prices; the common kinds, however, were less firmly held. Settlements, 10,694 half-chests, at $16 to 19 for common, $20 to 22 for fair, $23 to 25 for good, $27 to 30 for superior, $33 to 36 for fine, and $38 to 49 for extra fine and choice. The Catherine Fullarton and Agnes had sailed for New York, and the Clementia was expected to load for the same port. The rate of freight was £3 5s. per ton of 40 feet.

CANTON.—Holders continued very firm in their demands, and for the Teas reported settled they had obtained fully previous rates; for Scented Orange Pekoes, notwithstanding undesirable quality, higher prices had been secured. Settlements were: Scented Orange Pekoe, 5,000 boxes; Scented Caper, 3,500 boxes; Gunpowder, 7,000 boxes; and Young Hyson, 400 boxes.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Throughout the fortnight there has been a fair inquiry for the better classes of Tsatlee and Chop Silks, the latter from their scarceness have been held very firmly, and as the demand increased, they advanced from Tls. 5 to 10 per picul on prices paid before the departure of the French mail. Medium four Tsatlees are still held for an advance of Tls. 5 on last mail's rates, and fine Szechuens have been eagerly sought after at a rise of Tls. 10 to 20. The following are a few of the purchases:—Koo Fong Sing Chop 3, 31s.; Chooping, 31s.; Cock and Worm, 30s. 9d.; Dragon, 30s. 7d.; Incense, 29s. 7d.; Eukefong, Blue Elephant, 27s. 6d.; Kin Hock Gold Crane, 27s. 6d.; Red Peacock, 27s.; Skeins, 20s. 2d.; Foo Kong Taysaam, 25s. 5d.; Re-reeled Hainin, 29s. 7d. to 31s. 8d.; do. Tsatlee, 29s. to 31s. 8d.; fine Szechuen, 18s. 7d. to 21s. 6d.; common Szechuen, 13s.

CANTON.—The season was approaching its end, and although there was very little inquiry dealers were still asking high rates. No purchases had been made for Europe, and the only business transacted had been the settlement of 167 bales of Re-reels for America.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack 4 per cent. overproof: Further advanced to f.110 to 115 per leaguer. Coffee Java: Small lots procurable at f.43 to 44 per picul. Padang: None in the market; for the Government auction to take place at the end of Dec. there was stored 31,000 piculs first and 1,554 piculs second quality. Cubebs: None offering. Gum Damar: Nominally, f.34½ per picul. Indigo: First quality scarce and wanted at f.4.80 to 4.85. India-rubber: Good quality still scarce, and asked for at f.120 to 130 per picul. Gutta-percha: Scarce, and wanted at f.55 to 170 per picul, according to quality. Nutmegs: In the shell they have sold at f.139, a very high price; shelled they were worth f.230 to 235. Mace: Advanced to f.3.25 per picul. Tin, Billiton: At the auction on 6th Dec. 7,809 piculs averaged f.90.44 per picul. Pepper, Black: Less demand at f.34 per picul. White: No supplies.

SINGAPORE.—Tin had been in less demand, and only a very limited quantity had been placed at $37 per picul; holders were willing to sell at $36¾, buyers offering less; 1,300 piculs in stock. Gambier, owing to a temporary scarcity and more favourable advices from England, had rapidly advanced, and was worth $3.50 per picul. Black Pepper: In more request, and contracts to a considerable extent made at $10.75; the new crop was coming to market. White: Scarce, and in good demand at $19 to 19½ per picul. Pearl Sago: About 4,000 piculs contracted for at $3.30 to 3.35 for small grain. Flour: In brisk demand, and Borneo sold at $2.90. Flake Tapioca: Sales at $4.12½ per picul. Pearl in request at $4.25. Coffee: About 6,000 piculs Bontyne at market, a considerable portion of which was of inferior quality; best quality last sold at $16.70, but buyers offering less. Cow Hides: Worth about $17¾ per picul, none in stock. Buffalo: In little demand, and best descriptions obtainable at $10½ to 10¾ per picul. India-rubber: Worth about $46½ per picul, none at market. Borneo sold to a large extent at $36⅛ to 37⅛ per picul. Gutta-percha: Best quality scarce, and worth $75 per picul. Gum Dammar: Worth about $13½; 30 piculs arrived.

PENANG.—There had been an active demand for most articles of produce, but owing to an absence of supply but little business had been transacted except in Tin, which had been largely dealt in. Prices for this staple at the beginning of the fortnight stood at $35.40, but rapidly advanced to $35.70; subsequently a slight decline occurred, and towards the close business was done at $35.60. Black Pepper had declined to $11.50 for West Coast, and $11.10 to 11.25 for East Coast; and White to $20.50.

LEGAL.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

J. L. FRASER v. THE TELEGRAPH CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE COMPANY.

This was an action for breach of contract and delay in the conveyance by the company in one of their steamers—the Hibernia—of a cargo of merchandise from Singapore. The plaintiff shipped 1,796 bags of pepper and other merchandise on board under a bill of lading which described the vessel as a "steamer." In point of fact, she was an "auxiliary screw steamer"—that is, using steam in aid of sails. For this voyage sails chiefly were used, only 500 tons of coal having been taken on board. The consequence of this was that the voyage lasted 135 days, instead of 65, the ordinary time for a steam voyage. The result of this was that, by reason of loss of markets and fall in prices, damages to the amount of £500 had been sustained. The action was tried before Mr. Justice Mellor at Guildhall on the 19th ult., and he left it to the jury in substance whether there had been any undue delay. The jury found for the defendants.

Sir J. Karslake, Q.C., now moved for a new trial, on the ground that, on the construction of the contract, implied in the bill of lading, which described the vessel as a "steamer," his client, the plaintiff, was entitled to conveyance in the ordinary time of a steam voyage, and that, therefore, the contract had not been carried out. The Court thought it all turned on the construction of the contract, and granted a rule.

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

LANE v. LAY.

This case was tried on the 15th ult., and reported in our issue of 22nd ult. The plaintiff was a civil engineer, and the defendant, Mr.

Horatio Nelson Lay, a commissioner of the Japanese Government, who had entered into contracts for the execution of certain lines of railway in Japan. In about the month of August, 1870, he entered into an agreement with the plaintiff, under which he was to be engaged for three years at a monthly payment of £125, subject to a series of conditions, some of which were that he was to report himself to Mr. Morell, the chief engineer at Yokohama, on his arrival there, and to act according to his orders and under his authority. The plaintiff's travelling expenses having been handed him by the defendant, he arrived at Yokohama on the 25th September. For some short time the plaintiff and chief engineer acted harmoniously together, the former proceeding to certain parts of the country from time to time, as instructed by Mr. Morell. After the works in operation had advanced a certain stage the plaintiff was informed that notice of dismissal had been sent to the defendant in England. Mr. Morell then submitted to the plaintiff certain articles of instruction for his signature. In consequence, however, of the latter refusing to sign them, and Mr. Morell declining his further assistance unless he assented to those articles of instruction, Mr. Lane returned to England, arriving here about the 3rd of December, 1870, accompanied by a Mr. Bryant, a gentleman engaged under similar circumstances, and who acted in a precisely similar manner. The plaintiff then took an action against Mr. Horatio Nelson Lay for a wrongful dismissal, which action was tried before the Lord Chief Baron, and resulted in a verdict in his favour for £2,509 damages, the real defendants being the Oriental Bank Corporation, Mr. Lay being no longer a commissioner of the Japanese Government.

RUSSIA AND THE KARIAN SEA.

A discussion on the seal fishery in the Karian Sea has taken place in the Society for the Promotion of Russian Industry and Commerce at St. Petersburg, in the course of which M. Sidoroff laid great stress on the necessity of "protecting the proprietary rights of Russia" in those waters. The English and Norwegians, he said, take advantage of the season, when the Russian ports are closed by the ice, to kill the seals in spawning time, so that when the Russians come three months later there are very few seals left. This practice has become so frequent of late that the seals will die out altogether unless police regulations are introduced for their protection. Professor Ivanoffsky expressed his concurrence in this opinion, and added that there could be no question as to the whole of the Karian Sea being Russian property. Russia, therefore, had a perfect right to forbid any foreign vessels to enter the sea. M. Lochwitzky said that the Karian Sea, being surrounded by land belonging to Russia on all sides except on the north-east, where it communicates with the Icy Sea, cannot be regarded as international property, and supported this view by numerous quotations from historical and judicial authorities.

A CHANNEL TUNNEL.

A company has been registered at the Joint-Stock Company's Registration Office, called "the Channel Tunnel Company (Limited)," for commencing the work of making a tunnel from near Dover to a point near Calais. The capital of the company is £30,000, which is being privately subscribed, with the immediate object of making a trial shaft, and driving a driftway on the English side about half a mile beyond low-water mark, with the view of proving the practicability of tunnelling under the Channel. The completion of this work will furnish data for calculating the cost of continuing the driftway from each shore to a junction in mid-Channel, and capital will then be subscribed for that purpose or for enlarging it to the size of an ordinary railway tunnel, as the engineers may deem most expedient. The committee of management are Lord Richard Grosvenor, chairman, Captain Beaumont, M.P., Sir E. Buckley, M.P., Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P., Admiral George Elliot, Messrs. Blount (Paris), Buddicom, Hawes, Michel Chevalier, and Paulin Talabot. The engineers are Messrs. John Hawkshaw, Thomè de Gamond, James Brunlees, and William Low. The tunnel will be made through the lower or grey chalk, chiefly if not entirely; and by the adoption of machinery of which the promoters of this company have recently made practical trials, it is expected the passage can be opened from shore to shore within three years from the time of commencing the work, and at a cost very considerably less than any previous estimates.

THE EUROPEAN ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

The further investigation of the affairs of the European Assurance Society which has taken place since they were first forced upon public attention last November, is yielding results of a kind which must increase sympathy for the victims of misplaced confidence in that institution. The case is much worse than had been supposed. The assets are now estimated by the provisional official liquidators at £276,059 6s. 6d., and the liabilities at £1,473,091 9s., leaving a deficiency of £1,197,032 2s. 6d. Those officers very properly describe this disastrous state of the society's affairs as unparalleled. Policy-holders and annuitants appear to have very little alleviation of their loss to expect from the shareholders. It is estimated that the amount to be obtained from that source does not exceed £150,000. The recklessness with which the business of the European must have been carried on for years almost surpasses belief. Under the suspicious heading of "Suspense Account," there figure sums represented by an aggregate of £327,233, which has been almost wholly lost in carrying out the repeated amalgamations of other societies with the European. It was by an arrangement of this kind, for concealing loss, that the directors were enabled to declare a "bonus" as lately as 1867. The management expenses were extravagant, and there is a loss of £165,000 set down, made up of miscellaneous items. The society, it seems, did a certain amount of what is called "industrial" business, and in a majority of cases of this character there was no record of the policies whatever in the books of the office.

It appears that the original arrangement for transferring the business of the European to a New York Company, spoken of last November, could not be carried into effect, and a variety of propositions and counter-propositions have since been made. The mortality was found to be higher than had been assumed—a fact which may be accounted for by the withdrawal of the best lives within the last two or three years, and the eagerness of the management to issue new policies for the sake of income. The last offer received from an American office was one for taking the lives of insurers in the European upon examination, the acceptance of which was out of the question. The directors opposed the issue of an order for winding up the company, and if those gentlemen had any scheme to submit which offered a reasonable prospect of relief, the policy-holders would only be too glad to hear of it. This, however, does not seem to be the case, and Vice-Chancellor Malins has ordered the compulsory winding-up of the company. It is a sad case for the thirteen hundred shareholders, and worse for the twenty-three thousand policy-holders of the company; and, with nothing better than a liquidation in prospect, it will be a long while before we hear the last of their misfortunes.

THE MAIL ROUTE TO BRINDISI.

A China merchant writes to The Times reiterating the complaint which has been made lately, from various quarters, that there is, properly speaking, no through service of trains between London and Brindisi. Passengers have to avail themselves of the following services, viz.: 1. London to Paris; 2. Paris to Turin; 3. Turin to Bologna; 4. Bologna to Brindisi, which are independent from and unconnected with each other. They are, therefore, exposed on reaching Paris, Turin, and Bologna, to find that recent alterations have been made in one of the services, and that the train by which they should have travelled in order to catch the steamer from Brindisi has already left. This has happened lately to several passengers. Will you, continues the correspondent, urge the various companies connecting England and Italy by the Brenner and Mont Cenis routes to give notice of any alterations in the service before they are put into operation.

THE "MEGÆRA" COMMISSION.

The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the loss of Her Majesty's troopship Megæra has been sitting during the week for the reception of evidence. On the 12th inst. Admiral the Hon. Charles Eliot, commander-in-chief of the Sheerness Station, was examined, and stated that, before the Megæra sailed on her last voyage, he satisfied himself that the cargo she took was a proper cargo. He knew that from the beginning she was supposed to be a very uncomfortable ship, but he believed her to be a good sea boat, and he had no reason to suppose she was unseaworthy. He had nothing to do with the selection of the vessel to go to Australia.

On the 13th Mr. Reed, formerly Chief Constructor to the Navy, gave evidence. He said that the Megæra was a bad type of vessel from the beginning, and that a great deal of money had been spent upon her. The reduction in the estimate of repairs arose simply from the fact that the Megæra was considered a vessel which should not be sent on a long foreign voyage. Lord Lawrence questioned the witness as to the absence of periodical examinations of ships, and said it appeared that the Megæra had not been thoroughly examined for seven years. "It is very strange to me (added his lordship) that nobody connected with the Admiralty or any of the dockyards ever thought that it would be well to subject the vessel to a thorough overhaul." Mr. Reed, in reply, appealed to his long experience, and said that the conclusion he had arrived at was that the people about dockyards were too prone to make thorough overhauls and incur expense. On the 15th Mr. E. J. Reed was again before the Commission, and his evidence occupied the whole of the sitting. He said he did not know that he was in possession of such decided information concerning the ship until Mr. Goschen mentioned it in Parliament. He would have communicated it to his professional successors had not a bar been placed between them and him. At the same time he had done all in his power to call the attention of the Government to the state of the vessel. His impression was that she was lost through neglecting a local defect. The general tenour of Mr. Reed's testimony was that the Megæra should not have been sent to sea without a thorough survey and repair, and that the responsibilities of the Admiralty were so divided and subdivided amongst the departments that there was the greatest difficulty in fixing blame when anything went wrong.

THE Troy (New York) Times announces the death of Mr. Hasegawa, one of the Japanese sent to the United States to be liberally educated for the future advantage of the Empire. He had been in the country only one year; but at the Troy Academy he had already acquired such a familiarity with the English language as to enable him to converse and read fluently. It was his purpose to study law as soon as practicable. He is described as a gentlemanly and noble-hearted young man, who made friends wherever he was known. He died from consumption.

THE Syndicate of the Presse Scientifique, an association which was started in Paris in March, 1870, has issued an interesting report of its proceedings and progress in pamphlet form. The names of the presidents of the different departments—Medicine, Agriculture, History, Science, and Philosophy—are a sufficient guarantee of the benefit that may be expected to result from the labours of the Society, which, we see, will in future hold its meetings weekly.

AT a meeting of the Church of England Young Men's Society, to be held at Blackheath on the 25th inst., a lecture, entitled "China and the Chinese," will be given by Mr. Herbert Lawrence; illustrated by dissolving views, by Mr. A. P. May. Mr. W. H. Fittock, H.B.M. Consul at Ningpo, will preside.

AT the annual general court of the Governors of the Royal Humane Society, held last week, a silver medallion was presented to Sub-Lieut. S. H. Browne, of H.M.S. Ocean, for saving Lieut. L. Edye, R.M.L.I., who fell overboard in Victoria Harbour, Hong Kong, on the night of the 31st of March last year.

JOINT-STOCK BANKS.

The principal Banks have made their announcements; they compare favourably with last year:—

	This half-year per ct. per an.	Same period, 1870, per ct. per an.
Alliance	£5 0 0	£3 0 0
City	9 0 0	7 0 0
Consolidated	7 10 0	7 0 0
Imperial	6 0 0	6 0 0
London and Westminster ...	18 0 0	18 0 0
London Joint-Stock	25 16 8	18 6 8
Union of London	20 0 0	15 0 0

The increase this half-year over the corresponding period last year is, in many cases, considerable. The most important rise is in London Joint-Stock, which now divides at the rate of £25 16s. 8d. as compared with £18 6s. 8d. in the corresponding period last year. The Union of London divides 5 per cent. per annum more; the Alliance, the City, and the Midland 2 more; the Central of London and Metropolitan 1 more; and the Consolidated ½ more. The Imperial and the London and Westminster divide the same as before. In no case is there a falling off. It is to be expected that all these advanced dividends will be maintained through periods of less animation than the present, for it especially behoves banks to be uniform in such matters, and it is customary for banks not to declare dividends which there is not every reasonable prospect of maintaining. The improvement in the London Joint-Stock Bank dividend is owing to its connection with the German Government, and the prestige derived therefrom. The Consolidated Bank is recovering from the sharp loss which was suffered at the dividend time recently. The Midland Bank increase reflects the prosperity of the midland counties. The London and Westminster is still kept back by the large addition to its capital made a year or two since.

THE TRADE OF 1871.

(THE TIMES.)

It is really a wondrous tale that is told of our foreign trade in the year 1871 by the Board of Trade. The imports of merchandise into this country in the year have been of the unprecedented value of £326,834,647, leaving an amount that is really immense even when we have allowed a sixth or a fifth for re-exports of articles not consumed here; and the exports of the produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom in the year reached the (also unprecedented) value of £219,319,071. The imports of raw cotton amounted to no less than 15,843,890 cwts.—a quantity which may be described as never before approached; but the computed value, viz., £55,767,545, or more than a million a week — has been not only approached but exceeded in the years of dear cotton, when American cotton averaged from £10 to £13 or more per cwt. In 1871 more than nine million cwts. of our supply came from the United States, nearly four millions from India, and 1¼ million from Egypt. Our supply of foreign (sheep and lambs') wool in 1871 may also be spoken of as never approached in any former year. It amounted to 319,511,336lb., of the computed value of £17,436,806, a sum slightly exceeded in 1866, though the quantity in that year was under 240 million lbs. In 1871 our import of wool included 183 million lbs. from Australia and 32 millions from South Africa. Our import of raw silk in 1871 attained the large amount of 8,251,486 lbs., of the value of £8,915,056. Of flax (dressed and undressed) and tow we imported the large quantity o 2,597,915 cwts., of the value of £5,791,188; and of hemp (dressed and undressed) and tow as much as 1,320,747 cwts., of the value of £2,376,392; also jute of the value of four millions sterling. The import of hides, not tanned, comprised 1,278,354 cwts., of the value of £3,834,917, one-third of the sum being the price of the supply from India. The importation of wood and timber exceeded 12 millions sterling in value, British North America taking above one-fourth of that amount for the supply sent to us thence. The rice imported represents £2 320,000; currants and raisins more than two millions sterling; sugar and molasses, 18½ millions; tobacco, £3,709,000; oranges and lemons, a million; hops, £900,000. Then come spirits, £2,896,000, to add to the home-made article; wine to an unprecedented value, exceeding seven millions sterling; tea more than 11½ millions; and coffee nearly 5½ millions.

If now we turn to the exports from the United Kingdom in 1871, of British and Irish produce and manufactures, and begin with the textile manufactures which we send into every part of the world, we find that the year saw an export of cotton manufactures of the value of £57,635,570. The enormous length of 3,410,901,522 yards of cotton piece goods, more than 9 million yards a-day, was sent forth from our shores, India and China being our chief customers. Further to fulfil our work of clothing mankind, we exported woollen and worsted manufactures of the unprecedented value of £27,184,704, the quantity of one sort or another averaging more than a million yards a-day. For this class of goods the United States stands at the head of our list of customers. Of linen manufactures the year's export exceeded the value of 7½ millions sterling, and of silk manufactures 2 millions. The export of yarns was also very large, reaching the value of 15 millions sterling in the article of cotton, 6 millions of woollen, 2¼ millions linen and jute, and 1¼ million silk. The jute manufactures exported exceeded a million sterling in value. The export of clothes shows a value of nearly six millions sterling in haberdashery and millinery, and of £2,700,000 in apparel and slops; Australia, British North America, and the United States are the chief customers for these goods. Leather manufactures exported amounted in value to nearly two millions, three-fourths being for boots and shoes; and saddlery and harness add their half-million to the account. The great item of iron in the exports is greater than ever. Putting together all our exports of iron and steel in 1871, from pig upwards, all of it the produce of this country and work of our hands, we exported 3,171,581 tons, of the value of £26,149,136, or not very far from an eighth of the value of the entire exports of our produce and manufactures. This item has doubled itself in the last seven years. The United States continue to be very large customers for our iron manufactures. In 1871 there was exported thither from this country railroad iron of the value of nearly four millions sterling, and tin plates of the value of more than two millions. Germany, Russia, and Holland make a fair show among our customers for iron, and British North America took above half a million's worth of railroad iron, and other iron goods to the value of above £800,000. The export of telegraphic wire exceeded the value of a million and a half. Copper, wrought and unwrought, makes an item of nearly three millions' worth; lead, putting together pig, sheet, tubing, &c., £860,000; tin, unwrought, £762,000. Machinery and mill work exported show an increased value; steam-engines exceeding £2,000,000, and other descriptions £3,886,000. Above £1,100,000 of the amount is made up of export of machinery to Russia. The exports of hardware and cutlery unenumerated advanced to a value of more than four millions, the United States being at the head of the customers.

THE DUTCH TEA TRADE OF 1871.

Messrs. Mackay, Boomkamp, and Co., of Amsterdam, have issued the following report upon the Dutch tea trade of last year:—In reviewing the past year we may state that although the total quantity of China and Java teas direct imported in Holland has been less than in 1870, the trade has been regular the whole year round, with little fluctuation. Owing to the long and severe winter 1870-1 the periodical public sales of Java teas in March could not take place, and were postponed until further notice; this news and the small stocks caused an advance in prices both for China and Java teas; the former being quoted 95c. per ½ kilo., equal to 1s. 5d. per English lb., for ordinary China Congou, and the latter about 90c. per ½ kilo., equal to 1s. 4d. per English lb. As soon as the auctions were actually advertised, prices receded about 5c. per ½ kilo., or 1d. per English lb. following the London market, and have remained stationary ever since. The direct imports from China to Holland have consisted of about 20,000 packages, which have been sold in public sales, viz, 12th April, 8,393 packages, ex Margaret Falconer; 21st June and 5th October, 9,710 packages ex Windermere; 7th December, 3,706 packages ex Hong Kong, via London. Of Java teas we have to mention the total import of 37,000 packages, which were sold in public sales, viz., 12th April, 2,634 packages; 4th and 5th May, 16,890 packages; 21st June, 460 packages; 5th October, 1,678 packages; 12th and 13th October, 16,923 packages. The prices realised in public sales for the China teas have been higher than prices in London at the corresponding periods. The direct importations have not been sufficient for the consumptive demand, and shipments to a large extent have been required from London to answer the same. Exact returns of the indirect imports we are not enabled to give.

The following statistics show the quantities of China and Java teas imported to Holland during the last ten years:—

	China. Chests.	Java. Chests.
1864	18,052	27,321

These figures represent the quantities imported, all reduced to large chests. The number of packages imported has of course been more on account of the smaller chests and boxes. The deliveries of teas during the past year have been about 24,000 chests China, and about 37,000 chests Java. The year has closed firm, with a tendency for improving rates; there is decidedly a healthy tone in the market, and shipments from China would find here a ready sale, especially if in the selection of teas some care were taken. A good black common Congou will sell here to advantage, both for local consumption and for reshipment to Germany; it is, however, essential that the teas do not contain too much broken and dust, as such tends to prejudice the value. The charges in Holland for landing and working the teas are moderate.

THE NEW BILL OF LADING.

We are glad to learn that the vexed question of the revision of the clauses recently introduced into bills of lading for steamers via the Suez Canal has been set at rest, at least for the present. It appears to us that the shipowners have not yet conceded all the demands which the merchants are entitled to; but it is satisfactory to observe that the monstrous clause empowering a vessel to "call at any port or ports in or out of the customary route," in "any order," and for "any purpose," has been replaced by a new form, which restricts it to the taking in of coal or other necessary supplies. The following is the full text of the No. 1 Form:—

EASTERN TRADE BILL OF LADING OUTWARDS, NO. 1.—VIA SUEZ CANAL.

Shipped in good order and condition, by , on board the steamship , whereof is master for this present voyage , lying in the port of London, and bound for , via the Suez Canal, with liberty to discharge and receive goods and passengers at ,

and to take in coal or other necessary supplies at any intermediate port or ports, to sail with or without pilots, and to tow and assist vessels in all situations of distress , being marked and numbered as per margin, and to be delivered, subject to the exceptions and conditions hereinafter mentioned, in the like good order and condition from the ship's tackles (where the ship's responsibility shall cease), at the aforesaid port of , or so near thereto as she may safely get, unto or to his or their assigns. Freight for the said goods and primage (if any) to be paid by the shippers in London on delivery of the bills of lading, in cash without deduction, ship lost or not lost. Average as accustomed.

The following are the exceptions and conditions above referred to:—Weight, measure, quality, contents, and value unknown. The act of God; the Queen's enemies; pirates; robbers by land or sea; restraint of princes, rulers of people; loss or damage from machinery, boilers or steam, or from explosion, heat, or fire on board, in hulk or craft, or on shore; jettison; barratry; any act, neglect, or default whatsoever, of pilots, master, or crew in the management or navigation of the ship; and all and every the dangers and accidents of the seas, rivers, and canal, and of navigation of whatever nature or kind are excepted.

The ship is not liable for insufficient packing, or reasonable wear and tear of packages; for inaccuracies, obliteration, or absence of marks, numbers, address, or description of goods shipped; leakage; breakage; loss or damage by dust from coaling on the voyage; sweat; rust; decay. Fines and expenses, and losses by detention of ship or cargo, caused by incorrect marking, or by incomplete or incorrect description of contents or weight, or of any other particulars required by the authorities at the port of discharge, upon either the packages or bills of lading, shall be borne by the owners of the goods.

The steamer, while detained at any port for the purpose of coaling, is at liberty to discharge and receive goods and passengers.

The owners of this steamer will not be accountable for gold, silver, bullion, specie, jewelry, precious stones, or precious metals, or beyond the amount of £100 for any one package, unless the bills of lading are signed for such goods, and the value declared therein.

If medicinal fluids, or any other goods of an inflammable, damaging, or dangerous nature are shipped without being previously declared and arranged for, they are liable, upon discovery, to be thrown overboard, and the loss will fall upon the shippers or owners of such fluids or goods.

The goods are to be discharged from the ship as soon as public intimation is given that she is ready to unload, and if not thereupon removed without delay by the Consignee, the master or agent is to be at liberty to land the same, or, if necessary, to discharge into hulk, lazaretto, or hired lighters, at the risk and expense of the owners of the goods.

In case of quarantine, the goods may be discharged into quarantinet depot, hulk, or other vessel, as required for the ship's despatch. Quarantine expenses upon the goods, of whatever nature or kind, shall be borne by the owners of the goods.

In case of the blockade or interdict of the port of discharge, or if the entering of or discharging in the port shall be considered by the master unsafe by reason of war or disturbances, the master may land the goods at the nearest safe and convenient port, at the expense and risk of the owners of the goods; and the ship's responsibility shall cease when the goods are so discharged into proper and safe keeping, the master giving immediate notice of the same to the consignees of the goods, so far as they can be ascertained.

The master or agent shall have a lien on the goods for payments made or liabilities incurred in respect of any charges stipulated herein to be borne by the owners of the goods.

In case any part of the within goods cannot be found during the ship's stay at the port of destination, they are when found to be sent back by first steamer, at the ship's risk and expense, and subject to any proved claim for loss of market.

The ship shall not be liable for incorrect delivery unless each packet shall have been distinctly marked by the shippers before shipment with the name of the port or destination.

In witness whereof the master or agent of the said ship has signed bills of lading, exclusive of the master's copy, all of this tenor and date, one of which being accomplished, the others to stand void.

Dated at London 187

Form No. 2 differs from No. 1 merely by having an additional clause in the exemptions, suitable for goods deliverable at ports with open roadsteads, such as Colombo, Madras, and other ports on the Malabar or Coromandel Coasts; while No. 3 provides for transhipment of goods at ship's expense, but merchant's risk to such ports as Rangoon, Batavia, Yokohama, &c. This form or forms relate, as we have said, to the outward bill of lading. The inward bill of lading has, we believe not yet, been fully agreed upon, but, with the good understanding that has already been arrived at, there is little doubt that a uniform bill of lading, both ways, will shortly be agreed upon. Under the new bill ships will be at liberty to discharge and receive passengers at a port or ports to be named, and to take in coal or other necessary supplies at any intermediate port or ports, and, when there, also to receive or discharge passengers; to sail with or without pilots, and to tow and assist vessels in all situations of distress; goods must be discharged from the ship as soon as "public intimation is given that she is ready to unload;" and, if the consignee does not take immediate delivery, the master or agent may land the goods, or, if necessary, discharge them into hulk, lazaretto, or hired lighters, at the risk and expense of the owners of the goods; and, perhaps most important provision of all, the master or agent is to have a lien on the goods "for payments made or liabilities incurred in respect of any charges stipulated herein to be borne by the owners of the goods;" and lastly, the ship shall not be held liable for incorrect delivery, unless each packet shall be distinctly marked by the shipper, before shipment, with the name of the port of destination. It will thus be seen that, although the recent difficulty has been happily surmounted, and the mercantile world has gained the advantage of an uniform bill—at least one way—the terms still insisted upon by, and granted to, the shipowners, cannot but be regarded as decidedly favourable, and susceptible of liberal modification when their operation comes to be better understood by both parties.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 17.

The members of the First Chamber are busy debating the Bill by which the Government proposes to ratify the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa to England. The discussions have already lasted two days, but the opinion is that they will be brought to an end to-day. There is a good deal of opposition, for which the principal motives are that the transfer is antagonistic to our national honour, and that the inhabitants of these settlements are undesirous of being brought under the authority of England. And, indeed, a special ambassador of the King of Elmina, Mr. D. M. Graves, arrived some time ago at the Hague, the bearer of an address which states that the Elminese wish to continue under the authority of Holland. Nevertheless, I think that the Bill will pass. It is pretty certain that many lords will vote for the Bill, because the rejection would endanger our friendly relations with Great Britain, and another motive is the existing connection between this treaty and that referring to Sumatra.

We are still without a Minister of War, the report that Mr. Stieltjes would be appointed to the post not having been confirmed. Mr. Engelvaart has been appointed a member of the grand staff of the army—a costly institution, which benefits the country but very little. I am also glad to state that Mr. Thorbecke has wholly recovered, and is able to attend the Ministerial Councils. He has celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday.

The opposition in the cotton districts against the revision of the India tariff as proposed by Mr. van Bosse increases more and more. The Ryssen Chamber of Trade has forwarded an address to the Second Chamber urging that the liberal measure of the Minister should be outvoted.

I hear that the wrecked hull of the unfortunate steamer Willem III. has been sold in England for £20,500. This sum is not so large as was expected, the general opinion being that about £25,000 would be realised.

Mr. L. T. Kleintjes has retired from his post as Chancellor of the Dutch Ambassade in Japan.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 18.

The First Chamber of the States General has passed, by 29 against 6 votes, the ratification of the treaty transferring our settlements on the West Coast of Africa to England.

The Chamber has also passed the Bill for redeeming ten millions of the National Debt, and has unanimously adopted the treaties with England concerning the immigration of free Anglo-Indian labourers in Surinam.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The general features of our Produce Market remain unaltered. Transactions are still limited, but this, in consideration of the season of the year, cannot be surprising. A healthy tone, however, continues to prevail for most of our leading articles, and particularly so for Sugar, which meets ready buyers at full prices. In other articles there is upon the whole but little stirring, except in Tobacco and Cotton, in which a fair business has been doing, and prices of the latter article have further advanced. Tin, on the other hand, has materially declined.

COFFEE remains firm at the quotation of 43c. for good ordinary Company's Java, but on account of the season the demand is anything but active. Sales have been closed of several parcels ex Voorlichter, 1,500 bales Padang, ex Questembert, and 320 bales Macassar, ex Vier Gebroeders.

SUGAR has been in better request since my last report. About 8,000 baskets Java afloat were bought by our home refiners at the parity of the late November sale, at which it is difficult now to buy further parcels.

TEA continues to be well maintained, but transactions are on a limited scale.

TOBACCO (Java).—A fair amount of business has been doing; 1,398 bales, ex County of Berwick; 2,106 bales, afloat by sundry vessels; 360 bales H.L.; 557 bales ditto, floating, per Loch Awe; 100 bales E.M.T., and 130 bales E.M.K. have found buyers.

SPICES.—Transactions have been almost nil. Only 18 casks Nutmegs and 4 chests Mace, ex County of Bute, changed hands.

TIN.—A dull tone prevails. Sales of Banca have been closed at f.85¼ to f.85.

HIDES.—Ready buyers continue to offer for good suitable parcels at well supported prices. Several lots, ex Yokohama, changed hands.

INDIGO.—A good demand continues to prevail for good quality.

COTTON has been in brisk demand, and sales have been closed at advanced rates, both on the spot and afloat.

ARRACK.—The remaining 120 casks of the shipment of 220 casks Sourabaya, ex Yokohama, have been disposed of on secret terms.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Jan. 11, at Texel, from Batavia, Maria Catherina; at Zierikze, from Batavia, Batavia; 14, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Otto; from Padang, Questembert; 16, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Maasnymph.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Otto, Messrs. C. J. van Temmen, and C. van Manuckus.

LONDON: MONDAY, JAN. 22, 1872.

MR. RYRIE AND THE HONG KONG COUNCIL.

HAVING felt bound, on more than one occasion recently, to draw attention to the great waste of the public time in the Hong Kong Legislative Council—to say nothing of the damage to English prestige, occasioned by the petty altercations of some of its members in presence of a party of the shrewdest and severest critics in the world—we feel particular pleasure in paying our tribute of respect to the Hon. P. RYRIE'S "declaration of independence," as set forth in the publication of that gentleman's protest against the recent breach of privilege by the Colonial Secretary. The question raised by Mr. RYRIE is of no common importance; it is one in which he is likely to receive but little—and that dubious—assistance from the officials who surround and oppose him; and the greater credit is therefore due to Mr. RYRIE for the public spirit which impelled him to resist the unprecedented, overbearing, and totally unofficial treatment which he received from the Colonial Secretary—Mr. J. GARDINER AUSTIN. It is enough to make any one conversant with the etiquette of English Public Offices shudder to see such a production as the letter we are about to copy, which is marked No. 461; a fact that suggests the appalling idea that 460 similarly conceived letters must already have been issued from the same office. It is from no wanton cruelty—only from a sense of the necessity for literal accuracy in such affairs—that we give this unfortunate document in full :—

Colonial Secretary's Office, Hong Kong,
No. 461. Sept. 25, 1871.

Sir,—With reference to the charge which you preferred against the Registrar-General's Department at the last meeting of the Legislative Council, of having sent a copy of a confidential document to Chinese officials at Canton, I am directed by his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor to acquaint you that at the next meeting of Council you will be expected to substantiate your charge.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

(Signed) J. GARDINER AUSTIN, Colonial Secretary.

The Hon. P. Ryrie, &c., &c., &c.

Now who, we would ask—reading this composition without any previous knowledge of the facts—could possibly imagine that Mr. RYRIE had practically made no charge whatever on the occasion referred to? All that Mr. RYRIE had done was to ask a question, in his place in Council, in such terms as to afford the Colonial Secretary an opportunity of denying certain imputations which were only too current, and explaining away reports concerning the Registrar-General's department, which could not fail to be highly prejudicial to it—so long as they were permitted to remain uncontradicted.

Mr. RYRIE was perfectly right in not replying to a letter which ought never to have been addressed to him, and which he rightly considered as a violation of the privileges of members of the Legislative Council and everything spoken by them in the place to which they have been elected. It was competent for the Colonial Secretary to have given a disclaimer to the rumours alluded to by Mr. RYRIE; or, if he were not prepared to go so far, as seems likely, he might have moved the adjournment of the question until he had acquired the necessary information. Instead of taking either of these courses Mr. GARDINER AUSTIN wrote a letter, not requesting information, but demanding, in a most overbearing manner, that Mr. RYRIE should substantiate what the Colonial Secretary called a "charge," when it really amounted to nothing of the kind, and was merely the "parliamentary" offer of an opportunity to deny it—as, no doubt, it would have been denied—if it could. We regret very much to see the name of the Lieutenant-Governor mixed up with such a production as the Colonial Secretary's letter given above. The document is one which savours of rampant Orientalism rather than the insular freedom of debate which we pride ourselves on having introduced in the Far East. Mr. RYRIE'S spirited protest has, of course, put down the cabal opposed to him, and we do not think it very likely that such an experiment will soon be tried again on an independent member, to whom, for his action in this case, the community are especially indebted.

WE understand that Mr. HOLT, managing proprietor of the well-known line of steamers which bears his name, has determined to commence the navigation of the Yangtsze next season, and that three paddle-wheel vessels of 3,000 tons each have been ordered on the Clyde for that purpose. We likewise hear that Mr. HOLT and his friends have in contemplation the formation of a line between a port in the Pacific, Japan, and China; but nothing definite has yet been settled on. Negotiations have also, we hear, been going on for the formation of a joint-stock company to take over Mr. HOLT'S line, and a few China merchants have been asked to join the board of directors. Mr. HOLT has no doubt calculated on the opposition of the "Shanghai Steam Navigation Company," now running on the Yangtsze under the American flag, but largely owned by all classes of the Shanghai community, including Chinese. The "Union Company," which runs two steamers under the English flag, and which has always been on sufferance, would, we expect, have to retire from the contest. We may here mention that it is rumoured that the Chinese Government intend to permit of the navigation of the Yangtsze as far as Ichang in anticipation of the revision of the Treaty, and we also hear that orders will shortly be given for the construction of a telegraph line from Shanghai to Soochow. China is waking up at last, and shaking off that mystical "Foong Shuey."

THE French postal authorities in Paris have issued a notice that mails for India, China, and Japan will be despatched from Marseilles every alternate Sunday by the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes; and every alternate Thursday by French packet to Alexandria, to be conveyed thence by the steamers of the P. and O. Company. The postage on letters will be one franc not exceeding ten grammes, or one-third of an ounce, and on newspapers, forty grammes (two and a-half ounces), fifteen centimes. By Brindisi the rates are one franc thirty centimes on letters, and twenty-five centimes on papers.

AS we anticipated, the trial of ABDOOLA MOUSSA and NOOR MAHOMED CAMISSA for fraud and conspiracy terminated in a verdict of guilty, and the committal of those gentlemen to gaol, from which we shall consider it a great failure of justice if they are released for a long time. Some points of law were reserved by Chief Justice SMALE, who, with Eldonian incertitude, while refusing bail for the prisoners, pledged himself to the care of them while in prison, being such as befitted persons who were only "detained." When the case is entirely concluded—probably next week—we shall take the opportunity of reviewing it.

THE Chairman of the Straits Association has addressed a letter to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, requesting to be furnished with a copy of the treaty lately concluded with the Dutch Government as to the trade of Sumatra. It has also been represented to his Lordship that in the opinion of the Association it is not necessary to have any Government steamers in the Straits.

IT is reported that the French Government have been applied to by the Government of Japan to send over military instructors comprising all branches of the service, and that ten commissioned and sixteen non-commissioned officers will shortly proceed to Yokohama, under the charge of Captain BRUNET, of the Artillery, an officer who has already seen service in Japan.

THE Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company have now on the stocks at Glasgow another screw steamer of about 1,000 tons for their Java line. She is expected to be ready for launching in June next. Telegrams from Melbourne are looked for announcing the decision of the Government as to the establishment of a mail service between Australia and Java on a subsidy.

MR. SNOWDEN, the newly-appointed Senior Magistrate for the Straits Settlements, left Liverpool, on the 11th inst., by the steamer Ajax, one of Holt's Line. Governor ORD, with Lady ORD, have taken passage for the mail of Feb. 12. The rumour that Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY, Governor of the British Possessions on the Coast of Africa, is to succeed Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL is incorrect.

THE following telegram through Reuter's Agency has been published :—

New York, Jan. 15.

Advices from San Francisco announce that the Japanese Embassy has arrived there. Three Japanese war ships will sail for Europe to meet the Embassy. Five Japanese Princesses have arrived in America, with a view to their being educated. Eighty women have perished in a fire in Japan.

SILK—THE NEW FRENCH TARIFF.

M. Thiers, in his speech in favour of an import duty on textile substances referred to the probable effect of the measure on the silk trade in these terms :—

"With respect to silk we have also been told, and this time with more probability, that we were exposing ourselves to great disappointment, and that we were ill-advised in proposing a tax which would procure nothing to the Treasury, as we should have to return by the drawback all that the tax had produced. It is not without much reflection and many calculations that we have proposed this tax, and we are convinced that (with more possible variations I admit, for I have no wish to conceal the truth) we shall also obtain a considerable sum under this head on the same conditions as already enumerated, that is to say, by an indemnification of the manufactured article, a wide distribution of the tax, and the protection of a national production, that of home-grown silk.

It is true that if the question is only superficially examined it will indeed appear that as much silk leaves the country as enters it, and that consequently the drawback would absorb all the produce of the tax. On looking, however, more closely into the subject such will not be found to be the case. Foreign silk of a value of 258 millions of francs is imported, representing about five millions of kilogrammes (5,000 tons). This difference in the value of the article and the weight is explained by its quality, which is very superior. A part of that silk is imported into France in the form of cocoons ; by transforming it into raw silk the quantity is reduced to 4,500,000 kilos. Lastly, from the total quantity we have also deducted the weight of the packages, which is of little importance in other articles, but is an important consideration in one of such value as silk. Thus 4,500,000 kilos. are imported into France ; now how much is exported, packages, of course, deducted ? 4,500,000 kilos. also.

If we looked at those figures only it would really appear that we were ill-advised in proposing to tax an article, the imports of which were balanced by the exports. But one point has been overlooked. We have been told that the colouring matter added enormously to the weight. But if this was well known, why has any astonishment been expressed at the demand we make and at the calculations we have presented. Yes ! the packages deducted, we do export 4,500,000 kilos., but what our opponents have forgotten to say is that the colouring matter adds 100 or 200, and sometimes 300 per cent. to the weight of the article. I have shown that the imports amount to 4,500,000 kilos., but the exports, taking a very moderate estimate of the dye, which is very easily calculated by the Customs, in reality only amount to 3,000,000 kilos. Thus 1,500,000 kilos. of silk remain in the country. Now if the duty is twelve francs per kilo., that is from 15 to 16 per cent., the entire quantity imported will produce 54 millions of francs, and if we reimburse the duty on three millions of kilos. there will still remain a sum of 27 millions.* I admit that difficulties and contestations may arise at the Customs, but they will be overcome, as they have already been. This explains the repugnance felt towards the tax by some persons. I acknowledge that errors may be committed in calculating the drawback, but really, if a branch of manufacture which represents at least 800 millions of francs—

A DEPUTY : Nine hundred millions.

M. THIERS : If such a branch of manufacture cannot support a tax of 27 millions then nothing is possible. We propose to you taxes which have their inconveniences I admit, but which have already been tried.

A DEPUTY : Not silk !

M. THIERS : Yes ; it has already had to bear a small tax. We propose, I repeat, taxes which have already been tried, and attempts are made to reject them for others which are absolutely chimerical. I say that a tax which offers the probability, and almost the certainty of a produce of twenty-seven millions deserves a better reception. Now, as to the distribution of the tax we have inquired what such a charge might represent in the consumption of silk wares. I have put the question to respectable silk mercers, what would be the amount of such a tax on a dress of twenty metres of stuff ? The material for such a dress would cost f.150 and the making f.150 more. Do you know how much the duty would be ? Twelve francs only on a dress of f.300. Does that alarm you ? I ask. (No ! No !) A dress which with the making would cost f.500 would pay in duty about f.14, and one of f.600, f.18. Is that too much ? I ask. (Several Voices : No ! it is not enough.) Besides, will not the small native silk-grower, who has suffered so much from the disease in silk-worms' eggs, have reason to be satisfied ? Is it an insignificant result to aid him by a tax on foreign silks, when that same tax is a valuable resource, and when the export trade is freed from it by a drawback ? Is such a relief to the native silk-grower so insignificant a result when the tax is so light and so easy to support ? I say, No ; it is not possible that the departments of the South would prefer to such a tax an increased duty on wines. (Hear, hear.)

The new tariffs on silks, as proposed by the Government, are as under, per 100 kilos. (2 cwts.) :—Fresh cocoons, f.150 ; do., dry, f.350 ; raw silk from India, China, or Japan, f.925 ; from other countries, f.1,200 ; double cocoons (doupions), f.300 ; thrown silk, from India, China, or Japan, f 1,100 ; from other countries, f.1,300 ; floss, f.225 ; husks, f.56.

Cotton from India or China, f.35 ; from other countries, f.40.

* This is an error. If 4,500,000 kilos. produce 54 millions of francs, and the duty on three million kilos. is reimbursed, the net return to the Treasury will be only 18 millions.

QUARTERLY REPORTS ON THE CHINA TRADE.

The Customs Gazette for the quarter ending September, 1871, has just been issued. The following is a résumé of its contents :—

TIENTSIN.

Mr. Commissioner Hannen reports a trifling falling off in imports, with even lower prices than in the previous quarter. The destruction of property and general distress caused by the floods fully account for this. The tonnage entered, compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous year, however, rose from 36,188 to 46,596 ; and the tonnage cleared from 34,659 to 44,733. In imports there was a perceptible increase in Grey and White Shirtings and T-cloths, Jeans, and Lustres. Camlets, Spanish Stripes, Chinese imports show a very great falling off, and Opium a very serious one. In exports the decline was greater than in anything else, which is easily accounted for by the reasons assigned. The revenue, however, compared favourably with that of 1870, being Tls. 109,497, against Tls. 105,386. The following facts, taken from Chung How's "History of Tientsin," are interesting : —Floods occurred here nineteen, thirty-two, and seventy years ago, on the latter of which occasions the waters rose seven or eight feet higher than this time ; and in the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Kang-hi the deluge was so excessive that the inhabitants had to live up in trees. The public health was, however, good, notwithstanding the inundation in the quarter under notice, and no serious disturbances arose, though there must always be some danger of outbreak, or epidemic, or general and lasting distress, in such a place.

NEWCHWANG.

Mr. Commissioner Luson reports the quarter's trade as steady, though comparing unfavourably with the corresponding quarter of the previous year. The Southern Chinese merchants are said to have realised a profit of from 5 to 10 per cent. on export transactions, and trade in imports seems to have been tolerably profitable both to importers and purchasers. Cotton Piece Goods generally met with a ready sale, and the stock left on hand was small. Opium was not active, and prices declined Tls. 10 per chest. The tonnage entered fell from 28,050 in the corresponding quarter of 1870 to 23,271 ; and "cleared" rose from 23,166 to 26,127. In imports Grey Shirtings rose from 40,050 pieces to 50,850 ; Woollens fell from 9,656 to 2,340. The revenue, which was Tls. 81,054 for the corresponding quarter in 1869, and Tls. 57,031 in 1870, amounted to Tls. 71,236 in 1871. The only events of general interest were the survey of the harbour by the U.S. gunboat Palos, by the kind permission of Commander Rockwell ; the arrival of the new lightship Tsow Chiang ; the failure of the large native firm Tung Hsing Kwei ; and a serious inundation.

CHEFOO.

Mr. Hobson, Acting Commissioner, reports a more than average business, though the returns show some falling off compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous year, when trade received an unusual impetus, owing to the unsettled state of affairs at Tientsin. There is, therefore, a deficit of 41,319 pieces, compared with the deliveries of 1870, though they show an increase of

Digitized by Google

94,993 pieces over 1869. The tonnage presents little alteration; and the revenue shows Tls. 71,209, against Tls. 74,450 in the corresponding quarter in 1870, and Tls. 55,953 in 1869.

HANKOW.

Mr. Commissioner Macpherson reports the tonnage as very little differing in amount from that of the corresponding quarter of the previous year. In imports Grey Shirtings rose from 283,350 pieces to 532,235. T-cloths also rose from 205,801 pieces to 250,778; and Drills from 108,124 to 168,232. Woollens show a falling off. In exports the losses on Tea must have equalled, if not exceeded, the gain of 1870. Since the first purchases in May, 423,491 piculs were sent away, against 389,610 shipped from the commencement of the season to the close of September in 1870. The revenue however rose from Tls. 469,099 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year to Tls. 590,595.

KIUKIANG.

Mr. Commissioner Drew reports the export of Tea, which was very large in the same quarter, to have been again so far in excess of the average that, since the opening of the season, it already amounted to 131,000 piculs. The large increase in the import of Cotton Goods continued, but stocks were not accumulating. This year there was no flood at Kiukiang. The tonnage was almost the same as in the corresponding quarter of the preceding year. The revenue exhibits a progressive advance, having risen from Tls. 138,818 in 1869 to Tls. 151,461 in 1870, and Tls. 197,391 in the quarter under notice.

CHINKIANG.

Mr. Detring, Acting Commissioner, reports more than an ordinary increase in almost every article of import, in some degree attributable to the floods in the North—goods finding their way to Honan and Shantung more easily from this place than if they transported via Tientsin. The tonnage, both entered and cleared, advanced from 107,000 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year to 113,000. The imports of Grey Shirtings, T-cloths, &c., for the quarter have advanced at the following extraordinary and sustained rate during the last four years:—

T-cloths	5,005	25,505	63,609	89,840

Lustres, Nail Rods, Foreign Sugar, Oil wood, have risen in equal proportion. Opium shows very little advance.

Raw Cotton, piculs ...	—	61	65	787
Lily Flowers	243	731	2,077	3,827
Grain	1,712	2,483	2,426	41,696

The revenue has accordingly risen from Tls. 14,616 in 1869, to Tls. 21,543 in 1870, and Tls. 36,307 in the quarter under notice.

SHANGHAI.

Mr. Commissioner Dick reports the revenue to have increased from Tls. 787,726 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year to Tls. 918,227. The tonnage was not materially different in amount. In imports Grey Shirtings show an increase, nearly bringing the amount up to that of the corresponding quarter in 1868. White Shirtings greatly declined. T-cloths and Lustres, however, rose to twice the quantity in the corresponding period of last year. Exports show a great falling off, except in Tea and Silk. We are somewhat surprised to find Mr. Dick's report of trade closing with the sentence—"General remarks—Nil."

NINGPO.

Mr. Commissioner Francis W. White reports a slight decrease in the imports of Piece Goods. The Tea crop is put down as equal in quantity to the previous year's, but the leaf inferior and the same profits not expected. Cotton was also late in the market. The tonnage falls short of the same period in the previous year by 8,268 tons inward, and 7,171 outward. The total revenue collection shows an increase of Tls. 24,932.

FOOCHOW.

Mr. H. Noetzli, Deputy Commissioner in Charge, reports the revenue as Tls. 756,926, against Tls. 703,145 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year, and Tls. 929,166 in 1869. Here, again, the "General Remarks" are nil. The imports wore a more favourable aspect than in the last two or three years, but we should have been glad to be informed as to the cause of the return this year to the expansion evinced four years ago. Prima facie the Report before us is unsatisfactory, as it is full of figures, without any attempt to explain the causes that have led to, or the results that may be expected from, the returns.

TAMSUI (FORMOSA).

Mr. Commissioner de Champs reports an increase in the two main articles of import, Cotton Piece Goods and Opium; of 64 per cent. for the former, and 27 per cent. for the latter produce, as compared with the corresponding quarter in the previous year. In the case of Cotton Piece Goods this increase is stated to represent the overflow of neighbouring markets on the mainland, where these manufactured goods have lately accumulated on account of the low rates of the market. The increase in the importation of Opium corresponds in a certain proportion to that in the exportation of Tea, against which the drug is bartered. The export of Tea shows an increase of 45 per cent. over the corresponding quarter of the year previous. The Coal trade at Kheluug was unusually active, owing to a stoppage in the working of some of the Japan mines. The export shows an increase of 190 per cent. The revenue amounted to Tls. 43,679, against Tls. 25,086 in 1870.

[This is one of the shortest reports in the volume before us; but it is so clearly, concisely, and suggestively put together, that it might well serve for a model for other Commissioners to study, and for the Government to require to be followed.]

TAKOW (FORMOSA).

Mr. W. Cartwright, Assistant in Charge, reports the revenue to have amounted to Tls. 22,885, against Tls. 16,675 in 1870, and Tls. 11,099 in 1869. The export of sugar, from the commencement of the year, was 548,000 piculs, against 580,000 in the first three quarters of the previous year. There is the usual increase of 100 chests in the import of Opium, and rates have been high. Much more ground has been devoted to Sugar cultivation.

AMOY.

Mr. Commissioner Hughes reports "General Remarks—nil;" "Occurrences—nil." The imports of Cotton and Woollen Goods show a falling off, which we should have liked to have found accounted for. The exports in Tea show an increase. The revenue was Tls. 186,730, against Tls. 159,233 in the corresponding quarter of 1870, and Tls. 129,012 in 1869—and perhaps Mr. Hughes considers this so satisfactory a piece of information that it is unnecessary to add anything to it in the way of comment.

SWATOW.

Mr. A. Huber, Acting Commissioner, reports the foreign trade as showing fairly against the corresponding quarter of the previous year. The failure of the first Rice crop, owing to drought, and of the second, owing to rains and inundations, greatly stimulated the import of Rice and Wheat. The import of Piece Goods was about the same as in the previous year—that of Metals, about half. The large increase of Opium (634 half-chests) is owing to the strict measures adopted on the coast opposite to Hong Kong to prevent smuggling. The export during the whole Sugar season exceeds, by more than 300,000 piculs, that of late years; the Sugar districts have been very little affected by rain and inundation, owing to the deep and wide river running through them. The revenue shows Tls. 165,347, against Tls 104,959 for the corresponding quarter in the previous year, and Tls. 84,781 in 1869. Mr. Huber's Report is altogether explicit and encouraging.

CANTON.

Mr. Bowra, Acting Commissioner, reports the revenue as Tls. 355,315, against Tls. 255,986 in the corresponding quarter of the previous year, and Tls. 364,186 in 1869. Here again, we find the word "nil" appended both to "General Remarks" and "Occurrences." The imports of Grey Shirtings and T-cloths show a marked decrease, and Opium a great increase—both of which we should have liked to have been explained. The same remark applies to the exports, in which Canes, Fans, and Sugar exhibit an extraordinary advance.

DUES AND DUTIES.

The total dues and duties for the quarter for all the fourteen ports, amounted to:—

Import duties	Tls. 540,040
Import duties on opium	475,903
Export duties	2,538,924
Tonnage dues	65,538
Coast trade duty	128,873
Transit dues	69,189
Duties on native craft	587
Total	Tls. 3,819,058

The volume closes with "Part 4. Notifications.—Nil," and "Part 5. Movements in the Service.—Nil again." Both these announcements are more suggestive than satisfactory.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 17th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were to Calcutta £336,200, to Bombay £150,000, and to Madras £13,800. The minimum price was fixed as before at 1s. 11d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 11⅛d. will receive about 22 per cent., and on Bombay at that price about 24 per cent.; those above in full. A decided increase in the demand for the means of remittance to the East is shown.

At the meeting of the proprietors of the City Bank a dividend was declared for the half-year at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum, leaving, after the addition of £5,000 to reserve fund, which now stands at £110,000, the sum of £1,837 to be carried forward. The balance-sheet will be found in our advertising columns. This bank is the London agency for the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China. At the meeting of shareholders of the London Joint-Stock Bank, agents for the Chartered Mercantile Bank, the report was adopted, and a dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, with a bonus of £1 per share, was declared. The net profit of the half-year ending 30th December was £155,493 6s. 6d., and, after payment of the dividend, a balance of £493 6s. 6d. is carried forward.

It is notified that the half-yearly interest, due 1st February next, on the Japan Loan, will be paid on and after that date at the offices of Messrs. J. Henry Schroder and Co.

It will be seen from a notice in another column, that the Committees have agreed upon a revised form of outward bills of lading, with reference to the trade with the Far East. The inward form will probably be decided on in the course of next month.

Messrs. Gregson and Co., in their Annual Circular, state, in regard to the export of Cotton Goods to China, that the export has been on an unprecedentedly large scale; of Plain Cottons (bales and cases) with Cotton Yarn, 312,000 packages have been shipped, giving a daily average supply, excluding Sundays, of one thousand packages.

Messrs. Gwynne and Co., engineers, Essex-street Works, Strand, London, are supplying the Chincse Maritime Department with large steam pumping engine, to discharge 500 gallons of water per minute, with steam boiler, &c., complete; a large hydraulic air pump, to work against a pressure of 40 feet, with steam-engine, boiler, &c., to work same; all suitable hose, tubing, piping, and a quantity of other apparatus. These will be shipped by the Yangtsze steamer for Shanghai.

It appears that late telegrams announce the probability of the establishment of a State Bank for Japan at Yedo. The formation of another local bank at Shanghai is also on the tapis, with a capital of Tls. 3,000,000, the operations to be confined to local and not exchange operations.

We understand that a further shipment of bank notes, which we noticed some time since as under manufacture at Frankfort for the Japanese Government, has been made to Yokohama.

The diving apparatus, which we noticed last month as under construction by Messrs. Siebe and Gorman, for Shanghai, is now in course of shipment, per steamer Yangtsze. Two divers will accompany the same to superintend the fitting at Shanghai.

The telegraphic advices from Foochow announce that purchases of common tea continue at a laying down cost of 1s. 2d. at which rate shippers may look for a loss.

Mr. John S. Simmonds, late of Shanghai, has commenced business as a metal and general commission agent at 60, Gracechurch-street, London.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Nyanza, from Southampton on the 18th inst., was—in gold to Hong Kong, £1,200; to Calcutta, £30,000; to Madras, £1,064 to Bombay, £6,000; in silver—to Shanghai, £28,050; to Hong Kong, £12,318; to Singapore, £15,000; to Calcutta, £76,000; to Galle, £20,000. Total in gold, £38,264; in silver, £151,368.

There has been a good inquiry for Fine Bar Silver, and prices have further advanced to 61⅛d. per oz. standard, a still higher figure having been paid for delivery yesterday. The demand for India has been large, and the extra steamer Peshawur has taken £423,000 to Bombay. Mexican Dollars, by the West India and French steamers, have been sold, the New Coinage at 59⅜d. per oz., the Old at 61d. per oz.; a further rise having been established in both prices.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The first periodical public sales of China for the year 1872 were held on the 16th inst.; a total of 6,836 packages was presented, of which 3,042 packages were offered without reserve and sold, the remainder being withdrawn. There was a fair attendance, but the few parcels offered without reserve were common and undesirable, and attracted very little attention, prices being moderate throughout. A break of common black leaf Congou "with all faults" sold at 10½d. to 11½d., and red leaf Fannings and leafy kinds at 5½d. to 6½d. per lb. At public sale yesterday 1,924 packages, per steamer Lorne, consisting of 577 half-chests Moyune Green, 610 chests 737 half-chests Congou, were offered without reserve, and all sold. There was a fair attendance and good competition for the fine qualities of Moyune Green, but the common lines sold under the prices paid for similar kinds, ex Hector, on the 12th inst. The Congous were common to fair medium red leaf; these went irregularly, and in some instances under the valuations, the prices obtained ranging from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d. per lb.

Privately the market is steady and without alteration.

SILK.

The market keeps steady at full rates, with generally an upward tendency in prices; a slight advance has been paid within the past few days in Chinas, quotations of which are now—26s. for Red Peacock; 26s. 9d. to 27s. for Ku Kee 4 and Blue Elephant; and 28s. 9d. to 29s. for chop third Taatlee. Cantons are very firm at 17s. 6d. for good market Taatlee, and Japans are in improved demand at former rates, good Mybash being inquired for.

Deliveries since the 1st inst. are large, having been swollen within the past few days by some considerable shipments of Japans and Cantons to France. The total from 1st to 17th inst. is as follows:—

Canton	951	414
Japan	829	123
Bengal	267	180

COFFEE.

There is somewhat less activity in the market than we reported for last mail, and although only moderate supplies have been placed on offer a portion has had to be withdrawn. Prices have, however, been steady and firm, and the advance noted last week has been maintained; the rates paid for Ceylon have been:—Plantation triage and ordinary 66s. 6d. to 71s., small 74s. to 75s., fine ordinary and low middling 74s. 6d. to 77s., middling 78s. 6d. to 81s., good bold colour 88s. to 88s. 6d., pea-berry 84s. 6d. to 89s. Native: Good ordinary 69s. 6d. to 70s., fine bold 72s. to 72s. 6d., pea-berry 73s. There has been no transactions in East India other than Ceylon.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since the 12th inst. the market has been rather quieter, owing to the advanced rates asked by producers, which have served to check business. The general tone is very steady, and there is no pressure to make sales, manufacturers firmly declining to make any concession on the annexed prices.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JAN. 6.

TEA.

There has been little or no change in the market since our report of a fortnight ago. There has been an improved demand for Green, and prices for choice parcels are a trifle firmer. Oolong is in moderate request at about former rates. Japans remain quiet but steady. The first cargo of new season's Green has arrived per Serica.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil is very quiet; although holders maintain a firm attitude, and there are no signs of weakness on their part, there is a pause in the operations, dealers, as a general rule, being well supplied, and waiting for the opening of a large country trade so long and anxiously looked for. There is perhaps a feeling of disappointment at its delay; at any rate there is a disposition to defer operations at present, and the consequence is a very quiet market, entirely devoid of excitement, or perhaps buoyancy, without a single transaction to report of a parcel on the spot since our last report, or since the opening of the new year. The market for Java is firm, with a fairly active demand, and sales to a fair extent have been effected at 23c. to 25c. for pale and brown descriptions. Sales from first hands are reported of 1,200 bags Government Java, and 1,510 bags Native Ceylon on private terms. Advices detailing the result of the December quarterly sales at Padang has strengthened the firmness of the market.

CORDAGE.—Prices of Manila have declined half a cent, and we now quote Manila Cordage, sizes above 12 thread, 20½c.; do., 6 thread and 9 thread (½ inch and 5-16 in. diam.), 21½c.; do., 12 thread (⅜ in. diam.), 21c.; do. Hay Rope, 21c.; Manila Cordage Bolt Rope Yarns, 22½c.; do. 6 thread and 9 thread, 23½c.; Tarred Manila, 20c.; fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 21½c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 16c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $3; Cassia, $2.25 gold (duty paid).

GUNNY BAGS.—There has been no further business, but prices remain firm at 16 cents for full weight 440's. CLOTH.—There is no movement either in Foreign or Domestic.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues very quiet, and the fortnight has passed without any transactions being effected; the nominal quotations are 13½c. to 13½c. gold. The Oracle has arrived with a cargo of 3,516 bales.

INDIGO.—Market very quiet at $1.10 to 1.15 currency for Manila.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $9.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 70c. to 100c. currency (duty free).

RICE.—The market is quiet at the range of prices previously ruling; the sales of Rangoon have been about 600 bags, at $6.75 to 7 currency, and 200 bags in bond at $3.25 gold.

SUGAR.—The market is quiet, importers withholding their stocks in anticipation of an advance in prices. In East India sales are reported of 5,593 bags Manila, at 8⅛c.; and of the following parcels on private terms—13,953 bags Manila, per Carnarvon Castle, 17,913 bags ditto, per Nimroud, 17,103 bags ditto, per Oracle, 637 bags Java, per Chinaman, and 14,000 mats (of 60 lbs.) Java, per Nebula, via Cape.

SPICES.—There have been several arrivals of Mace, Nutmegs, Pepper, &c., all of which were sold and reported previously. In whole parcels there has been no business, but the jobbing demand is good for this period of the season. Mace and Nutmegs are barely steady, while in Cassia, Pepper and Cloves there have been slight concessions; other descriptions are unchanged. Cassia is in large stock and is very dull; an auction sale of 16,000 mats is announced for the 10th inst., which puts a stop to business. Cloves have sold freely and Pimento is a little higher. Telegrams from Singapore quote Pepper lower, but prices have not receded in consequence. There is a fair jobbing demand, and sales have been made of Mace at $1.42½; Nutmegs, 97½c to 100c.; China Cassia, 34½c.; Batavia, 34c., and Cassia Vera, 25c.; Cloves, 11⅞c. to 12c., in bond 7c.; Clove Stems, 7c.; Pepper, 17½c. to 17½c. for Sumatra, and 18½c. for Singapore; White Pepper, 38c. to 40c., all gold.

TIN.—There has been scarcely any move ment in the market; the nominal quotations are Straits 37⅞c. to 38c.; Banca 42c. to 42½c., gold.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 10th Dec.; the French mail, with London dates Oct. 13, arrived out Dec. 3. The following summary is from the Japan Mail and the Japan Herald:—

The naval review, for which great preparations have been made, has been postponed times out of number, and but scant information can be gleaned from the authorities as to when it will actually take place. According to present advices, it is said it will come off this day (Dec. 10). The operations will be confined to Japanese men-of-war.

The visit of the Mikado to this place has likewise been postponed, and no definite time has as yet been fixed for the intended visit. By some accounts he is said to have been already here and at Yokoska incognito.

By the next American mail, on the 22nd Dec., a mission, composed of five of the principal officers of State, leaves for America and Europe for the purpose of conferring with the various Governments on the subject of the revision of the treaties. It will be accompanied as far as Washington by Mr. De Long, who goes home to consult his Government on the subject. As most of the foreign representatives are now at the seats of their several Governments, a favourable opportunity is presented to the embassy for the completion of projects. The names at present connected with it are Iwakura, Ito, Okubo, and Yamagochi; and by the Government sending such men as these it is clearly apparent that they are fully alive to the importance of the mission. Two Japanese men-of-war are being placed in readiness to proceed to Europe to be availed of by the Ambassadors. Okuma, together with some other officers of the Finance Department, shortly leave for Europe and America with the object of gathering information respecting the financial systems adopted by other countries. Iwakura, who is to be the head of the mission, has lately been raised to the rank of second member of the Cabinet, taking precedence immediately after Sanjio, the Prime Minister.

As regards the right of exporting native rice, it can hardly be said to have been accomplished yet, as the authorities will only permit it on foreigners paying export duty. To this foreign Ministers demur, and questions respecting it are likely to arise, as, according to the Treaties, rice comes in duty free.

A serious case of forgery of native kinsats has been lately heard in the U.S. Consular Court. It appears that the prisoner, John Rogers, some fifteen months ago induced two Japanese to engrave a block assimilating to the rio paper money. This was done, and shortly afterwards the natives were caught, together with two other men, passing the bad sats. They were imprisoned and tortured to confess, thus leading to the arrest of the man Rogers, who was put upon his trial, but, owing to the miserable appearance of the tortured witnesses, the then Consul would not accept their testimony, and Rogers was released on bail, which he forfeited by escaping to Shanghai. He was arrested there and brought back, and two of the witnesses who had somewhat recovered (the other two in the meantime dying from the effects of ill-treatment in prison) gave evidence against him which led to his conviction and sentence of one year's imprisonment with hard labour, at the expiration of which he is to be deported.

Mr. De Long, the American Minister, has had his farewell interview of the Mikado, and has presented as his successor Colonel C. O. Shepard, who will act as Charge d'Affaires during the Minister's temporary absence.

A case reflecting discredit on two missionaries has just been heard in the Court of the United States. It was between two American missionaries, one of whom made a claim for superintending the erection of a building during the absence of the other, who stated that the services so rendered were to be gratuitous. It has caused a great scandal, and the Court in pronouncing judgment severely reprimanded the parties concerned.

At Yedo a destructive fire, in which some six hundred houses were burned, has taken place. The want of proper fire-engines was greatly felt.

The railway authorities, we learn, hope to be enabled by the close of the year to open the line from Yokohama to Sinagawa, the rails being already laid, and engines daily traverse through. Having been led to believe that railways in Japan were impossible without the services of an engineer-in-chief, it is now, we believe, discovered that such an appointment is so far superfluous that the vacancy created by the death of Mr. Morel need not be filled up at all, and that consequently there is no present intention entertained of appointing another engineer to that office.

It is announced that the land line of telegraph is to be forthwith begun between Yedo and the north. There will be, as a matter of course, a cable laid across the Straits to Hakodadi. There is reason to suppose that within the next fifteen months Hakodadi, Yedo, Yokohoma, Kobe, and Nagasaki and several intermediate places will be in telegraphic communication. The line, however, between this place and Nagasaki (connecting with China, Europe, and America) is by far the most important, and efforts should be concentrated upon that to have it completed as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

The silver yen, after having reached 11 per cent. premium, declined to 2 per cent, and subsequently rallied to 4½, at which they now stand. Of course foreigners will not touch these coins on such preposterous terms; Japanese, who are foolish enough to buy them to hoard, and Chinamen who have made contracts to deliver them to Japanese, are the only purchasers. It is a pity that the new coins should have been made an object of traffic, as it makes their value fluctuate from day to day. The sooner the Government restores the proper equilibrium by flooding the market the better it will be. The coining of silver bullion at the Imperial Mint has been stopped for a time for repairs of machinery, necessitated by overwork.

The Autumn Race Meeting was held on the 8th Dec. The Yokohama Cup was carried off by Chanticleer, which also won the Shamrock Cup, presented by Mr. W. J. Alt, and the American Cup, given by the American community. The Maiden Stakes, for Japan ponies that had never won a race, were taken by Typhoon, and the Netherlands Cup was carried off by the same pony.

To distinguish them from the retainers of the several princes, the following dress has been decided on for the soldiers of the newly-formed Imperial Army at Yedo, viz., grey trowsers with a yellow stripe, a blue jacket, a peaked red cap, black braided, with the Mikado's crest in gold lace over the peak, and foreign boots. Rather a strange mixture, but it is a fact worth remarking that the tailors have given the men, in this instance, a good though not a perfect fit, which is more than can be said of the dress of the soldiers of the ex-Daimios.

The Yokohama Amateur Dramatic Corps have given their first performance for the winter season, the pieces being Cool as a Cucumber, and Ici on parle Francais. These farces, threadbare as they are, served well as a lever de rideau for the coming season.

Preparations are being made to plant shrubs and trees in the public gardens, and improve the land adjoining. With proper care and attention a beautiful place of recreation can be made, gratifying to both natives and foreigners. There will be a plat laid down in grass for cricket.

The Mikado has visited the foreign circus at Yedo, and appeared surprised at the wonderful training of the animals and their performances.

Another native newspaper has been started in Yedo, in friendly rivalry with the Budget of News, from which we have several times given extracts.

A charge of perjury brought before the Acting Assistant Judge by Mr. Campbell against Mr. Marks has been dismissed.

CHINA.

—o—

TIENTSIN.

At the date of last advices the only vessel in harbour at this port was the British schooner Seabird, which was under immediate despatch for Hong Kong. The British gunboats Midge and Leven, two French, one American, and one Chinese gunboat have been laid up for the winter, and a Russian gunboat was expected before the closing of the river. The plains had from six to eight feet of water on them and were covered with thin ice, though the river was not yet frozen. As the plains are low, and have such very small outlets, grave apprehensions were entertained lest they should remain flooded a great part of the coming year.

The inhabitants who have been ruined by the flood are suffering terribly from cold and hunger, in the country, beyond the range of Tientsin charities.

SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port extend to the 14th December; the P. and O. mail with London advices to the 20th Oct. arrived out Dec. 10. The following items are from the North China Herald:—

The British Government has sent out orders to re-erect the Consular buildings destroyed last Christmas. The old foundations are to be used, so the old arrangement of rooms will be retained; the portion of the building adjoining the new Supreme Court being set apart for the officers of that institution.

A meeting of the Treaty Consuls was held on the 8th December. The principal questions brought forward were those of lotteries, and of proxies at ratepayers' meetings. An opinion was expressed that lotteries should be regarded as nuisances, and suppressed by a prohibitive system of licences. The question whether proxies should be admitted at ratepayers' meetings, for resident landrenters or ratepayers absent from the meeting, was decided in the affirmative.

A meeting of the Yacht Club has been held, to give an opportunity of reconsidering the decision in the Hoyen Cup race, by which five yachts out of nine were then disqualified for not crossing the line, on a flying start, within a given time. Mr. G. B. Hill said that though he felt aggrieved at the time he was now of opinion that the matter should rest; and no one else supporting the protest other business was proceeded with. The chairman brought forward a proposition that they should, instead of renting a piece of ground at $120 a year and spending $200 in the erection of a slip, give Tls. 200 a year for a double slip, shed for housing spare stores, and the use generally of a lot of land lying immediately below Gibb's Wharf, Honkew. In the event of the club resolving to do so, a company, with a capital of Tls. 2,000, subscribed principally, if not wholly, by members of the Yacht Club, would buy the lot, erect the works required, rent it to the club for one year, at the sum abovenamed, and give them the option of buying it at the end of that term. After considerable discussion the committee were authorised to carry out the arrangement with the Slip Company.

A meeting of No. 4 "Deluge" company of the Fire Brigade has been held. The report stated that the company had consisted of thirty-one members at date of last year's report, to which two were added in March, making thirty three. Retirements, departures, and two losses by death had reduced that number to twenty-one. The number of fires had been four, and of false alarms three.

On the 12th December, when the tide was making flood, the M.M. (str.) Donnai, moored abreast of Olyphant's Wharf, parted her cable and was carried by the current and the pressure of the wind to the Pootung shore. A tugboat was soon in attendance and towed her back to her moorings, without any damage save the breaking of the chain.

For the following we are indebted to the Shanghai Budget:—

The yacht Eureka, so unique in her model, but which has so conspicuously failed to fulfil the hopes which her sanguine inventor made public when he conferred on her her histrionic name, has been transferred to a new owner, Mr C. P. Blethen being named as the purchaser.

At the monthly missionary meeting, held in Union Chapel, special notice was taken of the life and labours of Mrs. Bridgman, a lady who has lately passed from among us. The Rev. Robert Nelson, of the Church of our Saviour, Hongkew, who, in Mr. Syles's absence at Japan, was most constantly with Mrs. Bridgman in her last illness, gave some interesting particulars of the closing scene.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by this mail extend to the 20th December; the P. and O. steamer Mirzapore arrived on the 18th December with the London Mail of November 3rd. The following items of news are from the Daily Press and China Mail:—

Yet another defection (says the Mail) from common sense, on the part of The Times, in writing about China. The great leader of public opinion has made a discovery, viz., that all our troubles in China have been brought about by the clause in the Treaty which tolerates the teaching of the Christian religion. An analysis of, and reply to, the article based on the said discovery may appear anon; but we now feel bound to say that a more disingenious and false piece of special pleading was never written on the basis of more wilfully misstated premises than this carefully-prepared political "hash" which serves as a leader in the London Times of October 31st. It is plain that the journalistic essay in question is a Foreign Office leader, and has been written and printed for a special purpose, viz, that of justifying the errroneous but convenient policy of the present Government. For the sake of those interested, therefore, it is unfortunate that the falsehoods it contains are so patent. Everyone who knows the first elements of Chinese history and foreign relations with the Empire is perfectly well aware that in every movement a missionary in China may make he is regarded as a foreign subject, pure and simple; and that, as a missionary possesses no more rights than any other class of foreign subjects residing in Treaty limits, we do not "place ourselves in the position of the protectors and encouragers of proselytism." By the clause objected to, the Chinese Government entered into an obligation to protect "all teachers and professors" of Christianity, with an evident application to native teachers and professors of the new doctrine. The real harm calculated to be done by such unprincipled writing, however, is the support which it gives to scheming tricksters at Peking, who are ever ready to make political capital out of erroneous impressions of China in England.

The Hertha case came before Mr. Justice Ball on the 18th Dec. The Attorney-General, for the Crown, prosecuted three sailors for wounding Bridgwater, a coloured policeman, and another person in a street row. After hearing Mr. Drummond, for the prisoners, the jury acquitted them by a majority of six to one.

We have received a copy of the Chinese and English Vocabulary in the Peking dialect, which has just been published by Mr. Stent, of the Imperial Maritime Customs Service, and have much pleasure in congratulating him upon having produced a work which is likely to prove of the greatest value to students of Chinese, by supplying the want which is constantly felt of some means of finding combinations of characters, heard in conversation, from the sound.

An armed attack on the village of Sowkewan has been averted by the judicious, discriminating, and prompt action of the police officer in charge there. As it appears, the affair might have assumed proportions and produced results as serious as those of the fatal affair of April 1869, out of which came the death of a police constable, and all the unfortunate circumstances and revelations arising therefrom, historically known as the Sowkewan Murder Case.

An inquest has been held on the body of Mr. Antonia Christensen, of the Great Northern Telegraph Company, who died from taking an overdose of laudanum. A verdict was returned to the effect that deceased died from taking an overdose of opium, but there was no evidence to show from what motive he took it.

Captain Sinnett, of the British ship Khandersh, from San Francisco, has had nine men taken from on board by the water police and brought up before the harbour-master, charged with mutiny. The case having been investigated, they were sentenced to a month's imprisonment. Their statement was that the captain had used every effort to cause them to mutiny, on account of their having been engaged in San Francisco at £5 per month, while wages here are only £2 10s.

A meeting of the shareholders in the Hong Kong Pier and Godown Company was announced to be held, but, probably in consequence of the Canton Races, no quorum arrived at the office, and the meeting was adjourned for a week.

THE ABDOOL MOUSSA CASE.

On the 15th Dec. Mr. Chief Justice Smale delivered judgment in the case of Abdool Moussa and another, who were convicted, after a trial (protracted through seven days), of conspiring with a third native, since deceased, to defraud by false representations of their and their alleged principals' commercial relations, on two counts. The conspiracy charged on the first count was to cause it to be believed that one Jamal had purchased certain goods from Leong-a-kum and not for F.M. Esa and Co., and with that purpose to have altered the labels of certain books kept by Jamal. The conspiracy charged on the second count was to defraud the same Leong-a-kum, and that with that object they furnished to a solicitor an account purporting to show certain debts as debts of Jamal, when the accused knew that such debts were not due by him, but by F. M. Esa and Co. The prisoners were acquitted on the other, the second and third counts.

The condition of the Hong Kong Bar is vividly described in the following account of the hearing on the 11th December :—"Mr. Hayllar, having become Acting Attorney-General, retired from the defence, and Mr. Francis, in the absence of other counsel, argued the case for the prisoners. Mr. Ball, having resigned the office of Acting Attorney-General, retired from the prosecution, and Mr. Drummond appeared alone."

The following extract from Mr. Smale's judgment is equally characteristic :—"I do not think it the duty of the judge to state the grounds why he does not accede to each point separately taken by the advocate. I incline to think that I have been in the habit of doing so to too great an extent. It should perhaps be done only where the case is likely to go to a larger tribunal. In the present case I abstain from stating my reasons at length as to each point taken for the prisoners, whether by Mr. Hayllar or Mr. Francis. I have considered them all with anxious attention, and I am clearly of opinion that not one of the objections can be sustained, and that the verdict is as good in law as I hold it to be certainly good on the facts proved."

Mr. Francis, as there might be an appeal, moved an arrest of judgment on various new grounds, one of which was that the verdict of the jury was in effect a verdict of not guilty. His Lordship said he would fix a day by-and-by for the argument, but it has since been postponed indefinitely, in consequence of his illness. The whole proceedings in this case, as well as that of Kwok-a-Sing, are described by a correspondent as so unsatisfactory that law and justice may be said to have come to a standstill in Hong Kong for the present.

SAIGON.

Advices are to the 24th December; the French mail, with London dates Nov. 10, arrived out Dec. 18.

The Governor has, by decree, granted a subvention of f.8,000 to the Agricultural Society.

All apprehension that the rice harvest might suffer from too great rain and the exceptional inundation of the present season is now at an end; and an unusually good crop is being gathered in with great activity.

The timber trade has very greatly increased this year. The Governor's tour through the new provinces has been attended with the cordial sympathy of the natives.

A very destructive storm raged on the 6th December. Many houses—and even whole villages—were destroyed, and two pilots, Messrs. Foyer and Rion, unfortunately lost their lives.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

The following items are from the Advertiser :—

His Royal Highness the late Kroma Luang Wongsa Dhirat Snidh has long and favourably been known as a genial Siamese Prince, holding for years a prominent place in the Siamese political horizon. During his long official career he gave unmistakable and persistent evidence of being a staunch friend to foreigners. The cremation ceremonies of his Royal Highness occupied four days. His Royal Highness was uncle to the present first and second Kings.

On December 8th Werner von Bergen, the new German Consul for Siam, had the honour of an audience with his Majesty the First King. Mr. Lessler's resignation of the office, and the regular installation of his successor, will now enable Mr. Lessler to avail himself of a long-needed respite, to visit home, with the pleasing assurance that German interests are committed to the care of an apparently vigilant and able successor. We hear that Mr. T. Haussman has been invited to fill, temporarily, the post of Acting Assistant.

We learn that the steamer Bangkok, which was some time since purchased from our Indian British merchants has been elaborately and commodiously fitted up, and is to be used as the Royal Steam Yacht.

Dr. C. Vrooman, the medical missionary, who has been appointed by the American Presbyterian Missionary Board to labour at Chiengmai, the capital of a Laos state under the protectorate of Siam, has left this city for his destination.

SIAM CONSULAR REPORT.

The report of H.M. Consul in Bangkok, Mr. J. G. Knox, for 1870, has just been published. The value of exports was in excess of all previous years, because the rice, which forms the bulk of the trade, was shipped to China, not to Europe. When the demand occurs in China it is frequently followed by a rush of shipping to this port. The European firms here, being the owners of the steam cleaning rice-mills, which yield them large profits, are now confining their business principally to cleaning rice. As they likewise hold bank and insurance agencies, they, in many instances, are content to receive 25 per cent. of the value of the cargo here the remainder being covered by the usual documents. The rates for cleaning rice, viz., 10 cents per picul, are, however, considered high, and the Chinese and native shippers have ordered several small mills from England for their own use.

The Indo-Chinese Sugar Company applied to the Siamese Government for a grant of land for the erection of mills and cultivation of cane, and have had their application responded to on very liberal terms. The Siamese Government granted a very fine site of 3,000 acres at a yearly rent of 2s. 3d. per acre for the land put under cultivation. They likewise reduced the inland duty upon sugar one-half, and it now stands at 9d. per picul of 133 lbs. weight of white, and 4½d. for the same quantity of brown. Having met with this encouragement, the manager of the company imported and set up large sugar-mills on the newest principle, and put a large amount of land under cultivation.

Imports as well as exports showed a promising increase.

Copper exists in large quantities throughout an extensive range of hills to the north of Aguthia, and there is water carriage within reasonable distance. In the Malay Peninsular again, the greater part of which either belongs or is tributary to Siam, tin and lead are to be found in all directions. The former has hitherto been worked by Chinese, and considerable quantities are yearly exported. The lead mines have not been worked, because no one has yet been found who properly understood the process. From reports of the ore it contains a large percentage of silver.

There is reason to believe that the Siamese Government would willingly grant permission to British subjects to open and work mines in their possession, provided they felt convinced that the applicants were in possession of the necessary capital to carry on such an undertaking in a proper manner. The royalty hitherto paid by the Chinese has been 10 per cent. on the metal extracted, and I understand that large profits have been made.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The Straits Times of the 2nd December complains that the Colonial Estimates for the ensuing year were not made public until they had been actually passed by the Legislative Council

Digitized by Google

I do not wonder at this. It is a piece of practice entirely characteristic of the Colonial "Executive" with which the Straits Settlements have been blessed since they were transferred from the Indian Government; its object being the very obvious one of withholding doubtful expenditure from public criticism until public criticism is too late. If there were no other objection to it, it would be enough to point out that it is contrary to the regulations of the Colonial-office. Those regulations direct that the estimates should be ready as early as June; but I believe that they have never been laid before the Council until October; and then they are hurried through with all possible speed, owing to the late period of the session! It is very easy to say that the public interests are sufficiently protected by the unofficial members; but have they time? However zealous those gentlemen may be, they cannot devote all their time and thoughts to the public service, and they need all the help that the editors and correspondents of the public papers can give them to exercise proper control over the purse-strings of the colony. Another practice for getting money without attracting attention to the purpose for which it is wanted is to include in the estimates a vote for "unforeseen expenses," though this also is expressly forbidden by the Colonial-office. I am told that the vote for "unforeseen contingencies" passed in 1869, just after the Governor shifted his quarters from the old to the New Government-house, was exactly double what it was in 1868!

The local officials clearly care little for the regulations of the Colonial-office, and it seems that the Colonial-office cares as little to see them obeyed. If they had been observed when the Government-house was undertaken, the colony would have been spared no little cost and scandal; for they require that before any work of importance is undertaken the Governor should submit the scheme, with plans, estimates, and specifications, before he consults the Legislative Council about it, and should also lay the same details before them after he has the Secretary of State's sanction to his work. And yet all these rules were set at naught.

The Colonial-office has a higher duty to perform than to pronounce tardy reproofs upon its subordinates who violate its rules. To shut the stable door after the steed is stolen is of little avail—except to give a laugh to the horsestealer.—Yours, &c.,

London, Jan. 22. A STRAITSMAN.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been extremely dull. In Woollens scarcely anything has been done, and quotations remained as last advised. For Grey Shirtings but a slight demand was exhibited, and rates for 8 lbs. and 9 lbs. ruled rather easier. In Yarns operations had been chiefly confined to Nos. 28 to 32, and a few transactions were noted. A large quantity of Blankets had been settled for at very good rates. Velvets were saleable, but prices were somewhat lower.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: Only a small business transacted during the week, and prices of the chief staples had been against importers. 8.4 lbs. Shirtings 2 cands. lower. In White Shirtings there were no sales to advise. T-Cloths asked for, but at too low a figure to induce business; a small parcel of 6 lbs. changed hands at Tls. 1.14 for commonest chops. Drills: Holders firm, but American declined, owing to weakness of second hands; resales at Tls. 3.12; about 100 bales of Cotton Yarn sold at Tls. 103 to 104½; in other Cottons there was nothing fresh to advise. In Woollens there is little doing; one parcel of assorted C.P.H. Long Ells changed hands at Tls. 5.50, and a few figured Orleans at Tls. 4.15 to 4.40; the native demand for all kinds of goods was of a retail character.

HONG KONG.—There had been no change in the market calling for remark.

SAIGON.—The current quotations were:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.57½ per piece; 7 lbs., $2.20. Supers, No. 1, $2.10; No. 2, $2.15; T-Cloths, 7 lbs., $1.80 to 1.85; 6 lbs., $1.70 to 1.75; 5 lbs., $1.37½ to 1.40; 4½ lbs., $1.20 to $1.25; 4 lbs., $1.10 to 1.15. Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.75; No. 120, $1.65.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Business in this market had been less active, and settlements since the 20th Nov. were estimated at about 4,500 piculs only, of which a large portion had been of common leaf, the remainder consisting of medium kinds. Prices have remained much the same as last quoted, but at the close for this mail, dealers being somewhat anxious to realise, an easier tendency was apparent, and some reduction was looked for. Stocks were unchanged, supplies having been about on a par with settlements; the quality continued to deteriorate, and the finer grades were very scarce. The export to date was 300,000 lbs. over that at the same time last year.

SHANGHAI.—There had been but little done in Black; the stock consisted for the most part of very common parcels, and the season was almost at an end. Teamen had been firm, and Tls. 13½ to Tls. 14 had been paid for common Shongtams, for which Tls. 12½ would have been accepted six weeks before. Settlements, 5,200 chests; stock, 11,500 chests. In Green there had been much activity, and prices were fully maintained. There was no reason to doubt that the total supply would be deficient, and, indeed, it seemed as though the shipments of was of good quality to England would fall considerably short of the requirements of that market. Settlements, 15,000 half-chests; stock, 40,000 half-chests.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—A considerable amount of business had been done in this staple since Nov. 22, and settlements amounted to about 1,300 bales. Prices for Hanks at one time had fallen fully $20 per picul, but the decline was only temporary, and at the close no change was quoted with the exception of an advance of about $20 per picul in inferior sorts. Oshus and other Brick Silks had again advanced about $20 to 30 per picul and were in good demand. Silkworm Eggs: The season had closed with a total export of 1,250,000 to 1,300,000 cards, being exactly the same quantity as estimated last season.

SHANGHAI.—Since the departure of the English mail the settlements had been 500 bales, viz: 300 bales for America, and 200 bales for Europe, making total settlements to date 40,400 bales. The market was quiet, and prices unaltered, Elephant chop being purchased at Tls. 520, and Red Peacock at Tls. 512½. Chop No. 3 Tsatlees nominal at same quotations as last mail. The unsold stock was estimated at 3,000 bales.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH'S CURIOSITIES.

The collection of water-colour sketches and drawings illustrative of the cruise of the Duke of Edinburgh round the world in H.M.S. Galatea in the years 1867-1871, together with selections from the objects of science and art collected by his Royal Highness, is now being arranged in the South Kensington Museum for public exhibition, prior to removal to Clarence-house. The collection comprises upwards of 700 articles from the Australian colonies, Tasmania, Japan, China, Malacca, Singapore, India, Ceylon, Cape of Good Hope, New Zealand, Mauritius, Sandwich Islands, Tahiti, and Manila; and in addition to these there are thirty-seven sketches by Mr. Oswald W. Brierley, forming part of a series illustrating the cruise of the Galatea in 1867, 1868, and 1869, and water-colour drawings by Mr. Nicholas Chevalier, which illustrate the cruise from March, 1869, to April, 1870. A portion of the museum is set apart exclusively for the reception of these articles, and the arrangements are so far advanced that the opening for private view has taken place. The unusual opportunities which his Royal Highness has enjoyed of bringing together such a collection have rendered it of extreme value both as regards intrinsic worth and artistic merit; and even those articles which are generally regarded as being of purely personal interest, from the associations with which they are connected, have in this case many features worthy of public notice. The presentation trowels, and caskets containing congratulatory addresses, are very numerous, and for the most part of great value. The majority of these were presented in New South Wales, South Australia, and Victoria; but from Ceylon also there are several addresses inscribed on leaves, reeds, and silver plates, and mounted with ivory and gold. From South Australia and Victoria there are numerous specimens of gold in nuggets and quartz, and various articles of gold and silver manufacture, including a very fine set of five epergnes, mounted in frosted silver, with representations of the aborigines, flora, and fauna of the colony.

The Japanese collection includes numerous articles presented by the Mikado, the most prominent of which is a large ornamental bronze incense burner in three stages, each with representations, in high relief or in detached pieces, of rock work, with cascades, trees, flowers, and birds; in the middle stage is a man, standing on the shore, invoking or deprecating a dragon, on a wooden stand carved to represent waves. This piece, which is of the finest design and workmanship, is said to be 300 years old. The lacquered work of Japan is also well represented by a large collection of boxes, swords, and trays, and lacquered porcelain vases. In articles of porcelain, however, the Chinese cases are especially rich. Many of the articles are of the famous crackle pattern, and are said to have been made in the fifteenth century. A porcelain bowl, "clair-de lune," glazed with Kaolin greyish-blue, claims even greater antiquity, for it is represented to be 1,000 years old. The Indian cases are resplendent with objects of native manufacture in gold and silver; and there are also to be found some magnificent carved and inlaid sandal and ivory cases. Trophies of arms from various districts of India, and sets of chain and plate armour, form a special feature in this collection. Native weapons from New Zealand, feather necklaces and tippet presented by the King and Queen of the Sandwich Islands, the head of a bontebok from the Cape, cases of rare Australian and other birds, several articles of gold and silver workmanship from Singapore and Malacca, some splendid specimens of Indian, Chinese, and Japanese textile fabrics, and other miscellaneous articles serve to complete a collection which, during two months' stay at South Kensington, will form one of the most attractive portions of the Museum.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

M. de Lesseps, replying to a number of shareholders in the Suez Canal who have asked for information relative to the proposed international purchase of the Canal, says, with regard to any future proposals by the Powers interested, they will be laid before the shareholders, with whom rests the exclusive power of disposing of a most valuable property, which is increasing in value every day. M. de Lesseps refers them to the answer which he made to the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs on the 7th of November last, which was as follows:—"I caused to be delivered to the Khedive of Egypt a note on the subject of the proposed purchase of the Suez Canal, which had been mentioned in the Italian Parliament. The company does not invite offers, but it is disposed, in the interest of its shareholders and of commerce, to entertain any proposals which the Powers interested may make in the event of their coming to any agreement on the subject. The Khedive is of opinion that the solution of this question presents great difficulties; but, without pronouncing a decided opinion, answers that he must first take that of the Grand Vizier. The Italian Government must, therefore, judge whether it will take any further steps in the matter."

JAPANESE STUDENTS IN AMERICA.

The New York Times of the 10th inst., says the committee on foreign relations in the Senate have reported a Bill providing for the admission of six Japanese young men, to be selected by the Government of Japan, to the Military Academy at West Point. It received brief consideration, and then was laid over for future consideration. There is some objection to its passage, but not enough probably to prevent it. Mr. Thurman objects to our training in the art of war the youth of other nations, which may employ that knowledge in the future against us, and he seems to think this would be regarded as a precedent for admitting to the same school students from the South American Republics and the nations of Europe, from which there would be a great rush immediately on the promulgation of this action of our Government. Mr. Carpenter also objects to the Bill. Messrs. Cameron, Morton, Sumner, and Cole all favour it. Mr. Mori, the Japanese Charge d'Affairs, is exceedingly anxious for its passage.

LECTURE ON CHINA.—A lecture was delivered last night at the Assembly Rooms, Blackheath, by Mr. Herbert Lawrence, on the subject of "China and the Chinese." The lecturer divided his subject into two sections, the first of which treated upon the geographical features of the "Flowery Land," and some of the peculiar manners and customs of its people contrasted with those of Western nations. The second part of the lecture was devoted to a brief notice in detail of the religion and literature of the Chinese, including some telling remarks upon the foreign policy pursued from time immemorial by the Government. On the whole, so far as could be done in the brief space of time at the lecturer's disposal, he gave a tolerably comprehensive description of the country and its people, and his efforts met with the appreciation they deserved from the audience assembled. It should be mentioned that the lecture was illustrated by dissolving views, of native Chinese design, and in many instances of execution also, which served to render Mr. Lawrence's descriptive remarks much clearer than they otherwise would have been. Among the best of the pictures shown waa a portrait of Chung How. Mr. Fittock, H.B.M.'s Consul at Ningpo, occupied the chair.

M. JEAN BARTHELEMY ARLES-DUFOUR died a few days since at Lyons. His name will be familiar to our readers as the head of an old established silk trading firm, having its head quarters in Lyons, and branches in Paris and London. In France, however, he was universally known as one of the originators, and among the chief supporters of free trade principles, and as having exerted himself to establish the Anglo-French Commercial Treaty. M. Arles was born at Lyons in 1805, and was consequently sixty-seven years of age at the time of his death. He assumed the name of Dufour on his marriage with a lady of that name, belonging to a well-known mercantile family at Lyons. M. Arles-Dufour was attached to the juries at the International Exhibitions of Paris and London in 1849, 1851, and 1855. He received the decoration of the Legion of Honour in 1837, was made officer of the Order in 1854, and commander in 1860.

IN the report which appeared in our last issue of the case of Lane v. Lay, in the Court of Exchequer, the closing paragraph was by mistake omitted. It should have run as follows:—Sir John Karslake, Q.C., moved for a rule nisi to set aside the verdict, or to enter it for the defendant, on the ground that the plaintiff had committed a breach of insubordination in acting in a manner utterly contrary to the letter and spirit of the contract he had signed, and had really dismissed himself. The Court, consisting of the Lord Chief Baron, and Barons Martin, Channell, and Cleasby, granted the rule.

A TELEGRAM has been received at the Admiralty stating that some cases of small-pox had occurred on board H.M.S. Orontes, which vessel is conveying the 80th Foot to Singapore. The Orontes has accordingly been detained at Gibraltar.

The California Assembly has adopted a resolution in favour of a petition being sent to Congress restricting Chinese immigration.

BARON OUTREY, the French Minister in Japan, is now in Paris.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Jan. 23.

After the magnificent projects for establishing new steam companies here, the promoters of these schemes have discovered that they were going ahead rather too fast, and that though competition is a very good thing in its way, it is still possible to overshoot the mark. The two companies mentioned in my last have therefore somewhat drawn in their horns and amalgamated themselves into one company under the style and title of "The German Transatlantic Steamship Company," which has just issued its prospectus, with the names of the following gentlemen and financial institutions as the promoters and directors for the first five years:—The Anglo-German Bank, August Behn, Berkfeld and Michahelles, Rudolph Brach, Des Arts and Co., Hundelker and Abegg, F. Laeisz, Carl Meister and Co., J. F. Reimers, Ross Vidal and Co., Adolph Schön, Siemssen and Co., Benedict Schonfeld, Robert Miles Slowman, A. Tesdorff and Co., and Vorwerk Brothers, and Co.—all of Hamburg; J. H. and G. F. Bauer, and M. Mathieson and Co., of Altona; and the Berlin Handelsgesellschaft, the Deutsche Bank, Mendelssohn and Co., and Schickler Brothers, all of Berlin. The capital of the company is fixed at twelve million thalers, in 60,000 shares of 200 thalers each; but only one half will be issued at present, and o that half 40 per cent. will be required to be paid up as a first instalment The above-named firms have subscribed for all the shares; but nevertheless a certain amount will be offered to the public at par to try the feeling of the money market; and as an inducement to capitalists they are to receive interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum during the two years that are required for building the steamers and making the needful preparations for the organisation of the service. In the prospectus great stress is laid on the alleged fact that the number of passengers and quantity of goods from this port to New York have increased so much of late that the Hamburg-American Company, with all the means at their command, are unable to forward them and are obliged to leave a great many behind. The truth of this statement, however, is emphatically denied by that company, who explain that of the fifty-one steamers that left for New York last year thirty-one could have taken far more passengers and freight had it been offered them, and that on only twenty occasions were the vessels full. It is not to be expected that that company will sit quietly and let their new competitors take the profits out of their hands after having had all the trouble and risk of developing the trade with America and other parts, and now beginning to reap the fruits of their energy and patience, for though it is perfectly true, as stated in the prospectus, that during the four or five last years they have been able to declare large dividends, the directors of the new company take care not to say anything about the first ten years of their existence, when they had to struggle against many difficulties, and paid no dividend at all. This would have discouraged most people, and indeed it is said that on several occasions the directors were so disgusted with the results that they were on the point of liquidating the concern. As the affairs now stand it will be no easy matter to lift them out of the saddle, as they have many advantages in their favour.

Just before Christmas the new gold coins that are in future to be the currency of Germany were seen here and there at Berlin, as some were struck off for the use of the Emperor and Empress, who paid for their purchases of presents for the members of the Imperial family, the Court officials, and other persons of distinction, in the new coinage. Since then, larger quantities have been put in circulation, and find great favour with the public as being so much more handy and convenient, as well as portable, than the great, heavy, massive silver thalers now in use. But with regard to the workmanship displayed the complaints are loud and general. I have not as yet had an opportunity of seeing any, but the Berlin press is unanimous in condemning them as a failure. Take for instance the judgment of the Berlin Borsen Courier, one of the great financial organs of the Stock Exchange and the banks in that city, which is as follows:—"We regret to state that the new gold twenty-mark pieces are of such a nature that Prussia has every reason to feel ashamed before all Germany that the Berlin Mint is not able to turn out a more impressive-looking coin. We will pass over without comment the fact that the Emperor's head is a very poor likeness, as the engraving was done in a hurry, though the rough appearance of the hair of the head and beard exceeds perhaps the limits of justification. But the unfinished state of the edges of the coins can admit of no excuse, and the three last letters of the impressed legend Gott mitt uns are not visible at all. We can fancy such to be the production of a common iron-smith, unaccustomed to do fine work. If we send out coins of such very inferior and even wretched workmanship to preach the gospel of the newly-resuscitated German Empire, we shall excite more laughter, ridicule, and scorn than respect. The French will again call us barbarians—and this time not without reason—when they see our new coinage, as it is certainly not adapted to give any one a favourable idea of an advanced state of art or our progress in metallurgy."

A great zoological curiosity has just been received here, and creates a great sensation. It is a double-horned rhinoceros (R. bicornis Sumatranus) from Sumatra, shipped via Singapore and England. It is a young female, only two years old, but she appears to be quite tame, and arrived in excellent condition, enjoying herself much, after her long confinement in a cage on board ship, in the roomy park at her disposal in the Zoological Gardens.

Siamese orders have arrived at Berlin for the Emperor, the Crown Prince, Prince Frederick Charles, Prince Bismark, Count Moltke, and Count Eulenburg.

The Emperor has made the following appointments:—Herr Heinrich Ebell, hitherto Prussian Consular Agent at Macao, to be Vice-Consul for Germany at that port; and Herr Otto Sielken, Acting Consul at Batavia for the North-German Confederation, to be Consul at that port for the German Empire.

Among the new directors of the Danish Amalgamated Telegraph Companies is Mr. Consul Helland, of the firm of Messrs. John Burd and Co., Hong Kong.

COMMERCIAL.

The tea market is firm, but business is slack. Two cargoes of table rice have arrived from Java, which came to a good market, and were sold at high prices in the absence of better descriptions. For Cassia Lignea there is no demand, and the article is dull, and might be bought lower, say at 11 to 11¼ sch. bco. On the other hand, Flores is firm and looking up There is a rise in the value of Camphor, both refined and rough, the former selling easily at 13 sch. bco. Pepper is stronger than it was, and there has been a fair amount of business done, Singapore fetching 6⅞ and 6⅞ sch. bco. It is now not to be had under 7 sch, bco. Spelter is rising, and the following sales are reported:—1,000 centners loco at 14½ marks banco per centner; 1,000 do., also loco, at 14¾ marks banco, and 2,500 do., for spring delivery, at 14⅝ marks banco.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 24.

The First Chamber of the States General has approved of the Bill ratifying the treaty with England respecting the transfer of our colonies on the West Coast of Africa by a majority much larger than in the Second Chamber, viz., 29 against 6 votes. Despite the opposition of the leading paper of the Conservative party, most of the Tory Lords voted in favour of the Bill; but, nevertheless, one of the adorateurs of Mr. Heemskerk, Professor Vreede, has endeavoured to prevent the treaties being finally ratified by the King. He organised a monster petition, and reckoned upon a host of signatures, because the whole press, without distinction of politics, had condemned the transfer as being derogatory to our national honour. The document accuses the Government of keeping secret some important papers when the members of the Second Chamber dealt with the subject, and that they only permitted the Upper House access to them. It is the general opinion that these papers have exercised a great influence upon the decision of the First Chamber, and many rumours are circulating with regard to their contents. The endeavours of Mr. Vreede were unavailing; the King has ratified the treaty, and the transfer is un fait accompli.

In my last letter I stated briefly that the treaty referring to the trade of Sumatra had been approved of unanimously by the First Chamber. The discussions which preceded this decision were short but interesting. Mr. Duymaer van Twist made an admirable speech, in which he stated that the treaty afforded the best proof that it was no longer our policy to extend our territory to "squeeze" the natives and to exclude other nations. That system has been given up a long time ago. In 1824 we concluded a treaty with England about Sumatra, but with no other intention than to monopolise all the advantages ourselves. Many complaints from English residents resulted from the stipulations of that treaty, and it was necessary that it should be altered according to more modern principles. The Government has succeeded, and he thought that the present treaty will tend to establish a closer alliance and friendship between England and Holland. Mr. Hartsen, a pur sang Conservative, was not at all satisfied with the treaty. He would have wished that that of 1824 had been maintained; our rights in Sumatra were well secured by it, and we should not have listened to the complaints of English residents and the Government of Great Britain. We have now not only to protect our own trade and shipping, but also foreign residents and their possessions, and many difficulties will arise. Holland will have all the trouble, and foreigners all the benefit. How can—he asked—this treaty be regarded as any compensation for the transfer of our Settlements on the West Coast of Africa to England? The Minister of the Colonial Department replied in a very able speech to the objections against the treaty. He demonstrated that it was a great advantage that the limits of our possessions in Sumatra were now marked out in such a way that no differences or misunderstandings could arise, which was not the case with the treaty of 1824. Holland is no longer bound to respect the independence of the Empire of Atsjin, and the obligations with which we charge ourselves we are well able to fulfil. Of course—the Minister said—we shall not make any costly extensions of our territory. He defended the principle (Art. 3) that England and Holland should communicate to each other any treaties they may conclude with the Inland Princes, and the objection that England might not act fairly in this respect he stigmatised as an unfounded insinuation. He acknowledged that to maintain our authority in Sumatra would henceforth cost more than hitherto; but, on the other hand, he was of opinion that the extra outlay should be more than covered by the extension of trade and industry which must take place. That the admission of foreigners will be hurtful to our interests the Minister denied, and his final conclusion was that the treaty would forward the interest of all parties. These are the principal topics of the debate, which would fill several pages, were I to attempt to translate it in its entirety. The members of the First Chamber have since left the Hague, and the Second Chamber will not meet until the last week in February.

Much sensation has been caused here by a Batavia telegram through Reuter's office, dated the 18th inst., and reporting that much damage had been done by inundations. It is somewhat reassuring that not one word in allusion to this disaster appears in a despatch received to-day by the Dutch Java Trading Bank. Nevertheless, a committee has been organised to raise money on behalf of the sufferers if the news should prove to be true.

The Second Chamber has received further petitions against the revision of the East India tariff. They were forwarded by the Chamber of Trade of Oldenzaal and by Mr. Petrus Regout.

The steamer Prins van Oranje will leave Texel on the 3rd prox. for Batavia. The number of passengers is already very large.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

A quiet tone continues to prevail in business generally, but the apprehensions of a renewed interruption of our navigation by frost are disappearing in the same ratio as the season is advancing, so that a more general resumption of the export trade may be looked forward to. Meanwhile, a favourable tone continues to prevail in most of our leading articles of produce, and prices remain upon the whole unaltered. In Sugar and Coffee a fair amount of business has been doing.

COFFEE.—Prices continue to be well maintained, in the proportion of 43c. for good ordinary Company's Java, without, however, the demand being active, and transactions from second hands are on a limited scale. Sales have been closed since my last of the following shipments of private importation, viz., 2,785 bags Java, ex Voorlichter; 500 bags Passaroean, ex Rotterdam; 2,000 bags Java, ex Batavia; 590 bags, ex Prins van Oranje (str.); 2,030 bags, ex Maria Diederika; 700 bags, ex Voorlichter.

TEA remains in a firm position, without, however, any sales taking place to afford a criterion of the market.

RICE.—No transactions from first hands, but the recent arrivals of Java table may soon be expected to be placed on the market, which will probably lead to business.

SPICES.—A good demand had manifested itself for Nutmegs and Mace, of which the following shipments were disposed of at full rates:—63 casks, 2 barrels, and 17 chests Nutmegs, 31 casks, 38 barrels, and 35 chests Mace, ex Vier Gebroeders, Noach II., and Stad Middelburg, and by public auction 68 casks Nutmegs, of which A, 47 casks, at 190c. to 193c.; and B, 21 casks, at 188c. to 189c.—all ex Vier Gebroeders.

INDIGO.—Forty-eight chests Java placed on the market last Tuesday for sale by secret tender have been disposed of at very full rates. No further business has since been doing, but as soon as the remaining parcels, lately arrived, make their appearance in the market, more activity will no doubt prevail, as a good demand continues to be shown for the article.

TIN.—The demand remains dormant. Banca has sold for usual prompt at f.85, and for delivery ex the coming spring's sale at f.86 to f.86½, whilst Billiton has changed hands afloat at f.84½, f.84¾, and f.85¼.

SUGAR has been in brisk demand, and several shipments of Java have changed hands, mostly in barter against refined. At Amsterdam 14,500 piculs Java No. 19/20 found buyers at f.1 above November prices. Yellow sorts are readily sold at the parity of November.

TOBACCO (Java).—Sales have been closed of 1,171 bales Java (Scrubs), mark K. and K. K.; 610 bales Java, mark V. L. Kedirie; 425 bales Java, mark B. L. C.; 560 bales Java, mark H. L.; 1,014 bales Java, mark B. O. and B. O. S.; 931 bales Java, mark C./Blitar; 627 bales Java, mark C.; 75 bales Java, mark H.; 961 bales Java, mark C./Blitar; 415 bales Java, mark N.P., P.E., and P.K.; 300 bales Java, mark P. S. Blitar, ex County of Berwick; 170 bales Java, mark P. S. Blitar, ex Jacob van Lennep; and 290 bales Java, mark P. S. Blitar, ex H. W. M., all afloat.

TORTOISE-SHELL.—Three chests, about 3½ cwt., of recent direct importation from Macassar, ex Vier Gebroeders, changed hands at full prices.

TERRA JAPONICA.—Prime Pegu Cutch in chests sold at f.16½ for favourite brands. Gambier is held for f.12¼.

RATTANS.—Sales have been closed of 90 piculs, ex Yokohama.

COCOA NUT OIL.—Out of about 73 tons prime white Cochin, ex Lancashire Witch, put up at public auction here on the 18th inst., about 20 tons passed the hammer at f.27. The remaining 53 tons were bought in at f.27¼.

HIDES.—Sales have been closed by private contract as follows, viz., 1,328 Batavia Buffaloes, over weight 8½ to 8¾ kilos., ex Yokohama, at 32½c. to 34c., and by secret tender on account of damage of several parcels, ex the same vessel. About 15,143 Samarang cows, marked MN, ex China, more or less damaged, have been realised at Amsterdam at very full prices, even much in excess of the valuations.

THE CHINA COOLIE TRADE.

THE Appeal of the Attorney-General of Hong Kong v. KWOK-A-SING has been published. It sets forth that the French ship La Nouvelle Pénélope sailed from Macao in September, 1870, with 310 coolie emigrants, under a charter-party for Peru, and having complied with all the formalities of the law. Five days afterwards KWOK-A-SING and others of the emigrants rose, and murdered the officers, and sailed back to China, with some money which they were said to have appropriated on the occasion of the rising. The 21st Article of the Treaty of Tientsin provides that "If criminals, subjects of China, shall take refuge in Hong Kong, "or on board British ships there, they shall, upon due requisition by the Chinese authorities, be searched for, and, "on proof of their guilt, be delivered up." KWOK-A-SING who had been committed by the magistrate, was discharged by the Hon. Chief Justice SMALE, on the ground that the Ordinance passed to give effect to extradition treaties did not apply to the above article; that the crime charged was, if anything, piracy jure gentium, and justiciable by the Supreme Court of Hong Kong; that the Nouvelle Pénélope was in effect a slave ship; and that the depositions disclosed no offence whatever on the part of KWOK-A-SING. The rendition of KWOK-A-SING was first demanded on behalf of the French Government, but their claim was abandoned when the Chief Justice's decision was published. When the French Consul withdrew his claim the Attorney-General arrested KWOK-A-SING with the view to his trial before the Supreme Court in Hong Kong, but he was again discharged by the Chief Justice, who ruled that the offence charged in the second warrant of commitment was the same as that in the first, and that the prisoner could not be committed twice for the same offence, notwithstanding that a majority of the jury dissented from his Lordship's direction—which we may remark, by the way, they had no right to do.

On the 5th of April last Mr. Chief Justice SMALE, after taking occasion to state that "he had thought the mat- "ter over till his health had more than once become un- "equal to the occasion," confirmed his decision that the Nouvelle Pénélope was fitted up as a slaver, and that the Chinamen shipped in her were not "emigrants" within the Act. The Chief Justice also found that the captain had robbed KWOK A-SING and others of his companions of valuable property on the high seas, and that he was therefore a pirate. Within a short period (added the Chief Justice) six or seven ships, carrying about 3,000 coolies, had been burned or otherwise destroyed, with immense loss of life, in consequence of practices like those which prevailed on the Nouvelle Pénélope. For example, sixteen coolies, charged with the same offence as KWOK-A-SING had been beheaded under the order of the French Consul at Canton, and "men sickened at the scene." In the case of KWOK-A-SING the Chief Justice said it was not really the Chinese mandarins who demanded the rendition of the prisoner, but the French Consul —who, although the alleged crime was committed on board French ship, knew that in the eye of French as of English law the prisoner had been guilty of no crime. Such was the basis of the judgment against which the Attorney-General appealed, and we cannot see anything in it to shake our confidence in its propriety, or to account for the subsequent vacillation of the Chief Justice.

THE HONG KONG EMIGRATION ORDINANCE.

WE have received the full text of the Ordinance (No. 8 for 1871) modifying the regulations of the Chinese Passengers' Act of 1855. The application of this ordinance is expressly limited to Chinese passenger ships, being British vessels, clearing out on a voyage of not more than thirty days, and Chinese ships, of whatever nationality, proceeding to sea with passengers from Hong Kong. By the present Ordinance it is required that nine superficial and fifty-four cubical feet of space shall be reserved for every adult on board; that the height between decks shall be at least six feet; that a proper space shall be set apart and fitted up as a sick ward; that awnings shall be provided on deck; and that deck passengers shall have a space exclusive of others. Provisions, fuel, and water are to be at the rate of 1⅓lb. of rice or bread stuffs per passenger per diem, with ⅓lb. of fish, one ounce of curry stuff, 1⅓lb. of fresh vegetables, 2lbs. of firewood, and one gallon of water. The owners or charterers of the ship are to pay the fees of the emigration officer—$25 on both the application for, and the granting of, the necessary certificate; and the commander is liable to a fine of $500 if he neglects to show his papers within twenty-four hours after his arrival at any port. It is also required that the exact number of emigrants "under contracts of service" shall be stated in the certificate, and that their contracts shall be inspected by the emigration officer at the port of departure.

THE lengthened review of China trade by the Count de ROCHECHOUART has naturally attracted much attention, and will be read with interest by all who have the cause of civilisation and the extension of commerce in China at heart. The French Minister's paper is not only lengthy, but exhaustive; every sentence exhibits the result of acute observation and far-seeing prudence. Some allowance must be made for the imperfect and cramped style of the translation—which we reprint in another column—but these blemishes do not in any material sense detract from the value of a document which bears in its every sentence the impress of being composed by the thoughtful representative of an ally who has too long mistrusted her own powers of colonisation and improvement. If France can now be brought to co-operate in earnest with England, Germany, and America in the development of the Far East, there is no reason why her honourable rivalry in this direction should not put the other Powers we have named fairly on their mettle to the benefit of all.

AT a meeting of the Straits Association, held last week, the discussion of the Treaty with reference to Sumatra was postponed, as there was no copy of the document before the meeting. We learn that a telegram has been received from the Straits Association at Penang, expressing fear that the third article of the Treaty will greatly interfere with the freedom of trade with Sumatra. Resolutions were passed recognising the necessity for improved means of communication between Singapore and New Harbour, and that a railway is essential for that purpose. There was a difference of opinion as to whether it would be advisable for the Government to construct the line, and whether it would not be better carried out by a private company, looking to the excessive cost of Government House and other works as compared with the estimate formed by the Colonial staff.

IN another column we publish a letter of "A Straitsman," to which we should not have drawn especial attention if it did not reflect, so faithfully as it does, public opinion in the Settlements to which it refers. There is no need to accumulate evidence of the gross mismanagement on which our correspondent animadverts so justly. It remains for the residents themselves to insist on a better state of things than the present; and all we can do is to point to "A Straitsman's" letter as a fair commentary on a system, as disgraceful to the Home, as it is scandalous to the Local Government.

THE new Governor of Ceylon, the Right Hon. W. H. GREGORY, with Mrs. GREGORY and Captain MAXWELL, his aide-de-camp, left London on Monday last, the 22nd inst. He will proceed to Ceylon by the P. and O. steamer, which is due at Galle on the 3rd March. Sir HERCULES ROBINSON, the late Governor, has returned home by the present mail. The telegram published a fortnight since stating that Sir HERCULES had proceeded to Hong Kong proves to have been erroneous.

THE Gazette contains the appointment of Mr. W. H. LAY as Her MAJESTY'S Consul at Chefoo, consequent on the death of Mr. MARKHAM. Mr. JAMES MONGAN, Consul at Tientsin, has received an extension of leave, and will not return to his post until April or May next. Mr. LAY will therefore probably remain for the present at Tientsin, and Mr. MAYERS at Chefoo.

A REPLY has been received by the Chairman of the Straits Association from the Foreign-office, on the subject of the Sumatra treaty, to the effect that until the final ratification has been concluded with the Dutch Government a copy of the treaty cannot be supplied.

THE fourteen young Chinese who were sent from Canton to Paris to be educated have been placed at the colleges of St. Louis and Louis le Grand. They have all adopted the European dress with the exception of their guardian, who retains his native costume.

THE appointments of Senor JOAS JOAQUIM REMEDIOS as Consul-General, and of Senor AGOSTINHO GUILHERME ROMANO as Vice-Consul at Hong Kong for the Portuguese Government, have been approved of by Her MAJESTY.

WE learn that the King of HOLLAND has ratified the Treaty concluded with the British Government referring to the trade of Sumatra, which was lately approved of by the Dutch Parliament.

THE FRENCH MINISTER ON THE CHINA TRADE.

Count de Rochechouart, Chargé d'Affaires for France at Peking, publishes in the Journal des Economistes a paper of some length on the commerce of China, with the view of directing the attention of his countrymen to the immense field for trade open to them in the Far East, but in which they have hitherto taken so small a part, not only from a want of spirit of enterprise, but also from a lack of information as to the chief centres of affairs, the system of exchanges in those parts, and the kind of goods which are chiefly required for the consumption of the native population. Of the northern ports Tientsin and Chefoo are those which appear to the writer to present the greatest promise of future development. The Customs revenues of the former during the first quarter of 1871 amounted to Tls. 43,398, against Tls. 27,332 in the same period of 1869, or an increase of over Tls. 16,000 in two years. At Chefoo the extension is still more remarkable, the amount having increased from Tls. 40,091 to Tls. 79,216. As Peking and the Korea are destined sooner or later to be open to foreign trade, those two ports will become important markets—Tientsin for articles of luxury, of which Peking may be expected to make a large consumption; the other for the trade of the Korea, which has yet to be created. The three ports on the Yangtsze Kiang are little frequented by Europeans; the trade of Kiukiang is rapidly decreasing, notwithstanding the facility of introducing merchandise in the heart of the Empire by Lake Poyang and its affluents; Chinkiang is recovering, and has again become the seat of trade with the provinces of Shantung; at Hankow, which place enjoyed a momentary prosperity during the Taiping rebellion, the greater part of the European houses are closed. Several Russian tea houses are, however, thriving, and now export direct to Odessa without passing by way of Shanghai, as formerly. The decay of Ningpo has been so rapid that no one can be found to occupy gratuitously the residence of the Consul, who is now transferred to Foochow. This latter port, although occupying a prominent position as a centre of exports, is one of the least important for its imports. While 48,000 pieces of cotton goods entered the port of Kiukiang, one of the smallest, in the first quarter of 1871, the imports of the same article at Foochow were 2,650 only. This situation is owing to the transit dues imposed in the province of Fohkien for the creation of an arsenal and other causes, and which have driven the imports to take a less costly route.

Shanghai is the Empress port of the extreme East and the chief seat of the foreign trade. It is the place of export for the silk sent from China, but a considerable quantity of the teas formerly shipped from there are now exported direct from Kiukiang and Hankow. The towns on the Blue River and even Ningpo derive their chief supplies from there. The climate is agreeable, and the great epidemics which formerly ravaged the town have now become rare. Swatow is important for the cultivation of sugar, and a large refinery recently established there promises magnificent results. Canton lives on its former renown, but has in reality ceased to be a commercial centre, but it is still the port where smuggling is most largely practised.

The statistics given by Count de Rochechouart refer only to the first quarter of 1871. In that period the import and export duties amounted to Tls. 1,812,576, but the first quarter of the year is the dead season in China, as the tea and silk, which are the chief articles of export, only make their appearance on the markets at the end of May. Moreover, navigation is completely interrupted by ice between Shanghai and the northern ports during the months of January and February, and partially so on the Blue River by an insufficiency of water. The returns for the previous years give the total revenue for twelve months as £3,200 000, which sum, being calculated as an ad valorem duty of five per cent., represents a trade of £64,000,000. As, however, many of the articles are estimated below their value, are exempt from duty, or enter contraband, the total commerce of China is probably not less than £80 000,000. Of the sum of Tls. 1,812,576, received during the first quarter of 1871, the imports produced Tls. 416,090, and the opium tax Tls. 379.502. The largest sum, Tls. 290,636, was received at Shanghai, and the smallest, Tls. 31, at Kiukiang. Next to the grey and white shirtings, of which 2,955,311 pieces were imported in those three months, the stuffs most in demand are T-cloths, prints, and drills. The Customs tables also show a considerable trade in cotton, damask, muslin, cambric, cotton-velvet, and handkerchiefs. The Chinese prefer to buy these plain and dye them themselves. The colours usually worn by the working classes in the south are white or blue, but in the north they are more varied and it is the fashion to adopt a new one every year. Burnt ochre, black and bottle green have been successively worn. The colder climate of the north also requires a change of clothing according to the season, and that opens a market for a greater variety of productions. The woollen stuffs imported are camlets, lastings, lustrine, long cells, and Spanish stripes. The supremacy of England on the market is incontestable, but the Germans and Russians furnish a large share of the lower woollen goods. According to the writer the English and the Germans are almost the only European nations which trade in opium; the Americans and French only deal in it accidentally on speculation. This commerce is rather the speciality of the Parsee houses established in China, and some Jewish firms.

Notwithstanding the mineral wealth of China, the metals form a large part of the import trade. In the environs of Peking six or seven kinds of coal are to be found, varying from anthracite to a coal so ligneous and impregnated with sulphur that it will burn on applying a lighted match. Traces of iron, copper, lead, and silver are also found everywhere, yet the native manufacture is quite insignificant. Count de Rochechouart remarks that the Chinese Customs returns are very incomplete, excepting where the English trade is concerned. No special mention is made of French wines, preserves, clocks, or Paris articles, yet there are dozens of wine merchants at Shanghai, and five or six houses trade only in Paris articles, with Swiss and Belgian imitations. At Peking one is astonished at the quantity of European fancy goods that are found in the shops, and everything may be purchased, from toilet-soap and pomatum to chimney clocks and jewellery. One Swiss house imports hundreds of thousands of watches, yet no mention is made of them in the Customs returns.

All the attempts to introduce Lyonnese silks into China have hitherto failed. Negotiations were, however, opened about three years back between an English house at Chefoo and a company at Lyons, and samples were sent, but without result. There was a slight difference between the cost price named by the manufacturer and that at which the merchant declared a sale to be possible; moreover, according to the French system, the former would only deliver on a complete sale, while the latter wished only to act as commission agent. There is, nevertheless, an opening for European silks of handsome kinds which the native industry cannot produce, and which might find a sale among the wealthy classes, but competition is hopeless for light qualities of general use. Tientsin, from its proximity to Peking, offers the best chance of success for an enterprise of this kind; the manufacturer must not, however, count on orders for sale, but must be satisfied with finding honest and intelligent agents. In fine, the chief foreign import trade in China is from England, which possesses 87 per cent. of the total. The United States have little more than drills as an article of import. The Germans have no speciality, and trade on smaller rates of profits than the English or Americans. As for the French, their share is very insignificant, and there are scarcely a dozen houses on the whole coast of China; and this notwithstanding the bi-monthly service of the Messageries steamers, the establishment of a branch of the Comptoir d'Escompte, and the presence of Consuls and Consular agents, whose constant efforts aim at increasing the commercial relations of France in this country. French merchants, it is said, do not like speculative ventures, but there is nothing less uncertain than the trade with China.

The direct export trade of France from China is still less important, and among the firms which export silk are only to be found one French house and two Swiss. Yet of the 45,000 bales produced in China annually from 30,000 to 35,000 bales are taken for France. With such a consumption it is difficult to understand why recourse should be had to foreign intermediaries, and that the market for silk should be at London instead of Lyons or Marseilles. The northern ports of China are deficient in articles of export. At Tientsin, while the import duties in the three months of 1871 amounted to Tls. 29,000, the export dues did not exceed Tls. 5,000. Most of the steamers return to Shanghai in ballast, and the only freight they find is gensing, liquorice, drugs, bean-flour, oil-cake, and leather of a common kind. The wool of Mongolia at one moment had been counted on to furnish an article of export, but the absence of rivers does not permit the washing of the sheep before the shearing time, and consequently renders impossible the exportation of wool gathered in such conditions. Coal might furnish the desired freight, but the Chinese Government has so far given little encouragement to the working of the mines.

The competition between the steam companies has brought about a large diminution in the rates of freight from Europe, which have fallen from f.600 per ton to f.150 or f.175. A Liverpool company was also started after the opening of the Suez Canal to convey goods at £3 per ton, and first-class passengers for £60. The sailing navigation, although diminishing each year, is still of a certain importance. Thus, of 351 vessels which entered the port of Shanghai during the first quarter of 1871, forming a total of 194,775 tons, there were 138 sailing vessels, 127 sea-going steamers, 59 river steamers, and 29 Chinese junks. Of the sailing vessels 102 were from the Coast, 15 from England, 2 from America, 8 from Australia, 3 from Hong Kong, 27 from Japan, and one each from Holland, Manila, and Siam. Of the steamers 133 were from the Coast or the Yangtsze, 34 from Europe or Hong Kong, and 17 from Japan.

The banking operations are shared by a few large establishments at Shanghai and Hong Kong; these are the Comptoir d'Estompte of Paris, the Oriental Bank, the Mercantile Bank, the Chartered Bank, and, lastly, the most recent of all, but not the least important, the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank. Each of them enjoys an almost unlimited credit, and together can meet all the requirements of trade whatever development it may attain.

Monetary and Commercial.

At a meeting of the directors of the India-Rubber, Gutta-Percha and Telegraph Works Company it was resolved to recommend a dividend of £2 5s. per share, making, with the interim dividend paid in August last, a distribution at the rate of 10 per cent. for the year, to write off £30,000 from the patents, goodwill, and depreciation account, and to carry forward £16,519.

The provisional official liquidators of the European Assurance Society have received directions to notify that a winding-up order having been made, it is not necessary for a policy-holder to pay his renewal premium in order to keep alive his claim against the company in liquidation.

Notice has been given that the firm of Hall and Holtz, of St. Benet's-place, Gracechurch-street, has ceased to exist. The business will be carried on for the future by Messrs. Thomas Alexander Cowderoy and Mr. Henry Powell Rainbow, at 5, New London-street, under the style of Cowderoy and Rainbow.

At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. John Howells, of Bradford, near Manchester, iron and mineral merchant, the creditors agreed to accept a composition of 2s. 6d. in the pound, payable in three instalments, at one, six, and twelve months, and further resolved that the debtor was entitled to his discharge.

A first dividend of 1s. 6d. in the pound is payable on the estates of Messrs. John Stewart and Co., of Liverpool, and Messrs. Macdonald, Tweedie, and Co., of Bombay, whose failure was reported some eighteen months since.

The demand for Bar Silver for the East has almost ceased; prices have therefore declined, and may now be quoted as about 5s. 0¼d. to 5s. 1d. per oz. standard. For Mexican Dollars the demand is inactive, and prices are quite nominal at the rates last quoted, viz., new coinage 4s. 11⅜d, old 5s. 1d.

The Produce Markets Review publishes the following remarks on the subject of the mixing and packing of Teas:—

The quality of a good deal of the Tea that is sold as superior and best is little superior to fair common Congou, and the tea is besides largely mixed with dust. The unfair manner in which most of the recently imported Kaisows are packed (some of the parcels containing nearly 50 per cent. of dust) is most unsatisfactory, and the practice has been, very properly, severely condemned by the trade. We regret to say, too, that many chops of Black leaf are little better. The demand at present is so large that it almost exceeds the supply; the consequence is that the wholesale dealers are at the moment practically powerless to show their feeling in an effective and wholesome manner, but with seasons of large and perhaps excessive, imports, such as are certain to follow a temporary scarcity, the dealers will have opportunities which they will know how to employ. It is the large operators in China to whom we must mainly look for support to check the present objectionable practices; they are at least as much interested in the matter as the dealers, and being on the spot have opportunities for making Teamen feel in a practical manner that it is not to their interest to pack tea unfairly. The systematic admixture of dust with the leaf was unknown in former years, and the early importations this season were in this respect satisfactory, and led us to hope that a general improvement had at last taken place, but recent importations show the reverse to be the case.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Privately there has been a moderate inquiry for yellow Bengal, and on the spot about 250 tons Ballam have been sold at 8s. 9d. ex quay; also 1,500 bags Madras at 10s. 3d, ex quay, and 9,300 bags fine Rangoon at 10s. 9d. For arrival 200 tons Ballam have been sold at 8s. 10½d. ex quay.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea is about 5s. per cwt. lower, as more offers; of 780 boxes offered about one-third sold at 109s. per cwt. for middling unworked. Buds: Steady, and firmly held; 185 cases at auction retired. Cloves: Unchanged; 3 cases Penang and 60 cases Amboyna retired. Cinnamon: Ceylon is dull, and has sold at auction at 2d. per lb. decline. Chips have continued in great speculative request, and more than 10,000 bags have been sold and resold at a further advance on both middling and common bark; prices for shavings being at the close for good quality:—Shaving Chips, 6½d.; Bark, 3½d. Mace is quiet, and of 278 cases at auction only a small portion was sold at 3s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. for ordinary to very good. Nutmegs have been dealt in to a fair extent, and prices are unchanged. At public sale of 384 cases offered a fair proportion sold. The market closes flat.

SAPANWOOD.—Ceylon is steady but quiet, with few transactions. For Manila and Siam a good inquiry prevails, but there is scarcely any on offer.

SAGO has been largely dealt in, and prices have advanced 1s. to 1s. 6d. per cwt.; at the close, however, the market is quieter. Of 761 boxes, and 9,753 bags at auction, a fair proportion of the latter sold, large 18s. 6d. to 19s.; small, 18s. to 18s. 6d. Flour is also dearer by 6d. per cwt., with considerable trade in Singapore at 16s. to 16s. 3d., and Borneo 16s. 9d. A large parcel of the latter has sold afloat at 16s. 6d. A good inquiry still prevails.

SOY—STAR ANNISEEDS.—The supply of both these imports is very limited, and extreme prices are demanded for all parcels which are offered. No transactions are reported.

STICKLAC is also scarce; an offer of 117 cases Siam was retired at £4 5s. per cwt.

SHELLS.—The monthly sales will take place on the 30th inst., when 230 cases Mother-o'-Pearl will be offered.

TAPIOCA.—Animation has again been apparent in this article, a very large business having been done in both Singapore and Penang up to 2¾d. per lb. for fine on spot, and in the former afloat up to 2⅞d. At the close the market is steady. Flour is ¼d. per lb. dearer, and of 1,320 bags offered part brought 2¼d. per lb. for good quality.

TOBACCO.—In auction on the 25th 89 bales Manila sea-damaged chiefly sold—Ysabella 1a, 39½d. to 40d.; 2a, 11¾d. to 14d.; Cagayan 2a, 11¾d. to 13½d.; also 5 bales Java sea-damaged at 6½d.

TURMERIC.—Java is unsaleable.

TIN.—On the 23rd inst. there was a strong reaction in the market, considerable excitement prevailed, and an extensive business was done in Straits at an important advance, about 450 tons having changed hands on the spot at from £142 to £147 cash fourteen days; 80 tons February prompt at £148, 40 tons March prompt £147, while the floating sales began at £143 by sailing vessel, and closed at £148 by steamer. Since the date named prices have been very irregular, and at the close the quotations are—Straits, on the spot and afloat, £146; Billiton, £145; Banca, £147 to £148.

VERMILION.—There is no supply of China.

TEA.

The market has shown no change during the week which has elapsed since our last report. There has been a good demand for Green and Japan, at steady prices. Black has been rather quiet, but rates are without change.

COFFEE.—The quiet tone displayed in the market for Brazil since the opening of the new year has continued; there is very little demand, and prices are ¼c. lower. Other descriptions are in active inquiry on the part of both traders and speculators, and an advance of from ¼c. to 1c. per lb. has been established. In Java there have been some resales of parcels already in second hands, amounting to 21,476 mats, tending towards a further concentration of the stock, but the particulars are of no special interest, except to the parties more immediately concerned. We notice 6,358 mats per Mars, &c., from first hands, and 11,015 bags Government, both parcels being quitted on private terms.

CORDAGE.—The market for Manila is steady at the decline noted in our last report.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 16c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $3; Cassia, $2.25 gold (duty paid).

GUNNY CLOTH.—Market quiet at 16c. to 17c. for Borneo.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues very quiet at the last quoted rates, viz., 13¼c. to 13½c. gold; no transactions are reported.

INDIGO.—Manila is dull at $1.05 to 1.12½ currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $9.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 70c. to 100c. currency (duty free).

RICE continues without change; about 1,000 bags Rangoon have been quitted at $6.80 to 7 currency, and 600 bags in bond at $3.25 gold

SUGAR.—The business continues on a very moderate scale, neither buyers for refining, nor sellers being disposed to operate largely at present; the former on account of the low prices of their goods as well as the stoppage of several houses since last month, by which their wants are restricted to very moderate proportions, but more particularly to the extreme firmness of holders.

SPICES.—With but a very moderate distributing demand, dealers are not in the market for invoices, and prices are in a measure nominal. The result of the late auction sale of China Cassia, noticed below, has weakened this description, and we reduce our quotation. Batavia Cassia is unchanged. Mace is a shade lower, and Cloves are scarcely as firm as they have been. Pepper is steady. Nutmegs sell pretty freely at previous figures. Sales have been made in lots to the trade of Mace, at $1.37½ to 1.40; Penang Nutmegs, $1; China Cassia, 31c. to 31½c.; prime Batavia, 33c. to 34c.; Pepper, 17¼c. to 17½c. for Sumatra, and 18¼c. to 18½c. for Singapore, all gold, and Cassia Vera, 25 currency. By auction, 1,000 bales, containing 20,000 mats China Cassia, sold at 29½c. to 30½c. gold, cash.

TIN.—The stagnation in the market continues, and in the absence of business prices are wholly nominal. Straits is quoted 37½c. to 38c. and Banca 41½c. to 42c. gold.

The Inverary, from Yokohama, which vessel arrived at New York, Jan. 3, reported that when she was coming up the bay she went ashore on the west bank, striking heavily and starting forefoot, windlass, bitts, &c, and opening her seams throughout; she has been docked for repairs.

The Matador, Kimme, from Ilo Ilo to London, which vessel put into St. Helena leaky, Nov. 5, proceeded Dec. 23, after undergoing repairs, and reshipping part of the cargo landed; about 41 tons of sugar in broken packages were sold for £416, and about 250 tons would remain stored until a vessel could be procured to convey the same to its destination.

et Julie, in acknowledgment of his humanity and kindness to the first officer and seven seamen of the ship Taeping, of Glasgow, whom he picked up at sea on the 29th of September, in lon. 110.59 E., and lat. 9.41 N. The Taeping was lost on the Ladd's Reef, in the China Sea, on the 26th of September, being then bound from Amoy to New York with a cargo of tea. The crew left her in three boats. The master, with his boat's crew, arrived at Saigon on the 15th October; the second officer and his crew were picked up by the Serica; and the first officer and his crew were picked up by the Omer et Julie on the 29th September. Captain Sabatier treated them with the greatest kindness, and although he subsisted them for fifty days on board his vessel he refused to accept any payment. The crew were landed at Batavia on the 17th November from the Omer et Julie.

AMERICAN SEAMEN IN CHINESE PORTS.—We learn from New York that a Bill is being prepared in the United States Senate Committee of Commerce to prevent what is called "running out crews" in Chinese ports. Ships leave the States with crews answering the requisition of law, but on their arrival at Hong Kong or some other Chinese port these crews are so abused that the men desert, and Malays or Chinese are shipped at merely nominal wages. The American Consuls at these ports connive at this, in order that they may receive the fee of $10 for a certificate of desertion.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—The little attacks of illness attending childhood, though apparently trifling and evanescent, leave marks behind them when they recur frequently. The temper becomes irritable and the complexion soon grows murky. It is the duty of all having the care of children to attend instantly to their trivial maladies, for the radical removal of which Holloway's remedies have received the most encouraging and constant praise for the third of a century. These invaluable medicaments are safe and certain—they are mild in operation, yet effective in purpose, and readily applied by any attentive nurse. In all skin diseases—tetter, ringworm, toothrash, and every kind of eruption—the soothing power of Holloway's Ointment is most gratifying.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The distinguished Japanese party, headed by Iwakura, Prime Minister of Japan, coming as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the treaty Powers; Kedo, member of his Imperial Majesty's Privy Council and Assistant Ambassador; Akabo, Chief Minister of Finance and Assistant Ambassador; Ito, Assistant Minister of Public Works and Ambassador of the second rank, and Hama Guehi, Assistant Minister of Foreign Affairs and Ambassador of the second rank, left Yokohama 22nd Dec., and arrived in San Francisco on the 15th Jan. They were received with much respect, and a committee was formed to escort them from the wharf. It was expected that the party, numbering 105 persons, would leave here in eight or ten days for New York, accompanied by Mr. Charles E. De Long, American Minister, and Mr. Charles W. Brooks, Japanese Consul resident at San Francisco, by the Central and Union Pacific Railroad to Omaha; thence by special Pullman Hotel train, via Burlington and Missouri and Pennsylvania Central Railroad, through to New York without change. In addition to the above, the following passengers are reported:—For New York: David King, jun., George Hurlbut, Lieutenant Commander Abbot, United States Navy; also the Japanese Embassy, together with twenty-six attachés, sixteen secretaries and interpreters, sixteen servants and twenty-three Japanese students. Passengers for Boston: Captain C. P. Hawes, G. Farley, jun. For Chicago: G. Holmes. For Baltimore: G. Gill, Mr. Legawa, Mr. Mureta. For Omaha: G. Muller. For Europe: Captain A. D. Currie, L. R. FATAL FIRE.

A fire at the Oshiwara tea houses destroyed 400 houses, and eighty women were burned or drowned in the surrounding ditch. Fires at Yedo are reported, all caused by the careless use of kerosene.

NATIVE NAVAL TACTICS.

A naval review took place at Yedo, the Mikado being present, and apparently much interested. The United States frigate Colorado went up to be shown to the Mikado, but as the native naval review was soon to occur the Japanese begged the Minister to send her away, as she was entirely too neat looking, and the Mikado might decide to have no fleet at all, if not as well kept as the American, so the Colorado departed for China, avoiding the Korean coast.

THE MIKADO ON NATIONAL PROGRESS.

A late edict of the Mikado says :—

My country is now undergoing a complete change from old to new ideas, which I sincerely desire, therefore I call upon all the wise and strong-minded to appear and become good guides to the Government. During youth-time it is positively necessary to view foreign countries, so as to become enlightened as to the ideas of the world, and boys as well as girls, who will themselves become men and women, should be allowed to go abroad, and my country will be benefited by their knowledge so acquired. Females heretofore have had no position socially, because it was considered they were without understanding, but if educated and intelligent they should have due respect. Six young Japanese women of rank go to America in care of Mrs. De Long, to be sent to some seminary of learning at the expense of the Government.

RELATIONS WITH HAWAII.

The Consul-Generalship of the Hawaiian Islands has again been accepted by Mr. E. M. Vanseed, and his exequatur has therefore been issued by the Japanese Government.

MARKETS.

Imports dull, the price of silk fully maintained. The average amount of teas is settled without change. Exchange 4s. 6d.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Advices from this port extend to the 22nd December; the French mail with London dates Oct. 27 arrived out Dec. 15. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald :—

We are at present experiencing exceptionally cold weather, the thermometer having marked as low as 19 degrees. Ice in the neighbourhood has been "bearing," and numbers have been out on ponds behind Hongkew. The ice bears without much risk, though some few fell in, from accident or incautiousness. The ponds, however, being seldom more than six inches in depth, there is nothing more serious to be apprehended than wet and muddy feet; but the ice-farmer's interest interferes with the skater's pleasure. Such a store of the luxury is being laid up in this productive weather that we should expect next hot season to see it cheaper and better than usual. Several houseboats are coming back, badly damaged by ice in the creeks up country. The Paper Hunts have had to be suspended on account of the frost.

The public have had thrown open to them a new route for through telegrams via Russia. The international correspondence is attended to by Danish employes of the Russian Government, and so complete has the system proved that messages have been received here from London in nineteen hours, time which it is hoped will be surpassed considerably after a few months' working. But the first consideration for the public is, that the opening of the Russian line lowers rates very considerably. The advantage of having two telegraphic routes to Europe, as a precaution against stoppage, is sufficiently great; but the projectors can scarcely have anticipated the extremity to which that advantage would be pushed. We are informed, however, that in the absence of direct communication, a telegram has been sent to, and an answer received from, Hong Kong via London, thus doubling the whole of the Old World to obtain information from a place only 800 miles away.

A fire has occurred among the Chinese houses at the corner of Foochow and Shantung-roads. The first alarm was from a tailor's shop there, which was immediately wrapped in flames inside, and threatened a large conflagration among the houses adjoining and in rear. Time had not elapsed for appliances to arrive ere the flames had become very fierce, thoroughly enveloping the house and communicating with the foreign hong alongside by the roof. The wind was fortunately very slight, but drew in rather an unfavourable direction, north east, and the fire seized with startling swiftness on the continuation of the row in which it appeared. The first check offered to it was by extincteurs, which, ineffective from the distance at which the operator was obliged to work owing to the great heat, proved more useful when taken inside the houses next the fire and played from under the shelter of the walls. The hooks and ladders at once began to cut off the connection at about the fourth house from the corner; but when the engines got into play it became apparent that they would be quite able to keep the fire from spreading further in that direction, and this was therefore given up. Besides the French and English truck companies, the engines were on the ground with creditable speed, and quickly disposed themselves wherever water was to be found. The native householders cleared their houses of movables as fast as possible, and many of them must have passed the night in a miserable plight. The fire department did good service, but the interior of the foreign hong was difficult to get at, and could not be extinguished for several hours. We must not omit to mention the presence of two parties of men-of-war's-men—from H.M.S. Curlew and Juno—who were active in helping to work the engines, or in doing whatever else they could to second the efforts of the fire brigade. A child three years old, belonging to the occupant of the house first burnt down, was killed. The whole of the Chinaman's property—a valuable stock, which he had accumulated as tailor for foreigners chiefly—was destroyed. Mr. Burjorjee, tenant of the foreign-house, loses about $250.

A Chinkiang junk, bound for Shanghai, with a cargo of 450 bags of rice to the order of a foreign firm, has been wrecked outside Woosung. Her position was no sooner discovered than a number of native boats went off to her and began to plunder the cargo. One of the junkmen succeeded in getting ashore, and brought information of the loss to this port, when a sufficient police force was sent down to protect the wreck. Six people were arrested and are now in custody, and their three boats have also been detained.

In exercise of the power given them by Article XX. of the Land Regulations, the Municipal Council have elected Messrs. Krauss and Zimmern to the vacancies caused by the retirement of Messrs. Blydenburg and Jellicoe. The chairman also notifies that Mr. E. B. Souper will officiate as Secretary to the Council, in the stead of Mr. Johnson, who goes home on a well-earned leave of absence.

The Amateur Dramatic Corps and the Concordia Amateurs have both given very successful performances at the German Theatre. We hear, also, that the Chefoo Amateur Dramatic Corps have given their third performance for the season, the performance being followed by a ball, at which eight ladies were present. The winter has set in early at Chefoo, with an unusual amount of snow.

A Tientsin correspondent writes, on the 8th December, that the river was still open, and a large quantity of water coming down. Li is reported to be on the point of departure for Pao-ting-foo, his provincial capital. He sent away his family more than a month back, and was to have followed immediately, but has put it off. A Ningpo correspondent says that frost has continued for several days, and threatens to interrupt traffic by closing the canals. Thermometer during the day, 35.

We understand that a challenge has been given by the Singapore volunteers to the Shanghai corps for a shooting contest. The proposal is that the volunteers at each place should shoot on a particular day, a naval officer acting as umpire, here and at Singapore, and that the risk of bad weather should be accepted at both ends. Considering the prevalent weather at Singapore, this risk is rather onesided.

Instructions have been received at the P. and O. and Messageries agencies, in accordance with which the departure of the mail steamers will be delayed one day till further notice, making the time of the trip home one day less. The present mail steamer leaves under the new régime.

The annual parade of the Shanghai Fire Department has taken place in front of the Astor-house. Several of the principal streets were paraded, and the brigade was halted for practice on the English Bund.

The stock and goodwill of the Bank Exchange Billiard Rooms have been sold by auction, and bought by Mr. J. S. Baron for 3,400 taels.

A correspondent, who signs himself "X.Y.Z." complains of the lecture by the Rev. Griffith John, reported in our issue of the 27th October. The writer says :—"Mr. John mentions two of the difficulties with which he and his brother missionaries have to contend against in China,—the opium traffic, and the immoral lives of many foreigners resident in China. As regards the special kind of immorality to which Mr. John perhaps refers, I have only to say that it exists in various forms all over the world, and that the minds of abler men than Mr. John have long, but in vain, sought a remedy. The opium question comes next, but an argument to be good should not be one-sided, and I think that Mr. John, in bringing forward his figures to a provincial audience, has slightly erred in this respect. I accept his figures cum grano, and say that the Chinese do pay £15,000,000 per annum for the cost of Indian opium imported into the Flowery Land. But "what is this among so many," or what proportion does it bear to the cost of dram-drinking in England?

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held on the 18th December, F. Porter, Esq., in the chair, the report was unanimously adopted. Resolutions to the effect that the agents of mail steamers should have the option of mooring their vessels to swing to the tide in the Upper Reach; that no brokerage be paid, except on goods actually delivered; and that the charge for fire insurance be fixed at ¼ per cent. per mensem; and that, in addition to the commissions already passed, a charge of 5 per cent. be introduced for taking up bottomry bonds were also passed.

The Chairman then drew attention to the existing dissatisfaction with the Chamber's telegrams, and it was resolved that the Committee be empowered to enter into arrangements with Reuter's Telegram Company for obtaining commercial messages as suggested in the 5th proposal in the circular attached to the report, and to make a call upon the members to provide funds for the expenses for the six months ending 30th June, 1872. The Chairman said it was intended to increase the subscription from Tls. 50 by Tls. 72—making it Tls. 122.

After a resolution to urge on the authorities the necessity of dredging the bar, the meeting separated.

HONG KONG.

We have advices from this port to the 28th December; the Messageries Maritimes steamer Cambodge arrived out on Dec. 24 with the London mail of Nov. 10.

The Chief Justice has refused a new trial in the action of Kwok-a-Sing v. Paunceforte, the Attorney-General. A telegram to this effect was read out in the Privy Council Court on 1st inst., as reported in another column.

We are indebted to the China Mail for the following items of intelligence:—

A preliminary meeting of the members of the Commission appointed to inquire into the state of the police force has taken place at the office of the Acting Attorney-General. It has been decided not to publish the proceedings until the investigation has been completed, as it is considered that this would involve the issue of partial statements, in which the reputations, if not the characters, of individuals might be concerned, and which it would not be correct to publish until the full particulars, one part of which might explain the other, can be obtained. We understand that the business transacted at the meeting was of a merely formal nature. There will be a vast amount of evidence, documentary and other, to go through, and the proceedings may probably extend over one or two months. The Commission consists of the Hon. T. C. Hayllar, Hon. W. Keswick, Messrs. F. W. Mitchell, F. Stewart, H. Lowcock, W. Lemann, and G. Falconer, and Mr. A. Lister is to act as secretary. The selection is in every way satisfactory; and, though we should of course prefer to give an account of the proceedings, we cannot deny the cogency of the reason for refraining from opening the doors to the public until the investigation is ended.

It has been admitted by the oldest residents that this is the coldest winter season experienced by foreigners in Hong Kong. There have been many sharply cold days during former winter seasons here, and numerous vague traditions float about concerning wonderful tiny scales of ice and lumps of hoar frost discovered in somewhat mythical corners of the island; but this season the colony has established its reputation as an ice-field. There has been a bona fide piece of ice discovered on the high road of the thickness of a dollar and the hardy consistency of the real article; while hoar frost has been gathered in pieces or scales from the vegetable gardens up the hill. An attempt was made by an enthusiastic colonist to preserve this icy memory of Dec. 1871, but the pleasant sunshine thwarted the laudable purpose, and the meteorological marvel has passed away, to reappear again, possibly, once or twice during the present century. The cold has not been unpleasantly severe, and certainly if such weather were only to last, for say six months, Hong Kong would be the finest and most bracing climate under the sun. The thermometer at the Civil Hospital, west, has stood at 36½. Snow has been observed on the top of the mountain behind Stonecutter's Island (Tai-mo-shan), and icicles have been visible on the windows of the buildings there. It is said that the weather is even colder in Canton than on the island.

An application has been made at Judges' Chambers, before the Hon. the Chief Justice, by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., to take over Lot No. 64, on which the premises known as the offices of Messrs. Lyall, Still and Co. stand, and some other property which had been mortgaged to them. His Lordship directed the official assignee to make over the property to the applicants on condition of the mortgagees paying twice the amount of the mortgage.

Further robberies have been committed, the victims being Messrs. Pustau and Co.'s senior mess, and Colonel Norman, houses Nos. 1 and 2, Praya East. From former robberies and this latest annexation, the burglars must have quite a godown-full of plate stowed away somewhere. Will H. E. inspire an endeavour to find out the hidden treasure?

Captain Gilman, of the American three-masted schooner Emma Augusta, which arrived here Dec. 19th in a damaged condition, speaks in the very highest terms of the services rendered to him by the captain and officers of the Messageries Maritimes steamer Godavery. Such friendly consideration is only what might be expected from a body of gentlemen hitherto and always celebrated for their unexceptionable kindness and courtesy, but we gladly avail ourselves of the opportunity of conveying to them and to the public Captain Gilman's acknowledgments.

An extraordinary meeting of the shareholders in the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company was held on the 13th Dec., to confirm the resolution passed at the last meeting concerning the ratification by the shareholders of the sale to Mr. V. Kresser of the Bienhoa property and of the Lak-han estate. Mr. Geary occupied the chair, and the resolution referred to, having been read over, put to the meeting, and seconded by Mr. Nicaise, was confirmed by an unanimous vote. This closed the business, and the meeting separated.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Canton Insurance Company was held the same day. The Chairman proposed the following resolutions, relating to certain proposed changes, viz.:—First—That in order to extend the business of the office, the shares be increased by one hundred, thereby making the number three hundred, instead of two hundred as at present. Second—That the nett profits of the office be divided as follows:—Two thirds among contributing shareholders, calculated pro rata on premium contributed, and one half amongst shareholders generally as dividend. Third—That the funds of the office be deposited with banks on such terms as the general agents may find most advantageous. These resolutions were carried unanimously.

The postponed meeting of the Hong Kong Pier and Godown Company was held on the 22nd Dec. The chairman, Mr. W. Lemann, remarked that this meeting had been called for a special purpose, it being necessary to confirm by resolution the rules drawn up by their solicitor for their guidance. They wanted their own regulations, and not those imposed by the Ordinance of 1865, which were not suitable, as they had seen by the difficulty of calling a meeting under them. A document containing the articles of association was then submitted to the meeting and adopted.

A meeting of the China Traders' Insurance Company was held on the 27th Dec. The report showed that the amount of premia collected in Hong Kong and China between the 1st of November, 1870, and the 31st October, 1871, after deducting all sums paid as bonus and commissions, and adding interest, amounted to $307,071.82. After making the necessary deductions there remained a sum of $180,000, to be appropriated as follows:—$45,000 to be carried to reserve fund, $45,000 to be divided pro rata among contributing shareholders, and $90,000, or $450 per share, to be paid to shareholders as general dividend. At the meeting the report was adopted and the above named dividend declared, payable on the 30th Dec.

The Hong Kong Choral Society intend giving a concert in aid of the Chicago Relief Fund early in January, and, though somewhat late in the day, will doubtless show to those concerned that Hong Kong has not been altogether unmindful of the common principles of benevolence and of kindly international feeling.

The remains of H.R.H. the late Krom Looang Wongsa T'iratsanit were committed to the flames on Dec. 7 with the usual ceremonies. The pyre was ignited by H.M. the Wang Looang, and then each according to the rank laid his quantum of fragrant wood upon the pile. Formerly the foreign residents who were present at these cremation ceremonies had to stand at the right hand after crossing the bridge, exposed to the full blaze of the sun, but this time they stood on the left of the King, and in the rear of H.G. the Regent, H.E. the Kalahome, and H.E. the Praklang, under an awning, with the Mahatleks on their left facing the King.

We learn that the Loas prince who arrived on the 6th Dec. from Cheangmai had received an express command from H. M. the King of Laos to convey Dr. Vrooman to the capital of his kingdom at the Government expense. This speaks well for the friendly feelings of the Laosian king towards the missionaries, and gives to them an assurance that they need be under no anxiety, as far as the King and his Government are concerned.

It appears that we made a slight mistake in the title conferred by H. M. on Capt. Ames; it should read, Looang Ratt'a-ya T'eeban Bancha with the grade of 600 na.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 4th January. The P. and O. Mail, with London letters to the 17th November, arrived on the 22nd December; and the French mail, with London advices to the 24th November, came in on the 26th December.

The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The principal event has been the visit of his Majesty the King of Siam, on his way to Calcutta to visit the Viceroy of India. His Majesty arrived on the morning of the 21st December, in his private yacht Bangkok, accompanied by the Siamese war steamers Regent and Siam Supporter. Mr. Knox, H. B. M.'s Consul General at Siam, accompanies the expedition. His Majesty landed in state, under royal salutes from his own vessels and from Fort Canning, and was received by the Colonial Secretary and Government officials, and escorted to the Hotel de l'Europe, one building of which had been devoted exclusively to the use of his Majesty and suite. He left on the afternoon of the 23rd for Penang, where he was entertained by H.E. the Administrator, and met with a public reception by the residents. Admiral Shadwell, with H.M.S. Iron Duke, also went down to Penang to aid in his Majesty's reception. H.M.S. Ocean was here during his stay at Singapore, and his Majesty paid a visit to both her and the Iron Duke, and was gratified by a practical illustration of the working of the guns during an engagement. The Ocean's broadsides, fired while he was on board, excited his astonishment, as did also the discipline of the crews of both vessels, and it is not improbable his Majesty will seek to make some improvement in his own fleet, which he must see is out of date. The Ocean also left for Trincomalie, on her homeward cruise, on the 24th December.

The Christmas and New Year's holidays passed off very quietly. The banks and mercantile community observed the 23rd and 25th Dec., and the Government offices the 25th and 26th. New Year's day was marked, as it always is here, by sports on the Esplanade and a regatta for native boats in the harbour, both of which were highly successful, and kept the native community, ashore and afloat, in the best of humour. The only event worthy of note was the fruit and flower show of the Agri-Horticultural Society at the Botanical Gardens, held on the afternoon of New Year's day. The floral display was very effective, and it is gratifying to observe that a few Chinese gardeners exhibited specimens of their skill in the culture of fruits and vegetables, a fact that may in future years have good effect, in inducing a spirit of emulation among them to improve the size and quality of their productions, of which the entire community will reap the benefit.

The subscriptions to the Chicago relief fund, together with the proceeds of the amateur concert, amounted to $1,739, which has been forwarded to the United States Minister at London. The Armenian and Parsee community are exerting themselves in swelling the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the famine in Persia, with very encouraging results. His Majesty the King of Siam, on his visit to Singapore, expressed his hearty sympathy with the unfortunate people, and contributed $200.

The approaching criminal session will be one of the heaviest that has been tried here for a number of years.

There are a large number of cases arising out of the late riots, besides the trial of Captain Sachsze for shooting one of his seamen on board the barque Burlington, while lying at anchor outside the bar at Bangkok, and the prosecution against Moh Choon, head of the Ghee Hok Society, for the alleged abduction of a woman. The new Chief Justice, who is expected by the next English mail, will find plenty of work.

His Excellency the Administrator returned to Singapore on the 4th January from his visit to the other Settlements, which has extended over some three weeks. The Honourable J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, left for China by the last French mail, on a short leave of absence, during which he intends making a tour of China and Japan. The Hon. C. J. Irving, Auditor-General, has been appointed Acting Colonial Secretary during his absence. It is rumoured that his Excellency Captain Shaw, R.N., Lieutenant-Governor of Malacca, intends availing himself of leave of absence shortly; and it is also expected that his Excellency the Administrator will go on leave after the return of Governor Ord. The reported appointment of Captain Walshe, a military officer holding a civil appointment at Sierra Leone, to the police magistracy at Singapore, has occasioned surprise here, and we need scarcely say is viewed with considerable apprehension.

The work of repairing all the roads in the northern division of the town appears to have come to a dead lock. The road along the Esplanade has been encumbered for days with piles of broken granite on both sides of the way, and there they are left, while the few coolies the Municipal Commissioners have in their employ seem to be all engaged in patching elsewhere. Surely, they ought to be able to procure a larger staff, and not allow a work so badly needed, and which ought to have been completed in two or three months, to be extended over a period of six or eight months—perhaps altogether abandoned.

Five seamen who deserted from the American ship John Clark, in one of the ship's boats, were found near one of the islands known as The Two Brothers, brought back to Singapore, and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. They had been ten days at sea.

PENANG.

Dates are to the 5th January; the P. and O. mail of December 1st arrived out on January 4th. The news by this opportunity is unimportant. The King of Siam during his progress through the settlement was presented with an address from twenty-four Chinese merchants, to which his Majesty returned a reply the next day.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The position of the market had slightly improved during the fortnight, holders of Cottons being supported by firm Home advices and higher rates quoted at Shanghai, but there was only a small demand; advices from the inland marts were still discouraging and the business since last mail had been confined to local requirements. Grey Shirtings had advanced 2 candareens, closing rates being Tls. 1.70 to 1.73 for 7 lbs., Tls. 1.82 to 1.84 for ordinary, and Tls. 1.91 to 1.92 for best 8¼ lbs. No sales of heavy weights. White Shirtings: Inferior counts lower, best 64 to 66 reed were the only goods which found buyers. T-Cloths: Fair demand for fine Mexican 7 lbs., realising Tls. 1.52 to 1.58; a few 8 lbs. taken at Tls. 1.81 to 1.83. Drills improved about 5 candareens, sales of best English at Tls. 3.10 per piece. Woollens and Worsteds: Prices slightly weaker. Metals: Lead, nothing doing, prices at last advised. Quicksilver, Tls. 73.60 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—Grey Shirtings: Sales had been to a moderate extent, and chiefly in small parcels for immediate delivery. The current rates for all classes of 8¼ lbs. showed a slight decline on those ruling for last mail, but 7 lbs. were without change, and in good demand. Heavy goods of very best chops had been sold up to Tls. 2.65. The reported sales were 21,000 pieces 8¼ lbs., at Tls. 1.81½ to 1.88; 20,300 pieces 7 lbs., at Tls. 1.66½ to 1.68½; 3,500 pieces 9.10 lbs., at Tls. 2.60 to 2.65. Stocks were increasing, with deliveries on a limited scale. White Shirtings remained dull; best chop, 64 reed, Tls. 2.15. T-Cloths: Buyers had advanced about 2 cands., resulting in the settlements of 6½lbs. at Tls. 1.14 to 1.36 for commonest up to best Mexican; 7 lbs. at Tls. 1.33 to 1.51 ordinary to good Mexican. Chop dollar 7 lb. worth Tls. 1.60; 8 lbs. 36-in. inferior, Tls. 1.75 to 1.80. Drills: Demand chiefly for Dutch 14 lbs., at Tls. 2.92½ to 2.96; 15 to 15½ lbs. English met buyers at Tls. 3 to 3.05 best chop of full weight. American, Tls. 3.12. Jeans: English 8 lbs., Tls. 2.25 to 2.26; fair enquiry. In other makes no transactions to report. Sheetings: 14 to 16 lbs. English placed at Tls. 3.20. In Dutch and American no change. Cotton Yarn: About 165 bales sold at Tls. 103 to 105½. Fancy Cottons: Small demand for White Spots at Tls. 2.20, and for Black Velvets at 19 to 21 cands.; best goods held for higher figures; Chintzes (assorted) sold at Tls. 1.50 per piece; good White Brocades at Tls. 2.25; Damasks at Tls. 4.80, and Gentian Shirtings at Tls. 2.45. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells, fair chop, Tls. 6; C.P.H, assorted, Tls. 5.50; Figured Orleans, Tls. 3.80 to 4.40 ordinary assortments up to best spot. Medium Cloths, 81 cents to Tls. 1.1.5, according to width; Black Plain Orleans, Tls. 4 to 4.15; Black Lastings, Tls. 9.55. Metals.—Nail Rod Iron: About 4,000 bundles disposed of at Tls. 2.65 and 2.75. Lead in small inquiry at Tls. 4.60 for L B.

HONG KONG.—The business done had continued to be on a retail scale, but at the close for this mail there were signs of more activity, which would probably lead to an improvement both in price and demand. For the time the approaching holidays induced native dealers to reduce their operations to the smallest possible extent, and confine purchases to actual requirements. Grey Shirtings were still in an unsatisfactory position; holders were firm in the face of an advance in values in Manchester, and as the dealers' supplies were small, as soon as a good demand was shown quotations would advance. White Shirtings declined 5 cents per piece. T-Cloths: 6 lbs., best would only command $1.61; Mexicans unsaleable; 7 lbs. common, in large stock; small demand met by holders at former values; Mexicans neglected; 8 lbs. not asked for. Drills and Fancy and Dyed Cottons unchanged. Woollens and Worsteds: All more or less neglected, although holders were willing to accept lower prices than those previously ruling. Metals: Nail Rod Iron firm, but an advance asked by holders had checked business. Bar Iron unaltered. Hoop advanced 10 to 15 cents per picul. Round also risen in value. Quicksilver: In small supply, the best brand commanded $98.50 per picul. Lead: Dull of sale and nominally unchanged.

BATAVIA.—Owing to the occurrence of the native holidays, and the prevalence of stormy weather, but little has been done in the import market.

MANILA.—A steady and fairly active business had been doing during the fortnight, at previously ruling rates.

SINGAPORE.—There had been very little change in the import market during the fortnight preceding the departure of the mail. The tone had been quiet throughout, and business consequently limited.

PENANG.—The only arrival had been the steamer Patroclus, and the supplies brought by that vessel had been trifling. Business, both in the import and export markets, had been greatly interfered with by the Christmas holidays and the visit of the King of Siam. Prices showed no alteration.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—A few chops of Siangtam Tea had been taken at last mail's rates. The season was almost closed. Quotations: Oonams, common, 10d. to 10½d. per lb.

KIUKIANG.—Black, eight chops shipped on native account. Prices purely nominal. No Ningchows had come forward. Green, eight chops shipped on native account.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Report:—The present Tea season is now so far advanced that the business which will transpire from date, to close of season 1871 and 1872, must necessarily be of such a limited character as to call for but few, if any, remarks thereon. We therefore shall not again have this pleasure till the operations of the following season become of interest. Black: We consider current rates for Black extremely high, and quite Tls. 1 to 2 over rates current at home, for the same class of Tea, per latest advices. Stock is 11,000 chests against 13,300 same time last year. Export to England shows an increase of 8¾ millions, and to America it is one million pounds in excess of quantity sent to corresponding date of last year. Green Tea: We have no change in rates to report. The supply sent to the United States shows an increase of one million pounds, whilst to England the shipments are about equal to what they were at same time last year. Stock is now only 33,000 half-chests against 66,000 half-chests, which counterbalances the excess in export. Supplies are coming down slowly, and it confidently asserted that the total will not be larger than it was last season. Prices range from Tls. 22.7.5 to 29, for common to medium, Tls. 30 to 40 for medium to fine, Tls. 40 to 48, for fine to finest Fychows, Teenkais and Moyunes, one or two chops, of fine lines only, having realized Tls. 58.5. Pingsueys: A chop of low proportion has been sold at Tls. 20, medium to fine at Tls. 38 to 45, fine to finest of fair proportion at Tls. 46 to 50, some fine lines bringing Tls. 58 to 68 per picul.

FOOCHOW.—Only a moderate business had been transacted. Congou: Dust and broken leaf purchased to some extent at former rates. Other kinds unchanged. Settlements 3,691 chests at Tls. 3.6 to 18, arrivals 2,955 chests. Quotations:—Dust and siftings, Tls. 3½ to 8; broken leaf to ordinary, Tls. 8½ to 13; fair to good common, Tls. 13½ to 16½; and flavoury, Tls. 17. Souchong: No arrivals, settlements 325 chests at Tls. 25. Oolong: Settlements 4,500 half-chests at Tls. 13 to 23, arrivals 3,000 half-chests. Scented Teas: About 850 boxes taken at Tls. 15 to 18. Flowery Pekoes: 30 chests settled at Tls. 21.

AMOY.—The fortnight had been quiet, settlements amounting to only 6,000 packages. Rates declined about $2, and the market was cleared of all but a few parcels of common and inferior grade. Supplies from the country had ceased, and the season was considered as practically at an end.

CANTON.—The transactions had been very trifling in extent. Prices were unchanged.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co. report as follows:—Business has been carried on quietly but steadily throughout the fortnight, and owing to frequent shipping opportunities aggregates a larger total than was anticipated. The purchases comprise nearly every description except chops which are in very small stocks and held for higher rates. whilst in other grades prices are much the same as quoted in our last circular. Dealers are firmer at the close, but exchange is in favour of buyers. The following are a few of the leading quotations: Chinsue Gold Lion, 28s. 10d.; Chinlu, 27s. 10d.; Eukefong Blue Elephant, 27s. 5d.; Chunling Red Peacocks, 26s, 11d.; Yokwha Phenix and Cloud, 26s. 11d.; Tingfong Green Elephant, 25s. 9d. to 26s.; Choeyling Cock and Worm 4, 27s. 10d.; Fatmow Hainan, No. 2, 26s. to 26s. 3d.; Re-reeled Tsatlee, 28s. 4d. to 31s. 8d.; Re-reeled Hainin, 28s. 10d. to 32s. 2d.; Kahfok Gnanling Kahing, 26. 3d.; Fookong Taysaam, 23s. 2d. to 24s. 2d.

LATER ACCOUNTS FROM THE JAPANESE PARTY AT SAN FRANCISCO.

We learn that the distinguished party under the guidance of the Governor visited the public schools on the 23rd January. A banquet was held at the Grand Hotel the same evening. Covers were laid for 200, and tickets sold at $25 each. Iwakura occupied the centre of the table, with Minister De Long, and the State, federal, and civil officers grouped around him. After toasts to the President of the United States and the Tenno of Japan, Iwakura made a short address in the Japanese language. The most important speech of the evening, as foreshadowing the future policy of Japan, was made in English by Governor Ito, in response to the toast "Our distinguished guests." He said, "Railroads are being built both in the eastern and western portions of the empire; telegraph wires are stretching over many hundreds of miles of our territory, and nearly one thousand miles will be completed within a few months. Lighthouses line our coasts, and our ship yards are active. All these assist our civilisation, and we fully acknowledge our indebtedness to you and other nations. As Ambassadors and as men our greatest hope is to return from this mission laden with results valuable to our beloved country, and calculated to advance permanently her material and intellectual condition. While in duty bound to protect the rights and privileges of our people, we shall aim to increase our commerce, and by a corresponding increase of our population hope to create a healthy basis for this greater activity."

The telegraph authorities having liberally placed the lines at the service of the distinguished party, the Japanese visited the Western Union Telegraph Office in San Francisco, and were enabled to communicate direct with the Secretary of State at Washington with Professor Morse, President Orton, and others in the city, and with the sons of the chief Ambassador, Prince Iwakura, now attending school at New Brunswick, N.J. The wires were connected through, and friendly and congratulatory messages passed between San Francisco, Washington, New York, Chicago, &c.

THE Lords Justices presiding at the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on the 1st inst. granted the appeal of Mr. PAUNCEFOTE, the Attorney-General of Hong Kong, against the decision of Chief Justice SMALE in the case of KWOK-A-SING. Instructions will therefore be issued for his arrest and trial.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

In this Court, on the 1st inst., the case of the Attorney-General for Hong Kong against Kwok-a-Sing, the coolie, was heard before Justices Colvile, Mellish, Napier, Montague Smith, and Phillimore. The Solicitor-General (Mr. Jessel), with whom were Sir Travers Twiss and Mr. Archibald, Q.C., appeared for the appellant, and explained his case as clearly as he could in the face of a continual cross-fire of interrogatories and remarks, chiefly proceeding from Mr. Justice Mellish. Mr. Mellish's impression seemed to be that Kwok-a-Sing should have been delivered up to the French Government. On the completion of the argument of the Solicitor-General, the Lords Justices granted the appeal to annul the two orders of discharge which the Chief Justice of Hong Kong had made under the Habeas Corpus Act.

The Solicitor-General read a telegram which had been received by Lord Kimberley, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, from the Governor of Hong Kong, dated 30th January, "That the Chief Justice will discharge the rule nisi for a new trial in the action against Mr Pauncefote.

WILLIAM TARRANT.—Few persons have passed through a more eventful career than William Tarrant, who died in London on the 26th ult. Arriving in China in 1837 he was for a few years in the coasting trade. On the cession of Hong Kong he obtained an appointment under Government in the Land-office, and superintended the cutting of that well-known pass into the Wongnei chung valley, and many other of the early roads and works of Hong Kong. From this he passed to the office of Registrar of Deeds, including the drawing up of the leases and superintendence of sales of Crown lands in the town, at that time very onerous work. He was a most faithful and indefatigable servant of the Crown, and much appreciated by his superiors. His career of usefulness in this way was cut short in 1847 by his denunciations of the conduct of the late Colonel Caine—then Colonial Secretary—in certain transactions with the Chinese in the farming out of market licences, in which Mr. Tarrant asserted that bribery had been accepted by this official. He was arraigned before the Supreme Court for conspiracy and dismissed from the Government service. He then, with the aid of friends, purchased the Friend of China newspaper, which he conducted in Hong Kong up to 1859, when he was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment in a libel case against the same Colonel Caine. Shortly after he removed his paper to Canton, and in 1862 to Shanghai. In 1869 he sold the Friend of China, which shortly afterwards succumbed. He arrived in London in 1870 much debilitated, and has suffered more or less since to the time of his death. He possessed indomitable perseverance and versatility of talent, but sadly lacked steadfastness of purpose, and through life was his own enemy.

The Foreign-office List, and Diplomatic and Consular Handbook for 1872, just published by Mr. Harrison, of Pall Mall, fully sustains the reputation of the compiler, Mr. Edward Hertslet, for the completeness and reliability of his information. Let the list of Foreign Diplomatic and Consular Representatives of the Crown extend as it will, Mr. Hertslet seems determined to keep pace with it, and consequently the volume before us—the fortieth of annual publication—bears such evidence of industry and accuracy in the arrangement of names, facts, and dates, which makes it not only invaluable, but indispensable to every one interested presently or prospectively in the service. The getting-up of the Foreign-office List (it should be added) does as much credit to the publisher as its contents do to the compiler.

THE Colonial Office List, published by Messrs. Harrison, of Pall Mall, is a very valuable epitome of information concerning He Majesty's dependencies in all parts of the World, and the officers enr gaged in the administration of them. Besides a historical sketch of each place, which is simply invaluable; the present volume contains a list of the officials in each, and statistics of pensions, Colonial and Imperial, and a mass of other information. The arrangement of the contents is also a great improvement on preceding volumes. For instance, considerable additions have been introduced under the head of New South Wales; the Leeward and the Windward Islands have been grouped, &c., &c. Altogether the present volume does great credit to the authors.

WE observe that the first list of subscriptions to the Stanhope Memorial Fund—for the purpose of recording the high esteem in which the late commander of H.M.S. Ocean was held alike in his own profession and among the general public—amounts to about £200. Admiral Sir Henry Keppell is president of the committee, among which we notice the names of many distinguished naval officers, including Admiral Sir Henry Kellett, who has lately retired from the China station, and under whom Captain Stanhope served. Having regard both to the great services of the late officer, and the influential position of the friends who have set on foot the present subscription, we cannot doubt that the proposed memorial will be worthy of its object.

THE screw troopship Tamar, Captain Hickley, has arrived at Portsmouth. The vessel sailed from England on the 11th April, 1871, with reliefs for vessels on the China station, and has since been occupied in carrying out changes of troops between Japan, China, Singapore, Mauritius, and the Cape of Good Hope.

THE troopship Orontes, which left England on the 12th ult., with the 80th Regiment of Infantry, for China, and was detained a few days at Gibraltar, in consequence of a case of small-pox having occurred on board, proceeded on the 19th ult. We learn that the vessel reached Malta on the 22nd ult., all well.

THE steamer Chih-li, built by Messrs. A. and J. Inglis, on the Clyde, under the superintendence of Captain Lewes, for the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company, which we described some months since, was launched on the 30th ult., the ceremony of christening being performed by Miss Landers.

WE understand that the Lords of the Admiralty have approved of the application for a new trial made on behalf of the Crown at the request of Admiral Kellett in the collision case of H.M.S. Ocean. If the verdict stands we believe the "little bill" would amount to about £7,000.

THE directors of the London Missionary Society have invited their eloquent Chinese missionary, the Rev. Griffith John, to preach the annual sermon at Surrey Chapel in May, and he has accepted their invitation.

THE steamer Canton, which left Foochow for London on 3rd Jan., arrived at Port Said on the 1st Feb., after an excellent run of twenty-eight days.

THE business of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation has been removed from No. 24 to No. 32, Lombard-street.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 1.

I have already told you that the Second Chamber will meet in the third week of this month. The members will have much to do after their recess—so much that probably but little will be done. That they do not intend to make much haste is proved by the fact that political affairs seem to have come to a complete standstill. The important East India Railway Bill has not advanced any further than the Sections of the Second Chamber, and the same fate has befallen the East India tariff, against the revision of which the opposition increases daily, so that it is really doubtful whether the Bill, as proposed by the Minister, will be carried by a majority of the Lower House; but, of course, it is very difficult to predict its definitive fate, as we have not yet even received the section reports upon either of those important matters—the tariff and the railways. There is further ground for complaint in the fact that no endeavours have been made by the Minister of the Colonial Department to give better effect to the Agrarian Law than that which was prescribed by the Royal Decree of July 20, 1870. If these three important questions should be decided in the coming session I think Java will have reason to be content; but yet there is still another important subject to deal with, the Government Coffee Cultivation, from which the Dutch treasury derives so much money. It is nearly forty years since this system was introduced into Java, namely, that all the coffee cultivated there should not belong to the planter, but to the Sovereign of Holland. The planter is obliged to sell his produce at a fixed price, invariably a good deal lower than the market rate, and which is additionally reduced by two-fifths for taxes and cost of transport. The Government does not ask if the population like this system; the natives have to obey, and they have done it with good results for us—the sale of coffee having produced eighteen to twenty millions a year. At last nobler feelings carried the victory. Multatuli wrote his eminent work—"Max Havelaar"—and the first blow was given to the squeezing system. Furthermore, it was shown that the policy was thoroughly rotten, by the fact that the production of coffee in our East Indian colonies remained stationary, whilst that of Ceylon increased year after year. What was to be done? It was Mr. Fransen van de Putte, then Liberal Minister of the Colonial Department, who, in 1863, endeavoured to answer that question. A Royal commissary—Mr. Steinmetz—was appointed to examine the state of the culture, but he died, and Mr. Bosch was appointed his successor. Five years elapsed before his inquiry was brought to an end. The report was examined by several commissions and authorities, and at last by the Governor-General, Mr. Myer, who forwarded a voluminous report to the Minister of the Colonial Department, and this document was laid before the members of Parliament, who, of course, will have their opinion also. It thus becomes very possible that many years will elapse before a final answer is given to the question, "What must be done to improve our system of coffee cultivation?" The report of Mr. Myer—it was published some days ago—is most remarkable, from the fact that he is a warm promoter of the existing system. The report of Mr. Bosch, he says, is of no avail, because six years have elapsed since it was published, and great changes have occurred in the interval. This may be true, but the late Governor-General forgets that the natives are still obliged to sell the coffee to the State at a price which is arbitrarily fixed by the buyer, and that the State can still dispose of the time and labour of the native planter. Mr. Myer's report is couleur de rose. He even states that the cultivation in plantations is going on admirably, and has augmented in six years, from 1863 to 1869, by 3 9-10ths per cent.; the plantings in the woods, however, are declining. The number of trees decreased in the same period from 22,365,110 to 22,042,078, but the Governor-General thinks it may now be regarded as stationary. It is a pity that he cannot deny that the total production has decreased, but nevertheless he says that this is not of much importance, because some years are more productive than others. His conclusion is that the coffee culture system must be maintained; in other words, the natives must continue to be squeezed. Will the Minister and the Parliamentary majority agree to this; shall we wait until the Javanese themselves rise in opposition? Much discontent already prevails because nothing has been.

A man-of-war, the Het Loo, left Nieuwe Diep some days ago, bound for the West Coast of Africa, to bring home our functionaries and military forces. The African soldiers who volunteer to enter our East India army will proceed to Java by the Robertus Herdrikus, which is now on her way to Elmina. I am astonished that your Foreign-office has not granted a copy of the Sumatra Treaty (which was voted at the same time as that of the transfer) to the Straits Settlements Association. You will, however, remember that I gave in my letter of Nov. 29 (Vide London and China Telegraph of Dec. 4) the full and official text of the treaty. The Official Gazette of yesterday contains the laws sanctioning the treaties with England, both with regard to Sumatra and the Coast of Guinea.

I have stated above that the opposition against the Liberal revision of the East India tariff increases daily. The number of addresses forwarded to the Second Chamber by manufacturers and Chambers of trade, in Twenthe—the Dutch Manchester—augments every day, and all protest against the project of the Minister to annul at once the differential duties, and they think it of the greatest urgency that the abolition of these duties should be applied gradually, if the Government wishes to maintain our cotton industry. Of more importance still are the "advices" of the Dutch Trading Company about the measure. This document, although lengthy, is well worthy of perusal. The conclusions drawn are as follows:—1. Abolition of the differential import duties after six years have elapsed. 2. A gradual decrease, during these years, of the export duties, which are finally to be fixed at 6 per cent. 3. Repeal of the differential export duties. 4. To levy, if necessary, an unvariable export duty, under conditions, however, that therefrom no new charges are to arise upon the manufacture of sugar. 5. Maintenance of free trade in Celebes. 6. To levy the import duties upon cotton goods ad valorem.

I regret to state that Mr. F. van Heukelom, director of the Dutch-India Trading Bank—the shares of which are quoted at 73½—has retired, owing to ill health. The shareholders have given power to Mr. Js. Martens, a commissary, to sign with one of the remaining directors. Our banking institutions are generally doing an excellent business. A good demand prevails for the shares, and especially for those of the Rotterdam Bank, which are quoted at 99¾ per cent.

It creates much astonishment that up to this moment no commission has been appointed by the Government to promote the interests of Holland and her colonies at the next Vienna International Exposition. It seems that the same error as in 1866 will be committed, preventing our East Indian industrials from forwarding their produce.

The paper war between the Ultramontanes and the Liberal press regarding the national festival on the 1st of April goes on sharply. The Ultramontanes are, however, losing ground and making a somewhat miserable figure. But little money for the monument in Brielle has been collected, and I am quite convinced that if Mr. Alberdingh Thym, C.S., had not published pamphlets against this festival the plan would have proved a failure. The storm which the Ultramontanes endeavoured to raise, in consequence of the fact that our ambassador at the Papal Court cannot remain there, now that the Parliament has refused the necessary credit to maintain the Legation, has been somewhat appeased; the Archbishop and bishops have fired their final shot by forwarding an address to Pius IX.

A rumour circulates in the Hague that the Secretary-General of the Colonial Department will shortly retire.

A Royal decree has been issued, appointing Major-General Delprat to the Ministry of War. The General enters on the functions of his office on the 5th inst.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The general aspect of our Produce Market remains unaltered, although rather more activity begins to prevail in business generally. Sugar has been in active demand, and sales have been making at full prices.

COFFEE.—A fair amount of business has been doing in Java, of private importation, which imparts a firm tone to the market, and induces holders to raise their demands, so that good ordinary Java is now held for 43½c. Sales have been closed from first hands of the following shipments of private importation, viz. :—2,257, 748, 4,116, and 806 bags Java, ex Voorlichter; 1,100 b. ditto, ex Sophia Koningin der Nederlanden; 339 b. ditto, ex Medea; 56 and 900 b. ditto, ex Prins van Oranje; 554 b. ditto, ex Otto; 1,200 b. ditto, ex Rotterdam; 1,800 b. Moco Moco, ex sundry vessels.

SUGAR.—Both raw and refined continue to be firmly supported, but the elevated pretensions of holders, which buyers are not yet inclined to submit to, cause transactions from first hands to remain on a limited scale. The business done from second hands at advanced rates has been of greater importance; at the closing of the market 2,250 piculs Java, No. 19/20, floating per Ranee, changed hands at f.1¼ above November prices.

SPICES are firm; 9 casks and 21 chests Mace, besides 12 casks Nutmegs, have been sold by secret tender, in addition to which 300 bales Black Pepper, ex Batavia, changed hands by private treaty. Sales have also been closed at Amsterdam of 139 chests Mace, ex Kobé, at steady prices.

TEA.—Sales have been closed at Amsterdam of about 2,740 chests Java, mark Kalimaas, being the balance of the quantity bought in at public auction on the 13th Oct., 1871. A public auction is advertised at Amsterdam on the 7th March on private account, comprising 14,894/4, 378/8, 307/12, and 60/16 chests Java, in addition to which 460/4 chests China Congou, ex Hindostan, from Shanghai, via London, will also be brought to the hammer on the same day.

RICE.—5,343 bags Java, ex L. J. Enthoven, found buyers at secret prices, and also 4,663 bags Java, Table quality, ex Kaishow.

TOBACCO.—Several parcels of Java changed hands, viz. :—330 bales Java, headmark ETB/Malang; 149 bales do., ETB/Kedirie, both afloat, 300 bales do., PS/Blitar, 170 and 290 bales do. afloat.

RATTANS.—Sales have been closed of 120 piculs, ex Otto.

COCO-NUT OIL.—About 15 tons fine prime Cochin found buyers at f.26, which continues the quotation for parcels of at least 5 tons.

MOTHER-O'-PEARL SHELLS.—Sales have been closed of 23 piculs Macassar, ex Vier Gebroeders, at a steady price.

TIN.—A firmer tone prevailed for this article last week. Banca sold at f.85, f.85½ to f.86, and for delivery ex the coming spring sale at f.86, f.86½ to f.87. Sales have been closed of Billiton, ex the October sale at Batavia, at f.84, and ex the December sale at f.87.

HIDES continue to meet ready buyers, and prices are fully maintained. Parcels ex Yokohama and Questembert changed hands.

GUM COPAL.—140 chests Borneo ex Vier Gebroeders found buyers a a full price.

INDIGO.—Hardly any business has been doing in this article; 123 chests are placed in the market to-day. The article looks firm.

JAVA MANILA.—Offers by secret tender are invited here on the first proximo for 17 chests ex steamer Prins van Oranje.

ARRACK.—50/2 casks Sourabaya ex Yokohama, and 200 casks Batavia ex China found buyers at prices not named.

UNITED STATES.

In the Senate on the 16th ult. Mr. Nye introduced a Bill empowering the Postmaster-General to contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for carrying a semi-monthly mail between San Francisco and China at a compensation not to exceed the rate now paid for the monthly service, and upon the same conditions and limitations as now in force; provided that all steamships hereafter accepted for said service shall be of not less than 4,000 tons register each. The Bill was referred to a committee.

The New York papers contain long telegrams from San Francisco reporting the arrival there of the members of the Japanese embassy and the pupils (including a number of princesses) whom the Mikado has sent to the United States to be educated. One of the princesses, who is to go to Vassar College, the New York Times says, is "exquisitely beautiful, and will make a sensation." The Embassy was serenaded on the 16th ult. by a large number of San Francisco citizens. Prince Iwakura made a response in Japanese, which was translated as follows:—"It is now a recognised fact in Japan, since the conclusion of the treaty between the United States and our country, that our true prosperity has greatly increased with our new commercial intercourse. Our advancement in the arts and sciences of Western nations we now consider a substantial benefit to our nation, and desire that with every increase of national intercourse there shall be an increase of international friendship. With a view of hastening those results, and further facilitating the instruction of our people in the civilisation of the Western nations, his Imperial Majesty of Japan has commissioned us to visit all those countries having treaties with Japan, in the capacity of Ambassadors Plenipotentiary, first visiting your country. The warmth of our reception is unquestionable proof to us of the friendship of America, and I assure you it is more than echoed in the hearts of our people. Your expression of feeling when announced to his Imperial Majesty will be known throughout Japan, and assist in cementing a mutual friendship between our countries, which it is the wish of the Japanese people should instantly increase as by intercourse we get to know each other better."

AMERICAN SHIPPING IN CHINA.

On the 17th ult. there was a debate in the House of Representatives upon the bad effect of a high protective tariff upon American shipping, in which some new views of the subject were announced. It came up upon a Bill, reported by the Committee of Foreign Affairs, creating an American Consulate at Tientsin, at a salary of $3,500 a year, which Bill was passed. Mr. Brooks (Democrat), of New York city, who has just returned from a tour around the world, made some remarks, in which he referred to the only American steam vessel plying between Shanghai and Tientsin, and said he deeply regretted that the line of steamers, which hitherto had been chiefly built in Massachusetts and Connecticut, and which had done so much for American commerce and credit throughout North China, could no longer have vessels built in either of those States, or in any part of the United States, in consequence of the enormous taxation on iron, copper, and cordage; and that the whole of that great manufacture of shipbuilding had been lost to New England. The building of those ships had been transferred from Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Maine to Glasgow and the Clyde. Another interesting fact was that the Glasgow ship-carpenters were unable to construct the light class of river steamers which did so much credit to the United States. The ships that had hitherto been built in America for the great rivers of China, and had contributed so much to American wealth, had now to be built at Glasgow, or some other British port, where the carpenters were unwilling to adopt that light style of shipbuilding which prevailed in this country, and which was preferred for traffic on the great rivers and waters of China, so that they had been importing into Great Britain ship carpenters from New York and Connecticut, who were alone able to construct that desirable class of vessels. He mentioned these facts to show the necessity for an American Consulate at Tientsin. General Farnsworth (Republican), of Illinois, asked if this was what was meant by the claim that the high tariff improves the condition of American mechanics. Mr. Brooks replied that the question answers itself. General Farnsworth said he supposed the American mechanic was improved by being exported. Genetal Banks (Republican), of Massachusetts, regretted that American commerce had suffered so much in the past ten or twelve years, but said many causes had contributed to the prostration besides the one alluded to by Mr. Brooks. No one regretted the fact more than he did, and no one would be more heartily in accord with any general movement which would lead to the restoration of American commerce as it existed prior to 1861. This, however, he thought, was not the time to discuss the question. It would be before the House for discussion at this session, and he believed and hoped that measures would be adopted which would re-establish American commerce in all its prosperity and power.

Mr. Kelley (Republican), of Philadelphia, said that Mr. Brooks had seized upon this Bill as an occasion to speak upon the tariff, and to say that American shipbuilders were now drawn to the Clyde to build vessels for Chinese waters. Three years ago 5,000 skilled shipbuilders of wooden ships had been on the poor-rates at one time in London, and those who had not gone on the poor-rates had been employed in breaking stones on Government works one year afterwards. The wooden shipbuilders at Quebec had made bread riots, by reason of want of employment. The change from wooden vessels to iron and from sail to steam had reduced to pauperism more Britons than any other recent change. Under these circumstances it could not be that the shipbuilders of the Clyde were importing American carpenters to do this work. Mr. Brooks explained that the work for which American carpenters were employed in Scotland was that light ship joiner work erected over the hulls of steamboats on American rivers. Mr. Kelley asked whether iron vessels had not been built in America for Chinese waters. Mr. Brooks answered that iron vessels were built here now for the coastwise trade, and would be built also for the Chinese trade if they could be constructed as cheaply as in Great Britain, but the American coastwise trade was exclusively in American hands. No vessel built outside the United States could enter our coastwise trade, and hence such ships were built in America for that trade because there could be no competition with them, but ships could not be built here for the Chinese trade because of the competition of England and other countries. Mr. Kelley asked whether it was possible to build iron ships in this country, and depend on British rolling mills for the plates with which to build them. Mr. Brooks said, remove the duties on iron, copper, cordage, glass, and everything that enters into the construction of ships, and forthwith the American flag on ships built in New England will be floating on all seas. Mr. Myers (Republican), of Philadelphia, asked Mr. Brooks whether he advocated the doctrine that American mechanics and shipbuilders should be paid no better than such mechanics were paid on the Clyde. Mr. Brooks said he declined to go into that branch of the subject, but remarked that previously to the passage of the high tariff of 1860, American ships were built in New England and New York that carried the American flag round the world. Mr. Myers asked whether they were not wooden ships entirely. Mr. Brooks said they were, and added that in competition with English labour and prices the skill, genius, and industry of New England men had given them prior to the war their superiority in building wooden ships. He was not to be told that American skill had failed when this country was the first to introduce Monitors and iron ships of war, and when as workers in iron they had not been inferior to any people on earth. He was not to be told that, with an equally cheap price for the raw materials, American mechanics, with an education far superior to the mechanics of other countries, and who could do more skilful work in two-thirds of a day than even Scotchmen could do in a whole day, were not able to compete with them in iron shipbuilding. The discussion was then closed.

THE SINGAPORE RAILWAY.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Will you allow me to lay before such of your readers as are interested in Straits affairs some considerations bearing on the question, lately discussed in your columns, of the construction of the Singapore and New Harbour Railway by the Colonial Government? To others these may not appear so conclusive as they do to myself, but at least they may assist in the elucidation of an important question.

I do not touch the question of the extension of the line beyond New Harbour, for few persons can be found familiar with the place who believe such a proposal can have any practical bearing. It is a proposition only fit for discussion in Laputa—the feat of "extracting sunbeams from cucumbers" is child's play compared to that of developing railway traffic out of the jungle and mangrove swamps forming the "country" this extension would open up. But at present only the line to New Harbour is proposed, and to that I address myself.

This Railway is intended, as its name implies, to run between the town of Singapore and the wharves and docks lining New Harbour, its total length being about three miles. Each of these wharves and docks is already connected by a branch road with the main road between New Harbour and the town, and this road being one of the best in the island, all the Railway can do is to facilitate, and perhaps quicken, the transport of goods and of a few passengers between these wharves and docks and the town of Singapore. On the face of it this would seem to be a work to be best carried out by private enterprise, by combination among the proprietors of the wharves and docks, who will benefit by the improved communication—or by an independent company, making a profit out of those who benefit by, and will pay for, the accommodation. And it appears the more expedient that the work should be left to private enterprise, when it is borne in mind that the first effect of its completion would be to redress the inequality at present existing, in point of distance from the town, between the different wharves and docks. At present the one nearest the town has the most traffic, the one most distant has the least, and is for that reason the less valuable property.

It is clearly inexpedient that Government influence and money should be used for the benefit of a number of proprietors, and the proceeding becomes yet more objectionable when the action of the Government must of necessity benefit one set of proprietors more than others, and in a measure at the expense of those others. But even this seeming injustice would have to be faced in pursuit of a great public advantage. No such overmastering reason can, however, be alleged in favour of this scheme. The Railway would be serviceable only to the docks and wharves, and to those who use them. It would perhaps allow merchants to get their goods delivered in town a little sooner, and enable those who resort to the docks or wharves to make the journey to town in five minutes instead of fifteen; but to attain these ends with public money would be a subtle form of protection, compelling the many to pay taxes for the benefit of a few.

"But," say the advocates of Government interference, "it has been decided that in future all Indian Railways are to be the property of the Government," and this reason may have had weight in the decision of the Colonial-office. But there are railways and railways, and we must distinguish. Cogent reasons doubtless exist to determine the Government to such a conclusion in regard to Indian railways generally, but they can hardly apply to a work such as this, which is as much an appliance for the convenience of the wharves and docks, and of those who frequent them, as would be a tug steamer for their common use, a steam crane to expedite the discharge of vessels, or a fourhorse omnibus to carry passengers who now make the journey in "gharries" painfully drawn by one poor pony. I make no question that railways should be owned by the State; but, if the railways of England were to-morrow to be taken over by the nation, the Government would probably pause before undertaking the construction and working of little lines connecting collieries and other private properties with the lines of public utility. Such little lines afford the nearest analogy to this Singapore and New Harbour Railway which it is proposed that the Straits Government shall construct and work, with a host of officials, and, perhaps, a "Department" to itself.

Another argument is that the line will pay, and why should not the Government get the profit? "It will pay 6 per cent. with perfect security," say some enthusiastic supporters, "and with such a result who can say that public money is misused?" It is true that invested in local discounts the same money might as surely yield 10 per cent. or more, and various modes of investment might be suggested which would give a handsome return to the Government, and not without benefit to certain classes. But we have yet to learn that the Straits Government has spare funds which it does not know what to do with; and, if such were the case, there would be little difficulty in applying these resources to works of general public utility; and, when no such works remain to be undertaken, some remission of taxation will be preferable to thus laying out public money for private advantage. Granting (what seems highly improbable) that the Railway will give this brilliant result, still the reply is obvious. But the usual and would-be conclusive answer to all arguments against the Government undertaking this Railway is "that the opposition is interested"—that it comes chiefly from the shareholders in the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company, which, as the nearest of these establishments to the town of Singapore, and the one already possessing the greatest traffic, has least to gain from a railway which would put its rivals upon a closer equality, in respect to accessibility to the town, than they are at present. I admit that my opposition to the formation of the Railway by the Government bears this taint—my sense of the impolicy and injustice of such a step may have been awakened by the fact that its first effect on the company in which I am interested would not be beneficial. But what of that? Some of us are none the worse for having our wits sharpened by contact with our interests, and these personal arguments are the refuge of the logically destitute. Let those who would judge of the question allow for some bias, perhaps on both sides, but remember that the important point is not whether the opposition is interested, but whether it is just and well grounded. By that test I am willing to be judged.

There is an obvious danger that if the Straits Government take in hand this Railway it may prove only the first of a series of applications to get public money applied to purposes of an essentially private character, but which may be represented to have in them, as in this case, some colour of public benefit. If the Government is to make a railway to connect a number of wharves and docks with the town of Singapore, for stronger reasons it may be called upon to construct the next docks and wharves that promise to be of public convenience. Penang may want wharves, Malacca docks, or what not, and the Government may be pestered with solicitations for grants of public money for various purposes, which have hitherto in English colonies been left beneficially to private enterprise, and to the sure test of payment by results.

We have heard of guarantees by Government, and of subsidies from Government, but this seems to be an undertaking which can be carried out by the Government, with justice to the taxpayers, only by a somewhat novel application of those inventions. A guarantee of a minimum dividend should be given to the Government by the proprietors of the docks and wharves, and the owners of property along the line, with a promise of a subsidy in case of need, to be contributed by them in direct proportion to their distance from the town, which the Railway will practically diminish, or in inverse proportion to their present traffic, which, if now insignificant, will be indebted for its growth to a Railway made with public money.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Jan. 31st, 1872. S. GILFILLAN.

THE CHINA CONSULAR REPORTS.

THE Consular Reports of the China trade for 1870—of which we give a résumé in another column—appear opportunely at the commencement of a session in which our relations with and interests in the Far East seem likely to receive a share of the attention they have so long demanded, but which has been so long withheld from them. Last session saw most of the vexed questions of the day settled—whether satisfactorily or not we leave political journalists to discuss—so far as home politics were concerned; and there is now an opportunity of bringing the state of affairs in China prominently before Parliament. Whichever party is destined to win the day in the approaching political conflict, it may be safely said that at no previous time has there appeared so much promise of a disposition on both sides to encourage the expansion of trade—which means, at once, the cementing of peace and the reduction of taxation. With Protection—effete as is its theory and impotent its pretensions—"giving an authoritative knock" at the doors of the senate of our French neighbours, it is more than ever incumbent on us to prove not only the truthfulness and good working of our own system, but also to insist on its claims to the support of whatever Government may be in power. It is with great satisfaction that we perceive the eminently practical, promising, and not exaggerated tone of the reports of the various British Consuls before us in the present volume. The facts which we have extracted, and the views which our representatives have so well enunciated, show the absolute necessity of straining every nerve to prove what is yet too little understood—the vast importance of extending our trade in the Far East. Our readers will perceive that in every one of the reports before us our Consuls describe the general population of China as not only favourable, but absolutely anxious for extended intercourse with us. The great bulk of the 400 millions are crying out for our manufactures; or, what is the same thing, for a reduction of the duties on them, and appealing to our engineers, and other pioneers of knowledge, to work their mines and develop the resources which have so long slumbered under their feet. One small class alone opposes the movement which agitates the whole population, and which is believed to be favourably viewed by the Chinese Government itself. It remains with us to urge on our Government the necessity of completing the revision of the treaties. No further shuffling or paltering about the question of the Emperor's minority by the Mandarins should be permitted. "Time's up," and the treaty must be revised out of hand. Regarding the matter from a purely cynical point of view, the Reports before us show the magnitude of the interests we have at stake in this question with a truthfulness and simplicity that make the statistics given positively startling, and which reflect the highest credit on the several gentlemen who have compiled them. Let but the facts disclosed in these Reports be brought fairly before Parliament and the public and we shall soon cease to hear the cuckoo cry about the apathy of the English with regard to their interests in the Far East.

THE NEW GOVERNOR OF HONG KONG.

WE will not venture to hazard a guess whether our friends in Hong Kong, or the new Governor of that settlement, are mostto be congratulated on the appointment of Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY to that eminent and responsible office. But, when we look a little farther, we see that Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY has so greatly distinguished himself—has proved such thoroughly English and estimable qualities—by not only undertaking but fulfilling the duties of Governor of our West African possessions, that the acquisition of a governor of so much personal courage and administrative ability is a gain which our friends in Hong Kong will cordially appreciate, especially at a time when their retiring Governor, Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL, has been separated from them, by reason of ill-health, in the zenith of the services he has so zealously and conscientiously rendered them. All who know him will join in the hope that Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL may be speedily restored to health, and appointed to some other office in which he may distinguish himself as he did in the one he now resigns. Hong Kong will now have a new start. With a new Chief Justice and Colonial Secretary, and the return of the Attorney-General (Mr. PAUNCEFOTE), Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY will have a fair chance of administering a creditable Government. The following account of the career of the new Governor, who arrived at Liverpool from Sierra Leone on the 2nd inst., will, no doubt, interest our readers:—

Sir Arthur E. Kennedy, C.B., K.C.M.G. Educated at Trinity College, Dublin. Entered the army as ensign in the 11th Regiment in 1827; lieutenant, 1832; captain, 68th Light Infantry, 1840; retired from the army in 1848 to accept civil employment; was selected (while serving in the army) in 1846 to fill the office of county inspector under the Board of Works; and served uninterruptedly during the Irish famine as inspector under Sir John Burgoyne's relief commissioner; and subsequently as inspector of poor laws till the office was abolished in 1851; appointed Governor of the "Gambia" and transferred to Sierra Leone in 1852; consul-general of the adjoining Sherbro country in 1854, and removed in the same year to the government of Western Australia; administered the latter government without interruption till February, 1862; created Companion of the Bath in 1862; appointed Governor of Vancouver's Island November, 1863; and Governor of the West African Settlements November, 1867.

MILITARY INSTRUCTORS FOR JAPAN.

WE understand that the Japanese Government have invited the services of German military instructors, as we reported some time ago they had availed themselves of French experience in the art of war. If the officers to whom the duty of instructing the Japanese is confided will be true to the reputation of their countrymen and themselves, there can be no doubt that this latest step in the development of the science of war will tend to the advancement of that general peace which must be the result of mutual instruction in a game in which neither antagonist can play without losing. We are not very sanguine, however, having seen too many instances of officers who have been employed on service like that solicited by the Japanese Government, who have scarcely fulfilled the routine of their office, thoroughly neglected the responsible duties of their engagement, and left the natives not only in ignorance of the science they had paid highly to be taught, but also inclined to undervalue very grossly the strategic abilities of the country which sent them such indolent or incompetent instructors. Asiatics, when disposed to avail themselves of the discoveries and inventions of Western nations, have been but too often cruelly deceived and, it may be feared, disheartened by the conduct of parties whose services they have retained at very great expense, but whose engagements have resulted—like those of the railway engineers in Japan recently reported.

WE perceive by the Dutch papers that a scheme is proposed to form a society on the joint-stock principle, with the view of founding a new colony in California or some other part of the American territory. In a newly-published pamphlet we find the West Indies recommended as the most promising locality for the purpose. How is it that so very few Dutchmen can be persuaded to establish themselves in Java, notwithstanding that the advantages of communication opened by the Suez Canal must ultimately vastly add to the wealth and enterprise of Java? The evil is, we think, the inertness of the Government in bringing the fertile lands of the old Dutch settlement under cultivation. Shipowners are discouraged because produce is scarcer than it should be—and would be, if the law of land tenure were reformed, or interpreted in a more liberal sense. The Cabinet at the Hague may not have much confidence in the enterprise of their colonists. but they cannot shut their eyes to the fact that Dutch East Indiamen are constantly being advertised for sale. Within the last month thirty vessels were thus disposed of, and in the last decade the mercantile marine of Holland has decreased not less than fifty per cent.

IN another column we give an account of the arrival and welcome of the Japanese travellers at San Francisco. Our information is derived from the New York papers, and must therefore be taken—like all other news from our trans-Atlantic friends—cum grano salis. We understand, however, from a private source on which we can rely, that IWAKURA, the leader of the party, once filled the position of Prime Minister, and that many of his companions are persons of high rank and great distinction—a circumstance which shows the importance which the Japanese Government attaches to the objects sought to be gained by the present expedition.

IN our United States intelligence will be found an account of an interesting debate in the House of Representatives on the evil effects of a high Protective tariff, as shown in the check sustained by American shipbuilders, whose trade would seem, from circumstances wholly beyond their control, to have been transferred from Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Maine, to Glasgow and the Clyde, notwithstanding the fact that the Scotch shipwrights will not willingly turn out the light style of vessel so much needed in river navigation.

WE understand that Admiral SERGIO DE SOUZA, the present Governor of Macao, has been relieved at his own request, and that Baron SAO JANAARIO, late Governor of the Portuguese Possessions in India, is appointed Minister Plenipotentiary for China, Japan, and Siam, and also Governor of Macao and Timor, with powers to revise the treaty with Japan, and obtain the ratification of the treaty with China.

VICE-ADMIRAL SIR HENRY KELLETT, K.C.B., arrived home by the last P. and O. steamer, via Southampton, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. LISHMAN. Sir HENRY was appointed to the command of the China squadron in July, 1869, in succession to Admiral the Hon. Sir HARRY KEPPEL, K.C.B. We are glad to say that the gallant Admiral is in excellent health.

SOME ACCOUNT OF AN EXCURSION TOWARDS THE LEU SAN:—THE KIUKIANG LANES.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Leaving Kiukiang by boat at three P.M. on the 14th November we proceeded towards the one-arched bridge. Thence we intended walking to the bungalow and passing the night, commencing the ascent early the following morning. It was a fine afternoon, with a certain touch of frost in the air, nothing more. We scared innumerable flocks of wild-fowl on our way, and witnessed with great pleasure the elegant walk of a small species of heron over some half-floating, half-decaying beds of lacustrive weeds in search of its food. A flock of wood-pigeons flew overhead, and lapwings in numbers, ever and anon uttering their peculiar cry, were observed to haunt the muddy margin of the lake. The water having subsided some twelve or fifteen feet we could not get near the above-named bridge, and, taking the wrong path, were obliged to cross an artificial dam or causeway in the stream on all fours, at the imminent risk of a wetting and a tumble into the pool below. It fell dark about 5.30 P.M., and we were still no more than half-way to the bungalow. Twice the coolies stumbled and came bump to the ground with the mountain chair in which my companion preferred to ride. At the village of Szeleaonpoo we had a cup of tea—native fashion—and told the boy to get a lantern and carry it before us to light the way. In following us (for he took a long time to execute the commission, and we had gone on before) he took the wrong road, and went on some distance towards Tung-Ling Sze, so that we had to make our way as we best could under the starlight, over narrow bridle paths, with wet paddy fields on either hand, or over a natural pavement of rough round boulders, here and there diversified with huge granitic and porphyritic blocks, which threatened destruction to our shins. The want of perspective, with deficient light, was at this point painfully felt, for it was extremely difficult to distinguish between the boulder-paved footpath by the side of the torrent and the boulder bestrewn bed of the torrent itself. The coolie with his lantern, however, overtook us here, and a most romantic light it cast on the moss-grown and lichen-covered stone dykes, the empurpled leaves and snow-white berries of the tallow-tree twittering recognition overhead: the purple, brown and yellow-tinted foliage of the liquid amber (Fung-shoo), and the steadfast dark green of the sturdy pine. The pathway itself was regularly littered with fallen leaves.

We reached the bungalow at 7.30 P.M., but neither friendly light nor recognition apparently awaited us, for our friends had long since given up expecting us, and after their day's rambles and supper had turned in for the night. A thundering rattle at the outer gate, loud enough to waken the Dragon King, whose temple is within the enclosure, not to speak of ordinary mortals, and lo! the startled coolies have thrown open the gates and ushered us darkling into the presence of our friends. "Entertainment wanted for man and beast" is the word. No sooner said than done; a light is struck; friendly salvoes exchanged; a fire made, and supper prepared. "Only one trouble," said my companion, "can't convince B— that Judas Iscariot was an estimable character." "Judas Iscariot," said D—, "he was Governor of Judea, wasn't he?" "To be sure, he was," said A—, "on the same principle by which Judas Iscariot is made a Saint—a very little suppressio veri, and a very little suggestio falsi—that is all By which means you may whitewash the Devil!" At 9 P.M. we "doused the glim," and turned in for the night.

Rose between 5 and 6 A.M., one of the party taking a plunge in the Dragon's-pool, though the wind blew keen and cold, and the temperature of the water could not be many degrees above freezing-point. It had rained heavily during the night, though we heard nothing of it, the noise being drowned in the rumble of the waterfall. About 9 A.M. the rain changed to sleet, and by 10 to regular snowflakes, the hills becoming whitened to their summits, and every green thing set in frostwork of silver, as if by enchantment. To climb to the summit of the Leu San in such weather was, of course, out of all question; and rather than remain pent up and idle at the bungalow we resolved to return to Kiukiang through the driving sleet and snow, leaving behind one of our number—being something of an invalid—to return on the morrow if it should set in fine.

We made the descent in two hours and ten minutes, being at the rate of four miles an hour, against a perfect hurricane of wind right in our teeth, over paths such as no nation in the world but the Chinese would call by the name of roads The hard baked smooth clay was here slippy as glass—there it had turned into soft tenacious mud—that added many pounds weight to every step. Once and again we found ourselves blown into paddy fields; one had his hat carried of, another his umbrella turned outside in; we were drenched to the skin, and benumbed with the cold. The lake was thrown into a state of wild agitation; the rainstorm sweeping like a fall of grey vapour across the whitening surge, while regular waves like those of the ocean itself loudly beat the shore. We ran, not walked, taking the lead by turns, and arrived in town about 1.30 P.M.

I found the waves beating violently against the bund and sending their spray right across it, though the river had subsided a dozen feet or more; a sleet-storm drifting across the settlement from northwards, and a huge pine raft from Hoonan, valued at Tls. 17,000, with fifty souls on board, drifting slowly down river towards the pontoons of Russell and Co. It was fortunately arrested just in time by the energetic efforts of the constable attached to the British Consulate—the natives, according to their wont, being entirely passive in the matter. The storm appears to have taken twenty-four hours to travel 500 miles in a north-easterly direction.

The intramural lanes of Kiukiang in the pleasant autumn months are the glory and beauty of the place The autumnal glories are, however, fast disappearing under the depredations of the feathered tribes, which feed upon the berries, and the nipping wintry winds which lay "their leafy honours low." The mulberry, bamboo, bramble, privet, wild orange, and medicinal pepper of the Chinese still retain their foliage, but the tallow-tree and mountain ash, and trailing rose are leafless and bare, and the wild profusion of climbing plants and creepers which seemed to weave fresh glories around their supports as autumn advanced are now like so much rotting seaweed stranded high upon the beach—a withering, decaying mass of grey fibres, lingering on, as would appear, merely for the final liberation of the seeds from their investing capsules. Thus in their mourning weeds hang the erewhile splendid convolvulus and fragrant parasitic dodder, and convolvulus-leaved polygonum, which lately poured out its bounteous efflorescence of tiny white flowers equally over high edge and city wall like spray from the top of the broken wave. The torch-like flowers of the so-called tree-mallow (a sterculiad) have long since withered and fallen, while the bush stripped of its leaves seems but a shadow of its former self; but the stately rasp, attaining a height of eight or ten feet, continues to throw out its pensile branches with stout array of spines, handsome orbate leaves, and racemes of tempting fruit, sweeping the ground.

The palma christi (castor-oil plant) stalwart and handsome, with mighty palmate leaves and fast ripening capsules, still stands sentinel-like by every cottage door. From the ample shade which it affords it might be mistaken for Jonah's gourd. A hundred tiny bushes of bittersweet diversify the promenade upon the city wall, their superb crimson drapaceous fruit hanging forth from each rosette-like cluster of green leaves, rivalling in pose and lustre the coral pendants from a lady's ear. The glory, we say, is departed, yet we cannot help recalling something of the vanished witching and enchantment of the scene.

It is early morning, and the rippled bosom of the lake never looked more blue, nor the general aspect of the country more monotonously sere and brown. The wild cormorant is diving successfully on his own account for fish in the margin of the lake, and its silvery scales glance again ere they descend into the living tomb; white gulls pounce upon them from a height; arrow flights of wild geese from the north sweep with peculiar clangour overhead, and a flock or two of wild ducks may be seen resting lightly on the water towards the middle of the lake. The level beams of the morning are reflected back from myriads of the linear channelled polished leaves of the giant grass (maou tsaon), which abounds in every hedge, whose edges cut like a knife if drawn against the skin, and whose inflorescence, resembling a warrior's plumes, seem thus to wave over a forest of spears glittering to the sun. Here through the tortuous lane winds a procession, single file, twenty to thirty strong, of woodmen, fresh from the hills with their burden of brushwood, and there a string of water-bullocks, like so many tamed behemoths, ridden out to pasture by little boys in close-fitting skull-caps, with ear pieces and wadded jackets, without bridle, string, or tether. The young bullocks—one or two-year-olds, frolicsome and skittish for such stolid creatures, keep close to their mothers without breaking the solemn line of procession. It appears they do not attain their full size till between three and four years old, and are never employed under this age except in the lightest work.

A month ago all was life and beauty in these lanes and hedges Festoons of what seemed white currants were woven on high amidst the topmost twigs; below appeared a low thorny bush, with large, glossy, parallel, veined leaves, tendrils, and holly-like berries, the genuine holly itself with dark green spinous leaves might be seen at rare intervals, together with a profusion of hips and hawes of rose and hawthorn, for rose and hawthorn are here. Here is a soft, crimson fruit set as it were in golden salvers formed of the adhering valves of the yellow capsule; therean elegant twining shrub with cordate leaves and purple tubular flowers, gladdening the hedges with its bright berries—amber green; and there a climbing leguminous plant with ternate leaves and copper coloured pods, the jet-black shining seeds adhering to the everted edges of the legume. There the ambitious clematis (traveller's joy) scatters its star-clustered seeds with feathery arms to the breeze and the familiar hop, with vine-shaped leaves and scaly cone-like fruit, clambers up amongst the very highest shrubs. Glorious pink and white masses of the greater dodder (cuscuta Europæa) hang trailing downwards from the lower branches of some trees of size, such as the mountain ash (or its Chinese congener) and the melia—it is found parasitic also upon the mulberry and other fruit trees, and even upon the lowly boxwood creeper; it is highly fragrant, though not so sweet as to compare with the heliotrope, or otto of roses. Of ferns, not less than a dozen different species (asplenium, cystopteris, hymenophyllum, &c) may still be seen flourishing in all their pride under the hedges, or within the green shade of bamboo plantations, sacred, in the ideas of Chinese sages, to the spirit of contemplation, or rooted in niches and crannies in the moss-grown wall.

On the grassy slope of the embankment, at one particular spot, might be seen little parterres of marvel of Peru, a thick, low-set shrub, with scrambling branches, ample foliage, and elegant trumpet-shaped crimson flowers, "to mark where a garden," and yamun, "had been." Amongst the bluffs flourish the golden-eyed agrimony, drooping hare bell and stalwart rampion, a species of elder flower, with tiny pink berries on a spreading cyme; golden-rods, and starworts, and worm-wood, emblazoning with yellow and gold the rifts and rents in the city wall, which is elsewhere adorned by the close clinging, dark green, box-leaved creeper. The cotton crop and tall sorghum (Barbadoes millet), beans and sweet potatoe, have long since been garnered, but the low fields of capsicum are still richly bright with unripe green and scarlet pods. The industrious native has already gathered from the soil dues of wheat, rice, millet, cotton, vegetables and condiments, three crops in rotation within the year, and lo! there he is again, turning up the soil anew, harrowing, torturing, and manuring it, and to-morrow's sun will see him casting seed corn into the furrow, the third time within nine months! Their faith in the power and patience of the great Earth Mother is equal to their diligence in soliciting her gifts, as the inscriptions on the neighbouring Joss-house sufficiently testify:—

"The Spirit's Power begets all things."
"Through the virtues of the Earth-God wealth abounds."

While I write the scene changes, and the fields which a month ago I left trim and neat from the husbandman's hand, ready sown with winter wheat, are already, many of them, bright with the vivid green of the new sprung braird. In the hedges the most striking object now is the orbicular, shield-shaped creeper, which hangs in long, dangling, golden-yellow chains, like necklaces of flowers, on the skeleton hedge.

The tea-oil shrub (camelia oleifera) is again in flower on the hillsides—almost the only flower visible. It would seem as if the Genius of the Spring had paid a flying visit to the melancholy autumnal scene, and this her especial favourite, and where she lighted it and the scene together smiled.

It is truly interesting and delightful to observe the preparations made for the approaching winter in the vegetable kingdom. Take the oak or chestnut for example. Every internode is provided with twin-buds wrapped in overlapping coloured bracts resembling parchment, and enclosing, I suppose, not less than twenty to forty miniature leaves of a delicate green, clothed with fine silky hairs on the outer surface and grouped, one over the other, in alternate layers around a central green axis which ultimately becomes the young branch. The interval between each leaf, at present represented by the fractional part of a line linear, elongates to an inch or more, and the leaves expand proportionally. The silky down is meant for the protection of the tender leaf during its period of hybernation, and they gradually drop off and disappear with the growth of the leaf. In many shrubs there are terminal and auxiliary leaf-buds, with clusters of flower-buds at the bases of the leaf-buds. In some of the camellia family the tiny flower beds are already prepared and housed against the coming spring. They are clustered thick on every leaf stalk, and in every leaf axil, in bunches of two and three from any given point. Many of these must fall and perish, for nature always produces more lives than she ever brings to perfection; but the majority will slumber and swing securely through the frosts and storms of winter, and then unfold their charms and develop rapidly into the perfect type at the first touch of spring. The thick dark green bracts, imbricated like the tiles of a roof, are all the protection given to the tender flower wrapped up in miniature within, duodecimo size, corolline, staminal, pistilline whorls all complete, if we except the vital force, without which, no matter how many wrappings may surround the amputated bud, it quickly dies in the frosty air.

To me all this provision and preparation is most wonderful, and I cannot conceive any rightly constituted mind resting in the fact, call it by what name you will—law of evolution, order of natural succession, or what you please. The bare discovery of such admirable arrangements and contrivances leads me instinctively and at once in wondering love and homage to the foot of the Eternal Throne: I recognise in it the omnipotent and omniprescent energy of God.

"That delicate forest flower,
With scented breath, and look so like a smile,
Seems, as it issues from the shapeless mould,
An emanation of the indwelling Life,
A visible token of the upholding love,
That are the soul of this wide universe."

THE CHINA CONSULS' REPORTS FOR 1870.

The Reports of Her Majesty's Consuls in China for 1870 have just been published. The following is a résumé of the trade of the nine ports given:—

TIENTSIN.

Mr. Acting Consul Lay reports the total value of foreign trade as Tls. 25.524.577, exhibiting a decrease on the previous year, which showed Tls 26.941,653. There was a general decrease of the trade in 1870, the export of goods to Russia alone contributing to it the large sum of Tls. 1,031,874. The causes of the decrease were exceptional—the massacre and drought—and the wonder is that, under all circumstances, it was not larger. The value of the business of this port would undoubtedly be increased were the Chinese Government to make some effort to improve the navigability of the river. The bar might be dredged and the channel deepened.

CHEFOO.

Mr. Acting Consul Mayers reports a slight increase on the average of previous years in both imports and exports, and the growing proportion of British, British Colonial, and Indian imports unabated. The total estimated value of imports was Tls. 6,165.117, against Tls 6,549,571 in 1869. Exports showed Tls. 2,278,925, against Tls. 1,885,536 in the previous year. The remarkable increase in the import of opium from Tls. 1,708,541 to Tls. 2,023,952 was owing to the low rates of freight, but it had the effect of seriously depressing prices. In T-cloths a four-fold importation was made, the amount exceeding 400,000 pieces; the import of grey shirtings consequently fell off, but there was a largely increased importation of jeans, which was encouraged by their cheapness at Shanghai, owing to the accumulation of stocks. Woollens remain a very insignificant item in the imports of Chefoo, garments wadded with cotton, and furs or sheep-skins being preferred by the Chinese for winter clothing. Metals show a considerable falling off, the market having been flooded during the previous year; the demand for lead in particular had almost ceased.

Seaweed imported from Russian Manchuria employs a great deal of tonnage during the summer months. The trade is conducted almost exclusively by barter, and is almost wholly in the hands of the Chinese traders of Hwên-ch'un. This seaweed is used as food, and with better harvests the demand would probably fall off.

An attempt was made to send sixty natives to Russian Manchuria under a two years' engagement, which they readily accepted. The business, however, appears to have been mismanaged, and the major part of them absconded. On the other hand, great numbers of Koreans were driven by famine to seek employment in Russia, and are likely to prove valuable agricultural colonists if the Russian Government encourages them, as it is said they will, though the rendition of the refugees was demanded by the Korean authorities.

It is understood to be the settled intention of the Russian Government to remove its naval and military station from Nicolaieffsk to one of the ports on the southern coast, where open and safe harbours, practicable for navigation during the greater part of the year, offer a much more eligible site than the semi-Arctic and difficult waters of the Amoor. Port May, it is said, will probably be adopted as the most advantageous spot.

The export trade was beneficially affected by the Japanese demand for peas and oil. Raw silk showed a great increase, the amount being 415 piculs or more than the total aggregate of the three preceding years. This branch of business is now passing from the experimental stage, and bids fair to add a much-needed item to the list of exports from the north of China. The average prices of raw silk were Tls. 350 per picul for the yellow and Tls. 150 for the wild raw, or brown.

Straw braid, an entirely new article of export developed within the last few years, continued to be exported in increasing quantities to the United States. In addition to the foreign demand a great quantity is made into enormous straw hats, sent principally to Hankow. The above is only one among the many developments of trade for which this province has to thank the foreigner, notwithstanding the theory or pretence enunciated of late by the literary classes that foreign trade is per se an evil, and its extension a danger to Chinese industry which should be opposed at all hazards.

The greatest obstacle to any rapid development in the trade of this province lies in its want of means of communication. Many Chinese owners of property among the mountains are anxious to see the well-known mineral resources of the province developed. One European was, in fact, engaged by a Chinese at Tientsin to go into the interior for the purpose of improving the works of a native coal mine; but on this coming to the ears of the Governor of the Province, Ting Pdo-cheng, he at once ordered the district magistrate to arrest and punish the Chinese employer, and the European was sent down to this port.

Washing for gold by Chinese continues to be observed by travellers in different directions within fifty miles of this port. It has not yet been very encouraging in its results, but it seems very probable that veins exist in the rock which the Chinese have never possessed the means to lay bare and work.

Mr. Mayers concludes his very interesting and exhaustive report by reminding the reader that it is precisely ten years since the port of Che-foo was first declared open to trade, and a British Consulate and Chinese Custom-house established at what was then the small village lying at the foot of Yentai Hill. Since then the prosperity of the province has been marked and increasing. The settlement now numbers 149 Europeans and Americans, besides ten missionaries from the United States. Additions are continually being made to the number of European houses or bungalows; and a large hotel has been built for the accommodation of the numerous visitors who resort to Che-foo for the sake of its cool climate and sea air in the summer months, and regard it as the sanitarium of the province.

HANKOW.

Mr. Consul Caine reports the total value of the import trade for 1870 as Tls. 19,323,325, or an increase of Tls. 2,930,872 over the previous year. Sugar, shirtings, T-cloths, English drills, chintzes, lustres, and opium showed a large increase; American drills and Turkey reds a falling off. The trade was, however, unsatisfactory, in consequence of the low prices ruling for Yorkshire and Manchester fabrics. The year was politically bad, and flood and famine exercised their influence on trade generally. The exports amounted to Tls. 14,780,433—Tls. 59,604 less than the previous year. Black tea was almost the only article that showed a marked increase; brick tea, coals, tallow, and tobacco falling off considerably.

During the year, however, more piece goods were disposed of than in any other since the opening of the port, and the low rates have admitted their transport to more western markets—which may eventually have a beneficial effect on the trade of Hankow. Looking at the highway to Central Asia, it is most important—and especially so to Yorkshire manufacturers—that provinces such as Kansuh and Shensi should be opened up to trade. In nearly every large town in China the Shensi bankers have established agencies, and would no doubt do their utmost to restore the prosperity of their native province if permitted. From ten to twenty years ago Shensi took the greater portion of drills in this market, and during the Taeping rebellion immense stocks were sent for safety into this province and Sze-chuen, where they realised a fair profit. This explains why drills were then selling here lower than in Shanghai; native merchants say that low duties and two or three years' freedom from rebellion would so increase trade that Kansuh alone would be able to take over a million pieces of cotton and woollen fabrics per annum. At present the leking, or war taxes, amount to fifty per cent. ad valorem on cottons—in woollens it is so high as to be really prohibitory. Notwithstanding the obstacles placed in its way, it will be seen that commerce has expanded beyond all expectation, and its steady yearly increase will no doubt soon induce the establishment of more foreign firms.

KIUKIANG.

Mr. Consul Hughes reports a considerable increase in the tonnage of vessels employed in the river—due to the carrying trade in cotton, which assumed unprecedented proportions, in consequence of a dearth in that staple in the central provinces and an unusually large crop on the seaboard.

The total value of the import trade, after deducting re-export was £1,030,113, nearly one-third of which was opium. Native opium is not sold here in any quantity; it is, in fact, not much used in the valley of the Lower Yangtsze. In cotton piece goods there was an increase compared with 1869 in all kinds excepting T-Cloths, and of woollen goods the imports exceeded those of any previous year. Almost the only article in which a considerable falling off appeared was lead—possibly by reason of the European war.

The value of the tea exported was £1,734,942, and of the total exports £1,915,764. The opening of the Suez Canal gave a new impetus to the Hankow tea market, which is likely to be fully maintained.

The mercantile community of Kiukiang was reduced to five persons only, and three of these were almost exclusively engaged with steamer agencies. The reason of this decline is to be found in the natural preference for larger markets, which attracts both buyers and sellers to Hankow and Shanghai, and in the inability of the foreign commission agent to compete in the sale of imports with the native wholesale dealer.

NINGPO.

Mr. Consul Fittock reports an increase in imports of Tls. 552,544, chiefly in cottons, woollens, and metals. Exports also show an increase of Tls. 283,089. The large increase is the more satisfactory, as it is solely attributable to the annually increasing favour foreign goods are receiving. Ningpo occupied the sixth position in respect to the value of its trade out of the fourteen ports over which the foreign inspectorate extends. In illustration of the successful development of the trade in foreign bottoms, it may be mentioned that the revenue derived from it by the Chinese Government at the present day is considerably more than half of the estimated value of the whole of the merchandise imported and exported in 1859, exclusive of opium, which was then a prohibited article, although 2,305 chests admittedly found their way into the port in that year without hindrance from the authorities.

FOOCHOW.

Mr. Consul Sinclair reports undisturbed tranquillity throughout the year. Friendly exertions were spontaneously made by the Chinese officials to protect foreign property and save unnecessary alarm after the Tientsin Massacre—which Mr. Sinclair, it must be remarked, calls a "disaster"—and Mr. Sinclair avows the opinion that the subsequent warlike preparations made by the Chinese arose from no motives of hostility, but from a "fixed determination for the future to be in readiness to oppose force to force whenever attacked by foreign forces." The arsenal, under the direction of officers of the French navy, progressed with wonderful activity, and turned out five or six gunboats, which will eventually be placed under the command of Chinese officers now undergoing, as pupils, a special training under the instruction of a lieutenant of the English navy. The authorities on various occasions contributed with some of their steam war-vessels to assist vessels in distress outside the port. The arsenal was providing itself with implements of the newest make, and an officer on the Direction was sent to France for the express purpose of procuring mitrailleuse guns. "It is not, however, to be inferred from these vast preparations that the Government has in contemplation a resort to active hostilities against foreigners." The province was free from rebellion, harvests favourable, rice low, and the population peaceful and contented.

Imports decreased in grey shirtings, woollens, metal, and opium; in white shirtings and T-cloths they showed a fractional improvement. Nankeens continued a formidable competition to Manchester goods. Native opium was believed to be increasing in consumption. The export of tea suffered from the weather and the European war. The commercial relations of the port, however, extended more and more with Australia and New Zealand. The year was unfavourable to the owners of tea-ships, owing to their vessels having been brought into competition with steamers by the opening of the Suez Canal. The neglect of the Chinese Government to light and buoy the river Min was much deplored.

In June of the year a Chamber of Commerce was established at this port, and a weekly market report isssued from its offices.

AMOY.

Mr. Phillips, Interpreter in Charge, reports a decrease in imports of £46,522, and in exports of £92,459. Among the latter tea alone fell off £34,731. Opium showed a decline of £109,521, and cotton and other imports decreased £30,854. The reason of the decreased exportation of tea was owing to a great part of the tea that should have been shipped in 1868 not being despatched till the beginning of 1869. The tea shipped from Amoy is principally for the American market. Seven British ships left this for New York with tea in 1870. The decrease in the import of opium is owing to the excessive leking duties. In treasure imported there was an increase of £93,853, and in treasure exported a decrease of £40,375.

British shipping cleared and entered shows an increase of eighty-seven vessels of 57,351 tons; but of these fifty-three vessels entered and cleared in ballast. The small and handy tonnage of the German vessels enables them to compete favourably with British ships. The lighthouse commenced on Chapel Island this year will be a great boon to mariners; but, as will be seen by the above report, the prospects of Amoy as a port of trade are not encouraging, and, so long as the heavy leking taxes continue to be levied, all hopes of a flourishing trade are crushed.

SWATOW.

Mr. Acting-Consul Cooper reports a considerable increase of trade, especially in European cotton goods. Grey and white shirtings, T-cloths, and drills have advanced steadily for the last four years; in the two latter articles the increase on the previous year was enormous. Fancy and dyed goods are not very saleable at this port. Imports of woollen goods as compared with cottons are insignificant. English camlets and Spanish stripes, however, arrived to the value of £25,000. The import of cotton showed a decrease of 2,000,000 lbs., owing to the large import of yarns and piece goods. The import of tin steadily increased from 2,361 cwts. in 1867, to 5,505 cwts. in 1870. The number and tonnage of the shipping in harbour during 1870 was unprecedented, and in consequence of the European war the proportionate number of British sailing vessels was larger than usual—222 being the number of their entrances and clearances. The employment of steamers, which is on the increase, however, abolishes any hope of sailing vessels earning high freights.

Upwards of 20,000 free emigrants in 1869, and 22,000 in 1870, men and youths, left this port for Singapore, Bangkok, and Saigon, for the most part in vessels under British colours.

CANTON.

Mr. Consul Robertson reports a net improvement on the trade of the previous year of $412,632, the imports having advanced $565,715, and the exports declined $153,083. There is very little to be said regarding the prospects, past or present, of the foreign trade in Canton. There was a falling off of 20,681 piculs of tea in the exports of 1870. Silk showed an increase of 3,732 piculs in raw and thrown; but sugar fell off 37,832 piculs. Imports, such as piece goods, are entirely in Chinese hands. The foreign merchandise is brought from Hong Kong by native traders, but not a tithe of it passes through the foreign Customhouse, nor is a single piece imported by foreign merchants.

In woollens the trade was much on a par with that of the preceding year; shirtings and other fabrics showed an increase of about 5 per cent. Opium fell off 376 piculs. For some time fears were entertained of the intention of the Chinese Government to drive the foreign drug from the market by the cultivation of the native article, but if it had ever any such idea it would take years to accomplish it, and there are no important signs of diminution, either in demand or price, at present.

The value of the trade at the port of Canton in 1870 was:—imports, £2,561,346; exports, £4,219,727. Representing the total value of the foreign trade, and taking the value of imports as one-eighth, the actual amount of the import trade in the port of Canton stands at £20,490,768. The duties amount to £274,022.

In shipping a change is very apparent, steamers fast replacing sailing vessels, and the probability is that the latter will all but disappear.

That the city of Canton is prospering by foreign intercourse is evident from the numerous junks of the largest size bearing the number in English characters in accordance with the harbour regulations of the colony of Hong Kong, and the rapid growth of the suburb adjoining the river. It only requires greater facilities for interior communication, such as railways would afford, to make it probably the shipping port for all the tea and silk exported from China.

THE SIAM CONSULAR REPORT.

The Pall Mall Gazette prints the following remarks upon this report:—

We have already borrowed the system of competitive examinations from the Chinese, and it is our habit to regard them as singularly prudent and economical in all matters of business, public or private. It appears, however, that with the Chinese, as with ourselves, economy at one end does not always prove economy at the other. In the Commercial Report from Mr. Thomas George Knox, Her Majesty's Consul in Siam, for the year 1870, which has lately been printed, he says that from what he has seen of the competition between European and Chinese or native merchants, it appears to him that as long as the business carried on by a Chinese or Siamese firm is such as the heads of the firm can personally attend to they can compete on favourable terms with their European rivals. Their information of the state of the markets is usually more correct, and they receive it earlier. Their establishments are also much more economically managed. When, however, they exceed these limits and have to trust to others, whom they invariably underpay, then the European firms have the advantage. The amount of speculation that is carried on in a large Chinese or Siamese firm is immense. It is considered a matter of course, and when the firm is small is kept within bounds, but when large this can seldom be the case. The fault lies principally in the system of underpaying their clerks and servants, and is not, Mr. Knox considers, owing to any peculiar deficiency in trustworthiness. Foreign firms are likewise losers by the same system, for they invariably have attached to them Chinese compradors, or brokers, who really do the greatest part of their buying and selling, and through whose hands consequently large sums must pass. As they are paid a salary of about a quarter of that given to a European clerk, who fills a much less responsible situation, it is not very surprising that they are not so honest as they ought to be. The curious part, adds Mr. Knox, of the business is that, where the remedy is so plain, it is yet never applied.

Promoters of mining companies and brass-work manufacturers will find some useful hints in Mr. Knox's report. He has, he says, reason to believe that the Siamese Government would willingly grant permission to British subjects to open and work mines in their dominions, provided they felt convinced that the applicants were in possession of the necessary capital to carry on such undertaking in a proper manner. The royalty hitherto paid by the Chinese has been 10 per cent. on the metal extracted, and Mr. Knox understands that large profits have been made. As regards brass-work he calls attention to the large amount of this ware imported from China to Siam. It consists principally of large cups, basins, trays, &c. As these are very badly made and sold at high prices, there is every reason to believe that similar articles made in England would compete successfully with them in the Siamese market. It would, however, be necessary, at least in the first instance, to keep to the same patterns as those at present in use in that country.

MR. MITFORD ON JAPAN.

The current number of the Cornhill Magazine contains a very thoughtful and suggestive paper, by Mr. A. B. Mitford, entitled "Wanderings in Japan," which displays, in a very strong light, "the reverse of the medal," as shown in most of the accounts we have lately received of that country. "All is not gold that glitters" is an adage which can never be trite while it continues to be true. It is, however, only due to him to state that besides the hard disillusion of his account of the climate, the author's narrative contains a great deal of interesting historical (or traditional) information, indicating considerable research, and expressed in a plain, unaffected style, which commends it irresistibly to the reader's attention. It contains also a modicum of drollery gathered from the "window-pane wit" of some of the European tourist class—"monkeys who think they have seen the world," because they happen to have been taken to some odd corners of it, and stayed there just long enough to enable them to insult the religion of the people, and vaunt their own independence. We must content ourselves here with commending Mr. Mitford's delightful paper to our readers at their leisure, when we have no doubt they will derive as much gratification from it as we confess to owing him. The only extract we can find space for is one which describes the climate in anything but the attractive colours in which it has been hitherto painted:—

The rainy season was over, but not the rain. It had been an unusually wet year, even for Japan, and we, the inhabitants of the plain of Yedo, had been living in the midst of mire and slosh not be described. Stewed for weeks in a moist, unhealthy heat, shaving-tackle, knives, and guns were covered with rust unpleasant to the touch; boots and shoes bore a rich crop of unwholesome fungus; and such portions of our crazy wood-and-paper built cottages as had been spared by the violence of a recent typhoon smelt of mould and damp; the very people one met in the streets looked mildewed and sodden, as if being hung out to dry would have done them, as well as their clothes, a world of good. It was evident that, for health's sake, a trip to the hills had become necessary, and accordingly I determined to make a start of it.

Monetary and Commercial.

In anticipation of difficulties arising out of the Alabama claims, war risks have been taken on American vessels homeward bound, from Manila and other ports, the premium charged being 5s.

The twelfth ordinary meeting of the shareholders of the Universal Marine Insurance Company was held on the 1st inst., Sir John Lubbock, Bart., M.P., presiding.

The directors' report having been taken as read, the chairman said he should not go fully into the accounts, as they had been made up in the usual manner, and he congratulated the company on their position and prospects. The balance to the credit of income was £262,438, as against £266,422; the total amount underwritten was £21,380,000, against a slightly smaller amount for last year. The total amount underwritten for the year was £21,340,000, of which £16,716,000 had run off during the year, leaving £4,800,000. They had been making arrangements with a Liverpool office to underwrite for them in London, and he expected that if the details could be arranged it would be very advantageous for them. The foreign agencies were giving satisfactory results, and in no one case had the directors regretted their establishment.

The report and accounts were unanimously passed, and votes of thanks were given to Mr. Fisk, the company's underwriter Mr. Tozer, the secretary, and to the chairman and directors. The dividend declared was at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum.

At the meeting on the 1st of the London and County Bank—the acceptors for the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank—Mr. W. C. Jones in the chair, the report showed an available total of £102,548, including a previous balance of £4,449, and a dividend was declared of 6 per cent., with a bonus of 3½ per cent. (together £1 18s. per share), making, with the June distribution, 18½ per cent. for the year. For the previous year the distribution was 17½ per cent. The deposits held are £16,116,730—an increase of £2,720,479; and the acceptances are £2,778,016—a decrease of £332,105. The paid-up capital is £1,000,000, and the reserve £500,000.

The Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta and British Indian Submarine Telegraph Companies announce interim dividends of 2 per cent. for the year ending the 31st December last.

M. de Lesseps has published an official statement showing that from this year the Suez Canal Company will be enabled to pay its debenture interest with regularity, in consequence of the increase in its revenue. The general receipts of the company in December (exclusive of sales of plant to the amount of £50,000 or thereabouts), were £52,984, as compared with £33,519 in December, 1870. The number of ships which passed through the Canal in December was eighty, as compared with sixty-nine in December, 1870. The aggregate revenue of the company in 1871 was £520,091, as compared with £255,488 in 1870, showing an increase of £264,603 last year. The number of ships passing through the Canal last year was 765, as compared with 486 in 1870, showing an increase of 279 ships last year. The committee appointed by the company to consider the best mode of measurement for calculating the toll of f.10 a ton, has sent in the result of its deliberations to the board of directors, which will have the subject under consideration at its meeting on the 20th inst. All the documents on the subject will be printed and submitted to the shareholders, in order that they may pronounce definitively on the plans which will be laid before them in a general meeting.

Notwithstanding the publicity given to the importation of spurious tea from China, chests of the most abominable rubbish still occasionally find their way to this country, as appears from the following in the Pharmaceutical Journal:—

"A few days since a sample was submitted to us of a small quantity that had recently arrived and been offered for sale at three-halfpence per pound and duty. It was composed, for the most part, of spent leaves, closely matted together in small lumps, thick pieces of twigs, immature tea fruits, pieces of straw, and dust and dirt in large quantity. This rubbish did not find a customer; but are we sure that it will not be offered again, and perchance fall into the hands of some unscrupulous dealer, who, by mixing it in judicious quantities with good tea, may retail it in the poorer districts of this great city at a sufficiently low price to realise a handsome profit to himself?"

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

An auction of 3,967 packages China was held on the 26th ult., the whole being printed on account of the importers, without reserve, and sold; the quantity being 1,629 half-chests Moyune Green, ex Ulysses, from Shanghai, 2,338 chests and half-chests Congou, ex Thyatira, from Foochow. The finest and choice qualities of Green met a good competition at full prices, but medium Moyune went with less spirit and rates were occasionally under those paid at the sales of 10th ult. The Congou sold irregularly, but on the whole prices were about equal to those ruling in the private market, viz., Fannings to leafy kinds 7d. to 8¾d., and good common to fair red leaf 11½d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb.

A further public sale was held on the 30th ult.; 6,632 packages were offered, 3,478 packages being without reserve, of which 1,400 boxes Scented Caper were sold before sale, and barely 2,000 packages thereat. Only unimportant parcels found buyers, the portion offered at reserved prices being all withdrawn. 313 half-chests red leaf Congou sold at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 2½d., and 350 boxes Pekoe Souchong at 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 6½d. Privately business has been done in red leaf Congou at 1s. 5d.

SILK.

There has been a steady daily business in Tsatlees, chiefly on home account, and the deliveries for the month of January have been very large; say 3,036 China, 1,600 Canton, and 1,201 Japan. Canton Tsatlees have been in much favour, and still command considerable attention, "good market" being in request at 17s. 6d., and superior qualities 18s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. Japans seem to be recovering a little from the depression in which they have long been, and good clean parcels of Mybash are now more readily saleable. The next periodical public sales are fixed to commence on the 21st inst. Arrivals in January: China, 1,703 bales; Japan, 853 bales; Canton, 282 bales.

COFFEE.

The market during the week has exhibited an animated tone, and the public sales—which have consisted chiefly of Plantation Ceylon—have gone off with spirit at an advance of 6d. to 9d. per cwt. The prices realised for Plantation Ceylon have been triage 66s. 6d. to 72s., small 74s. to 77s. 6d., low middling 77s. 6d. to 79s., bold grey and dull 80s. to 82s. 6d., middling coloury 79s. 6d. to 81s. 6d., pea-berry 86s. to 88s. 6d. A good demand has prevailed for Native Ceylon, and on the spot 2,500 bags good ordinary have been sold at 70s., also for arrival 300 tons, and about 2,000 bags at 70s., guaranteed good ordinary. The only other sale of East India has been 1,670 bags Manila, mixed brownish, at 69s. 6d. to 70s. per cwt.

SUGAR.

The market has continued extremely active; refiners and the trade still refrain from purchasing, and the business has been very limited in extent. Of Penang at auction of 2,466 bags offered, 1,550 bags sold, middling yellow (duty 4s. 9d.) at 31s. 6d. to 32s., soft yellow (duty 5s. 3d.) at 32s. 6d., good soft coloury (duty 5s. 3d.) at 34s., fine coloury at 35s., crystalised (duty 5s. 8d.) at 37s., 540 baskets date sort were bought in at 32s., but have since sold at 24s.; privately 450 baskets ditto have been sold at 23s. 9d. to 24s. Of Manila we note private sales of 50 tons Zebu unclayed at 24s. 6d., and 2,000 bags low quality at the same price. No other transactions in East India are reported.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon is quiet at last quoted rates, viz., £37 15s. to £38; at public sale 29 casks have been quitted, fine at £38, common at £36 per ton.

COIR GOODS.—At the last sales the supply of Yarn was less extensive, and ordinary qualities again sold readily at full rates; medium sold steadily, but fine went off slowly. Fibre and Rope brought steady rates. Of 313 bales Ceylon Yarn offered 90 bales sold, medium to good medium, £33 15s. to £35, fine well made £44 to £50 10s., 23 tons sold, common to medium at £29 to £31 5s.

CUTCH continues in demand at the recent improvement, but no important sales have been effected.

GAMBIER.—The activity in the demand for floating parcels continues, and a fair quantity has changed hands during the week at 20s. 9d. per cwt., Dec.-Jan. shipment. On the spot 50 tons pressed cubes have been sold (at auction) at 24s. 6d., and 130 mats cubes (privately) at 25s.

GUTTA-PERCHA has realised full rates, re-boiled 11¾d., ordinary white 1s. 3d. to 1s. 7¼d., middling to good kinds 1s. 8d. to 2s. 4¼d., fine 3s. per lb.

HEMP.—Although a fair demand has been shown for Manila, but few transactions have been effected, the stock being for the most part held for prices which buyers decline to pay; at auction 575 bales brown R.R. mark were bought in at £42.

HORNS.—At the periodical sales on the 26th ult. a good supply of various descriptions was offered, but the demand was quite equal, and prices are generally dearer. Siam Buffalo were slow of sale at rather low prices; 40,176 (46 tons) chiefly sold, 750 to 576 horns to a ton at 41s. to 42s. 6d. per cwt. Ceylon Deer met an active demand, and most kinds sold at 5s. to 7s. per cwt. above previous auctions; 26,388 horns (17 tons) chiefly sold, 1,745 to 1,946 horns to the cwt., at 71s. to 75s. 6d.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Borneo has been in active demand, for arrival at 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 8¾d., and at the close 1s. 9d. has been offered and refused.

PEPPER.—Black is steady—Penang at 5¼d. to 5⅝d.; Singapore at 6¼d. White has again been somewhat irregular; Singapore ordinary small to middling quality has sold at 11½d. to 1s., good fair and good fresh 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 0⅜d., Penang at 10¾d. to 11½d.

RICE.—The market is quiet without change in prices.

SAGO.—Only small parcels have been offered by auction and chiefly bought in, small pearl at 17s. 6d., and boxes at 19s.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: Of 21 bales Ceylon 9 bales sold, second sort at 2s. 7d., third at 2s. 6d. Chips: 333 bags bought in above the value, ordinary at 6d. Cloves: Fine bold Penang has sold at 1s. 4d. Nutmegs: Penang have sold at 3s. 7d. Mace: 12 cases Penang sold, middling old 4s. 4d. to 4s. 5d., fresh mixed red 4s. 2d. to 4s. 3d., 12 cases ordinary dark and mouldy Singapore at 3s. 7d.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales were held on the 30th ult. Mother-o'-Pearl: There was good competition, and nearly the whole of the supply was disposed of at full prices to a further slight advance. Of 318 cases Macassar 250 cases sold—good bold clean, £12 10s.; medium and inferior, £10 17s. 6d. to £11 10s. Green Snail: Of 91,573 Penang 77,000 sold—large, 3½d. to 4d.; medium and large medium, 2¾d. to 3½d.; small, 1½d. to 2d. each. Cowries: Of 85 bags Ceylon 24 bags first-class sea-damaged sold at 24s. Tortoise: A good supply, amounting to about 10,000 lbs. of shell and hoof, offered went off with less animation at irregular and lower rates, except for common East India, which sold steadily; of 52 cases East India (including Singapore, 5,470 lbs.) nearly all sold—common and mixed, 9s. 6d. to 12s. 6d., one lot 7s. 6d.; middling to fair, 13s. to 18s. 6d.; good fair to good, 19s. to 24s.

TAPIOCA.—Of 678 bags Singapore 420 bags sold, dull 2½d., good 2⅝d., fine white 2¾d., 347 bags Penang chiefly sold at 2¼d. to 2½d., being cheaper. Pearl: Of 789 bags Singapore 680 bags sold at full rates, old import and dull medium and small at 20s. to 21s., good do. 22s. 6d. to 23s., fresh medium at 23s., fine fresh small at 23s. 6d. to 24s. Flour: 480 bags Penang were withdrawn.

TIN.—The market has again been very irregular, owing to the operations of speculators, and at the close prices show a considerable decline on the rates quoted for last mail, the current range being for Straits on the spot and afloat £141, Banca £144 to £146, Billiton £141 per ton.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

With symptoms scarcely perceptible at first, which this restorative medicine would radically remove, the young become prematurely enervated and debilitated. They lose alike their looks, energy, and confidence. The general cause of this melancholy state is a disordered stomach or deranged liver, which Holloway's Pills will regulate. By improving digestion and purifying the blood, they work wonders. They act so kindly, yet so certainly, upon every organ necessary for healthy digestion, that the nervous system soon recovers, and the wonted good spirits speedily return with strength, vivacity, and vigour. The most delicate may safely take Holloway's Pills. They cause no violent effects upon the system, and gradually accomplish their end without much restriction in diet or pleasure.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present (French) mail brings advices from this port to the 26th Dec.; the P. and O. mail, from London, Oct. 20, arrived out on the 11th, and the following French mail of Oct. 27 on the 18th Dec. The Pacific mail, via San Francisco, with advices to the 22nd Dec., has been delayed en route.

The appointment of Iwakura Tomomi as Ambassador to visit the United States and Europe has rendered vacant the post of Minister for Foreign Affairs. His Excellency is succeeded by Soyejima, formerly a Sangi or Councillor of State. Soyejima formerly belonged to the Hizen Clan.

It is rumoured that the expenses of the distinguished party in the conduct of Iwakura will not be much less than $200,000. The revision of the treaties will not be accomplished until after the return of the Embassy to Japan at the close of next year. Meanwhile the existing treaties will, of course, continue in force. A number of officers connected with the various State departments of Finance, War, Education, Justice, Public Works, Foreign, and ecclesiastical affairs have been ordered to join the mission, with the object of gleaning all possible information on subjects connected with their several departments, which they are especially charged to report upon to the Government.

The fishermen of Sinagawa have applied to Government to have the railroad removed from the shore, as the noise has driven away all the fish from their fishing ground.

It is reported that the Japanese Government has bought 200,000 chassepot guns from Prussia.

The Japanese Government has decided not to establish a National Bank before the return of the mission.

All the guards at the castle gates, and a great part of the guard-houses in the city have been done away with.

The village of Ashinoyu, where the celebrated sulphur springs are situate, has been entirely burnt down.

Soyoshima, who was sent up to Saghalien some time since to treat with the Russians, but without success, goes as Minister Resident to St. Petersburg.

Considerable apprehensions have been felt at Yedo with respect to the attitude of Kanga and Kishin, who were suspected, in consequence of their tardiness in obeying the Mikado's mandate, to attend him at Yedo, of entertaining feelings of hostility, arising out of the recent extensive changes by which they lose so much. It is understood, however, that both these powerful magnates have been in some way quieted.

Our old enemy of Satsuma, Shimadz Saburo, the same who attacked Richardson and party on the Tokaido, and was the cause of the battle of Kagosima, has at last been rewarded by the Government by an increase of revenue and rank. One hundred thousand kokus will enable him to bear with the presence of foreigners in the country.

Information has just been received by the Government of an unsuccessful assault on some three thousand Ronins, who have made the island of Sado, the gold mines, a rendezvous. The foreigners there have been removed to Ne-e-gata by the Ken in charge of Sado, and reinforcements are called for from the district of Etchigo, and cannon have been sent to quell the disturbance.

The Government are determined to introduce the silver yen, of which three millions have already been issued by the mint at Osaka, but notice has been given that all speculations in the nibooken are forbidden, and values shall exist as represented, and there shall be no difference between the yen, nibooken, and kinsatz.

The Kiuyikujo poor-house established at Yedo for the reception of vagrants and beggars is closed for want of money, and the inmates have been handed over to the officials of the several street departments, where there is much suffering and danger of crime. The order has been given to arrest all malefactors and bring them to Takanawa, when they will be shipped, together with the homeless and friendless, and those remaining unregistered at the Government office, to places in the Empire sparsely inhabited.

It is reported that the Customs are to be placed under foreign supervision. A gentleman who has held a position of a similar kind in America being now on his way here for that purpose.

A new comic periodical, entitled the Japan Joe Miller, has been issued.

We are happy to hear that the Japanese Government, duly appreciating the valuable and gratuitous services rendered to them by the late Dr. Newton, R.N., have placed one thousand silver yen at the disposal of H.B.M.'s Chargé d'Affaires to be forwarded to England for the benefit of the relations of the deceased.

HIOGO.

It is said that the railway to Osaka is to have a double instead of a single line of rails A new steamer, the Fuyo-maru, for the Kobe Osaka traffic, of 115 tons and twenty-horse power has been launched. A smart earthquake occurred on Dec. 13, the most severe since the advent of foreigners in the place; three distinct shocks were felt. The native guards have been abolished in the settlement.

The Hiogo and Osaka General Chamber of Commerce held their annual meeting on Dec. 8. A resolution was passed expressive of regret at the sudden death of Mr. Franklin Blake, representative of Messrs. Augustine Heard and Co., and one of the founders of the Chamber; the only other business was the passing of the report and accounts. A new fire engine, costing $1,600, has been ordered out for the fire brigade.

NAGASAKI.

The following items are from the Express:—

The first step towards placing the fire insurance question on a more satisfactory basis has been commenced by the reduction of the premium on one class of risks to the current rate charged on those at Hiogo and Yokohama. Risks on stone godowns and their contents at this port can now be accepted by the agents representing the insurance companies at 2 per cent.

Once again the Japanese are disgracing themselves by persecuting Christians. On the 19th Dec. a Japanese steamer carried away from their families and their homes some sixty Christians, dwellers in the neighbourhood of this port. Whither they have been transported is not yet known.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to Dec. 28. The outward P. and O. mail of the 3rd Nov. arrived on the 23rd Dec. The following summary is from the North China Herald:—

A meeting of the North China Insurance Company was held on the 22nd Dec., at which the former deed of settlement was accepted for the term 1872-74, subject to certain alterations. Messrs. Lavers, Anderson, Miller, Porter, Smith, and Schroers were elected directors.

Mr. A. R. Hewlett has been appointed acting British vice-Consul here.

There has been very little business done during the past week. The offices of H.B.M. Consulate, those of the Municipal Councils, the Customs, and the banks were closed for two days. Many residents are away up country shooting, and those who remain have been taking advantage of the fine weather and Christmas holidays to join in various outdoor amusements.

We hear that the Fuh-li, tug-boat, which has been plying at Foochow during the tea season, and which lately left for Shanghai, ran on a rock off the coast of Chusan while on her way up. The weather was very foggy, but the Fuh-li was running in deep water in the channel, and supposed to be well off the coast. The set of the tidal current, however, carried her broadside shorewards, and the fog was so thick that the danger was not detected. She went on the rock, driving a large hole in her bottom. She has since remained stationary, and there is not thought to be any fear of her slipping off while the weather continues quiet. Some of the crew remained by her, while Captain Gibbon reached Ningpo in a native fishing-boat, and came on to Shanghai. We understand he has returned to Ningpo, to proceed to the wreck in the gun-boat stationed there, with the view of doing what may be possible with the vessel, or of securing her machinery and tackle.

We hear that the American barque Loch Lamar, which was wrecked on the North Bank, and subsequently sold, for account of the underwriters, has been pillaged to some extent by junk people. The sternpost was taken clean away, so as to permit the cargo—timber—to be floated out; and a considerable quantity was removed in this way. The bad weather only prevented the depredations from being carried on much more extensively. There seems to be no chance of bringing the vessel off.

The collection on Christmas Day at Trinity Church, in aid of the building fund, amounted to $722.

The Chinese Recorder for December sets out with a brief paper by Mr. Baldwin, on the late annual meeting of the American Board Mission at Foochow, and the characteristics of the native preachers. Boomerang contributes a pithy article on the history of the Treaty Revision during 1867-8-9. The results are thus summarised:—"At last, after tedious delay and fruitless endeavour, the treaty was signed on the 23rd Oct., 1869. The three years' campaign was now ended. The foreigner was beaten—the Mongol had outmanœuvred the Saxon—the scow had got to the windward of the clipper—coolie muscle was exalted above steam—the paddle-wheels had to yield the way to the old fashioned scull—and foreign civilisation had to retire abashed from its vain endeavour to accept the invitation of Mr. Burlingame, and "graft itself on the ancient civilisation of China." Ossian contributes a paper on the connection between Gaelic and Chinese, which reads very like a squib. Mr. Edkins continues his examination into the connection of Chinese and Hebrew; and Dr. Dudgeon continues his interesting sketch of Russian intercourse, and the position and labour of the Greek Church in China. Sinensis, in a paper on Chinese Mythology, detects references to the Great Flood; and J. D., in a brief note, derives the Chinese word "Mi," explained by Mr. Wylie to mean Sunday, or the day sacred to the sun, from the Persian word Mithra, and the Sanscrit Mitra.

A Peking correspondent speaks of a violent attack by a mob on an American missionary. It seems that one of the American missionary societies had succeeded in planting a station in Yujok, a large city, about eighty miles west of Peking. If we mistake not there was some difficulty in getting possession of the premises after the lease had been drawn, and the advance money paid. There has been considerable opposition and persecution clearly traceable to the officials. On a recent Sunday the Rev. Mr. Pearson was interrupted, while preaching, and such a hostile spirit manifested that he thought it wise to withdraw. He was however, followed and waylaid, thrown down, beaten, and pelted with stones. When he reached home his clothes were soiled and torn, and the blood was running freely from the wounds in the face and head. What notice the American Government will take of this affair remains to be seen.

FOOCHOW.

A Foochow correspondent says there are but three vessels in port—the Takosima, loading poles for Shanghai; the Gaviota loading rice and fruit for Saigon—(which is rather strange, seeing that steamers are being chartered here to take rice to Foochow)—and the barque Rifle, discharging her cargo of poles preparatory to going into dock. The erection of the White Dog Islands lighthouse is about being commenced. The stones formerly intended for the work in connection with the blowing up of the rock at the Anchorage are to be taken to form part of the lighthouse material. This will be a real benefit to the harbour, as the immersion of these in the strong current caused a tremendous chow-chow water for some hundred yards, and required the harbour pilot to be careful not to anchor vessels within reach of its whirling eddies.

AMOY.

The weather at Amoy has been unusually cold. On the 12th Dec. there was a heavy hailstorm, and on the three following nights frost. Ice was found in jars and ponds about the thickness of a dollar, a most unusual occurrence in Amoy. The German barque Japan is loading with tea for New York.

HONG KONG.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 4th January; the P. and O. mail, with London dates Nov. 17, arrived out Dec. 31.

The following is from the China Mail:—

We understand that the Hon. Chief Justice Smale is compelled to take six months' leave of absence from his duties as Judge of the Supreme Court, his health not permitting him to remain at his post. The appointment consequent on this arrangement will be made known very shortly.

The Kellett's Island magazines seem to be progressing, the stonework of three being finished, though the whole, we believe, will not be finished for two or three years. The upper platform will have four guns mounted en barbette, two facing each way. It is, we believe, proposed to make the island take the place of the present hulk as the harbour depot of gunpowder.

The following judgment on the Abdool Moosa case has been delivered by the Chief Justice, who said:—"I think the crime of you, Abdool Moosa, is the worst shock to credit in mercantile transactions in China which this Criminal Court has brought to light, as it affects commercial dealings, especially by men who trade, as the masses do, on credit, and but for the recommendation of the jury I should have visited it with most exemplary severity; but I yield to that recommendation. The sentence of the Court on you on the 1st count on which you have been found guilty is that you be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the period of one year and six calendar months, as and from the eigteenth day of this month; and that on your conviction on the 4th count, that you be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the like period of one year and six calendar months, as and from the same 18th day of this month. As to you, Noor Mahomed Kamisa, the jury have very properly convicted you on the same counts. They have also recommended you to mercy. In your case it appears that you were less active than Abdool Moosa, although you were sufficiently participating to render it clear that you knew what was the object of your conspiracy, and that with your eyes open you concurred in the wicked acts of your co-conspirator; you will have the benefit, in your sentence, of this distinction in your case. The sentence of the Court on you, Noor Mahomed Kamisa, on the first count on which you have been convicted, is, that you be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the period of one year, as and from the 18th day of this month, and that as to your conviction on the fourth count, that you be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for the like period of one year, as and from the 18th day of this month."

In the Vice-Admiralty Court the Acting Queen's Advocate applied for an order for the sale of sixty-eight pieces of timber, brought here derelict. He stated that all parties concurred that they ought to be sold. Mr. Brereton, who appeared for Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., consented, and the order was made.

We are glad to notice that the German Club building, which is now rapidly approaching completion, is likely to come fully up to the expectations formed of it. Its appearance is extremely attractive, and the arrangements inside are everything that could be wished. The Concert Hall is specially successful, both in appearance and in acoustic qualities.

Governor MacDonnell has ordered a commission of inquiry into the police organisation.

In the Supreme Court, on the 3rd Jan., an action, "The Official Assignee in Lyall, Still, and Co., v. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.," came on for hearing before Mr. Justice Ball. This was a claim for the accrued dividends of certain shares in the Canton Insurance and Triton Companies and the proceeds of the sale of certain iron barges which belonged to Lyall, Still, and Co., but which were held by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co. Several witnesses were examined, and the case appeared to present no unusual difficulty; but, as a matter of course, the learned Judge "reserved judgment." The Chief Justice of Hong Kong has set an example in this direction which pure etiquette compels his juniors to follow, however suitors may feel aggrieved.

The annual tea meeting of the members of the Union Congregation was held at the chapel, which was beautifully decorated with flags and evergreens. About one hundred sat down to tea, after which Dr. Legge, the pastor of the congregation, addressed the meeting, and was followed by the Rev. Mr. Selby, of Fatshan, Mr. J. W. Torry, of East Point, Captain Locke, of the Carricks, his Honour the Chief Justice, and other speakers, among whom the Rev. Mr. Whitehead, of Canton, was especially impressive in an earnest and eloquent address in which he took up the gauntlet that has lately been thrown down by officials and diplomats, in their attempted disparagement of the missionary movement in China, and defended the course of those "pioneers of civilisation," the soldiers of Christ, with an eloquence and power that carried the entire audience with him.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

The following extracts are from the Sarawak Gazette:—

From the 1st Jan., 1872, any person imprisoned for debt may, with the permission of the Resident and consent of his creditors, be allowed to work at a monthly wage of $4 in payment of his debt.

The establishment of a Government school with a Chinese teacher and suitable buildings at Paku has done something to provide instruction for the many Chinese children who exist in Upper Sarawak.

The N.E. monsoon having set in, the fair-way buoy on the bar at the Santubong entrance of the Sarawak river has been removed, the channel being no longer safe for large vessels.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 12th January. The French mail of 8th Dec. arrived on the 9th Jan. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The average amount of notes in circulation by the several banks furnishes these figures:—Oriental Bank: notes issued, $309,285, the bullion in reserve is in accordance with the terms of the charter of incorporation. Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China: notes issued $355,025; specie in reserve $150,000. Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China: notes issued, $337,680.

It is difficult to account for the bitter hostility towards the Honourable Mr. Birch, our Colonial Secretary, that has for some time been manifested by the Penang Argus. The sentiments that paper expresses find no echo at this end of the Colony.

We regret to learn of the death of Mr. George Cox, Acting Superintendent of Police at Penang.

We are happy to see that the new Chief Justice, Mr. Sidgreaves, arrived safely on the 5th January. Circulars were afterwards sent round to the grand and petty jurors, notifying that their attendance would not be required until the 15th.

The Messageries steamer Newa, of the Batavia line, having completed the repair of her broken shaft, has arrived here from Batavia, and after docking will resume her place on the line.

H.M.S. Iron Duke, Captain Arthur, with Admiral Shadwell on board, arrived from Penang.

H.M.S. Teazer, Captain Blomfield, from Malacca, 10th inst., has arrived.

An armed gang of about fifty Chinese, said to be Teo Chews, have made an attack upon a pawnbroker's shop in Orchard-road, opposite Oxley's-hill; they were resisted by the inmates of the shop, but these were quickly overpowered and badly wounded, while the master of the shop was disabled by a heavy blow on the ancle. The gang then plundered the place, carrying off a large quantity of jewellery, valuables, and money, to the amount of some $1,000. Part of the gang, numbering about fifteen, were met by a corporal of police and two peons who were going rounds, and the police attacked the gang, but were beaten off. One bundle of the stolen property was dropped in the melee, and taken charge of by the police. Captain Dunlop and Inspector Miller are inquiring into the matter, and every endeavour will be made to get hold of the depredators.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been no improvement in the market. Although a few transactions had taken place in Yarns and Shirtings, yet anything but a satisfactory business had been done, and prices at the close exhibited a slight inclination to recede. A fair demand for Woollens, Cloth, and Alpacas had existed, and these were still saleable at quotations. For Cotton Yarn rates ruled weak, and only a small business had been done. A large inquiry had set in for Velvets, and prices had advanced fully $4 per piece. Blankets had had a fair sale. Quotations were as follows:—G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.20 to 2.25 per piece; do., 8½ lbs., $2.40 to 2.45; do., 9 lbs., $2.75 to 2.80; White Shirtings, $2.60 to 3.05; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.70 to 2; Velvets, black, 35 yds. 22 in., $12.50 to 13.75; Taffachelass, 12 yds. 43 in., double weft, $2.60 to 3; do., single, $2.40 to 2.75; Cotton Yarns, Nos. 16-24, $37.75 to 38.25 per picul; 28-32, $45 to 46; 38-42, $40 to 41; Iron, bar, $3.50 to 4; do., nail-rod, $2.40 to 3.60; Camlets, SS, $11.50 per piece; do., SSS, $19 to 19.50; Long Ells, scarlet and black, $6 to 6.50; Blankets, $0.42½ to 0.47½ per lb.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no marked desire to do business either on the part of importers or dealers since last mail. Sales of the principal staples had been going on, but the aggregate was trifling—partly owing to the intervention of Christmas holidays, and partly because of the firmness of holders. Quotations remained unchanged for everything, excepting Mexican 7 lbs. T-Cloths and 22 in. Black Velvets, both which articles had improved in value—the former 1 to 2 cands. per piece, and the latter 2 to 3 cands. per yard.

HONG KONG.—There had been no change, the market having been steady but quiet since last mail.

SAIGON.—A slight advance had been established on 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings and the better qualities of Irishes; other descriptions were unchanged. Quotations were:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.57½ per piece; 7 lbs., $2.25. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.70; 5 lbs., $1.40; 4½ lbs., $1.35; 4 lbs., $1.15. White Irishes, $1.77½.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Settlements for the month had amounted to 8,500 piculs, of which 4,000 piculs had been settled for during the last fortnight; a fair amount of business had been done at prices as last quoted. Stocks remained unchanged, as supplies had equalled settlements, which mostly consisted of lower grades. The Walton, with 476,893 lbs., had sailed for New York, and the Lizzie Iredale and Ada had been laid on, and were fully engaged.

SHANGHAI.—Black: A small business had been transacted at about previous rates, and Tls. 12 had been accepted for Shongtams of very low quality. Arrivals, though small, had kept pace with settlements, a stock remaining of 9,500 chests. Green: Business had been moderate, but prices for fine Teas were maintained, and an average of over Tls. 40 was still shown. Settlements, 9,000 half-chests; stocks, 24,000 half-chests.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Transactions had been considerable, and a large amount had been settled for. Stocks were largely reduced, and settlements amounted to about 100 bales, consisting of various sorts. Prices had ruled firm, and but very little change had occurred in quotations.

SHANGHAI.—The market had been less active, owing to the interference of the Christmas festivals. About 350 bales had been purchased; 100 bales being Re-reels, and 200 bales market Silks bought at Tls. 490 to 515. The small stock of Chop No. 3 was held firmly at Tls. 585 to 590. Red Peacock was quoted Tls. 515 to 520. The unsold stock was estimated at about 3,000 bales. The present mail steamer was expected to take 500 bales, about 200 bales having been kept from last (English) mail.

COCHIN CHINA PRODUCE.

SAIGON.—Rice: A quiet feeling has been maintained during the greater part of the month. Old Rice was entirely exhausted, and new grain was not arriving as quick as was expected; at the close Chinese dealers were easier, and with increased arrivals of grain lower prices were expected in the course of the month. Current rates were:—Ready stock $1.88 f.o.b. per cwt., and twenty to thirty days delivery $1.80 per cwt. f.o.b. Cotton: There was no demand for uncleaned, although prices declined to $5.10 to 5.15; cleaned, No. 1, is held at $17, and of No. 2 nothing is on the market. Fish: Market entirely cleared. Hides: Buffalo obtainable at former rates, viz., $8 per picul; for Cowhides as high as $13½ had been offered, but very small lots only were arriving. Horns remained in their former position, middle-sized quality being quoted $8 per picul. Gamboge: Very little in the market, but there were no buyers at a higher rate than $55 for good average quality. Black Pepper: A lot of 800 piculs offered at $12.50; but there was no possibility of obtaining this price.

THE PERSECUTION OF NATIVE CHRISTIANS IN JAPAN.

On the 9th inst. a numerous deputation, consisting principally of members of the Evangelical Alliance and other missionary bodies, waited on Lord Granville, at his private residence, to memorialise his lordship on the subject of recent religious persecutions in Japan. The deputation was introduced by the Right Hon. Lord Ebury, President of the Council of the Evangelical Alliance; and among those present were Lord Alfred Churchill, Mr. R. A. Macfie, M.P., Mr. R. Maclure, M.P., Lieut.-Colonel Wilmot Brooke, General G. Walker, Samuel Gurney, Esq., Rev. Dr. Blackwood, Rev. Dr. Stean, Rev. J. R. Wolfe (of Foochow), Rev. G. T. Perks, Secretary of the Wesleyan Missionary Society; Dr. Underhill, Secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society; and Revs. James Davies and Dr. Schmettan, Secretaries of the Evangelical Alliance.

In introducing the subject, Lord Ebury acknowledged the assistance which the Alliance had always received from Her Majesty's Foreign Office, and disavowed, on the part of the society, all feelings of bigotry. In Japan Roman Catholics had suffered persecution as well as Protestants, and the Alliance made no difference between them. The secretary, having read letters from Lord Chichester and Lord Lawrence, regretting their inability to be present, proceeded to the memorial itself. This was a lengthy document, stating that since the overthrow of the Tycoon Government and the establishment of that of the Micado, the Christians had been systematically persecuted. Tablets bearing the inscription, "The Christian sect is strictly prohibited," had reappeared on the principal buildings; and, about three years ago, 4,000 native converts, mostly Roman Catholics, had been sent into exile under circumstances of great severity. The custom of trampling on the cross, which had been said to be abolished, was also still in existence. The memorialists concluded by expressing a hope that opportunity would be taken of calling the attention of the Japanese Government to these facts; and that, in the revision of existing treaties between Japan and other contracting Powers, his lordship would use his best efforts to secure the free exercise of the Christian religion in Japan.

In replying briefly to this memorial Lord Granville said the object was not to make speeches, but to proceed to business. The ends of the various societies and those of the Foreign-office were in this matter substantially the same. His Lordship therefore called upon

Sir Harry Parkes, K.C.B., Her Majesty's Ambassador to Japan, who was present, to state his views as to the degree of persecution existing, and the best mode of meeting it.

After this statement, which gave a somewhat new aspect to the matter, the deputation withdrew, thanking Lord Granville—who was suffering from indisposition—for his courteous reception.

TRADE OF THE YANGTSZE.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Times thus summarises the principal incidents in our recent intercourse with China :—

Just thirteen years have passed since Lord Elgin first carried the British flag to Hankow. The power of the Taeping rebels was then nearly at its height. Trade on the lower part of the river, between Kiukiang and the sea, had virtually ceased.

Five years later, Gordon crushed the head of the Rebel power at Soochow, and the recapture of Nanking by Tseng-kwo-chuan, in July, 1864, restored to the Imperialists complete control over the valley of the Yangtsze.

In the meantime, the clause in the Tientsin Treaty opening the river to foreign trade had been put in force, and merchant steamers had begun to ply between Shanghai and Hankow. The first merchant steamer left in the early part of 1861. There was hardly a junk floating on the lower part of the Yangtsze, when the first foreign steamers began to ply upon its waters. The favourite mandarin plea, therefore, of interference with the boat traffic was here estopped ; and a fair chance offered for testing the foreign answer, that steam communication rather encourages than hurts small carrying interests, by developing trade and creating a subsidiary traffic. Large quantities of native goods, such as crockery or paper—things which do not spoil and the market for which is steady, still travel chiefly by junk, the cheap freight compensating for the loss of time. So there is the fact, patent to Chinese as well as foreigners, that a large junk trade has grown up alongside the course of the steamers. But the mandarins exist because they are the educated embodiments of old Chinese arts and customs ; and if belief in them is shaken, 'ware crash. It is far rather because they fear telegraphs, railways, and steamers will let in light on their own corruption, and lessen their official profits than from any care for the interests of the people, that they oppose so steadily any form of progress. Still, new ideas are making way, in their despite ; and what with the lead of one or two intelligent mandarins, and the perfect readiness of the people, at least in certain districts, to accept these awful innovations, I believe a litte energy on our part would get in the thin end of the wedge.

Tseng-kwo-Fan, the Viceroy of these provinces, has just paid Shanghai a visit, in the course of an inspectoral tour. Tseng-kwo-Fan saw the telegraph worked, among other experiences, during his visit, and I believe the lesson was not altogether without effect. Tseng is Chinese and Conservative, but he is intelligent ; and I should not be surprised to see a small experiment in telegraphy made some day in one corner of his Viceroyalty.

THE MONT CENIS ROUTE.

We have been favoured with the following experiences of an English lady travelling from Rome to Paris by the Mont Cenis Tunnel route, which may be of interest to residents in the Far East contemplating a homeward journey via Brindisi :—

"I left Rome at 9.35 A.M., and arrived at Florence at 6.35 P.M. The corresponding train for Turin leaves Florence at 7.20 P.M., and arrives, I believe, about 8 A.M. ; but regarding this I am not quite certain, as I stayed at Florence, and so missed the express (which corresponds with the express to Paris), and proceeded afterwards by the omnibus train, which leaves at 9.10 P.M., and does not arrive at Turin until 12.30 P.M. The express train for Paris leaves Turin every morning at 8.30, and arrives at Paris the next morning at 6.30. The fare from Turin to Paris is one hundred and two francs thirty centimes, which must be paid in coin, the Italian currency not being accepted in payment at the railway station. The first station after leaving Turin is Bussoleno ; then come Meana-Susa, Chiamonte, Salbertrand, Oulix, and Bardonecchia, where the engine is changed, and, judging from subsequent experience, I have reason to believe that the one substituted for the transit through the great tunnel consumes its own smoke. In the preceding tunnels the vapour was considerable, and had they been of greater length would have been even distressing, while in the great tunnel there were scarcely any traces of smoke or of the oppression generally experienced in underground travelling The tunnel is entered immediately after leaving Bardonecchia, and the passage occupies exactly twenty six minutes. Judging from the brilliancy and construction of the carriage lamps as far as this stage of the journey (very different from the ordinary lamps used on continental lines), I concluded that gas is employed for the illumination of the carriages. The tunnel is also well lighted, and, as we were able to keep the windows open without experiencing the slightest inconvenience, I observed that at intervals there were large numbered lamps, evidently indicating distances, and that there is a double line of rails. I was informed by a gentleman who had walked through that a mild current of air circulates through the tunnel, which, it is said, travels always in the same direction, namely, from France. The first station after leaving the tunnel on the French side is Modane, where we changed trains. Here passports are demanded, and a pretence made of examining the passengers' small hand luggage, but it is a mere form. The registered baggage is not examined until its arrival in Paris. I found the officials very civil, and not troublesome. We changed trains again at Culoz. At Macon we stayed an hour, and here a very good dinner was prepared for those who desired to partake of it. It is now possible to make the journey from Rome to Paris in fifty-six hours."

TATTOOING EXTRAORDINARY.

The Lancet quotes from a Vienna magazine a full account given of a tattooed man, whose case has created much interest both in and out of Vienna. This man states that he is an Albanian, forty years of age, and unmarried. Besides Greek, his native tongue, he speaks Arabic and Persian fluently, French, Spanish, Italian, German, and English, with various degrees of fluency and correctness. His accounts of his life vary somewhat. According to one statement he has been for the last five years engaged, together with eleven companions, in fortune-hunting, in the shape of working gold mines in Chinese Tartary. During a rebellion which occurred in that country he supplied the rebels with arms ; and upon the defeat of the insurgents was, with his companions, taken captive. Nine of the prisoners were put to death ; the remaining three, including himself, were sentenced to the "punishment of tattooing," in order that they might ever thereafter go about as "marked men." One of the victims died, either in consequence of the severity of the operation or from disease ; a second, blind, lives yet at Hong Kong; while the third, the subject of the present communication, managed to make his escape through China to a port on the Indian Gulf. Thence an English ship brought him to Manila, thence to Hong Kong, from which place he returned, via Suez, to Greece. According to another account he engaged, together with some Frenchmen, in hostile operations against the Chinese, by whom he was taken prisoner and tattooed. The operation was thus performed :—The victim was held fast by four strong men, his struggles being further quieted by threats of instant death, while for three successive hours daily the artist—always the same man—worked away at him. In less than three months he was tattooed from head to foot.

When the man, who is of middle height and beautifully and strongly built, is stripped, it seems as though the whole of his body was tightly enveloped in a webbing (triest) of richly woven Turkish stuff. From the crown of his head to the tips of his toes he is covered with dark blue figures of animals and plants, in the interspaces of which appear to be characters in blue and in cinnabar red. The hands are tattooed on both surfaces, but only with inscriptions. The blue figures stop short at the insteps of the feet, but the tattooing is continued along the toes to the root of the nails in the form of red characters. Through the very hairs of the scalp and of the beard appear also designs in blue. On the forehead, one on either side, are two panthers, "regardant," as heralds would say, and separated in the middle line by red characters. There are altogether on the body no less than 388 figures. All of these are of a blue colour, and represent apes, leopards, cats, tigers, eagles, crowned sphynxes, storks, swans, men, women, elephants, crocodiles, snakes, fish, lions, snails, fruits, leaves, flowers, bows, arrows, and quivers. It appears extremely probable that the tattooing has been done with the juices of plants, and not with the usual agents. The instrument with which he was tattooed, and which he has brought away with him, is split, like a steel pen, at the tip, so that fluid substances could easily be taken up by it. In a short time he will leave Vienna, it being his intention to visit other towns, among them Berlin and London.

COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

MORRISON V. THE UNIVERSAL MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

This case was tried at Liverpool on Dec. 22, and resulted in a verdict for the defendants. The facts at issue were fully detailed in our issue of Dec. 29. Subsequently on the 13th ult. the plaintiff moved for a rule for a new trial.

The arguments in support of and against the application for a new trial were heard on the 6th inst. before Barons Martin, Bramwell, and Cleasby. The action was upon a marine policy of insurance on the chartered freight by the ship Cambria, on an intended voyage from Galveston to Liverpool, and the vessel was lost in the voyage a few days before the insurance was effected, but this fact was not, according to the evidence, known to the plaintiff. The defendants argued that underwriters were not bound to be acquainted with the contents of Lloyd's Lists, and in all cases it was a question for the jury whether they were or not. For the plaintiff it was contended that the underwriters were to be presumed to be possessed of all the information which they could have obtained from Lloyd's Lists if they had chosen to resort to this source of information. The judges granted the application.

THE troopship Orontes sailed from Malta, with the 80th Regiment on board, on the 1st instant. The route of the Orontes has been slightly changed, under orders issued since her departure, and the following are the approximate dates of her several arrivals and sailings :—Leave Suez 14th instant, arrive at Trincomalee about the 26th; leave Trincomalee about Feb. 29 or March 1 for Singapore, arrive about the 8th ; leave Singapore for Hong Kong about the 16th, where she will arrive about the 26th. The homeward voyage will be entered upon on April 4, Singapore being reached on the 11th. Six days subsequently she will leave for Madras, at which place she is expected to arrive on April 25, leaving again for Trincomalee on the 29th, and arriving there on May 1. On the 5th of the same month she will sail for Aden, arriving there on the 19th. She will arrive at Suez on May 29, and leave again on the following day, arriving at Malta on June 5. Leaving Malta on June 9, she will arrive at Gibraltar on the 14th, and Portsmouth about June 23, bringing with her time-expired men and invalids from both services.

CHINAMEN IN MASSACHUSETTS.—A correspondent of the New York Tribune states that the Chinese shoemakers continue to give satisfaction. Their pay-roll for the month of November showed that the aggregate loss of time by seventy-four workmen was only five days. The superintendent states that their work is equal both in quality and quantity to that formerly done by a like number of Americans ; and it is believed that it is done at less than a third of the wages required by the latter. The Chinamen say they like their situations, but they do not state to any one what course they intend to pursue when their three years' contract is worked out.

The Admiralty has conferred the appointment of Naval Accountant at Yokohama upon Mr. Edward Robinson, Assistant Paymaster in charge of the Store and Victualling Depot at that place.

Hertslet's Commercial Treaties.—Under the somewhat lengthy title of an "Index of Subjects to the Twelve Volumes of Treaties and Conventions, and Reciprocal Regulations at Present Subsisting between Great Britain and Foreign Powers," Mr. Edward Hertslet, Librarian and Keeper of the Papers in the Foreign-office, has just published a most valuable complement to the series commenced by his father half a century ago. It was at once—in 1820—taken under the special patronage of the Foreign Secretary, and it was continued by Mr. Hertslet, sen., with undiminished completeness until a few years before his death—the eleventh volume having been published in 1864. It is the only work which gives in a collected form all the treaties entered into between this country and foreign Powers, so far as they define the rights and privileges of British subjects in every country on the face of the globe, as well as the rights and privileges of foreigners in England and all parts of the British dominions. The accuracy of this work has been as universally recognised as the immense amount of labour and research which it must have cost the compiler. As Mr. Edward Hertslet reminds us, The Times, in a paragraph announcing the death of his father, remarked that his works "would ever remain a lasting monument of his intelligence and industry." It would be impossible to award higher praise to the compiler of the present index than to say that it not only vindicates the high reputation of his father, but that it also proves himself fully equal to continue and carry on the work with equal merit and success. Although called an "Index," the work before us is, in fact, an epitome or digest of all our engagements by treaty with all foreign Powers, with each separate subject—such as Commerce, Navigation, Copyright, Extradition, Jurisdiction, Marriages, Postal Communication, Slave Trade, Trade Marks, &c., &c., alphabetically arranged, the date being placed against each document, and a reference given to the volume and page in which it is to be found. Political Treaties only are excepted for the reason that a special work on this subject is in course of preparation. To the mercantile community the volume before us must be simply invaluable; and not the smallest of its advantages is the fact of its being half-interleaved, i.e., a blank page is placed opposite to every printed page—so that those who consult it can make their own notes for future reference. We should not close our notice without mentioning that Messrs. Butterworth are the publishers—in itself a guarantee that the work is a standard one.

London. By Gustave Doré and Blanchard Jerrold. London: Grant and Co.—This is the first number of a work, to be completed in twelve monthly parts, and devoted to the illustration of picturesque, striking, and little known phases of life in the great metropolis. The union of pencil and pen has seldom been more felicitous than in the present work, where the graphic sketches of the great French artist are illustrated by the nervous text of the son of one of the most earnest of modern social reformers. The present part contains full page views on the Thames, in the docks, and in a night-refuge—besides many smaller illustrations. The work is got up in the most costly style, and cannot but prove a world-wide favourite.

The Athenæum, in a recent notice of the second volume of M. Stanislas Julien's valuable Syntaxe Nouvelle de la Langue Chinoise (which we reviewed on its publication several months ago), gives the following encouragement to foreigners intending to study Chinese:—

Is it possible for Europeans to know the Chinese language, not completely, but sufficiently? Must they not be prepared to spend their whole life upon the hopeless task, with the consciousness that, after all, they can never get beyond the mere preliminaries of a difficult science? M. Stanislas Julien boldly answers in the negative. The opinion against which he contends might have some foundation, if persons anxious to speak, to read, and to write Chinese were obliged to learn the 42,000 characters comprised in the great dictionary published by order of the Emperor, Khang-hi, in thirty-two octavo volumes. Now, it may be affirmed that not one Chinese littérateur could be found capable of such an effort of memory. But it is as useless to a Chinese or a European to know, or to be able to write, all the characters of the "Khang-hi-tseu-tien" ("Dictionary of Khang-hi") as it would be to any foreigner studying the French language to know all the words in Boiste's Dictionary, where the nomenclature is three times more abundant. The formidable array of thirty-two volumes octavo would be reduced from 42,000 to 6,000 or 8,000 words, if an elimination was made, first, of about 10,000 equivalents of characters which have fallen into disuse, secondly, of all the proper names of men, towns, countries, rivers, mountains, and thirdly, of all the terms connected with the arts and sciences

THE CESSION OF THE DUTCH WEST AFRICAN COLONIES.

We hear that the transfer of the Dutch West African Colonies to Great Britain has occasioned considerable excitement at the Hague. The treaty, as signed by the King of Holland, has been published in several of the Dutch newspapers, with a broad mourning border, and one journal has printed a farewell letter, signed "David Mill Graves, Envoy from the King of Elmina," in which he utters his parting protests against the transfer. This treaty is certainly of importance to England. In the European settlements, from the Gambia to Lagos, there will now be but one flag. Two years ago the value of the exports from the Gold Coast and Lagos amounted to £969,000, and the imports from the United Kingdom to the Gold Coast alone were valued at £421,000. The actual number of new subjects obtained by Queen Victoria will be about 120,000. The Mr. Graves referred to has been the chief agent in promoting the discussion which has arisen in Holland with regard to the Treaty. The existence of a Dutch Coast Line in immediate proximity to the English Coast Line has tended to facilitate smuggling, in which many of the Dutch traders were not loth to participate, and it was from these traders—though ostensibly from the King of Elmina—that the opposition which has been shown towards the Treaty, proceeded. The head of this opposition was Mr. Graves, "Envoy of the King of Elmina." As has been stated in the recent letters of our Rotterdam correspondent, Mr. Graves commenced operations with a petition to the States-General, urging the rejection of the Treaty. Failing in this he appealed to the Royal Prerogative, and was again unsuccessful, the King declining to reject a measure already sanctioned by both Chambers of Parliament. The Envoy finding all other efforts unavailing—although he had obtained support from several newspapers, whose politics are opposed to those of the party now in office—had recourse to diplomacy. In the words of a correspondent of The Times:—

He called on the Count Perponcher, the Minister in Holland of the Emperor of Germany, and tendered a letter addressed by the King of Elmina to the conqueror of Alsace-Lorraine, undertaking to meditate with the King of Ashantee on behalf of certain German missionaries who are now in trouble at Coomassie, provided the Emperor would use his influence to prevent the absorption of populations by neighbouring territories against their will. Count Perponcher politely declined to receive the letter, some say because the King of Elmina was a Dutch subject, and the letter should have come through Baron Gericke; others aver that there were general principles enunciated by the envoy which, from a German point of view, were not sound. Mr. Graves admits that his reception was most kind, but he has not hesitated to declare that the King of Elmina will forthwith ask the King of Ashantee, as a personal favour, to cut off the heads of all the Germans who are now imprisoned at Coomassie.

The same correspondent gives the following summary of the terms of the Treaty:—

The preamble refers to the fact that the mixed dominion exercised on the Coast of Guinea by England and Holland "has occasioned to the native populations much harm, which did not cease after the interchange of territory stipulated by the Treaty of the 5th of March, 1867." Article I. provides that the King of the Netherlands transfers to the Queen of the United Kingdom "all the rights of Sovereignty, jurisdiction, and property which he possesses on the Coast of Guinea." By Article II. the Queen "accepts those rights and the obligations resulting from them towards the populations hitherto under the authority of the Netherlands." The Third Article conveys "all the forts, buildings, and premises, all the stores of ordnance, weapons, ammunition, furniture, and movables." For such stores and movables "a fair price is to be paid, not exceeding £24,000." The remaining Articles provide that Dutch subjects will be allowed to trade on the same footing as British subjects.

The Times has also published a leading article referring to the Treaty, from which we extract the following remarks:—

The letter from the Hague which we publish to-day describes the emotion which has been produced by the Treaty throughout the Netherlands. The Court, the Government, and the Assembly were on one side; public feeling was on the other. The Opposition made passionate appeals to Dutch pride and patriotism to reject the Treaty, and, according to the adverse critics, the Netherlands were ceding some of the brightest jewels in the Royal diadem, and allowing British craft to seize what Dutch valour had won in days gone by. We may be permitted to believe that we are not so much to be envied, or the Dutch so deeply to be pitied, as is thought at the Hague; we must be allowed to suggest that they gain from us quite as much as they give. On the African Coast we possess a number of settlements extending over many hundreds of miles, and on the Gold Coast, with which we have now to do, we have the important station of Cape Coast Castle. In the immediate neighbourhood of that place is the Dutch station of Elmina. These are the principal Settlements of the two Powers respectively, and are the centres of a curious system of authority. The Gold Coast is nominally independent, but all along it the two European nations have established forts by which they exercise a sort of Protectorate over the tribes immediately adjacent. These forts lie within short distances of each other, and of course, control the trade of the country. The coast was not divided into two sections between England and the Netherlands, but the forts of the two nations were mingled indiscriminately, as each took possession of a spot thought to be advantageous. The Dutch now cede their Settlements, and sell their stores, and the West Coast of Africa is almost exclusively British. Holland certainly gives up something, but it appears that she receives a compensation. If the Dutch retire from the Gold Coast, we in turn make way in Sumatra. In this island we seem to have maintained rather a dog-in-the-manger policy, for, though we did not occupy the island itself, we limited the Dutch Possessions in it. This was the result of an old jealousy, increased by the damage which the Dutch, under the control of France, inflicted on us in the wars of the Revolution and the Empire. Henceforth the Dutch are free to act as they choose in Sumatra, and may conquer the whole of it if they like. By another Treaty England gives Holland the same facilities for importing free labourers from India into Surinam which the British Colonies possess. Thus it is plain that the Dutch have no reason to complain of the transaction as a whole. If they give up a position of which they could make nothing on the Guinea Coast, they receive in full possession, as far as European Powers are concerned, a magnificent island, which only needs courageous and enterprising rulers to become a second Java.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Feb. 6.

In a former letter I mentioned that a difference of opinion existed between the Senate and the Chamber of Commerce in this city, the latter wishing to retain the Bank valuta as the money of account for all mercantile transactions, and the Senate steadily resolved to carry out loyally and to the letter the decision of the Imperial Government and the German Parliament to abolish all separate monetary systems and replace them by one uniform gold currency for the whole country. This difference of opinion exists still, and now another difficulty has arisen to widen the breach. For many years past, in giving you extracts from the tables of commercial statistics of this port, I have always expressed my admiration at the very complete manner in which these tables were made up as regarded the navigation of the port and the imports of goods, regretting at the same time my inability to furnish any particulars of the value and quantity of the exports, as the shipping houses have steadily set themselves against letting the public into a knowledge of what they are pleased to call the "secrets of their trade." Among the many improvements created by the genius of Prince Bismark one of the latest, and not least important, is the institution of a Central Statistical Department for all Germany, comprising of course everything connected with commercial statistics; and to ensure general uniformity in making up the returns blank schedules have been distributed to all the different Governments for their guidance. This has again occasioned a divergence of opinion between the Senate and the Chamber of Commerce; the former, being perfectly willing to follow up and execute the resolutions of the Central Government, have for that purpose sent a message to the Burgerschaft explaining the state of the case and asking them for a vote of 11,000 marks currency to defray the extra expense of reinforcing the present local Statistical Board by additional functionaries. To this course the Chamber of Commerce—under the influence of some old fogies, who cannot see the difference between innovation and improvement—take objection, and are endeavouring by all the means at their command to work upon the opposition party in the Burgerschaft to reject the proposed grant. The breach has now become so serious that the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce—Dr. Adolf Soetbeer, a well-known writer on finance and one of the most intelligent public functionaries in this city—has been induced to resign his appointment, and is about to quit Hamburg in disgust and remove to the Rhine.

The Chamber of Commerce at Bremen has forwarded to the Senate of that city a memorial expressing the wish of the merchants to see the new monetary German system introduced and brought into operation on the 1st of July next. The Senate is not disinclined to do so, but wishes first to receive satisfactory replies from Berlin to some questions they have asked there, and without which it would not be safe to take the lead and go ahead. This applies more particularly to a guarantee of some description against the possibility of any scarcity of gold; for without a sufficient quantity, and regular supply of the new currency, the foreign coins, now so largely used, could not well be called in or put out of circulation. If then the new currency law expected, and, indeed, promised, to be brought in during the coming Spring Session of the German Parliament does not grant permission to private bankers to have gold bars coined at the German mints on payment of a fixed charge as mintage dues, to cover the expenses of coining, there will be no means to regulate the exchange with other countries, and then some other security must be found, as, for instance, granting power to the Senate to make some arrangement with the Bank of Bremen to provide in time against any dearth of gold currency. Another important question for the solution of the Imperial Government is whether the State undertakes to bear all the expenses of calling in and exchanging for the new currency all the old silver coins now in circulation; and, if so, whether such a measure will have retro-acting power for those States that may find it convenient to introduce the new currency by anticipating the normal date, as demanded by expediency and a regard to the principles of justice and equity. If then the Imperial Government is really and truly as much in earnest about proceeding energetically with the reform of the national currency as the Prussian Minister of Finance lately stated, a favourable solution to these questions may confidently be expected.

In the south of Germany the new gold coins from the Berlin Mint appear to give as little satisfaction as in the north, and the complaints of their being extremely coarse and imperfectly engraved are so general that an agitation is being organised to get up a monster petition to the Reichs-kanzler praying to have them put out of circulation as a disgrace to the nation. In a letter from Stuttgart in the Kolnische Zeitung the writer says on this subject:—"We ought not to put it in the power of the French to say, 'Here we have a proof of our being conquered by a barbarous nation, who took away our beautifully-minted gold coins, melted them down, and re-coined them in this rough and barbarous manner.'" I may here add that at Berlin a report is current that they are to be called in and remodelled, though as yet nothing official has transpired, and perhaps the wish is father to the thought.

The run for shares in the new Transatlantic Steam Company, mentioned in my last letter, was so great that though only a million thalers were wanted (five millions having been taken by the promoters) nineteen and a-quarter millions were subscribed, so that a reduction in the allotment had to be made. This was done in such a way that those who signed for from 1 to 10 shares, were alloted one share; from 11 to 20, two shares; from 21 to 40, three; from 41 to 120, four; 121 to 200, five; and all above 200 ten shares.

At the fourth general meeting of the German Nautical Association, held last week at Berlin, a resolution was passed adopting for all German vessels the following fog signals:—Steamers and sailing ships at anchor or lying to, the bell; Sailing vessels on the port tack, the rattle; ditto on the starboard tack, the horn; steamers, the steam whistle; fire-ships, the gong. Steamers in a fog to reduce their speed to four knots. On the proposition of Herr Mier, of Bremen, an exception to the last item was made in favour of ocean mail steamers, which are bound by their post-office contracts to "carry on" at full speed, whatever may be the state of the atmosphere.

The safe return of the Danish frigate Tordenskjold from her late expedition to Japan with a part of the submarine telegraph cable on board was celebrated last week at Copenhagen by a public banquet given to the officers by the inhabitants of that city. Among the company were a large number of scientific gentlemen, officers of the army and navy, and officials of the Civil Service. The solemnity of the dinner was relieved by music, singing, toasts, and various sentimental and humorous speeches. Altogether it was considered a great success.

The last number of the Berlin Reichs-anzeiger, the official gazette of the Empire, contains the appointment of Herr Werner von Bergen as German Consul for Siam, with Consular jurisdiction over the whole of that kingdom. And at the same time the other Berlin papers contain an account of his arrival at Bangkok, his reception at Court, and even the text of his address to the King on presenting his credentials; from all which it may be inferred that at the time of his appointment the official gazetting was overlooked or forgotten.

Vienna papers contain letters from Constantinople announcing, on the authority of a telegram from Teheran, that a special embassy, at the head of which is the Commander-in-Chief of the Persian army, has set out for Berlin to congratulate the Emperor Wilhelm on his assuming that dignity, and to bring him valuable presents on the part of the Shah of Persia.

Herr Georg Niederberger, Consul at Saigon for the North German Confederation, has been appointed Consul at that port for the Empire of Germany.

The Colonial Fire and Marine Insurance Company at Batavia has established an agency at Hamburg, and confided the direction of it to Herr Leo Jacob, of this city.

The following scrap of news may interest your musical friends in the East. Weber's celebrated opera Der Freischutz was given last night for the three hundred and fiftieth time, it being the fiftieth anniversary of its first performance here. A great many gentlemen amateur singers had volunteered to strengthen the "Huntsmen's Chorus," and nearly as many young ladies of our haute volée appeared on the boards to reinforce the "Bridesmaids' Chorus." Only two of the original performers have survived the lapse of the half-century—Fraulein Paasch, who electrified her audience as Agatha (the Agnes of the English translation), and contributed largely towards the wonderful popularity the charming opera has since obtained, and Herr Gloy, who performed the part of Kuno, the Forester. They were both present at the performance last night.

COMMERCIAL.

The Tea market is firm, with a fair amount of business doing; sales by importers—2,000/4 chests Congou and 1,000/8 Imperial. A cargo of Java Rice has been bought for the interior of Germany; about 10,000 bags of Rangoon, to hand per Abergeldie, is not in the market. Of Cassia Lignea 10,000 chests of the late arrivals have been sold by the importers at 10 sch. bco., which indicates a fall of 12 per cent. on the price previously paid. Pepper keeps up in value; Singapore is not to be had under 6¾ to 6⅞ sch. bco. No transactions in Spelter reported

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 7.

After a delay of a month a Minister of War has at last been appointed in the person of General Delprat. The new Minister will have to effect an entire re-organisation. Under these circumstances, even the Liberal papers hope for the best, and maintain a strict reserve in waiting for events. I think that this is the wisest course they can adopt.

The Second Chamber will meet on the 20th or 27th inst., the last named date being the most probable. It is said that the Ministry desires, before Parliament is re-opened, to reply to the section report upon the income tax. It is not very likely that this measure will be approved of. Rumours are afloat in Parliamentary circles that no less than thirteen Liberals will vote against the measure unless important alterations are made in it by amendments. If the tax is reduced to one per cent. upon annual incomes there will be more chance of its being carried.

The King has, as was expected, released Mr. Duchatel from his duties as our Ambassador at the Papal Court. This question, about which the Ultramontanes made so much noise, is thus resolved in the most constitutional way, and I am glad to state that the movement amongst the Catholics is much less apparent. I have already told you about their opposition to the projected national festival on the 1st April next, when the anniversary of the surprise of Brielle in 1572—the foundation of our liberty—will be celebrated. The Catholics have changed their mind in the last days. The opposition decreases more and more since the leading paper of the Ultramontane party declares that it will cease to attempt to oppose the plan, now that the King supports it. There is still a good deal of controversy about the monument, but this is a rather secondary question; the main point is the festival. Notwithstanding that the sums collected on behalf of the monument in each place are not very large, it is probable that the total amount subscribed will be quite sufficient to cover the cost.

Mr. Mill Graves, the Ambassador of the King of Elmina, has left our country, having embarked at Hellevoetsluis to return to Africa. The Ministry offered him a free passage by mail, but this he declined. You will remember that this gentleman arrived at the Hague the bearer of an address to the States-General protesting against the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa to England. His mission was unsuccessful, and he has addressed a sort of parting manifesto to the Dutch nation, in which he foretells that now that Elmina has been sold blood must be shed in fighting against the English—now the masters of the unhappy kingdom, of which he is a subject. The Conservatives approve of this document, and it seems that they will again endeavour to make the Treaty the stumbling-block of the Cabinet. Professor Vreede announces that he will organise another movement, by accusing the Ministry of having withheld certain documents, and thus preventing the Second Chamber from forming a just opinion with regard to the transfer. I do not think that the professor will have much success with his endeavours.

I cannot leave this subject without rectifying a phrase which was misunderstood in my last letter. I said that some papers predicted that as we had done nothing on behalf of our West India colonies, they might as well be transferred, as we have already transferred our West African Settlements. By some error, which I cannot account for, I read that it was probable that our East India colonies will be transferred. This is a misunderstanding. I should be surprised if the editor of the Java Bode does not attack this statement. That gentleman has written a most vehement philippic against me, which appears in the Java Bode, received by last mail, in which he refers to a piece of news in my letter of Nov. last, stating that our Queen had shown a great feeling against Germany, and that when her brother, King Karl, drank to the health of the Emperor Wilhelm, she coughed so persistently that nobody could hear one word of the toast. The Bode is good enough to say that I obtained this news from the Asmodee, an obscene paper, which any honourable man would feel ashamed to read. The accusation is the more offensive because I distinctly said that I found the statement in the Mainzer Journal and in the Berlin Spenersche Zeitung, both papers of high standing.

I am glad to say that we have been informed by telegraph that the inundations in Java were not of so serious character as was feared.

The steamer Prins van Oranje sailed last Sunday from Nieuwe Diep bound for Batavia. The next steamer, the Conrad, will be despatched in March, commanded by Capt. Oort, the same officer who had charge of the Willem III. A protest has been circulated among the underwriters in consequence of this appointment. They are of opinion that the conduct of that officer, when master of the unfortunate steamer, was such that it is inexcusable to appoint him to another vessel.

I am happy to state that in one of the Amsterdam yards the keel has been laid of an East Indiaman of 750 lasts, to be built for Messrs. Van Eeghen and Co.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

A firm tone continues to prevail in the market for Coffee and Sugar, and a fair business has been doing in the former article at steady prices, but the latter has assumed a quieter appearance. More activity begins to be perceptible in the demand for other articles of produce, and transactions have, on the whole, been fairly extensive.

COFFEE continues firm. Good ordinary Company's Java has changed hands at 43½c., and full prices have been realised for parcels of private importation. The series of monthly public sales, on account of the Dutch Trading Company is to be opened this month. The advertisement has not yet been published, but may be looked forward to next Monday, and the sale will probably take place on the 21st inst. The business since my last embraces the following shipments, viz.: 261 bags Java, ex Hendrik Ido Ambacht; 500 bags ditto, ex County of Berwick; 139 bags ditto, ex Batavia; 3,372 bags ditto, ex Otto; 2,655 bags ditto, ex the same vessel; 1,000 bags ditto, ex Rotterdam, at 43c.; 370 bags ditto, ex Voorlichter; 1,000 bags ditto, ex Henriette; 500 bags ditto, ex Tonia. Total stock of Coffee in Holland, 779,000 bags, against 680,300 bags in 1871. Floating, 145,100 bags.

SUGAR.—Although prices have continued to be well supported, the demand has been but limited, and no transactions are reported. There is but little on offer. Trading Company's stock, 72,092 baskets.

TEA.—There is nothing doing, in anticipation of the public sales to take place at Amsterdam, which have been increased by one on the 29th inst. of 2,568 chests China, ex Holmsdale and steamer Lorne, from Foochow, comprising 1,266/4 chests Congou, 1,101/12 chests Souchong, and 201/4 chests Pekoe. Stock here, 4,206/4 chests.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—Some small parcels changed hands. The stock here is exhausted, and that in Amsterdam comprises 2,098 bales Java and 400 bales Sumatra.

RICE.—I have to report a sale of 5,480 bales Kandanghauer table and 200 bags Pamanoekan table, ex Batavia, on secret terms. The market is dull; stock here, 9,700 bags.

RATTANS.—Sales have been closed of 150 piculs, ex County of Berwick—price not named.

TIN.—A quiet tone has pervaded the market. Banca sold last week at f.86 for usual prompt, and Billiton afloat at f.85, whilst now Banca stands at f.84¼ to f.84¾. Trading Company's stock unsold, 45,297 slabs Banca; stock on warrants, 24,400 slabs; floating, 10,340 slabs.

UNITED STATES.

The New York Army and Navy Journal anticipates some trouble with China, as "the Chinese are placing constructions upon the famous Burlingame Treaty which assuredly do not square with the rose-coloured views of the purposes and the position towards the outside world, and particularly towards Americans, which were presented when that treaty was begotten with so much ostentation." In view of the possibilities both in China and the Sea of Korea, therefore, Rear-Admiral Thornton A. Jenkins has been appointed to the command of the United States Asiatic fleet.

We take the following from the New York Times:—The son of Col. Horace Capron, formerly United States Commissioner of Agriculture, is at present employed in the purchase of blood stock for shipment to Japan, whither his father had already gone to superintend the introduction of modern improvements into the empire. The cattle, sheep, and pigs are selected from the best cross-breeds in the country. Mr. Capron will also purchase, for account of the Japanese Government, a large quantity of our most approved agricultural implements. Nothing is yet definitively known of the plan to be carried out by Col. Capron, in giving instruction to the farmers of Japan; but it is supposed that he will set apart a certain portion of his time for visiting the rural districts, to inspect the work on the farms, and give advice as he goes along. It is also intended, we understand, to establish an Agricultural College at or near Hakodadi.

A ribbon manufactory has been started in San Francisco by an English manufacturing firm. Raw silk, which is free of duty, is imported direct from China, and the silk cocooneries of California are expected to eventually supply the demand. It is intended to produce ribbons of all colours and widths, but the widest now made are seven inches. One man's labour with the looms now in use will finish 360 yards per week. Contiguity to the Chinese raw silk market and the growing supply of the raw material in California are cited as advantages to the new industry.

A Bill has been reported to the House of Representatives from the Committee of Appropriations to provide a sum of $50,000 to defray the expenses of the Japanese party now on a visit to the States. The Bill was passed by the House without a division.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—JAN. 27.

TEA.

The market has presented little or no change during the fortnight. There is a fair inquiry from the trade for both Green and Black, the market remaining steady, at previous rates; the former, however, are most in request, and are firm at former rates. Japan meets with very little inquiry, and prices are somewhat irregular. Stocks generally are light and the offerings small, owing to sales of parcels to arrive. The sales reported have been the following, in the order given:—3,074 half-chests Green, per Serica; 4,887 do., per Annie Bow; 2,800 do. here and to arrive; 900 do. Japan; 800 do. Oolong; 2,450 do, Souchong—the latter per Schiehalion; 3,285 do. Japan; 750 do. Green; 3,800 do. Green; 5,400 do. Oolong; and 1,500 do. Souchong—vessels not named.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil is very firm; rates have advanced and present indications of a further rise. Java is relatively cheaper than most other descriptions, and is in few hands and held firmly, but there is little movement at present, the business being mostly confined to jobbing parcels for home use at former prices, besides which we notice 2,000 piculs to arrive on terms kept private, and 1,307 mats Batavia at 21c. gold, also 1,000 mats Singapore from second hands on private terms.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $9 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is 50c. to 100c. currency (duty free).

RICE.—There has been some improvement in the demand; prices are well supported, and some transactions establish an advance on the quotations ruling a fortnight since. Of Rangoon about 2,000 bags have been quitted at $6.80 to 7.12½ currency, and 3,300 bags in bond at $3.25 to 3.37½ gold.

SUGAR.—There has been no change to note since our last report, either in the inquiry shown or prices paid. The sales of East India have been confined to Manila, of which 19,292 bags Manila, per George Peabody, were quitted at 8c.; also 7,681 do., per Fontenaye, and 10,000 do., by another vessel, on private terms.

SPICES.—There has been no business in invoices, but the distributing demand quickens, and the market has a more cheerful tone than for some time past. Pepper, Cloves, and Pimento especially have moved freely, and prices are well sustained. The rates now current on the leading descriptions are relatively below those ruling in the primary markets, and, with moderate stocks of most goods, holders express confidence in the future course of the market. A parcel of 1,000 piculs Singapore Pepper, received per Mary Nelson, was mostly sold before arrival, as was also the Nutmegs and Mace. Cassia is unsettled, 5,000 mats China were offered at auction, but only 102 sold, which brought 29⅝ cents, the balance being withdrawn; 3,500 mats have sold from first hands on private terms. There is a steady moderate trade demand, which dealers are supplying at $1.37½ to $1.40 for Mace, 97½c. to 100c. for Nutmegs, 31c. for Cassia, and 12c. for Cloves (all gold).

TIN.—A firmer tone has been shown, in sympathy with an improvement in the English market. Straits, however, continues to rule as low as 36½c. gold, which is the closing quotation.

LONDON: MONDAY, FEB. 12, 1872.

THE Japan Consul's Report, of which we publish a résumé in another column, cannot but be pronounced highly satisfactory and promising, notwithstanding the checks which the foreign commerce of that country encountered in 1870. All the five Reports, as well as Sir HARRY PARKES's Summary, are drawn up with so much clearness, and possess so many elements of interest, that we think few of our readers will omit to peruse the condensed Report which we place before them. Three facts, however, stand out in such prominent relief that we think it may not be out of place to draw special attention to them here. The first is that the total foreign trade of Japan for the year, comparing imports with exports, showed a balance of sixteen millions of dollars against that country; and that the deficiency has been met by the clumsy and dangerous expedient of exporting coin as bullion to the amount of the balance. The second fact which we think deserves special attention is the extent to which British shipping has fallen off since the introduction of the Pacific Mail steamers; and the third is the one pointed out by Mr. ANNESLEY, writing from Nagasaki, that there is great room for improvement in our manufacture of cloths especially designed for the Japanese markets, both as regards strength of texture and fastness of colour. Mr. ANNESLEY has here given a piece of very valuable information, which we make no doubt our friends in Lancashire and Yorkshire will fully appreciate and not be slow to turn to account.

IN the Kensington Exhibition of the Duke of EDINBURGH'S collection during his voyage round the world, it is somewhat disappointing—not to say humiliating—to observe the singular neglect or contempt with which Shanghai has been treated. Views, relics, addresses, and curiosities are exhibited in connection with every port visited in the Far East—Tientsin, Chefoo, &c., are all thus distinguished—but Shanghai is "conspicuous by its absence;" in fact, it is virtually ignored. This is scarcely a princely acknowledgment of the loyal welcome and proofs of attachment to the Throne—to say nothing of the lavish hospitality—which the Duke received at the hands of the community of the "model settlement;" and the apparent neglect is so unaccountable that we are not surprised to learn that it has given rise in some quarters to an impression that the Duke of SOMERSET may have exercised somewhat more than a fair share of influence on his Royal Highness. The line of the "proud Dukes" has never been characterised by any remarkable generosity or candour in avowing an error, or making amends for a fault—and the present Duke of SOMERSET'S coarse vituperation of Shanghai, when he described it as a "sink of iniquity," will not soon be forgotten. The community of Shanghai could well afford to treat this unmeaning abuse with contempt, knowing very well that, as SHAKESPEARE says,— but we cannot wonder if they feel somewhat aggrieved at their present apparent disparagement.

IN our last issue we noticed a telegram received from the Governor of Hong Kong to the effect that the Chief Justice had refused a new trial in the action of KWOK-A-SING versus the Attorney-General for £500 damages. We have since received by mail the pro forma decision in which Mr. SMALE is reported to have said:—"There was a constitutional consideration involved; the intention of the Extradition Act (6th Sect., Habeas Corpus) was to protect the subject; that object would be repeated if a judge had power to grant a new trial and refer the question to fresh juries until a verdict protecting the official were obtained, and therefore no verdict given by a jury under this Act ought to be interfered with." Compare this with the summing up of his Lordship and direction to the jury on the trial of the case! Truly, "comparisons are odorous." Again, Mr. SMALE says, in reference to his discharge of KWOK-A-SING, under the Habeas Corpus Act, without trial, that he followed the decision given by the United States Government in the case of the Armistead and Cayalti. Was there ever such a "jumble" of facts in a legal mind? The cases are utterly without parallel.

BAD news reaches us from the Philippines. The Captain-General sends a despatch announcing that 200 native artillerymen rose in insurrection and took possession of one of the forts, from which, however, they were speedily dislodged by a vigorous assault of the troops, in which the whole of the insurgents were killed. The only satisfactory part of this affair is the proof it affords of the general loyalty of the troops; but it shows Spain to be as unsettled in her colonial as in her home government. Such must ever be the result of an inert, haughty, and bigoted Government, which utterly refuses to keep pace with the times or take a lesson from the spirit of the age. It is precisely three hundred years since the Spaniards founded Manila, and obtained possession of this important group of islands almost without bloodshed, and probably no other European settlement in the world can show so little development for so long a space of time.

MR. POPE HENNESSY, the late Governor of Labuan, who was recently appointed Governor of the Bahamas, has been offered and accepted the post of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the West African Settlements, including Sierra Leone, Gambia, the Gold Coast, and Lagos, vacant by the appointment of Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY to the Governorship of Hong Kong. A correspondent of The Times, this morning, thus warmly corroborates the high opinion we lately expressed of the acquisition which the community of Hong Kong possess in their new Governor:—

Mr. Pope Hennessy enters on the duties of a Government dignified and enlarged in its usefulness by the wise and persistent conduct of Sir Arthur Kennedy. The Gold Coast was, perhaps, the most troublesome piece of Sir Arthur's African work; and the result of his patient and prudent labour merits that still, small voice of applause which appears to be the sole abiding reward of those brave and hardy pioneers who have raised England so high in the scale of humanity, and written in illustrious characters on the pages of history the name of Englishman.

SIR ARTHUR KENNEDY arrived from Sierra Leone on the 2nd inst.

CAPTAIN MACAULAY, late superintendent of the P. and O. Company at Hong Kong, will shortly proceed to India, China, &c., on a tour of inspection. We are glad to notice this mark of appreciation of Captain MACAULAY'S ability.

WE notice that an influential deputation has waited upon Lord GRANVILLE, with the view of drawing the attention of the Government to the persecution of native Christians in Japan.

ON Friday next, the 16th inst., Mr. R. N. FOWLER will call the attention of the House of Commons to the Coolie Traffic in China, and will move for papers on the subject.

M. MYER, the late Governor-General of Java, who was recently succeeded by M. LOUDON, has returned to Europe by the present mail steamer.

THE text of the Sumatra Treaty has not yet been published by the Foreign-office, not having yet been ratified by Her MAJESTY.

THE appointment of Mr. WILLIAM SCHULTZ as Austrian Consul at Colombo has been approved of by Her MAJESTY.

PROGRESS IN JAPAN.

[COMMUNICATED.]

The marvellous progress of Japan is attracting the attention of all Europe; the Gazette d'Augsbourg published the other day a long letter from a Yokohama correspondent on the subject, from which the following is extracted:—

After reference to the railways in course of formation, and especially to that of Kawasaki, the writer speaks of others undertaken by English companies, and of the American project for connecting Yokohama with San Francisco by means of submarine cable, and of a projected tramway from Yokohama to Yedo.

It is a highly important fact that it has become the fashion to adopt European manners and customs, many persons of distinction wear European dresses and cut their hair short; the kango, or palankeen is being replaced by a small carriage called jensikcha, and even large carriages are making their appearance in the streets.

This writer, like all others, notes the extreme eagerness of the Japanese for instruction. In the schools English, French, and German are taught by masters who are mostly natives. As a set off to this may be added that for some time M. Leon de Rosney, the Professor of Japanese in Paris, has had an intelligent native of that country to assist him in his duties. The Japanese libraries are numerous and are being enriched by many translations of European works on science. Amongst the social effects noted is the gradual substitution of hanging and decapitation for the hara-kiri, and executioners are found as easily as in the most civilised and refined communities! This reminds one of the exclamation of the traveller, who, coming in sight of a prison, exclaimed, "Thank heavens! I am once more in a civilised country."

The trade in silkworms' eggs fell off terribly last year, principally on account of the condition of France probably, but an enterprising Japanese has undertaken the production of silk in California on a large scale. He went there the year before, taking an immense quantity of eggs, but found he had made a mistake. On going there to settle he took 2,400 cards of seed, and 16,000 tea plants from a place near Miako.

JAPAN CONSULS' REPORTS.

The commercial reports of Her Majesty's Consuls in Japan for the year 1870 have just been published. The following is a résumé of the contents of the volume:—

KANAGAWA.—YOKOHAMA.

Mr. Vice Consul Robertson reports the large increase of $10,812,691 in the import trade over that of the previous year. This was chiefly caused by increased business in rice and cotton yarn. Exports also increased $2,248,180. The total value of cotton manufactures imported rose from $4,631,885 to $6,514,543. The returns show a considerable increase in the importation of camlets over 1869, but the demand for these stuffs continues to decrease, and transactions were almost confined to old stock. Woollens were overdone, and must have shown a serious loss to importers. The European war, and the failure of the rice crop of 1869, acted unfavourably on trade; nevertheless it is satisfactory to note that imports began to assume a more fixed character in certain staples, such as shirtings and cotton yarn, and was not of the irregular character of former years.

The export of silkworms' eggs was a large one, and this trade was causing a degeneracy in the breed of worms and the quality of the silk, for cultivators were unable to afford the purchase of good seed, and, making use of the reproduction of the worms, obtained each season inferior silk.

Foreign shipping showed a marked increase, both numerically and in tonnage.

Among public works the following were most prominent:—the telegraph between Yokohama and Yedo (which was so much used by the Japanese that 100 messages a day were transmitted by it)—the telegraph between Kobe and Osaka—the Yokohama drainage works—the Yoshida iron bridge—and the erection of numerous lighthouses and lightships, of which it was expected that not less than fourteen would be completed before the end of 1871.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.

Mr. Consul Gower reports imports $722,064, and exports $3,607,848—but this is only an approximate return in consequence of the unsatisfactory accounts of the Custom-house. Trade, however, greatly improved in the year as compared with the year previous, though there was a decrease in cotton and woollen manufactures, and especially in arms and ammunition. The chief increase in imports was in gold and silver bars, rice, cotton, sugar, &c.; while in exports every article—raw silk, cocoons, silkworms' eggs, tea, and miscellaneous produce—showed a great advance. The number of ships with cargo increased, both in import and export, although general shipping appeared to fall off owing to the Princes not requiring it to transport their troops so frequently as in 1869.

The value of land in Hiogo very greatly increased this year, and public works—draining, lighting, &c.,—were carried on with much energy. The local Government, however, threw obstacles in the erection of a patent slip, which would be of the greatest benefit to the harbour, and for which a number of foreign and native shareholders had subscribed—apparently with no other object than monopolising the work for themselves.

NAGASAKI.

Mr. Acting Consul Annesley reports the total value of the import and export trade as $5,094,483, against $4,624,962 in the previous year. The increase is explained by the value of steamers and sailing-vessels sold in 1870, which amounted to no less than $887,000. No marked improvement, therefore, took place in the commercial prosperity of this port in 1870, as compared with 1869.

The import trade was not satisfactory, and the difficulty of making sales, even at the low prices current, was extreme. The late civil war, the depreciation of the currency, and the opening of Hiogo and Osaka, all contributed to this depression; yet there is little doubt that the consumption of our principal staples is on the increase, that foreign manufacturers are rapidly supplanting those made by native looms, and that an increased demand for home manufactures will follow increased prosperity. In 1870 the piece goods business was rather disappointing. A cloth more approaching in durability to the "Okujima" (a description very extensively used in Japanese dress), is still an acknowledged want. "Taffachelas," the European imitation of this cloth, is scarcely strong enough, but the chief complaint against it is that the colours fade so quickly. It would be worth the while of home manufacturers to turn this requirement into account.

English coals were laid down at this port to the extent of 2,979 tons, valued at $43,785. This coal is entirely imported under Government contract for the use of Her Majesty's vessels. The chief kinds of machinery imported have been for mining purposes. The total value of the direct imports from England to Nagasaki was $264,331, against $326,362 in 1869.

In exports, tea, the chief export staple, showed a falling off from 33,850 piculs in 1869 to 20,827 piculs in 1870. The cause was the increased value of the leaf in the north of Japan compared with the prices foreigners could afford to pay for it. The year showed a considerable increase in the export of coal, and the yield for foreign consumption already amounts to 50,000 tons per annum. Two vessels only were loaded for England direct; and the total value of the exports from Nagasaki to England direct amounted to only $79,852, against $219,811 in the previous year. The entries and departures of British vessels also fell from 284 to 228, mainly in consequence of the frequent calls of the Pacific mail steamers. The American and North German shipping showed a considerable increase.

NEEGATA.

Mr. Acting Consul Troup reports the trade in foreign vessels as having decreased—imports from $542,471 to $405,075; exports from $177,501 to $150,400. No account is here taken of re-exports, since they were sent away solely because they were unsaleable here. Notwithstanding the apparent decrease in imports, the quantity of foreign goods actually sold was equal to, if not larger than, in the previous year.

Early in the year an association was established here, termed the "Shooha," or Commercial Corporation, which issued a series of regulations tending to hamper trade so greatly that they were withdrawn by order of the Government in Yedo, though the Co r poration still existed (at the end of the year), and continued to engage in certain branches of trade, such as the importation of foreign goods from the other open ports, the export of rice to other ports, &c.

HAKODADI.

Mr. Consul Eusden reports a decrease in British shipping, from 71 entering in 1869 to 41 in 1870; and from 68 clearing to 45. This is owing to the large steamers of the Japanese Trading Company and the P. and O.

The imports of the year decreased from £177,603 in 1869 to £121,774 in 1870; the exports from £222,900 to £161,287. This was mainly owing to want of funds on the part of the natives and their bad credit. The exports would have increased but for the high prices of the staple.

The town of Hakodate increased greatly in importance. A good bund was formed from the fort to the south of the harbour, and four European hotels—one each English, French, German, and Russian—were opened.

TRADE SUMMARY FOR 1870.

Sir Harry Parkes reports the total imports in direct trade to have risen from $17,356,932 in 1869, to $31,120,641 in 1870; and the exports from $11,485,645 to $15,143,246. In the indirect trade imports fell from $6,924,465 to $3,996,741; and exports rose from $2,975,626 to $7,058,835. The total trade in Japan, both direct and indirect, carried on in foreign bottoms, amounted to $57,319,463. In imports cotton manufactures increased from $5,251,324 to $7,274,453. Woollens remained stationary. Metals declined from $632,255 to $320,681; and arms and ammunition from $1,857,625 to $206,908. Miscellaneous foreign rose from $1,776,690 to $3,231,007; and eastern produce from $5,828,485 to $18,092,228. In exports there was an increase in every kind, the most remarkable being in tea, which rose from $2,019,130 to $3,848,231. The foreign trade of 1870 showed a balance against Japan of nearly $16,000,000, which was met, as in 1869, by heavy shipments of native coin as bullion to China, India, America, and Great Britain—the people using paper for their own wants and exporting their coin.

The report concludes with a summary of shipping which shows a decrease in British shipping of 90,634 tons, while foreign shipping increased from 182,358 tons as compared with 1869. The difference as against British shipping is confined to the coasting trade between the ports, and is attributable to the gradual absorption of the local carrying trade by the large American Pacific mail steamers.

Monetary and Commercial.

—o—

The China Traders' Insurance Company's report presented to the shareholders at Hong Kong, on 27th December, contains a very satisfactory statement of affairs, $450 per share being declared as dividend. Messrs. Fearon and Co. are the London agents and prepared to take risks.

The establishment of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, and the opening of branches in China and Japan, which we noticed some time since, are now formally announced in our advertising columns.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 7th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were —To Calcutta, £345,000; to Bombay, £150,000; and to Madras, £5,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d. on all the Presidencies. These results show a further increase in the demand for remittances to the East.

The London manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation has received advices from the head office, Hong Kong, reporting the result of the half-year's business to 30th December as follows:—Dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum; addition of $100,000 to the reserve fund, which will then amount to $1,000,000; balance brought forward of $18,000 to new account.

The report of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, to be submitted on the 16th inst., states that the sum of £50,000 has been set apart for a renewal fund, and recommends that the available balance, £62,197, be appropriated to the payment of a dividend of £3 3s. 4d. per cent., which with the three interim dividends already paid will be at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum for the eleven months ending December, leaving £9,156 to be carried forward.

The estimated receipts of the Great Northern Telegraph Company for the month of January amounted to 86,277 francs, and those of the China and Japan Extension Company to 110,955 francs.

The Master of the Rolls has directed the payment of a further dividend to the creditors of the United Service Company (Limited) of 1s. 6d. in the pound, making, with the previous dividends, 16s. 6d. in the pound. The liquidator of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited) has given notice that he is prepared to pay off the balance of the Twelve per Cent. Debentures secured on the Cairo Hotel, together with arrears of interest.

Bar Silver has been in good demand at 5s. 1⅛d. per oz. standard. Mexican Dollars continue in good demand. The amounts coming to hand are comparatively small, and the prices are therefore well maintained; the old coinage remains at 5s. 1d., new at 4s. 11¼d. per oz.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for January indicate great acitivity in almost every department of business. The exports for the month amounted to £18,879,980, against £11,458,039 for the corresponding period of 1871, showing an increase of £7,421,941. The augmentation has been principally in alkali, beer and ale, cotton yarn and twist, cotton manufactures, hardware and cutlery, iron and steel, wool, woollen, and worsted yarn, and woollen and worsted manufactures. It is explained, however, that, "prior to the 1st January, 1871, the exports were deemed to take place from the clearing of the exporting ship; since that date six days have been allowed by law for the lodgment of the shipping bills. In consequence of this change the account for 1871 was lessened to a considerable extent as compared with 1870. This does not recur in the present year, and, consequently, a full month's exports are shown." The imports in January represented £30,259,548, against £24,427,803 in 1871, being an increase of £5,831,745.

The following is a summary of those figures which relate to our Export trade with China and other countries in the Far East:—

TEA.

The market has been somewhat less active, but a considerable quantity of Tea has changed hands, and prices have ruled firm, New Season's good common Congou showing an advance of ¼d. per lb., the closing quotation being 1s. 0½d. per lb., with a great scarcity of the black-leaf kind; Old, however, has not improved in value. The supplies of Indian Tea last month were the largest on record, and the trade has assumed an important position, which in future must affect the value of China. There has been some inquiry for export to the Continent, leading to a few transactions in good medium black-leaf at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. Deliveries are on a large scale, the figures being:—

	1872.	1871.
Home consumption for London from 1st to 31st Jan.	8,821,000 lbs.	8,352,000 lbs.
Export do. do. ...	1,309,000 ,,	1,244,000 ,,
Sent coastwise do. ...	3,500,000 ,,	3,395,000 ,,
Total delivered ...	13,630,000 lbs.	12,991,000 lbs.

Black.—Red leaf: Dust and siftings have declined ½d. per lb., good broken and leafy kinds have sold at full rates, and also inferior flavoury to Kaisow kinds at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d., though there has been less doing; medium Kaisow, and fine and finest are without change. Pakhling in some request. Tayshan leaf, but little done, as there are few parcels in first hands. Black leaf, old season's, ordinary to good common continues out of favour, new, good common to fair quality rules at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 2d. per lb., of medium at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d.; several parcels, ex Derwent, mostly strong useful Ooanfa and Ning Chow kinds, have sold the past few days; in other grades no change to report. Souchong and Oolong, limited sales, at late rates. Scented Teas of all kinds have been inactive. Green: The selection offering is mostly unsuitable, and the few orders in the market for the United States are only part executed. The market has been very firm for the fine to finest descriptions, prices showing a considerable advance; No. 1 Ping Suey Gunpowder has sold at 4s.; finest Moyune, 3s. 10d.; imperial, 2s. 9d.; Young Hyson, 3s. 1d.; and Hyson, 3s. 1½d. per lb.

SILK.

The market for China is quieter, and the tendency of prices is no longer upwards. In common Tsatlees some little business has been done from 23s. 6d. to 24s., showing a decline of fully 6d. per lb., while medium sorts are hardly so firm as they were. Chop Silk continues neglected. In Canton Silk business has been on an extensive scale and at very firm prices. In Japan there is no animation. Deliveries 1st to 9th inst. inclusive. China 577 bales; Canton 239 do.; Japan 245 do. Total 1,061 bales.

COFFEE.

There has been somewhat less animation in the market during the present week, but prices of Plantation Ceylon have been firmly maintained, especially for the parcels of new crop which had been offered. The prices paid have been—triage and ordinary, 64s. to 73s.; small, 74s. to 77s. 6d.; fine ordinary grey, 75s. 6d. to 76s. 6d.; low middling grey to dull, 77s. to 79s.; bold ditto, 79s. 6d. to 82s. 6d.; middling coloury, 79s. 6d. to 82s. 6d.; good middling, 84s. to 86s.; good bold, 89s. to 91s.; pea-berry, 87s. to 91s. Privately a fair business has been done in Native, at 72s. for fine ordinary; 770 bags bold pale Manila have been sold at 70s. 6d., a few lots 71s.

The deliveries for last week were to an unusually large amount, and exceeded those of the previous year by 720 tons, but as the landings were 950 tons larger the deficiency in the stock was slightly less than in the preceding week, although still reaching 6,150 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 135,246 cwt., against 183,735 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1871; Native, 34,808 cwt., against 18,739 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is nil (in both years). The quantity of Coffee landed in the five weeks ended Feb. 3, 1872, was, of Ceylon, 2,382 tons, against 1,999 tons during the corresponding period of 1871; of all descriptions, 5,137 tons, against 4,190 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 892 tons, against 983 tons; of all descriptions, 1,810 tons, against 1,868 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 1,630 tons, against 816 tons; of all descriptions, 4,814 tons, against 2,271 tons. The stock on Feb. 3 was, of Ceylon, 8,991 tons, against 13,805 tons; of all descriptions, 18,437 tons, against 24,604 tons.

SUGAR.

The demand continues extremely quiet, and the business of the week has again been very small in extent; prices show no material alteration, except for unclayed Manila, which has slightly declined, 3,400 bags Zebu having been quitted at 24s. Of Penang at auction 493 bags sold, low yellow 30s. 6d. to 31s., middling yellow 32s. to 32s. 6d., brown 28s. 6d. to 30s.; of 1,824 bags low date sort offered 500 bags sold at 23s. 6d. to 24s., washed 23s. 3d.; 250 bags have since been sold privately at 23s. 9d. per cwt. These constitute the whole of the week's business in East India.

As the landings for last were larger than at the same time last year to the extent of 1,700 tons, and the deliveries were 760 tons less, the deficiency in the stock is reduced to barely 20,000 tons. Stock, Jan. 27, 38,540 tons, against 60,856 tons; Feb. 3, 38,865 tons, against 58,705 tons. The quantity of Sugar landed in the five weeks ended Feb. 3, 1872, was, of Penang, 343 tons, against 11 tons in the corresponding period of 1871; of Manila, Java, and China, 2,539 tons, against 1,267 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 160 tons, against 450 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 3,076 tons, against 2,524 tons. The quantity exported was, of Manila, Java, and China, 23 tons, against 254 tons. The stock on Feb. 3 was, of Penang, 640 tons, against 2,536 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 11,508 tons, against 26,283 tons.

CAMPHOR.—China: The market is quiet, but there are buyers at £4 2s. 6d.; holders firmly resist any concession in prices, the bulk of the stock being in the hands of speculators. Japan is very scarce, and there are no transactions to report; the nominal quotation is £4 7s. 6d. per cwt.

CHINA ROOT is still very scarce, and there are no transactions to report.

COLOMBO ROOT is also scarce, and no supply has been placed on offer; there is a good demand, and high prices could be realised.

COPRA.—No supply of Penang.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon continues quiet at last quoted rates, viz., £37 15s. to £38; at auction 50 tons on the spot have been sold at £38 5s. for pipes and at £38 10s. hogsheads, and there are buyers of January-February shipment at £38 10s.

COIR GOODS.—At the last sales there were no transactions in Ceylon.

CUTCH.—The market continues very firm, but there is less activity than of late; no business has been done at auction, but privately about 5,000 boxes Pegu have realised 26s. 6d. for good, 27s. for fine quality.

CUBEBS.—Quiet, but holders are firm at 27s. 6d.; no business done.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—At public sale, of 11 cases Lump offered, about half sold at £4 7s. 6d. per cwt. for ordinary, and of 15 cases Reed only one sold at £9 5s. for fair quality.

EBONY.—Ceylon has advanced; 48 tons good at auction brought extreme rates, viz., £18 to £18 5s. per ton; it is now very scarce and much wanted.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Annised: Very dull on the spot; sellers at 11s. 6d., but no buyers. Afloat 3d. per lb. cheaper. About 50 cases January steamer shipment sold at about 11s. Cassia very quiet and dull, with about 50 cases sold spot and afloat at 5s. 9d. to 5s. 8d. Nutmeg: Of 20 cases good at auction a few only sold subsequently at 10d. per oz. Cinnamon very scarce and wanted; 8 cases low retired. Citronelle has nominally maintained the speculative advance noticed in our report of the 29th ult., and private sales are reported up to 3¼d. per oz.; also business afloat; but at auction, of 149 cases, a very few only sold at 3¼d.; the later lots offered meeting no buyers whatever. Lemon Grass is very inactive, and only 25 cases at auction were sold at 4¼d. to 4¾d.

GAMBIER.—Has further advanced on the spot to 22s. 3d., afloat to 21s., for London, and 21s. 9d. to Liverpool, ex quay; 600 tons reported sold. At public sale 1,300 mats Cubes sold at 25s., and 100 tons pressed Cubes privately at 24s. to 24s. 6d.

GALLS.—China: Holders are firm at the recent advance, but there are fewer buyers at the ruling rates, viz., 60s. to 62s., and but little has been done; 544 cases at auction were withdrawn, but half sold subsequently at 60s. for common smooth quality. Japan: No transactions; 54 cases in public sale held for a high figure and retired.

HIDES.—At the periodical auctions held on the 8th a large supply of East India Kips met a corresponding increase in the demand, as well as on the part of home trade as for export, and the sales went off with active competition at prices generally in favour of the seller. Buffalo were also in good demand, and realised ¼d. to ½d. advance. Kips: 12,891 dry Penang and Singapore sold, light 6¼ to 7½ lb. at 11d. to 11½d., heavy 8¾ to 10¼ lb. at 9½d. to 10½d., extra 12¼ to 13⅜ lb. at 10½d. to 10⅔d., thirds 7½d. to 7⅞d., small 10¼d. to 11½d.; 2,700 Rangoon sold, light 6⅞ lb. at 10d., heavy 9½ lb. 8⅞d., thirds 6⅞ lb. 7¼d., small 4⅜ lb. 9¼d. Buffalo: Of 4,354 Singapore and Penang offered 3,554 sold, best heavy 26¼ to 38⅜ lb. at 5⅜d. to 6¼d., medium quality 5¼d. to 5⅜d., seconds, 5¼d. to 5⅜d., light 16¾ to 9¼ lb. at 7d. to 7⅜d.

ISINGLASS.—The second monthly auctions of the year took place on the 6th inst. All low kinds were very difficult to sell, even at a further serious decline; fair and good fully maintained the former value. Of 148 packages Penang offered, about half sold—Leaf, good and very good, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 7d.; middling to fair, 2s. 8d. to 2s. 11d.; skinny, 1s. 4d.; pipe, fine pale long, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 5d.; middling and fair, 2s. to 2s. 8d.; ordinary dark, 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d.; pickings, 7d. to 1s. 0½d.; purse, good, 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d.

JAPAN WAX.—Prices have advanced; of 312 boxes at auction, about one-third sold at 90s. to 90s. 6d. per cwt. for good hard saucer, the remainder being held for 10 per cent. more. Some further lots were offered in sale on the 8th, and 57 cases fine saucers found buyers at 90s. to 91s. 6d.; also 3 cases stained at 82s. 6d. per cwt.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam firm; 55 cases sold; good tear in block £18 10s. to £21; brown £9 5s. to £9 15s.; siftings part in block £8 to £9. Sumatra steady; of 120 cases offered, a fair proportion sold at £8 to £8 12s. 6d. for fair to good seconds, and 70s. to 90s middling to good thirds. Copal steady; 247 cases soft part sold at 27s. to 27s. 6d. Damar in rather more request; 59 cases fine Batavia brought 57s. 6d. to 58s. per cwt. Gamboge firm, and inquired for at £18 for good quality.

Fine genuine continues scarce, and in demand.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues quiet but firm, the bulk of the stock being still withheld for high figures; we hear of no transactions during the week.

MUSK is scarce and firm; 20 caddies offered at auction and half sold; very rough and bally old, 14s. 6d. to 16s. per oz.

PEPPER.—Black: The market remained very steady till early last week, when fresh spirit was manifested, and a large trade resulted. The transactions of the fortnight embrace nearly 10,000 bags, and of 4,500 bags at auction a large proportion found buyers. The closing prices are—Singapore 6¼d. to 6¾d., and Penang 5¾d. to 6d.; to arrive 150 tons Singapore have been sold at 5¾d. to 6d., January shipment. White has been offered at auction very freely; of 1,034 bags three-fourths were disposed of, and as second-hand holders are firm supporters still, prices are maintained, good Singapore bringing 1s. per lb., and Penang 11¼d., at which figures a small private trade has also been done.

RHUBARB.—The market for China is quiet; at auction 163 cases offered, and barely half sold at firm, and in some cases advanced rates; medium fairly trimmed good pinky fracture 2s. 4d. to 2s. 9d.; high dried 1s. 7d.; dark 8d.

RATTANS are in steady demand at last quoted rates.

In auction of 5,530 bags damaged Necrausie offered 2,500 bags sold, first class at 10s., mostly second and third at 9s. 3d. to 9s. 6d. of 8,315 bags Madras per Napier offered the sound portion was bought in at 10s. 3d. to 10s. 6d., the remainder, amounting to 3,360 bags sea-damaged, sold, first-class 10s. to 10s. 3d., second 9s. 3d. to 9s. 6d., third 8s. Privately the market is steady; 4,000 bags Madras have been sold at 10s. 7½d. ex quay, and 2,000 bags ditto, ex previous auction, at 10s. to 10s. 3d.; 200 tons fine white Bengal, just arrived per steamer, have been sold at 13s. 6d. quay terms. For arrival 200 tons Madras have been sold at 10s. 3d. to 10s. 4½d. The floating cargo per Chalmers, 790 tons old Rangoon, has been sold at 9s. 9d., Continental terms.

SAGO very dull, and transactions very restricted. At auction 273 boxes, and 557 bags bought in. Flour firm; some 3,000 bags Singapore sold privately at 16s. 3d. to 16s. 6d.; 283 bags at public sale retired.

SAPANWOOD.—Manila and Siam, a good inquiry prevails at higher rates, and stocks are daily getting concentrated into fewer hands. Ceylon higher and scarce; 14 tons very fine bold good, of indirect import sold at £10 15s. per ton.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: A moderate business is doing at previous rates, but demand not active. Chips: The speculative demand has partly subsided, but most holders are firm. Cassia Lignea: Again cheaper; large quantities offering afloat, and but few buyers; of 430 boxes at auction, 300 boxes unworked sold at 103s. SHELLS.—No transactions since the periodical sales reported on in our last issue.

SOY.—Small business doing, at 2s. 5d. per gallon.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since the 2nd inst. the demand in this market has been only on a moderate scale, with dearer prices and a very firm tone at the quoted advance. Sales are reported small, owing to the indisposition of buyers to place orders at the ruling values, but at only fractional concessions orders are offered and refused for both Yarns and Goods, more especially the first-named, and the market is very strong at the close COUNSEL AND COMFORT.—A disordered stomach throws the whole system out of gear, and renders us unfitted both for work and amusement. A few doses of these strengthening and purifying Pills taken according to the accompanying directions will, however, speedily restore order, and re-enable the stomach to digest its food without difficulty. These excellent Pills are suitable alike for the peer as the peasant, the soldier and the sailor, and particularly for home and foreign colonists. Holloway's Pills are very useful in checking feverish attacks, bilious complaints, and inflammations. They have also made the most signal cures in cases of dropsy and diseases of the kidneys, heart, and lungs, when the sufferers seemed passed the aid of medicine.

The apportionment of this sum, if so appropriated will, under the 132nd Clause of the Articles of Association, be as follows:—The sum of $45,000 to be carried to Reserve Fund and invested by the Committee; the sum of $45,000 to be divided pro rata among contributing Shareholders, and the sum of $90,000, or $450 per share, to be paid to Shareholders as General Dividend.

JAPAN.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.

We have advices to the 18th December; the P. and O. mail, with London dates Oct. 20, arrived out Dec. 17, and telegrams from London had been received to the 5th December. The following is from the Hiogo News:—

Kobe has been favoured with what we are told was the smartest shock of earthquake that has been experienced since the advent of foreigners. Three distinct shocks were felt, at durations of about three and five minutes. The first two where rather slight, but the last was severe enough to frighten timid people, several of whom, we understand, thought it advisable to flee from the "protection" of their houses. We notice from our correspondent at Osaka that similar visitations were made to that port. No damage has been done.

The boat-building yard of Messrs. Fitzgerald and Strome has been the scene of a gathering to witness the launch of a small screw steamer intended for local traffic, Mrs. Korthals officiating with the traditional champagne bottle, and naming her the Fuyo-maru. The dimensions of the steamer, which has been built for Mr. Bogel, of this port, are as follows:—Length, 90 feet; beam, 16 feet; depth of hold, 6 feet; draught, 4 feet 6 in.; horse power, 20 (nominal); tonnage, 115, builders' measurement.

A correspondent writes as follows from Osaka, with reference to the Mint:—The Mint folk, by dint of the most strenuous exertions, have succeeded in coining the enormous amount of $90,000 in one day. Many foreigners both here and in Yokohama are under the impression that the Mint is chiefly engaged in working up the bullion belonging to the Government, but this is altogether a mistake, there being now some $3,000,000 worth of bullion the property of the Imperial Government—and for a great part of which they must be now paying interest — in the Mint. So great is the pressure from the private holders of bullion, that it is impossible to undertake its conversion unless it is equal to the Mint standard. The refining cannot be done fast enough, and native owners of low standard bullion are busily engaged in doing the refining themselves. The "yarn" about all the new silver going to China is a mistake. One parcel of yen which was bought at par was sent over there, but the Celestials would not have them; they came back, and the holder got 5 per cent. premium in Yokohama. The Chinese may take to the Japanese dollars eventually, but it appears that the day is not come yet. Silver yen are only at 9 per cent. premium here now, owing to the scarcity of Mexicans.

A great disturbance has taken place at what was till lately "The Kobé Billiard Saloon," in the native town. Since the selling off of the furniture, stock in trade, and fittings, the room had been let to one or more Chinese, who are now known to have been using it as a gambling room. It is supposed that some one who had lost money there went to the Japanese authorities and "split," the consequence whereof was that the place was taken possession of by the myrmidons of the law. Some prisoners were taken and tied up, and the last we heard was that the case was before the Custom-house. The Japanese Government pretends to be very anxious to put down gambling; we shall be able to judge of its real earnestness in the matter by the way it will treat the offenders in the present case. Emboldened, we suppose, by the success of their raid, the native police subsequently entered the premises next door, the Hiogo Livery Stable, in the occupation of Mr. Thompson, a British subject, without bringing the written sanction of H.B.M.'s Consul. We presume Mr. Thompson will see what steps the Consuls will take to bring the native authorities to book for this unwarrantable intrusion.

The Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club have held a scratch regatta. Although late in the season for such sport, the day proved a favourable one, and everything having been carefully arranged good sport ensued. A yacht race has also been sailed; the course was from the new hatoba round the harbour to a boat moored off the bonded warehouses. The Black Bess, Nameless, Ida, and The Tub started; they all got away pretty well, but the Black Bess, being handled better than the others, reached the winning-post one minute and fifty seconds in advance of the Nameless, the Ida declining to finish the course and The Tub being unable to beat back.

Death has called away one of our best known and most respected foreign residents, Franklin Blake, Belgian Consul, who was carried of by apoplexy on the 3rd December. The deceased gentleman was one of the pioneers of Kobe, having arrived in the Hayamaro on the opening of the port. Singularly enough he had but just given up the secretaryship of the International Hospital, and was preparing to take a well-earned leave of absence.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, Dec. 15, 1871, VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

Since I last wrote, on the 13th ult., the mails of the 29th Sept. and the 6th, 13th, and 20th Oct., have been received—52, 52, 54, and 55 days respectively. The last-named came to hand late yesterday evening. During the interval numerous men-of-war have visited this port, comprising the following vessels:—Almaz, Boyarin, Sobol, Gornstay, and Haydamaack (Russian), Linois and ironclad Alma (French), Vetta Pisani (Italian), and H.B.M. gunboat Thistle. The two French vessels above mentioned and the Cosmao left for Shanghai after a few days' stay, as did the Sobol The Russian corvette Isomroud left on the 6th inst. for Hong Kong, leaving the following vessels in harbour at the present time, viz., Almaz, Boyarin, Gornstay, Haydamaack, and flagship Vitias (Russian), Thistle (British), and Vetta Pisani (Italian) The latter vessel leaves shortly for China; the gunboat Thistle will remain stationed here for a time, but regarding the movements of the Russians nothing has transpired beyond that they will probably winter here. Great activity prevails in the squadron, and boat exercise is being carried on daily, and, amongst other things noticeable, is the extensive signalling done by day with flags and by night with blue lights.

Nebus have lately been greatly troubling foreigners by fluctuating wildly. The feats of legerdemain performed by this coin have not been confined to Nagasaki alone, but appear to have been even worse at Yokohama. The new coin is the only permanent remedy which can put a stop to this state of things, but even at the rate it is now being put into circulation it must take a considerable time yet before any good can arise. In the meantime commercial people, I suppose, must grin and bear it, unless the Japanese Government will do something to assist them over the difficulty. The Nagasaki Express took the matter up a fortnight ago, and put forth a very reasonable proposition as a temporary measure, viz.: to make dollars a legal tender amongst the natives at 5 per cent discount, or in other words at 95 yen cents. or bus 3.80, but I have not heard whether any measures have been taken in the matter to endeavour to get it carried out. A small amount of new coin is known to be in this place, but it is supposed to be held as a curiosity.

The telegraph to Europe, via Siberia, has been opened, and the mercantile community here have had the question of obtaining, by subscription, periodical market information, under discussion, but the scheme I believe is at present in abeyance. The cause of the failure, I think, may be attributed as much as anything to difference of opinion as to what information ought to be obtained.

Unfavourable advices from England respecting Japan cargo prevents sufficient being settled to fill up a vessel direct, and it is improbable whether a vessel will be laid on for London at present. The cargo already purchased is leaving for Shanghai for transhipment thence. The Diomed (str.) has been circulated here to leave Shanghai on the 22nd inst., and will take tea and tobacco at £3 10s., and curiosities at £4 10s. per ton of forty feet, which rate includes transhipping charges from the Nagasaki vessel.

The natives are endeavouring to dispose of some of their old steamers; the Chusan, formerly in the P. and O. service, is advertised for sale, and I hear that the Nagasaki, a gunboat built some years ago in Holland, which is also lying here, has been offered for sale privately.

Rumours of a somewhat conflicting and contradictory nature to those current a short time ago are in circulation here respecting the future intentions of the P.M.S.S. Company to make this their chief station in Japan. Of course the authorities here, pending anything definite, give reserved answers to inquiries made; but, so far as I can learn, negotiations are or will shortly be in progress, endeavouring to obtain permission from the Japanese to allow the company to construct a pier or jetty from their coal-yard, to extend sufficiently to allow their vessels to run alongside.

The cold weather has now set in. On Monday night last it blew furiously from the west, accompanied by heavy falls of sleet and hailstones. The North German steamer Otago, which left at midnight for Shanghai, had to return, and was detained until the following afternoon. The Oregonian, which conveys this letter, arrived nearly twelve hours late, in consequence of the thick, foggy weather.

Mr. F. P. Tombrink, agent at this port for the Netherlands Trading Society, goes home to Europe, and Mr. J. J. van der Pol assumes charge of the business as acting agent and acting trustee of the estate of Glover and Co., in liquidation.

The fire insurance question is about being solved. After much delay the companies appear to have become aware how useless it was to continue to charge exorbitant premiums, which has been the means of causing many to run their own risks, and have at length determined to reduce them. This morning circulars making the announcement have been circulated by the agents of the London, Imperial, North British, &c., and I think the change, while benefiting the community, cannot fail to produce satisfactory results to the companies.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Dates from this port are to the 5th January; the French mail of Nov. 10 arrived out Dec. 30, and the following P. and O. mail of Nov. 17 was expected on the 7th January. We are indebted to the North China Herald for the following summary:—

We have to repeat very nearly what we said last week, that there has been very little except festivity going on. The Consulates, Customs, Councils, Banks—in short all public offices, closed on the 1st and 2nd Jan., and those days were observed nearly as a general holiday. The weather has continued fine and cold; and has been taken full advantage of by the Paper Hunters, the Gun Club, and by sportsmen who have gone away on houseboat excursions into the interior. As snow is the correct thing at Christmas time, it may be worth recording that a little fell here, both on the 29th and 30th Dec., but it was very little, only just enough to report. The weather on the coast has been severe. The Ningpo steamer reports its voyage as one of the hardest remembered; the wind blew a strong northerly gale, and the cold was intense. A large icicle was formed upon the string of the steam whistle.

Two rumours are very current in the settlement. The first, that Ichang is to be opened shortly to foreign trade; the second, that another local bank is to be started. Neither report takes very definite shape, but there seems to be ground for each. The opening of Ichang would give a great stimulus to traffic on the river; and there should be room for another local bank, without interfering with the established interests of the "Hong Kong and Shanghai."

The Peking Gazettes are seldom interesting in themselves; their value lies in the light they throw upon the condition of the country; and one of the facts they exhibit most clearly is the frightful corruption prevalent in the Courts. Seven persons are shown to have died in prison from the effect of torture and other kinds of ill-usage, and, with one exception, the victims of this official brutality seem to have been innocent persons. We can recall many similar instances, and we may be sure that the few noticed in the Gazette do not represent a tithe of the injustice actually wrought throughout the country.

The Chinese officials announce that it is considered unsafe for foreigners to travel between Peking and Tientsin without an escort, as the roads are infested with robbers. The dreadful sufferings of the population by the recent floods make us believe that this announcement is much needed. The remains of M. Popoff, of the Russian Legation, who died in February, 1870, have been exhumed, and are to be sent to St. Petersburg. The general health of the foreign community at Tientsin is excellent, and everything seems quiet. There is a good deal of attention given to skating this winter, and the canal near the British Legation is used somewhat for the indulgence of this amusement.

There was a fire on the Quantung side a few nights ago, which promised well to burn down a whole quarter; but Colonel Cooke's men brought up their engine in time to check it before it had gained too great headway, and got it under. The night was one of the coldest we have had, and the men's clothes, wet through of course with working the engine, froze so hard that they could hardly move. Three of them had to be carried home half dead.

We mentioned last week that the tugboat Fuhli was ashore in the Blackwall Channel, near Ningpo. The gunboat Cockchafer went out on the 28th Dec. to render any assistance possible; but it seems impossible she can be got off; and she is to be advertised for sale. The vessel was found in a precarious position, with a strong list to starboard, and with a rock through her bottom.

There was a good deal of trouble about the new Yangtzepoo road when it was first made; and this has, we hear, broken out again. A coolie who was mending it was arrested, told the Council had nothing to do with it, taken into the city, and given 200 blows with the bamboo. The name of the contractor who is repairing the road was extracted from him, and the contractor too has been arrested. What all this means we have not yet learned.

Our old friend Puck made his fourth appearance on New-Year's day, as promised, and proved a welcome visitor to all who invited him.

Written with exuberant humour, yet always in good taste, our comic contemporary, the Shanghai "Puck," richly deserves to be classed with that hero of Shakespeare—that is, if a weird being like "Puck" can be compared to a mortal—than whom—

> "A merrier man,
> Within the limits of becoming mirth,
> I never spent an hour's talk withal."

Besides the wit of the letterpress, "Puck—whose fourth number is now before us—is full of droll and well-executed illustrations. If the work can be kept up with the same spirit it cannot fail to command popularity.

HONG KONG.

Dates are to the 11th January; the French mail, with London advices to Nov. 24, arrived out Jan. 4. The following summary is from the China Mail:—

Considerable local interest is felt in the Police Commission now sitting, and the effect which its report must have upon the contemplated reform in the police of the island. The subjects for inquiry are numerous, and embrace nearly every question relating to crime, its prevention and detection; and more than probably the sittings will extend over a lengthened period. From the fact that the position of Secretary to the Police Commission is filled by Mr. Lister, we anticipate a very full and accurate record of the proceedings of that important body of municipal censors. As yet we understand the proceedings have been more of a preliminary nature than otherwise, though the real work of the Commission may be said to have commenced at the meeting held on the 2nd Jan., when a very important witness had to appear and give evidence. We hear from home that a contingent of twenty police have been engaged at Edinburgh for Hong Kong. We have little doubt but that "Auld Reekie" will give us better specimens than are comprised in our present piebald force. If honesty can be secured they will be well worth the expense.

Much interest has likewise been taken in what is known as the Conspiracy Case, Judge Smale having, as stated in our last issue, sentenced the two prisoners (Mousa and Camissa) to eighteen months and twelve months' hard labour respectively. This will act as a healthy check upon such men as Moussa, who have intimate friends in Bombay engaged in the Canton silk trade who seek to evade liability to pay by frauds such as those revealed in this long trial. Exception has been taken elsewhere to the conduct of the prosecution and of the presiding judge, but we nevertheless most strongly approve of both the verdict and the sentence.

Chief Justice Smale, who has obtained leave of absence, quits the colony by the present mail for England; he takes with him and will ever bear the reputation of a conscientiously just judge, who has dealt ably and fearlessly with many important questions during his occupancy of the Bench. Judge Ball assumes the acting appointment; and Mr. Hayllar (Acting Attorney-General) acts as Judge of the Small Court.

The opening of the Russian telegraphic route is of the utmost importance to the mercantile communities in China. "Competition is the soul of business," is a truism which has been very clearly demonstrated by the telegraphic movements in this part of the world; and to judge from the difference in the rates fixed by the Southern and Northern Companies, the competition is likely to be brisk. There can be no question that the company which transmits messages with the greatest accuracy at the lowest price will be the winner of the game.

In proportion to the proximity of the Chinese New Year, the more bold do we find the lawless fraternity. Two attempts at incendiarism have been perpetrated one after the other, on the houses at Kwai Wahlane, the scene of the last great conflagration, in which an entire family lost their lives. On the occasion of the first attempt an old woman, on going out to make purchases one evening, encountered a packet of bulky substance, which on examination proved to be gunpowder, placed close to the framework of a door. The second attempt was discovered early one morning, when a shopman in that locality found a bag of the same explosive substance at his door. Luckily, however, both attempts failed, otherwise a second conflagration of alarming extent might have occurred in the Jervois-street quarter, which seems to be a favourite spot for rascally incendiarism. Probably the piece-goods shops there situated are the objects of attention.

At Canton the thieves, in view of the approach of the new year, have become very daring. Quite recently, a party of armed men had the audacity to make an attack on the magistracy of Wong Ting division, near Fatshan. They succeeded in ransacking the official residence, and in addition carried off two children belonging to the underlings of the Yamen. We learn that three men have been arrested, and the mandarins are extorting from them the names of their coadjutors in the crime.

The Canton Viceroy's gun-vessel Chen-to has captured two large junks in a creek near Tongkoon. They were heavily laden with rice, which was about to be carried to Hong Kong for exportation to San Francisco. The junks were evidently prepared to resist any attempt made to stop them, and returned the Chen-to's fire with good effect. As the gunboat steamed on to them the junks fired a last volley, which caused some damage to the steamer. One shot smashed a house on deck and went through the funnel casing, while another came through the bow and was brought up by an angle-iron in the forecastle deck. The junks' crews took to the paddy fields, leaving several dead and three wounded behind, and the valuable prizes were towed up to Canton by the gunboat.

A curious story is told in Canton of an inveterate gambler, who had in a short time lost a large fortune he had inherited from his father. Being thus in need of money, he tried to sell the hereditary house, but no one would buy on account of its being an estate. So he resolved to raise money upon the building materials, and for this purpose he consulted a master mason, who offered him 700 dollars for the whole concern. Glad of the offer, he readily gave permission to the buyer to commence demolishing the building, and in the course of the work the masons discovered several thousand dollars imbedded in the centre of one of the walls.

The adjourned extraordinary general meeting of the Hong Kong Pier and Godown Company, to confirm the special resolution passed at the previous meeting on Dec 22, was held Jan. 5. Messrs. Lemann (chairman), Lowcock, Bernard, Brereton, Vassonjee, Jafferbhoy, H. L. Noronha, MacIver, Collins, Sassoon, Wilson, Shaw, Heaton, J. McLeod, Coxon, Remedios, Overbeck, Sandilands and Grieg were present. The resolution (detailed in our issue of the 5th inst.) was confirmed, on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Lowcock; and Mr. Lemann remarked that they would now get on much more smoothly under their new articles of association.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Advices by this mail extend to the 18th January; there had been no mail arrival during the week, but the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 15 was due Jan. 19. The Straits Times supplies the following items of news:—

The Chief Justice, Mr. Sidgreaves, will open the criminal session on the 15th Jan. The session will be one of the most protracted known here for some years. The prosecution of Moh Choon, head of the Ghee Hok kongsee, for the alleged abduction of a woman, will be retried and will probably occupy the Court several days; and there is also the case of Captain Sachsze, master of the British barque Burlington, who has been sent hither for trial by H.B.M. Consul General at Siam, for shooting one and wounding two others of his crew, who were mutinous, while lying at anchor off Paknam. Besides these, there are about sixty cases to be tried, many of them arising out of the late riots, a large proportion being for the more serious crimes, such as murder, cutting and wounding, and gang robbery, and it is anticipated the session will extend over three or four weeks

The decision of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, that the long railway to New Harbour shall be constructed by the Government occasioned considerable surprise here, and is viewed rather unfavourably, as the object of this railway was simply to facilitate the transit of merchandise between the New Harbour wharves and the merchants' godowns, and to improve the value of certain private properties at New Harbour. This being the case, it was thought the Secretary of State would discountenance the idea of making a it Government undertaking, notwithstanding that the Executive had signified their predilections in favour of that scheme. It appears, however, that the public were mistaken, and the fiat has gone forth that Government is to make and maintain the railway. The decision is looked upon by the majority of the merchants as an unwarranted interference with their business, as it is a purely commercial matter, and gives the Government power to levy transit charges, which may very materially effect the cost of their goods, without giving them any adequate security against extravagance in the construction or administration of the line.

Another vacancy has occurred in the police force, through the death of Mr. George Cox, superintendent of police at Malacca, who was acting at Penang in the room of Captain Speedy, absent on leave. The office has been temporarily filled by the appointment of Captain Berger, of H.M. 10th regiment, Mr. Hayward remaining at Malacca as acting-superintendent. F. H. Gottlieb, Esq., junior magistrate of police, returned to the colony by the last mail, and has resumed his duties, the labours of the police court being for the present divided between two magistrates.

and military expedition to the East Coast of Sumatra,—consisting of H.N.M.S. Marnix, Banka, de Briel, Java, and Kapuas, and 500 men under the command of Colonel Perié, to punish an insurrectionary movement among the inhabitants of two campongs, who banded together under their head men, murdered the Rajah of Kotta Penang and other persons, plundered the campong, and carried off a number of prisoners. They also fired upon and destroyed the portraits of the King and Queen of Holland, which had been presented to the Rajah, and robbed him of a Netherlands flag and the insignia of his rank. The Resident of Rio accompanies the expedition.

PENANG.

We have dates from this port to the 19th January; the P. and O. steamer, with the London mail of Dec. 15, arrived out Jan. 16. The following summary is from the Penang Argus:—

We understand that his Majesty the King of Siam expressed himself as highly gratified by the reception he met with in Penang, and also much pleased with the way in which Mr. Skinner, the police magistrate of the province, performed his duty as officer-in-waiting. We believe the Administrator has expressed himself as highly gratified with the assistance rendered him by the gentlemen to whom he refused to give more than $1,500 as a subsidy. The fitting up of the reception room, the cost of the tiffin at the club, the ball, the triumphal arches, the decoration of the houses, must have cost about four times that amount. We have heard that a loyal Chinese gentleman has offered to assist the English Government to pay the cost of the reception of the King, with whom English subjects have most important business relations, whose Government has for years been in intimate and most friendly relations with the British. It is a pity that the Administrator had not been better advised, and made a more liberal grant in aid for the reception.

The "derelict" difficulty remains unadjusted. Before leaving port the commander of the Ocean placed the schooner in the hands of the Lieutenant Governor with a view to her being dealt with by the Admiralty Court. As soon as the Ocean left the captain of the Rinaldo put in his claim, and obtained a warrant from the Sheriff of Penang to seize the vessel. On what grounds we have yet to learn, but we consider it rather sharp practice, and anything but complimentary to the captain of the Ocean, and Admiral Shadwell commanding the station.

We regret to hear that small-pox is raging to an alarming extent in Province Wellesley. The authorities are doing all in their power to prevent the spread of the disease, but Malays are stubborn, and will not allow their children to be vaccinated. In Penang the disease is gradually disappearing. We have heard of only one case during the week in town.

With sincere regret we have to record the sudden death of Mr. Superintendent Cox, of the police force. He had been in ill-health for some time. Mr. Cox's career in the colony extended over fourteen years.

A Court of Enquiry, composed of Captain Ord, police magistrate, Captain Fox, harbour master, and the navigating lieutenant of the Rinaldo, has been held at the Police Court, to inquire into the cause of the collision that took place at sea on the night of the 20th Dec., between the British India steamer Arabia and the barque Hydroose, and which resulted in the death of the captain of the latter vessel. The Court decided that no blame could be attached to the master and officers of the Arabia, but that the captain committed a grave error in not reporting on his arrival in port the loss of the captain of the Hydroose.

We understand that the colonial civil gaol, "the Sheriff's," is to be turned into barracks for the European troops expected here in about three months. The prisoners now there are to be transferred to the convict gaol.

Penang is to have a flower garden. The site selected is that portion of vacant ground on the side of the Esplanade. The municipal commissioners intend to do the thing handsomely.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—Since the last report there had been better inquiry for Grey Cottons, and with the clearance of a fair quantity of goods from weak holders, the market had been considerably relieved and had assumed a healthier tone, though no advance had taken place in prices.

SHANGHAI.—There had been a quiet market, the intervening Christmas and New Year holidays having tended to restrict business. Importers generally were firm for an advance, and there had been a rise in the value of 6 and 7 lbs. Mexican T-cloths, which had been in fair demand for Chefoo. The dealers evidently wanted to buy, but the firmness of holders checked business. In Fancy Cottons there was a continued enquiry for Black Velvets, which showed a further rise in price. These were wanted chiefly for the Japan market. There was also a small enquiry for Dyed Damasks and Chintzes suitable for Hankow. Woollens: The Japan market had taken off a fair quantity of Plain Orleans at improved prices. Otherwise the business done in Worsteds and Woollens had been very trifling.

HONG KONG.—The improvement lately observable continued for about a week, but a quiet tone has since prevailed, though the advances established in Cotton Goods had been maintained owing to the firmness exhibited by importers in consequence of the high prices ruling at home. Woollens were very dull and difficult to move. There was very little doing in imports.

BATAVIA.—The demand had been upon a limited scale, on account of heavy rains, and the impending New-Year holidays. The tone of the market, however, remained firm, and Messrs. Houghton and Co.'s circular anticipate a good business at remunerative prices so soon as the holidays are over. This anticipation is confirmed by late telegrams received by Messrs. Houghton and Co.

MANILA.—Owing to the intervention of the Christmas holidays, comparatively little business had been done during the fortnight and values of most plain staples, as also of coloured goods, remained nominally without alteration.

SINGAPORE.—There had not been much doing during the fortnight, and prices of most descriptions of Cotton Goods, as well as of Grey Yarn, had remain unchanged: telegraphic advices from Manchester continuing favourable, holders were asking an advance. 39-inch Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lb., $2.47½ to 2.50; 7 lb., $2.15 to 2.17½; 6 lb., $1.92½ to 1.95; 45-inch, 9 lb., $2.90 to 2.92½; 8 lb., in no request, nominal at $2.45 to 2.47½. Grey Supers, No. 1 in good demand at $1.97½ to 2; No. 2 and No. 3, quiet at $2.7½ to 2.10, and $2.17½ to 2.20 respectively. 32-inch Grey T-Cloth, limited inquiry, and prices steady; 4 lb., $1.7½ to 1.10; 4½ lb., $1.17½ to 1.20; 5 lb., $1.37½ to 1.40; 6 lb., $1.62½; 7 lb., $1.82½ to 1.85; 5,000 pieces 6 lb., taken on speculation at $1.60. Grey Yarn, small transactions in 40s at $116, and 30s at $105; 18/24s neglected, and nominal at $87½ to 92½. Woollens of all descriptions in less inquiry, prices unchanged.

PENANG.—An improvement has taken place in the market, owing to better advices from the home market, and a firmness of tone displayed by holders and a smallness of stocks. Almost all staples, both Cottons and Woollens, showed an advance on late quotations.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A moderate business had been done at somewhat easier prices, a decline of $3 being quoted on certain grades. The Lizzie Iredale was loading, and the Ada was engaged full for New York; and for London the Argonaut had been placed on the berth.

KIUKIANG.—No business had been transacted, but eleven chops of Green Tea have been sent to Shanghai on native account.

HANKOW.—Supplies of Shantam leaf had continued to come forward, and 1,844 chests had been settled at Tls. 8.25 to 9.00.

SHANGHAI.—Less business had been done in Congous, and only 4,775 chests had been settled, leaving a stock of 11,316 chests: the further supply for the season was expected to be about 10,000 chests. The demand for Green Teas had been slack, and but a small business had been done, settlements having comprised only 12,502 half-chests of all kinds. There had been no noticeable change in values. The stock of 22 178 half-chests contained 20,007 half-chests Country Tea, 671 half-chests Pingsuey, and 1,500 half-chests local packed.

AMOY.—There is no intelligence of importance, the season being virtually at an end.

FOOCHOW.—Congou: Settlements had been only 299 chests at Tls. 14½ to 17, the market closing somewhat easier; arrivals, 2,292 chests. Souchong: Nil. Oolong: Settlements reported amounting to 7,188 half-chests at Tls. 16½ to 17; arrivals, nil. Scented Teas and Flowery Pekoe: Nil.

CANTON.—The settlements had been small, Scented Capers only having been in any special demand, and for these full prices had been paid. The stock of Scented Orange Pekoes was very light, and well-maintained prices are consequently asked.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There was little doing, owing to the firmness of holders, who were asking high prices for the 1,200 bales which constituted the stock.

SHANGHAI.—A fair business had been current throughout the fortnight, and settlements amounted to fully 1,000 bales consisting mostly of common to good market Tsatlees. Prices were firmer all round and Tls. 5 higher on the better descriptions, whilst owners of the best chop Silks were unwilling to sell at ruling quotations. The Blue Elephant Euke-fong had been taken at Tls. 530, and Tls. 517½ was refused for Red Peacocks. Long-reels had been settled at Tls. 385, and Skeins at Tls. 375 to 400.

CANTON.—More favourable news from England had caused a little more activity in the market notwithstanding high rates, which were still ruling. Native dealers were not so anxious to do business, as they considered that after the Chinese New Year prices will rise still higher for Tsatlee and Loong-Kong sorts, but Re-reels were expected to remain stationary. There was still a stock of some 300 to 400 bales of all descriptions in the country for which a purchaser could not be found on account of the high prices asked.

STRITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—Tin after having declined to $35 had advanced to $35.70, at which price the market had been cleared. About 5,000 piculs sold during the fortnight, chiefly for England, at $35 up to 35.70. Gambier continued to advance owing to favourable advices from Europe, and was difficult to purchase at $3.55 per picul. Black Pepper contracted for to a fair extent at $10.65 to 10.70. White in good request at $16.25 to 16.50 per picul. Pearl Sago, contracts for small grain at $3.30 to 3.32½ per picul. Sago Flour, Borneo and Sarawak, scarce, and worth $2.87½ to 2,90; Singapore sold at $2.70 up to 2.80.

PENANG.—Supplies of produce during the fortnight had been almost nil, with the exception of Tin which had arrived somewhat freely, and the market, which had shown some fluctuation, closed firmly at $35.20, the demand being active both for England and America.

THE TIMES AND THE MISSIONARIES.

(To the Editor of The London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—We praise and blame the telegraph, alternately, here in China. We praise it most justly for its marvellous feats of activity—we blame it for its curt, startling, and unexplained announcements. We are told, for instance, one day that The Times advocates the erasure of the missionary clauses from the Treaty of Tientsin. A few days pass and we are perplexed by the news that Lord Granville suggests the handing over of missionaries who protect converts to the nearest consul. Foreign residents can afford to wait for fuller statements if not for explanations to be brought by the next mail. But I fear that the literal rendering of these telegrams into Chinese without note or comment must be productive of much mischievous misconception in the minds of Chinese readers.

From your paper of Nov. 3 I have now seen the arguments whereby The Times supports its strange suggestion; and as Lord Granville's recommendation is intimately connected with the subject treated of in The Times article, I take them together, and beg leave to make a few remarks thereupon.

An act of injustice can become tolerable only when rendered absolutely imperative so as to avoid or remove a yet greater injustice. The Times will not, I fancy, deny that injustice would be done to missionary societies, to individual missionaries, and above all to Chinese Christians, by the withdrawal of this toleration clause. Very large expenditure of time, of money, of strength, and of life, has been incurred by Christians in Great Britain, America, and Germany, and several thousands of Chinese have taken the great step of breaking loose from their hereditary beliefs, on the knowledge that full toleration was granted to the preachers and professors of Christianity, both foreign and native, by the Treaty of Tientsin.

Now, to neutralise the injustice which would thus result, and to render the erasure of this clause of the Treaty an act of justice towards China, what are the arguments offered by the writer in The Times? He tells us that the Chinese loathe Christianity. This, from several years' experience in China, and from the unanimous testimony of those most able to judge, I unequivocally deny. I will not dwell on the notorious fact that the Chinese are a tolerant people, as shown by the existence and growth of Buddhism and Mahomedanism in China. The fact mentioned by Mr. Lay is sufficient support for my denial. He reminds us that the particular clause in the Treaty which must now be sacrificed to The Times, though other clauses were eagerly canvassed, passed without opposition. Tseng-kwo-Fan, one of China's greatest statesmen, so far from loathing or dreading Christianity affects rather to patronise it, and is willing to grant full liberty to Christian preachers as innocuous and powerless. Still, lest the recent outbursts, both in the north and in the south, against Christian missions, be quoted against me, I must be allowed in passing this retort—bad people in China do indeed hate Christianity, but respectable people in China loathe opium.

The Times also has no right as a Christian paper and leading a Christian people, to call by the odious name of proselytising the enterprise inaugurated, watched over, and blest by Christ. Neither must a Christian Government think it a shame or an impolitic act to secure, whenever practicable, immunity from persecution for Christians in other lands, and I beg Lord Granville to remember that unless he adopts the suggestion of The Times and erases the Toleration clause from the Treaty, his own suggestion as to the arrest of missionaries will lead to strange complications. Let missionaries convicted of the crime of protecting converts when persecuted for their Christianity, be handed over to the nearest consul for deportation or what not; and that consul will admit, that but for instructions from home, he is the natural protector of these converts. For if we demand, as surely in all merciful justice we had a right to do, equal toleration at least for Christianity and for opium, who but the representative of the contracting power on the one side shall bring to the notice of Chinese officials cases in which this right of toleration has been infringed? Let but our consuls exercise without irritating limitations and restrictions, this obvious Treaty obligation, not with bravado, but with firmness, and from what I know of missionaries, and from what I have seen of the courteous, dignified and conciliatory bearing of our consuls, I feel sure that missionaries would no more be tempted to interfere in person on behalf of their converts, and that assaults and outrages offered to missionaries and to natives would gradually decrease.

I venture to deny also, notwithstanding some few lamentable exceptions of recent occurrence, the statement of The Times, that Protestant missionaries in China have been distinguished more for zeal than discretion. Why, the arrogant circular of the Chinese Foreign office is sufficient support for my assertion, that the zealous work of Protestant missions in China has been conducted as a rule with marked discretion.

The Times is afraid of war with China. It ridicules the glory of beating ill-disciplined and ill-armed Chinese, and yet, in alarm, it confesses that the armaments of China are growing to a startling extent. Yes, she has large and efficient arsenals; she has a small fleet of gunboats, a 3,000-ton frigate almost ready, torpedoes, mitrailleuses, rifles innumerable are being prepared. War would be a serious, possibly, as The Times suggests, a disastrous undertaking for England. And I conclude this long letter by expressing my conviction that the pacific and would be conciliatory Times could scarcely have advocated a policy more suggestive of fresh efforts aimed at the exclusion of foreigners from China, and more surely, therefore, leading to war.—I remain, Sir, yours, &c. M.

THE "NEDERLAND" COMPANY.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I see that your Rotterdam Correspondent has informed you, in his letter of the 7th February, that a protest has circulated amongst the underwriters, in consequence of the appointment of Captain Oort, late master of the Willem III., to the command of the steamer Conrad. The fact is that such a protest has circulated in Rotterdam, but it should be stated that at a general meeting of the Amsterdam underwriters a motion disapproving of the protest was adopted unanimously. The lost ship having been insured with Amsterdam underwriters, and moreover, a committee of Amsterdam underwriters having been appointed by the Dutch Minister of the Colonies to report to him concerning the probable reason of the disaster to the ill-fated steamer, they are better enabled to judge of the captain's conduct than their Rotterdam colleagues, who appear to have been guided by hearsay, and without personal examination of the bearings of the case. I may also note that the conduct of Captain Oort while in command of the Willem III. was highly praised by Sir R. J. Phillimore in the Admiralty Court, when giving judgment with regard to the salvage claims.—I am, &c, ASSASSINATION OF THE VICEROY OF INDIA.

On the afternoon of the 12th inst. a telegram from Calcutta arrived at the India office, the gravity of which necessitated its immediate communication to both Houses of Parliament. It announced that on the night of Thursday (8th inst.) the Governor-General of India had been assassinated at Port Blair, the convict settlement on the Andaman Islands, at the mouth of the Bay of Bengal. At the time of the tragic occurrence his lordship was engaged in one of the extensive tours of observation by which his administration has been distinguished. He had not long returned from the Camp of Exercise at Delhi, where he attended the military manœuvres carried out under the direction of the Commander-in-Chief, when he started to pay a long-contemplated visit to the distant province of Burmah. His voyage to Rangoon, in the flag-ship Glasgow, was extended southward as far as the Andaman Islands, that he might personally inspect the penal establishment at Port Blair, founded in the year after the mutiny for the reception of Sepoy rebels, which subsequently became a general destination for the worst class of criminals. The assassin, Shere Ali, had been sent thither three years ago under sentence of transportation for life for a murder committed in the year of the mutiny. According to the telegram, the Viceroy had finished his inspection of the several stations, and in the dusk of the evening was on his way back to his boat, when he was stabbed twice in the back before his guards could seize the assassin. He did not survive many minutes, and the man-of-war which had been conveying him to Rangoon returned at once with his dead body to Calcutta. An official announcement of the assassination has been made by the Government of India. It says that the country has lost a statesman who discharged the highest duties with entire self-devotion and with abilities equal to the task. Lord Mayo's remains will lie in state at Government-house for three days. The assassin has already been tried, and condemned to be hanged, and the sentence will be carried out directly it has been confirmed by the Superior Court.

The late Viceroy, Richard Southwell Bourke, was the eldest son of the fifth Earl of Mayo, whom he succeeded as sixth earl in 1867. He was born in 1822, was educated at Trinity College, and in early life he evinced the taste for travelling which grew upon him throughout his career. A Russian tour which he accomplished as a young man afforded him materials for a work on "St. Petersburg and Moscow." In his twenty-fifth year he successfully contested one of the seats in county Kildare in the Conservative interest. This he held from 1847 till 1852, when he exchanged it for Coleraine. In the same year he entered Lord Derby's first administration as Chief Secretary for Ireland, an honour which his Conservative colleagues reassigned to him on two later occasions. His official career at home was thus almost exclusively identified with Ireland In August, 1868, his appointment to the Viceroyalty of India was announced. He sailed for Bombay on the eve of the retirement of Mr. Disraeli's Ministry, and on the 20th December he landed in India, almost simultaneously with Lord Napier's return to his post after the Abyssinian expedition. On the 12th January, 1869, he and Lady Mayo were received in state in Calcutta. His Viceroyalty has consequently lasted a little over three years. The son and heir, hitherto known as Dermot Robert Wyndham, Lord Naas, and now succeeding to the title as seventh Earl of Mayo, was born on the 2nd July, 1851, and is consequently fast approaching the date of his majority.

Pending the selection of another Governor-General, Lord Napier of Merchistoun, now Governor of Madras, will proceed to Calcutta, and exercise ad interim an acting power. It may be remembered that on the death of Lord Elgin Sir William Denison, then Governor of Madras, acted as Viceroy until the arrival of Sir John Lawrence.

INDO-CHINESE RAILWAYS.

Mr. M. A. Purcell, a civil engineer, writes to the Globe as follows:—

"SIR,—As first proposer of (and consulting engineer to the many interested and influential advocates both at home and in Calcutta) the Indo-Chinese Overland Route or Railway from Khoosteah on the Ganges, the termini of the Eastern Bengal line traversing Assam, Southern Thibet, and forming a junction with the Yangtse-kiang river in Sechuen, the richest province of China, I am requested to recall to your memory the existence of this scheme, which was proposed to the Government by me in 1868, in a long and detailed report, the principal features of which were that it would make an imperial frontier line, developing the Assam tea trade, also the opium, jute, and rice export, and placing us in direct and quick communication with the Yangtse-kiang, the great water-road or natural artery of Chinese commerce, and forming a junction with our Indian system of railways."

THE SUMATRA TREATY.—The Spectator says:—"We thought Dutchmen understood colonies, but it seems that knowledge is confined to the Dutch Government. In the early days, when we liked foreign possessions, the British Government coerced that of Holland into a treaty limiting Dutch possessions in the Indian Archipelago, and especially in Sumatra, apparently with some view to an ultimate reversion. The treaty, which did us no good, did the Dutch much harm, for they might but for it have turned Sumatra into a more splendid Java: but last year, wishing to terminate interminable disputes on the Gold Coast and to suppress the Slave Trade, the Foreign-office agreed to give up the Treaty of 1824 in exchange for the Dutch forts and right of Protectorate in Guinea. The Dutch statesmen thankfully accepted the proposition, and have ever since been howled at by the people, who cannot see that they got a continent in exchange for a marsh. Nothing now stops them from all the Archipelago by degrees except Papua, which we suppose our Australian cousins will want for a tropical garden."

COLONEL NORMAN commanding the 1st Battalion of the 10th Foot, at Hong Kong, has written to contradict a statement to the effect that the 1st Battalion of the 10th Regiment was kept by a mistake three-quarters of an hour in a hot sun, previous to embarkation from Yokohama for Hong Kong, on the 8th of August last. Colonel Norman informs us that the battalion arrived at the place of embarkation at 6.15 A.M. on that date, and that the whole of the boats containing the men were in movement towards H.M.S Tamar; by 6.21. The statement referred to by Colonel Norman first appeared in the Japan Mail of Aug. 22, and was transferred to our issue of Oct. 9.

THE traffic on the Union Pacific Railway has been interrupted by an enormous blockade of snow, and great inconvenience and interruption of business are the result. Several trains have become snow-bound by the drifts in the West, and the mails have been delayed; while the passengers have been put upon short rations. The Japanese party is detained at the Salt Lake City.

AN Admiralty notification states that Lieutenant Astley Robert Cooper has been promoted to the rank of commander in Her Majesty's Fleet, with seniority of December 20, 1871, in the haul-down promotion of Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Kellett, K.C.B., late Commander-in-Chief in China.

WE regret to learn that Admiral Cockburn, the naval commander-in-chief on the East India Station, died at Government House, Calcutta, on the 10th inst. Rear-Admiral Arthur Cumming, C.B., succeeds to the command of the Station.

MR. W. MEDHURST, H.B.M. Consul at Shanghai, will lecture on Thursday next, at the Streatham and Tulse Hill Institution, on "The Foreigner in Far Cathay."

WE learn by telegram that the outward French mail of 22nd Dec. arrived at Shanghai on the 8th inst.

THE troop ship, Orontes, for Singapore, with the 80th regiment on board, has effected a safe passage through the Suez Canal.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 14.

The articles on the transfer of our Settlements on the West Coast of Africa and the treaty regarding Sumatra, published by The Times, have exercised a curious effect here. They are as mustard after dinner. It seems that not one London paper, except The London and China Telegraph was aware of the negotiations going on between our Government and yours, or of the debate in our Parliament. But now that the transfer is an accomplished fact, which cannot be altered, The Times protests. Our Conservative papers have grown desperate, but it is too late. Of course, many words may be wasted in the House of Commons; many newspaper columns can be filled with protests; but the treaties will, nevertheless, be ratified by Queen Victoria, as they were by our King. The true reason why both Conservatives and Liberals here opposed the transfer is wholly unknown in England; and some London papers seem to be of opinion that our Government have duped your Ministry. It would be tiresome to repeat all I have been for many months stating about this matter; but I hope that in future the English public will take care to be better informed of what happens here. Whilst nothing can occur in Belgium without being reported in your leading papers, there is not the least interest shown for Holland.

In my last letter I told you that Professor Vreede, the greatest opponent of the West African Treaty, had accused the Ministry of having misled the Second Chamber of the States-General by withholding from them some papers regarding the transfer. He is still making so much noise that I should be much surprised if the matter is not brought forward directly the Lower House assembles, which will be on the 20th inst. This date has been fixed at the special desire of the Government; the Chamber should have met a week before, but it seems that the Ministry was not ready with the answers to the Section reports upon several Bills. These replies are now published consecutively, and one of the first matters with which the Chamber will deal is the question of the officer Jansen.

I lately told you that the Ultramontanes had greatly surprised us by their sudden change of mind with regard to the National Festival on the 1st April. The leading paper of this party now recommends the Catholics only to speak of the benefits they enjoyed during the last 300 years, and not to allude to the taking of Brielle. It is quite clear that the Catholics are losing their influence. The moderate section decline to take the course prescribed to them by the Ultras, who seem of opinion that their fatherland is Rome. The Tyd, Maasbode, and other Catholic papers call in vain for contributions for the Pope as a mark of sympathy in his distress, and for a cadeau of f.5,000 to be presented to Mr. Duchastel, formerly our Ambassador at the Papal Court. The contributions only amount to a few guilders, subscribed chiefly by the papers themselves.

I hear from an authentic source that the Government contemplates the conclusion of a contract with a company to organise a regular steam service to Java and Sumatra. I hope to be able to give you further particulars in my next letter.

Some months ago I told you that much sensation had been made in Amsterdam financial circles by a discovery that false bills were in circulation, and had been discounted by the Netherlands Bank. The author of these bills—a certain Mr. Schade—has just been condemned to five years' imprisonment.

The arrangements made by Mr. Myer, who has returned in good health, for the administration of the Sugar Bill in Java, are generally condemned as anything but liberal.

From Curacoa we have very bad news. If we may believe the reports a revolution is impending.

PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE CHINESE COOLIE TRAFFIC.

(Feb. 16th.) Mr. R. N. FOWLER (C.) called attention to the Chinese coolie traffic, and commenced by stating that systematic plans prevailed in the neighbourhood of Hong Kong for kidnapping Chinese, which for cruelty rivalled the practice on the African coast, or even the middle passage. He narrated one case in which a number of Chinese were left in the hold of a burning ship, from which a crew of forty-five escaped in four boats capable of holding eighty men. The statements of the few who managed to survive showed that they had been induced by acquaintances, on pretence of work, to make a short journey, but that, instead of having their expectations realised, they were cruelly treated and threatened by emigration agents; that they signed papers which were neither explained nor read to them, and afterwards carried off on board ship against their will. The miseries of the coolie labourers imported into the Chincha Islands were truly horrible. Those poor creatures were employed in loading vessels with guano, and the grossest cruelties were practised upon them when from weakness or other causes they did not complete their allotted tasks. They were punished with extreme severity for the most trivial offences, sometimes being bound by ropes and chains round the waist, and kept from sunrise to sunset without food for days together. Mr. Jenkins, the author of "Ginx's Baby," speaking of that coolie traffic, said that every year thousands of Chinamen were kidnapped and induced under false pretences to leave their country, that many of them died on the voyage, and others destroyed themselves, while the scuttling and burning of the vessels in which they were conveyed proved that they were not willing emigrants. After being landed they were set to work on the farms, over-tasked, under-fed, often flogged, put in the stocks, and even killed with impunity by their employers, with no one to interfere for their protection. The description given by eye-witnesses of the treatment of these unfortunate Chinamen in Peru was truly harrowing. Some few years ago some of these unhappy men were enabled to place a memorial in the hands of the American Government, which was afterwards forwarded to Peking, when Prince Kung felt very strongly about the miseries inflicted upon his poor countrymen, and expressed a hope that the American Government would interfere on their behalf, because the Chinese Government was powerless to do so. The state of things in Cuba was very like that existing in Peru. Into that island coolies were imported for agricultural purposes, the vessels employed in the traffic resembling those with which the descriptions of "the middle passage" had made them all familiar. On arriving at Havannah these Chinamen were treated exactly like negroes, being first put into barracoons and afterwards disposed of to work in the sugar plantations. They were not accompanied by any women, and the women of Cuba viewed them with repulsion. Assassination and suicide were frequent among them, and their overseers had uncontrolled power to offer them any kind of ill-usage. Having quoted the opinion of Marshal Serrano in strong condemnation of the evils and abuses of the system, the hon. member said he had shown that traffic in the Chincha Islands, in Peru, and also in Cuba, to have many of the worst characteristics of the slave trade, and next proceeded to point out the connection between it and the gambling practices carried on at Hong Kong in houses licensed by the British Government. The poor Chinamen who had lost all their money at these gambling-houses fell easy victims to the agents of that so-called emigration system. He could not understand how the sanction of our Government should seem to be given to gambling-houses in a British colony in spite of remonstrances of the Chief Justice and the local merchants. It was certainly remarkable that such a thing should be allowed to go on under our protection at Hong Kong at a time when it was forbidden not only by every respectable Christian State, but was also excluded from Japan, and even from every part of China where there was an honest and an energetic governor. He was sure that neither Lord Kimberley nor the hon. gentleman opposite (Mr. Knatchbull Hugessen) wished to encourage these gambling-houses; and he would suggest that measures should be taken for their suppression. He would also urge upon the Foreign Office the propriety of using all its influence with the Portuguese Government in order to stop that Chinese coolie traffic, in practice so near akin to the slave trade at Macao. The hon. gentleman concluded by moving an address for papers on the subject.

Mr. HUGHES (L.), in seconding the motion, thanked the Government for the passage in the Queen's Speech relating to the South Sea Islands, and also for the measure introduced the previous night for the prevention of outrages in those regions. It was supposed in 1863 that a death blow had been given to the slave trade; but it had since been found that it was a hard beast to kill, and that it was growing up like a hydra in different parts of the world under the euphonious names of the apprentice system and coolie emigration. The slave trade was now practically flourishing in the Fiji Islands, on the east coast of Africa, in Peru, in Cuba, and more than anywhere else in China and at the Portuguese settlement of Macao. There never was a better time than the present for taking that matter strenuously in hand. Whatever might be our differences with the United States in other respects, we were sure of the cordial co-operation of that country in putting down the slave trade in all parts of the globe, and other civilised nations also would heartily join us in the same good work. But in order to speak with effect on that subject to other Powers we must go before them with clean hands, and to put ourselves right in that matter we must first suppress the gambling system at Hong Kong, which tended to feed the coolie traffic at Macao, and had assumed very extraordinary proportions, for which we were responsible. When the system was first licensed by the Government it was supposed that it would have a very beneficial effect upon Hong Kong, but it had operated most detrimentally. In August, 1870, General Whitfield, the Lieutenant-Governor of Hong Kong, after having consulted the Executive Council upon the subject, who had forwarded to him a minute advising that gambling-houses should be closed after the 1st of January, 1871, sent to the Colonial-office a despatch containing a statement to the effect that Wo Hang, the Chinese licenses under the British Government of the gambling-houses at Hong Kong, paid the Government the sum of $13,340 monthly, and suggesting that the advice of the Executive Council should be adopted. General Whitfield, in answer to that despatch, received from the Colonial Office a telegraphic message rebuking him for making such a suggestion in the absence of the Governor, and directing him to issue fresh gaming-licences upon the expiration of the old ones. It having been suggested that if the gaming licenses were put up to public auction they would realize $4,000 or 5,000 more than Wo Hang paid for them, a Chinese named Wo Asee was induced to give upwards of $15,000 per month for them. In March, 1871, a memorial was signed by 947 Chinese householders, pointing out the immoral nature of the transaction and the ruin such a system brought upon the Chinese. He trusted that after the opinions that had been expressed upon the subject the new Governor who, he understood, was about to be sent out to Hong Kong, would put a stop to this system, and that the $680,000 which had been obtained by the Government from this immoral source of revenue would be refunded, and would be rendered applicable to those unfortunate Chinese who had been reduced to poverty in Hong Kong. He begged to second the motion. (Hear).

Mr. EASTWICK (C.) said no one would deny the horrors of the coolie traffic between Macao and Cuba, although it might be asked why this country was to be so Quixotic as to interfere in matters that did not concern her directly. It was not, however, the characteristic of the foreign policy of this country to consult our own interests in matters of this sort. We had, moreover, a direct interest in the subject, inasmuch as our Australian colonies had been greatly benefitted by the introduction of coolie labour. He trusted, therefore, that Her Majesty's Government would give their earnest attention to this matter, and would adopt a course consonant with the generous policy of this country. (Hear.)

Mr. M'ARTHUR (L.) was of opinion that no Government abetted slavery more than did that of Portugal. What was required was a well-regulated system of emigration, which would put an end to the grave evils of the re-apprenticeship system. If the inhabitants of the Pacific Islands were convinced that they would be protected under a system of free labour emigration would be stimulated, and much good would result to our colonies.

Sir CHARLES WINGFIELD (L.) said that when the Portuguese Consul at Peru reported that certain coolies had been branded with a hot iron, the Government of Macao had immediately interdicted coolie emigration from that port. He did not know how the Portuguese Government had met that allegation, but he trusted that Her Majesty's Government would make such representations to that Government as would induce them to put a stop to such a practice, and that they would endeavour to prevent the regulations relating to this traffic from degenerating into mere formalities. (Hear.) The belief that Europeans were engaged in kidnapping Chinese had led to the perpetration of many crimes on the part of the latter people. He thanked Her Majesty's Government for the Bill they had introduced to afford protection to the Pacific Islanders. (Hear, hear.)

Lord ENFIELD (Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs) should be very sorry were he to underrate the importance of this subject, which had been introduced by the hon. member in a speech that was worthy of the highest admiration for its humane character; but he wished that the hon. member had pointed out what steps other than friendly representations and counsel could be taken by Her Majesty's Government with regard to the Portuguese Government in reference to this matter. Since 1853 successive Governments in this country had done their best with regard to the Chinese and other Governments to secure proper regulations being adopted with respect to coolie emigration. In 1853 papers were laid before Parliament on the coolie traffic containing a statement of those negotiations, and in 1855 an Act was passed for the better regulation of the emigration of Chinese in British vessels. This was communicated in a circular to Her Majesty's Consuls in January, 1856, urging upon them its strict execution. This answered as far as British vessels were concerned, but, unfortunately, it did not prevent the crimping of emigrants in a country like China. Chinese laws forbade the emigration of these natives, but it was connived at, and atrocities were committed, as related in papers laid before Parliament in 1860. The occupation of Canton in 1859 resulted in establishing a better system of emigration, and Mr. Austin, the Commissioner of the West Indian Labour Agency, founded a depot at Whampoa to replace the crimping which had existed at Canton. The Chinese Governor-General recognised these depots by proclamation, and early in 1860 similar establishments were formed at Swatow. The free emigration of Chinese was formally stipulated for in the 5th article of the Treaty of Tientsin in October, 1860. In 1865 Prince Kung proposed to Mr. Wade, their Chargé d'Affaires, a set of regulations protecting Chinese emigrating as hired labourers, and on the return of Sir R. Alcock these were embodied in a convention signed on the 5th of March, 1866. Objections were, however, taken to some of these provisions, both by the French Government and by our own Colonial-office. These objections were the limitation of engagements to five years, the proposal to secure the emigrant a return passage, the restrictions upon the hours of labour, the employment of youths under age, and the probable discontent of the coolies now in the British colonies, of whom there were 12,000 in British Guiana and Trinidad alone. After various communications, Sir R. Alcock was told to propose a modified form of convention, and it was expected that the old regulations would still remain in force. In June, 1868, the Chinese Government replied to these fresh proposals; they abided by the convention of 1866, but declined to sanction emigration under the old rules. A long correspondence ensued, and the negotiations were partially suspended owing to the absence of instructions to the French Minister at Pekin. The French Government were now renewing negotiations, which were proceeding at Pekin. As regarded the Chinese Government, it should be remembered that the Treaty of Tien-tsin provided emigration regulations; that the Chinese Government proposed another set of regulations in 1865; that a convention was made out of them in 1866, which still remained in force; that the convention was not ratified by the British and French Governments, and that negotiations were still proceeding at Pekin as to the exportation from Macao to Peru. In October, 1866, Lord Clarendon instructed Sir A. Magennis to represent to the Portuguese Government that the mortality attendant on emigration from Macao to Peru might be lessened by the adoption of proper regulations. Their reply was that they would adopt the regulations of the convention recently signed at Pekin. It did not appear, however, that a stop was put to these abuses. Public attention was called in 1869 to the evils of the Macao coolie emigration by the alleged branding of coolies in Peru. The Governor of Macao thereupon prohibited emigration to Callao, and Lord Clarendon directed Sir C. Murray to remonstrate. In January, 1870, the Portuguese Government informed Sir C. Murray that the story of the branding was untrue. Meanwhile Her Majesty's Government had determined, as far as in them lay, to discountenance these emigration atrocities, and in 1869 Lord Clarendon informed the Colonial-office that, looking at the way in which Chinese crimps obtained Chinese emigrants, and the sufferings they endured in other countries, and especially in Peru, they intended to prohibit the departure from Hong Kong of Chinese subjects in any other than British vessels to any place not within the dominions of the Queen. This was now in force, and had been communicated to Peru. In November, 1870, occurred the case of the coolie vessel Nouvelle Penelope, and about the same time the tragedy on board the Dolores Ugarte, stranded at Honolulu, with the sufferings of many cooliss on board. Lord Granville addressed a despatch to Lisbon on the subject, and a further report received from Her Majesty's Consul at Canton in May was communicated to the Portuguese Government last June. The Dolores Ugarte, under the name of the Don Juan, was again employed in the Macao coolie traffic, and was subsequently burnt with 500 coolies on board. On intelligence of this, Lord Granville on July 28 sent an instruction to Mr. Doria to remonstrate in friendly but earnest terms. The Portuguese Government, in reply, excused themselves from the charge of inhumanity, and enclosed a copy of their regulations at Macao for 1871. As a summary of what England through her Government had tried to do, he would mention the Chinese Passenger Act of 1855, the emigration system established in 1860, the formal assent of the Chinese Government to emigration under proper regulations in the Treaty of Tientsin, the prohibiting of Hong Kong as a depot for emigration to any but British colonies and in British ships, and the remonstrances on all occasions with Portugal against the atrocities at Macao. This was how the matter stood up to the close of last year. With regard to Cuba, no very recent accounts had been received by the Government of the treatment of the coolies there; their numbers were very great, and there was reason to believe that they were not exposed to as great sufferings as the coolies in Peru. Our agents did not speak in their reports of any cruelties being exercised towards them. They received much better wages, a cook, he was told—and the Chinese were very expert in cooking—getting something like £10 a month. They were, moreover, subject to no punishments except at the hands of an overseer of their own nation, and if not paid well they would commit suicide, fear of punishment having no effect upon them. Our representative at Cuba reported that the condition of the coolies there was far better off than was the case, from what he had heard, in Peru. He thought the efforts of successive Governments in the way of conventions and friendly remonstrances had not entirely failed of effect. With regard to the motion, he hoped the hon. member would be satisfied with his promise that he would endeavour to present further papers at the earliest opportunity. The subject was one in which the Foreign Office took a deep interest, and he trusted that, as time went on, their efforts would produce the desired effect, so that the feelings of Englishmen would not be shocked in future years by a repetition of atrocities on which the hon. member had dwelt with so much force and good taste. (Hear, hear.)

Sir C. ADDERLEY (C.) hoped the coolie immigration from Hong Kong to our West Indian colonies would not be mixed up, as it had been both here and in the press, with the immigration from Macao to Peru, the former being a system beneficial both to the Chinese and to the colonies. It was to be regretted that Sir R. Alcock's convention had practically led to its cessation, by subjecting it to too onerous conditions; and the best proof of the success of the system was that great numbers remained in the West Indies as traders, that many, on the expiration of their apprenticeship, re-enlisted, and that some, after taking their savings to China, returned to the colonies. It was to be hoped that the convention would be so far modified as to remove the present obstruction. As to the subject brought forward by the hon. member, there was no doubt that atrocities had been committed, the fault being not with the regulations, but with the want of ability to enforce them. The prevalence of gambling at Hong Kong was much to be deplored, but he did not quite see its connection with the coolie traffic, unless the Chinese on being ruined by gambling sold themselves as coolies. He doubted whether legislative action could be taken analogous to the measure proposed for checking the Fiji atrocities, for in that case we had one side of the traffic in our own hands—viz., the arrival of the emigrants in Queensland—and could, therefore, inflict penalties on the offenders, whereas in this case we were dealing with the Portuguese Government, to which we could only address remonstrances, and which was as anxious as ourselves for the repression of these practices. That Government was not sufficiently strong to carry out its own regulations at Macao, but he was sure that no remonstrance or assistance would be wanting on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

Mr. GILPIN (L.) thanked the hon. member for calling attention to socrying an evil. The fact was that the slave trade, under various forms, was at rife at this moment as in the worst times of the middle passage. He wished to know whether there was any truth in the statement that a high official at Hong Kong, discharged some years ago for complicity in the traffic, had been restored to the Government service, and had used his influence in promoting both the traffic and the gambling-houses. Macao had very little trade with any other part of the world, being almost wholly maintained by gambling-houses and the coolie traffic. He hoped the question would be left in the hands of the Government, which could best judge how to use its influence with Spain and Portugal.

Mr. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN (Under Secretary for the Colonies) had not expected, from the terms of the motion, that Hong Kong would be so much referred to, or he would have prepared himself with more exact information. As to the importation of coolies into our colonies, the Government would readily adopt any amendments which would better secure the good treatment of the coolies. The gambling-houses at Hong Kong and the telegram of the Colonial Office had apparently excited uneasiness in the hon. member's mind. The Governor-General stated very fully the reasons for establishing these gambling-houses. If they put down the system of licensed gambling-houses they would produce the same effect as would be produced by passing the Liquor Bill of his hon. friend the member for Carlisle—that was to say, a great deal of illicit traffic of the same kind would arise. (Hear, hear.) The Governor-General stated that the special fund obtained from these licences was used only for police purposes, and he called attention to the great decrease of crime in the colony since the institution of these gambling-houses. Chief Justice Smale himself, who had been quoted as adverse to the system of licensing gambling-houses, stated in March, 1870, that crime had greatly decreased in the colony since the introduction of that system. Still that system was an offence against public morality. It could not be abolished at once without doing injury to the inhabitants of the colony, and care would be taken that it should be abolished in a way that would preclude any injury to them. His hon. friend the member for Northampton had alluded to some high official in the colony who was supposed to be favourable to gambling and to the traffic in coolies. If his hon. friend had first enabled him (Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen) to make inquiry into the matter, he believed he would have obtained such information as would have prevented him from making such a statement. He thought his hon. friend was altogether mistaken—[Mr. Gilpin said he would give his hon. friend full information and an opportunity of making an inquiry. He purposely abstained from mentioning the name and address of the official, but he was quite prepared to do so.] He was much obliged to his hon. friend. As to the Bill which he had the honour of introducing last night, he hoped on a future occasion to give a full explanation of its details. He could assure the House that wherever the traffic in slaves existed Her Majesty's Government would do their best to put it down. (Cheers.)

After a few words in explanation from Mr. R. FOWLER the amendment was withdrawn.

THE PAUMBEN CHANNEL.

(16th.) Sir J. ELPHINSTONE (C.) rose to call attention to the necessity for opening the Paumben Channel and thereby facilitating the trade from Europe to the ports situate in the Bay of Bengal. The hon. baronet urged that the importance of doing the work which was the subject of his motion was increased by the fact that during the present year ships were passing through the Suez Canal, many of them bound for the Bay of Bengal, at the rate of 100 per month, and that the opening of the Paumben Channel would save such vessels on the voyage out and in a distance of no less than 720 miles. Two reports had been made on the subject, one recommending the cutting of a new channel and the other that the existing channel should be cleared. He himself thought the first-named plan would be the best, but, in order that some steps might be taken as soon as possible, he wished to have the reports and accompanying plans and estimates laid on the table of the House.

Mr. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN (Under Secretary for the Colonies) said that following the example of his hon. and gallant friend, he would not dwell on the rival schemes for opening the channel. He might remark, however, that this question was not unaccompanied by uncertainty for he remembered that last session his hon. and gallant friend propounded a plan which from his speech appeared to be a feasible one, and the cost of which he estimated at about £90,000; but Mr. Townsend stated in his report that this sum would not cover one-tenth part of the cost. The real question was, not as to the desirability of opening this channel, but whether the task was to be undertaken by the Imperial Government, the Government of India, or the Government of Ceylon. At all events his hon. and gallant friend had rendered a service to the public by directing attention to this subject. He was willing to produce the reports and other documents, and if after perusing them his hon. friend should deem it desirable to take further action in the matter he should be prepared to discuss the question with him in a fair and candid manner.

THE CONSULATE AT SAIGON.

WE regret to announce that it is not the intention of Government to appoint a paid Consul at Saigon in succession to Mr. CASWELL, whose resignation we have already reported. We believe that this decision is entirely due to what is commonly called "economy," but which in many cases proves to be anything but economical in the end. Although the Foreign-office is the official medium for all such appointments, we believe that the Board of Trade are mainly responsible for this decision. "There is a point beyond which," &c., and certainly in the refusal to accede to this demand, involving about £1,000 per annum, we have reached that point. If the present Government are bent on stifling and not fostering our trade by such acts, the sooner the representatives of the various Chambers of Commerce take up the matter the better. Persistence in this course will bring our Consular Service in the Far East into much the same repute as that of another country, which shall be nameless, with its "Merchant Consuls." It must be clearly understood that we intend no sort of disparagement of the late Consul at Saigon, who undertook the duties of the office in its "day of small things." It is simply the system which we protest against as unworthy of a country like ours, with its vast commerce and shipping. This brings us to the main point in this matter, viz.—What is our trade at Saigon? From a return for 1871 we find that the number of vessels under the English flag which entered the port and loaded for various ports was 247—over twenty vessels per month! These vessels were not small coasters, but averaging 500 tons, and many of them steamers. Now let any M.P. acquainted with commerce just consider if it is likely that any merchant can properly attend to the entering, clearing, and the many other formalities to be observed by every English ship in a foreign port, including the hearing of cases brought before him to adjudicate on, between the master and crew, and disputes with the local authorities. Other cases, arising out of the loading and chartering of ships, of great mercantile importance and responsibility, involving questions of international law, as well as cases of seizure in time of war, have also to be decided by our Consuls—such as, for instance, the case of the Rickmers in the last war. Is it reasonable to expect that all this can be done efficiently and creditably by an unpaid merchant in addition to his own business?

THE Japanese have shown so remarkable a disposition to accept European usages, in common with European inventions, wherever they are proved to be beneficial, that we are unable to doubt that the present apparent difficulty regarding the Christian missionaries in Japan—concerning which the deputation, whose proceedings were reported in our last issue, have waited on the Foreign Secretary—will soon fall away under the influence of persuasion on the one side and common sense on the other. The rights of Christian missionaries must, it is evident, be asserted as neither more nor less than those of any other class of Her MAJESTY'S subjects in Japan as in China. On the tact and temper with which this proposal is conducted will no doubt depend much, if not all, of the success which will attend it. Of one thing we are well assured—that the Japanese require to be convinced rather than threatened. The full text of Sir HARRY PARKES' explanations to Earl GRANVILLE, which will be found in another column, is well worthy of perusal.

MR. POPE HENNESSY, the late Governor of Labuan, has left for Sierra Leone, to assume temporarily the government of our possessions on the West Coast of Africa. Sir HERCULES ROBINSON, the late Governor of Ceylon, proceeds to assume the Governorship of New South Wales by the P. and O. route, via Galle, next month. Capt. WALSHE, lately appointed Police Magistrate at Singapore, also proceeds next month. The following record of Capt. WALSHE'S services is given in the "Colonial Office List:"—

Entered the army as ensign, 96th Foot, in July, 1855; lieutenant in March, 1856; captain, 2nd West India Regiment, in September, 1866, and served in Jamaica, Demerara, &c., in the West Indies, until the year 1860, since which he has been exclusively employed on the West Coast of Africa. Served in an expedition up the River Gambia in the year 1861, and was engaged at the attack and capture of the fortified towns of Swarra Cunda, Kinty Cunda, and Saba; also at the battle in front of that town, on the 21st of February in that year; and was mentioned in the despatches of the Governor of the Gambia to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Appointed Military Commandant in British Sherborough on the 1st of October, 1862, and whilst in command of the troops in that country was presented with an address by the principal merchants, chiefs, and other inhabitants, marking their appreciation of his "cool, courageous, and persevering conduct, in proceeding to the town of Bamah, about thirty miles in the interior, with only twenty soldiers, and rescuing the Chief, Murry Calipha Alla, and fifty-seven other persons, from that town, which was then besieged by from 3,000 to 4,000 savages, and dispersing the hordes of savages on the frontiers, who were determined to kill Calipha, enslave his people, and invade British territory." He also received the thanks of the Governor-in-Chief for the great "prudence, zeal, and ability displayed under very trying circumstances." He was permitted to retire from the army, for the purpose of retaining his civil appointment, in December, 1867.

THE new Governor of Hong Kong, Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY, accompanied by Lady KENNEDY and daughter, proceeds by the P. and O. Co.'s steamer Ceylon from Southampton on the 29th inst., and will be due in Hong Kong on the 16th April. Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL will, we understand, await the arrival of Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY, in order to give him the benefit of his advice on matters connected with the Government. This is a most necessary proceeding, and a matter of great public importance to all our Colonies. We trust that Lord KIMBERLEY, our present Secretary of State, will cause this a rule to be observed in all cases. The evil of allowing a new Governor to be inducted into his office by his subordinates is too apparent, and needs no exemplification at our hands. We publish with pleasure the following memorandum from the Colonial Secretary to Sir ARTHUR:—

SIR,—I have received your despatch, transmitting to me copies of addresses presented to you on relinquishing the Government of Sierra Leone. I have read those addresses with great pleasure, and I take this opportunity of expressing to you the high sense entertained by Her Majesty's Government of the valuable services rendered by you, during your administration of the Government of the West African Settlements.—I have the honour, &c., &c., KIMBERLEY.

THE telegram announcing the assassination of Lord MAYO read by the Duke of ARGYLL in the House of Lords has caused a profound sensation. How many more such men must be sacrificed before our officials will learn how to guard against fanatical attacks so peculiar to Asiatics? Governors-General and Judges must always be open to such outrages, and over and over again has this been exemplified in India. We have no hesitation in saying that the Viceroy of INDIA should not be found at places such as the Port Blair convict establishment. There are other officials competent to the discharge of such duties, but we wish to impress on all Captains of guards who attend on—and for the time being have the safe keeping of—such personages, that they should be on the qui vive, and diligent in the discharge of the important duty committed to them. It is exasperating to read of such a lamentable event, caused by miserable negligence and incompetence.

IN our present issue we give a list of the Diplomatic and Consular Staff now engaged in China, Japan, and other parts of the Far East. It will be observed that we publish, as far as possible, the actual occupants of the various posts at the present time. The official position of each person in the service is to be found in the "Foreign Office List." With regard to the Supreme Court of China and Japan, of which Sir EDMUND HORNBY is the Judge, we understand that it is not yet decided whether Sir EDMUND will return to his post; but should he do so, he will leave by the first mail in April. Mr. GOODWIN, the Deputy-Judge, will probably in that case take leave of absence, and Mr. HANNEN will remain in charge of the Court at Yokohama.

THE Japan mails of 23rd Dec., via San Francisco, which were due here on the 6th inst., were not delivered until the 15th, having been detained en route between San Francisco and New York by heavy snowstorms, by which for a time traffic over the Pacific Railway line was greatly interrupted.

THE debate upon Mr. R. N. FOWLER'S calling the attention of the House of Commons to the Coolie Traffic in China, is reported in another column.

M. DE GEOFFROY, the French Ambassador to China, proceeds by the French mail leaving Marseilles on the 31st proximo.

THE AUSTRALIAN TELEGRAPH.

ACCORDING to the latest advices it is expected that the telegraphic communication with Australia will be opened next month. It is important that our readers should know that the cause of delay rests with the Government of Australia in not completing the land lines to Port Darwin. The Submarine Cable was completed between Java and Port Darwin by the Telegraph Construction Company some two months since, and has been lying idle, to the great detriment of the shareholders of the company. The Australian Government, however, allow them five per cent. per annum on the capital until the land lines are completed. The following interesting account of this enterprise is from the Daily News:—

Port Darwin, where the Australian end of the cable is landed, is literally a port and nothing more. The township of Palmerston, on its shores, is a pretty place, with a thriving population—on paper. A handsome "public esplanade" faces the sea, and runs the entire length of the town. Cavenagh-square, Larrakeyh-square, and Temira-square all occupy central situations in Palmerston's most fashionable part. Mitchell-street is a spacious thoroughfare, full of warehouses and stores; M'Lachlan, Peel, and Knuckey streets are admirably placed for business; and in the outlying suburbs the weary Palmerstonian merchant may, if he pleases, find rest and quiet after the labours of the day by renting one or other of the pretty villas in Greene-terrace, or purchasing one of the more ambitious mansions on Stokes Hill. That is, all these things would be and might happen, but for one trivial circumstance. Like Vauxhall-bridge in the comic song, "the place it isn't built, sir!" The American Eden, with its market place, churches, and public halls, did not look more real than the town of Palmeraton does on the map published at the Surveyor-General's Office, Adelaide; and was not more destitute of a telegraphing population. "Township of Palmerston, on east side of Port Darwin, Hundred of Bagot,' says the map, and a note is added to the effect that "the Government retain to themselves the right to extend at any time the wharf frontages between Stokes Hill and allotment No. 995." Above these announcements is the town, with its depots and park lands, its military Reserves and forts, together with streets, squares, and terraces in great abundance. But it is a phantom place; and though the submarine telegraph will doubtless have plenty of business from it in the future, it is necessarily lying idle until the land lines are completed which will bring it into electrical communication with Queensland and New South Wales. This is the whole secret of the delay. There has been a break-down in the erection of the lines in the interior of Australia, and there is in consequence a hiatus of some four hundred miles of telegraph wire, more or less, between England and Melbourne, Sydney, and the rest.

Before explaining how this has arisen, and when it is probable it will be remedied, we must refer the reader to a chart of the world for information concerning the course taken by the messages between England and Australia, which go first to Bombay. From Falmouth to Gibraltar, from Gibraltar to Malta, and from Malta to Alexandria, by three lengths of cable under the sea. Then by land lines across the Isthmus to Suez. Then by cable again under the Red Sea to Aden, then by another length of cable from Aden to Bombay. The Australian message takes to the land again here, and crosses India by the Government lines to Madras. At Madras it is once more transferred to a submarine cable, and is carried to Singapore, touching at Penang. Up to this point messages for China and for Australia have followed the same route. Here they diverge, those for China being taken northwards to Hong Kong, Amoy, or Shanghai; while the Australian message, which it is our business to follow now, is transmitted by cable to Batavia and Java, where it is taken along the Dutch lines to Banjoewangee, and from thence, by cable once more under the sea, to Port Darwin and the Palmerston of the future, on the north side of Australia. So much is complete. The whole of the cables forming this enormous chain have been made and laid by the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, which finished its portion of the work, and put Australia and England into electrical communication, so far back as last November. The original contract of this Company included a coast line, which was to have been taken round the north side of the Australian continent, from Port Darwin (we must again refer the reader to his atlas) to Burketown, whence land lines exist to Cardwell, Rockhampton, Brisbane, and Sydney, uniting with the telegraph from Sydney to Melbourne and Adelaide, and with that from Melbourne to Launceston and Hobart Town. Local considerations prevented this contract being carried out. Whether South Australia was jealous of Queensland, and brought influence to bear to avoid having its messages sent round by the lines of the latter colony, or whether it was thought an excellent opportunity for the further exploration of the interior of the Australian continent, we do not profess to say. But the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company acceded to an application to forego its contract for the northern coast line; the South Australian Government undertaking at the same time to construct land lines through the heart of Australia and across wastes which had been unknown hitherto save to adventurous explorers like Stuart. The line of route here is singularly suggestive. Starting from Port Augusta, at the head of Spencer's Gulf at the South of Australia, the telegraph posts and wires are continued in as straight a line as the conformation of the country admits up to the northern point, Port Darwin. The map showing this route speaks volumes for the nature of the work, and the difficulties to be surmounted; but it may be stated generally that the people employed have found the country easier than they had been led to expect. They have driven their own flocks and herds with them, and have carried their tents into the wilderness. But they have met with springs where they anticipated drought, and with other facilities; so that their labours will have an important bearing upon geopraphical science independently of the useful work they had in hand. "Stuart's farthest, 1860," "Howell's farthest, 1861," and similar announcements are common on the latest map; as are "lake, opposite shores not visible,' and "splendid flats, plenty of grass and water," "remains of exploring party," "dense forests," "grassy country," and so forth. Captain Burton in his last book, "Zanzibar," when discussing his own and opposing theories as to the sources of the Nile, takes a "mapper" to task for representing what the traveller holds to be four distinct sheets of water as one lake, and adds significantly that the one is a much easier way of disposing of the subject on a map than the other. The map of Australia is full of examples of this method of dealing with the country. The Government expedition for constructing the telegraph has added materially to the stock of knowledge, and as settlers have proceeded with it, and stations have been formed en route, there is practically no limit to the civilising influence of the work.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

The correspondence respecting the Circular of the Chinese Government on the Missionary Question has been published in the form of a Blue-book. It contains nothing that can be new to any of our readers. The gist of the present publication may be reduced to a few lines. Mr. Wade raised the objections which would suggest themselves to every intelligent mind, and urged them with great moderation, in a very able despatch to the minister Wen Siang. Earl Granville declares his adherence to the policy and practice of Great Britain, which have ever been unmistakable on the subject to which the Circular relates. Lord Granville, in the name of the Government, repeats that they do not claim to afford any species of protection to Chinese Christians which may be construed as withdrawing them from their native allegiance, nor do they desire to secure to British missionaries any privileges or immunities beyond those granted by treaty to other British subjects, and they "decline to supplement the existing treaties by regulations which, although only intended to deal with a particular class of British subjects, would undoubtedly subject the whole British community in China to a constant interference in their intercourse with the native population of a most vexatious description."

In a later despatch Mr. Wade says the argument of the Grand Secretary was undoubtedly to maintain, not exactly that there was excuse for the massacre, but that foreigners have been far too hard in their judgment of the action of the Chinese Government in relation to the massacre; hence that there is really no need for modification of the Treaties in force, or for a more careful observance of them.

The Government of the United States lays down the fundamental principle that all persons of every sect, faith, or race, are equal before the law. The United States ask no more in China than they confer at home; and, as there is no complaint made against American missionaries, there is no occasion to make new rules for their observance.

The Globe prints the following comments upon the correspondence :—

Parliament has at length been put in possession of Lord Granville's reply to the overtures of the Peking Government for the future regulation of missionary operations in China. Their wholly impracticable nature, however, had been so conclusively shown in the despatch of the representative of the United States at the Chinese Capital, that our Foreign Secretary's task was comparatively easy. The attitude assumed by the English and American Governments on the missionary question is now almost identical. Both are disposed to shift upon France the responsibility of whatever causes of complaint against missionaries really exist. Mr. Low, writing to the Yamen from the United States Legation, pointed out that among all the cases cited in the Chinese Circular there is not one in which Protestant missionaries are charged with violating treaty, law, or custom, the complaints being against the action of the Roman Catholic missionaries, who are under the exclusive protection of France. Lord Granville also protested against no distinction between British Protestants and French subjects of the Roman Catholic faith being drawn in the "general assertions," and, at the same time, declared that although "conversion to Christianity gives no title to British protection against the operation of the laws of the land," Her Majesty's Government "could not be indifferent to the persecution of Christians for professing the Christian faith," whilst they reject the idea that "such an atrocious crime as the massacre at Tientsin can be excused by ascribing it to the prejudices of the ignorant." The Peking Government has lost what few points might have been conceded by asking too much. It wished the foreign Powers to agree to regulations which would control the orphanages established by the Roman Catholics in China; prevent women from frequenting churches, or Sisters of Charity teaching religion; and which would compel missionaries to conform to the laws and customs of China. These and the other regulations submitted are declared by Lord Granville to be inadmissible; and as his lordship is supported in his view of the case by the German and United States Governments, with the tacit approval of the Ministry at Versailles, the Chinese Government may now understand that there is no intention on the part of the Western Powers to relieve it of its treaty obligations, or to supplement them by regulations, which, to quote the despatch of our Foreign Minister, "would undoubtedly subject the whole British community in China to a constant interference in their intercourse with the native population of a most vexatious description."

THE SALANGORE PIRATES.

The papers relating to the recent proceedings at Salangore have been published in the form of a Blue-book, illustrated with a neat coloured map of the Malayan Peninsula, illustrative of the political relations of the British Government with the native States. The papers explain that a junk, owned by the firm of Waing Cheong Long, Chinese merchants of Penang, value $1,500, and cargo, including specie, $7,000, was captured by pirates at Salangore, the passengers murdered, and the vessel afterwards found at anchor, and the greater part of the cargo in the shops of the town, the money, of course, being missing. Captain Bradberry re-captured the junk without resistance, and there were nine Chinese pirates arrested in connection with this case. Lieutenant Colonel Shortland, with a detachment of the Royal Artillery, shattered two forts, which were undefended, and captured 200 barrels of gunpowder and some guns, only one native being found—dead—within the walls. As regards the future prospects of the country, Mr. C. I. Irving, Auditor-General, states that the Tunku Did Doodin, now that the English Government has pronounced itself on his side, has no doubt of his power to establish his authority over the whole country; and, if the Tunku places his finances and the administration of justice on a sound footing, Mr. Irving thinks that the prosperity of the country may be assured. Mr. Acting Governor Anson warmly controverts the censures which Sir Benson Maxwell passed upon the present proceedings in his letter to The Times, and Commander Robinson states that during the bombardment of Salangore not more than a dozen shot fell into the town, and that not more than five dead bodies were seen during the whole time. On the whole there seems to be no doubt that a better ordered state of affairs will be the consequence of the present expedition, though it may be admitted that it appears to have been conducted with a somewhat unnecessary severity.

THE PERSECUTION OF NATIVE CHRISTIANS IN JAPAN.

We give below the full text of Sir Harry Parkes's address on the subject of the persecution of native Christians in Japan, respecting which a deputation from the various missionary societies waited upon Earl Granville on the 9th inst. The proceedings were briefly reported in our last issue :—

Sir Harry Parkes commenced by saying that he was not at all surprised that this subject had been brought before the Council of the Evangelical Alliance. It had been the cause of much anxiety to himself during the last three years. He concurred in the statements generally expressed in the memorial just read. It differed from those contained in the original memorial sent to the Society, and which he had had an opportunity of reading. He admitted the existence of religious persecution in Japan, but the deputation should recollect that it was a legacy of ages past, and had existed since the commencement of the 17th century. The events of two centuries were still fresh in the minds of the Japanese. It was a Christian war which led to the expulsion of foreigners from Japan and the interdiction of Christianity under the severest penalties. The law had since remained unaltered, and on a recent occasion had been enforced by the Tycoon's Government with such severity that twelve Japanese had been executed for professing Christianity. The fact was that the Christian faith saps the foundation of the Mikado's authority, who, in the opinion of the masses, is of divine descent; [a decree, therefore, tolerating the spread of any foreign religion would, of course, attack that belief. The population of the village of Urakami had certainly been removed, as the memorial states, and in the face of the remonstrances of all the foreign representatives, but the Japanese Government defended this harsh measure on the ground that it was necessary to prevent an outburst of religious feeling and to maintain order in a province which formed the closing scenes of the religious wars above referred to, and which has since been the chief field of religious excitement. The Japanese Government have assured foreign Ministers that the persons sent away should be humanely treated, and when information reached him that this promise had not been faithfully kept he despatched an officer to verify the truth of the reports. This officer visited three places where the exiles had been located, and found that in two of them the people were well treated, while in the third locality they were exposed to considerable hardship. Upon this being reported to the Japanese Government they rebuked their responsible officers and published this censure in the Court Gazette. The Japanese Ministers had expressed to him that, although bound to maintain the laws, and especially such laws as those of religion, they would not oppose the growth of new opinions on this subject any more than they had opposed opinions of a political or commercial character which had already been introduced. Changes on matters of religion involved changes of thought and conviction, and it was impossible for the Government, however liberally disposed, to attempt suddenly to overturn prejudices and traditions of the people on such subjects. Sir Harry Parkes added that in dealing with this question he had received all the support he could desire from Her Majesty's Government, both the present and past Administrations. He had been authorised by both to lose no opportunity of impressing on the Japanese Government, in a friendly but most earnest manner, how important it was, in the best interests of Japan, that they should not offend the public opinion of England and America by a course of persecution against the Christian religion and to dwell upon the inconsistency of prescribing the religion of Christian Powers, while at the same time they professed to be desirous of cultivating friendly relations with those Powers, and to profit by the improvements of advancing civilisation. He had also been authorised by Her Majesty's Government not to hesitate or remonstrate with the Japanese Government in cases of unkind and intolerant treatment of native Christians. He was aware that other foreign Ministers had also received similar instructions, and when occasions required had made similar remonstrances. He believed that the effect had been beneficial. The deputation might be assured that the whole subject was regarded with deep interest by him, and that no effort consistent with his duty and instructions would be omitted in order to bring about the object they had in view, and that he was not without hope that the rapid growth of enlightenment in Japan, and the measures taken by the Japanese Government to foster that enlightenment, would rapidly accelerate the object, provided no impediment was created by unwise or ill constructed attempts at propagandism.

Sir Harry Parkes then read the translation of a document which had been sent to himself as Her Majesty's representative, and to all the foreign Ministers, giving a statement from the Japanese Government of their views of the Christian difficulty. As it is a remarkable and interesting document we supply a portion of its contents :—"The Japanese Government have learned with much concern that their action in regard to certain of their subjects at Urakami, who call themselves Christians, has caused displeasure to their foreign representatives. The value they set upon the friendship and good opinion of the Powers with whom they are connected by friendly and commercial relations is such that they cannot omit to give the most ample explanation upon this subject, and by stating their motives of action to remove any misapprehension which may have been created. Nothing is further from the intention of the Japanese Government than to punish their people on account of a difference of religion unless this is followed and accompanied by a mutinous and rebellious disposition shown by such actions as have lately taken place at Urakami. The Government has never thought of taking notice of the private religious opinions of any of their subjects. The fact that many persons who come as missionaries to this country are at present in the service of the Government and employed in teaching foreign languages and sciences at public schools and colleges, and the perfect freedom with which foreign books, even such as contain religious matter, are translated, and have been sold by all booksellers, may afford sufficient proof of the liberal views which the Government takes with regard to religion. But when our people take the religion of foreigners, Christianity, and make it a cloak for dangerous conspiracy, when an ostentatious disregard of the fundamental laws of this country is openly indulged in, when the native Christian communities disown, to a great extent, the authority of the Japanese Government, and are led by their teachers to rely on foreign protection and consequent immunity from punishment because they are Christians, then the Government can remain no longer inactive, and is obliged, in self defence, and in support of the authority of his Majesty the Emperor, to adopt such measures as will bring his misguided subjects back to the established laws and institutions of this country. The Japanese Government has been obliged to take this course from a conviction of its necessity, and particularly in consequence of a growing pressure of public opinion, which arose from the memory of the deplorable events connected with the introduction of Christianity by Roman Catholic missionaries some centuries ago. Public opinion even now demands that the same seeds of discord should be removed which at that period so nearly succeeded in overthrowing the Government, and endangering the independence of this country."

THE ISLAND OF YEZO.

At the last meeting of the Royal Geographical Society a paper was read by Sir Harry Parkes, K.C.B., Her Majesty's Minister in Japan, entitled "Capt. Blakiston's Journey round the Island of Yezo."

Sir H. Parkes said that in dealing with this interesting paper his difficulty had been to compress the full information it contained to dimensions suited to the proceedings of an evening's meeting. He introduced the paper by some general remarks on the island of Yezo, and of Hakodate, a port in the south of the island, which has been opened since 1859 to foreign trade. Yezo, which has an area of 35,000 square miles, is larger than Ireland. It possesses a rich soil and great mineral wealth; but the Japanese Government have done but little to develop its resources, and its products have hitherto been confined to those of the fisheries, which are remarkably prolific. The foreign trade consists chiefly of the yield of these fisheries, which find a good market in China. Sea-weed to the extent of upwards of 6,000 tons annually is one of the articles sent to the latter country. The foreign trade of Hakodate varies; in 1869 it exceeded $1,700,000, in 1870 it amounted to more than $1,200,000. The island sadly needs a settled population; the larger part of that now there migrates out each fishing season. It also sadly needs the first facilities for settlement—namely, roads and means of communication. The sea-beach, or an occasional rude mountain track, form the only roads, and Captain Blakiston was consequently obliged to follow the coast in making his journey to the northernmost point of the island—Soya. He went by the East and returned by the West Coast, and the details of this journey are given with such minuteness, that those who read them may fully inform themselves of the existing condition of this large island. The rich valley of the Iskari is well described, and the value of Otarunai as a port on the West Coast is forcibly shown. The journey occupied fifty-four days, in the course of which Captain Blakiston traversed 900 miles of ground hitherto untrodden by foreigners, except at one or two points. He had been engaged by the Japanese Government to make the journey, and, therefore, enjoyed special facilities for doing so. He was unaccompanied by any other foreigner, and unencumbered by baggage or foreign provisions. He lived solely on such food as the country afforded—salmon, rice, and salted vegetables. Sir H. Parkes also dwelt upon the great interest attaching to Yezo by the presence of an aboriginal race known as the Anios, a race having no connection with the Chinese, Mongols, Manchus, or Tungas tribes, and whose origin had yet to be ascertained. They occupied the whole chain of Japanese islands when the flood of emigration set in from China and Corea, and the early settlers from those quarters, who crossed to Japan seven centuries before Christ, found these Anios throughout Japan, and had to contest with them for possession of the country. It was not till after many centuries of strife, not until about the time of our own Conquest that these Anios were confined to Yezo. Sir H. Parkes also referred to the information recently obtained by the running survey of the coast recently made by H.M.S. Sylvia. The harbours and anchorages around the island are now known, and a navigation that has hitherto been highly dangerous has been rendered secure.

COURT OF ERROR.—EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

GILLILAND V. THE PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

This case was tried in the Court of Common Pleas before Mr. Justice Byles in June, 1870, and was reported in the London and China Express of the 27th of that month. The plaintiff was the widow of a Mr. Gilliland, and she sued on behalf of herself, his mother, and his two children, to recover damages for the loss they had sustained by his death. The plaintiff's case was that Mr. Gilliland was thirty-seven years of age, and he was employed by the Indian Government in the accountant's office in the Punjab. His salary was £660 a-year, and had he lived until he was fifty-five it would probably have risen to £1,200. He would also have been entitled to a pension. He came to England on sick leave, and on his return journey he embarked at Suez on board the Carnatic steamship, which belonged to the defendants, on the 12th September, 1869. In the course of the voyage the vessel ran upon a coral reef in the Red Sea, turned over, and went down, and Mr. Gilliland and thirty other persons lost their lives. The action was founded upon the allegation that the loss was occasioned through the negligence of the defendants' servants.

The defence was that the ship was properly and skilfully navigated, but that she, without fault, got out of her course, and so on to the reef. It was, however, submitted that even had the ship been unskilfully navigated this would not have been material in this action, because the getting upon the reef was not the proximate cause of Mr. Gilliland's death. The captain had an interview with three of the passengers, and explained to them the state of the circumstances, and they thought with him that it would be better that the passengers should not be landed. Shadwan Island, where the Carnatic struck, was merely a barren rock without water, and the passengers would there have been exposed to the full force of the sun. Further, the Sumatra steamer was expected to pass, and she did in fact come up, and took the passengers on board. Beyond this there was, until very shortly before the end nothing to show that there was immediate danger, and under the circumstances it was contended that there was no fault whatever in not sooner getting the passengers out of the ship. Evidence was given for the defence, and it was stated that the vessel must have run upon the reef either in consequence of the compasses being out of order, which they were liable to be in an iron ship, or in consequence of currents, which were uncertain and varying in that part of the sea, having affected the course of the ship. Mr. Butt, the plaintiff's counsel, in reply, urged that, being four miles out of his course, the captain ought not to have run upon a known coral reef at a speed of twelve or thirteen miles an hour, and that, at any rate, he should have put his passengers into the boats which were alongside, and either landed them before the Carnatic went down, or kept them at a short distance to abide the event.

Mr. Justice Byles left it to the jury to say whether there was such a want of skill or care on the part of the defendants' servants in getting on the reef as caused Mr. Gilliland to lose his life. He expressed his opinion that the suspension of the certificate ought not to influence the jury, and that they should set against that fact the long previous successful career of the captain on various vessels and in different parts of the world. Further, he asked the jury to consider whether there was additional negligence in not endeavouring sooner to land the passengers on the Shadwan Island. He ruled that even if there were no subsequent negligence, then the getting upon the reef was sufficiently proximate to the death of Mr. Gilliland to render the defendants liable. The jury found that there was negligence both in running the vessel on to the reef and in not getting the passengers off sooner, and they assessed the damages at £3,000, of which they gave to the widow £2,000, the children £400 each, and the mother £200.

Immediately after the verdict was given, the counsel for the company objected to the ruling of the Judge, and tendered a bill of exceptions, on the ground that negligence in letting the vessel get upon the reef was not the proximate cause of the death, and that the Judge was wrong in directing the jury that there was evidence that the death was naturally or proximately caused by negligence in letting the ship go on the reef, and also on the ground that there was no evidence of any subsequent negligence as to not sooner landing the passengers. This bill of exceptions now (after the lapse of seventeen months) came on for argument before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Blackburn, Baron Channell, Mr. Justice Mellor, Baron Pigott, and Baron Cleasby. The evidence given at the trial (summarised above) having been read, Mr. W. Williams, the counsel for the P. and O. Company, was called upon to support the exceptions. The Lord Chief Justice said—Can you say there was no evidence to sustain the verdict?—Mr. Williams admitted that he could not, but he should argue that there was misdirection.—The Lord Chief Justice: It is admitted that the captain had gone out of his usual and accustomed course. That is the first step. Then the ship gets on a reef. That was the next step, and surely it was the cause of the ship going down. That was the cause of its becoming nearly filled with water, and then, in that state, slipping off the reef into deep water. Was not the getting on the reef the proximate cause of the sinking? Mr. Williams admitted that if it had been a mere case of personal injury through getting into the water, it might be held that the injury was the natural result of the original negligence. The Lord Chief Justice: And, here, instead of the passenger being merely injured, he was drowned—was not that equally the natural result of the negligence? Mr. Williams said that was what he disputed, and he urged that it was not so, because the passengers might have got into the boats. Mr. Justice Blackburn: Could it be doubted that, if this were the case of loss of a cargo, the getting on the reef would be held to be the proximate cause of the loss? And can it be held otherwise merely because it happens to be a case of loss of human life? The Lord Chief Justice: Unless you mean to say that it was the fault of the passengers that they were lost. Mr. Williams admitted that he could not put it on that ground; but still he insisted that as the vessel was on the reef for many hours, during which the passengers might have escaped, the getting on the reef was not the proximate cause of the death. They were safe on the reef. Mr. Justice Blackburn: No, not safe, surely. They were, as it turned out, in a position of imminent peril. You know the old case of a coach running away and a passenger jumping off to save himself. The coach proprietor was held liable for the injury thus occasioned, as the passenger might naturally jump off to save himself when in a position of imminent apparent peril. Is not this case very similar? Mr. Williams said he perceived their Lordships were clearly against him, and it would be improper on his part to attempt to keep up the case longer.

The Lord Chief Justice then said the Court were all clearly of opinion that the exceptions must be overruled and the verdict for the plaintiff upheld. The verdict of the jury at the trial in the Court of Common Pleas in 1870 was therefore confirmed.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tuesday, the 27th inst., the day fixed for the National Thanksgiving, will be observed as a general holiday. The whole of the banks will be closed, as well as the Stock Exchange, Lloyd's, the Mincing-lane markets, and other commercial institutions.

The official liquidator of the Monarch Insurance Company has issued a report, of which the following is a summary :—

The company was formed in May, 1869, and ordered to be wound up on the 29th March, 1870. The assets, representing a very small sum, consist of outstanding premiums, cash at bankers' and in offices, policy-stamps, office furniture and arrears of calls. In order that the value of the calls on the shares may be properly appreciated, it is mentioned that the directors called up £2 10s. on each £5 share, and received only £1,898, while the remaining £2 10s., since called up by the liquidator, had produced only £1,562. The number of bona fide applications for shares by persons competent and intending to pay the subscription capital consisted of only 29 persons, representing 1.176 shares; but the share-register fictitiously represents 35,630 shares as issued, and held by 139 persons. These people are for the greater part only farmers' labourers. Debts amounting to £16,492 have been allowed against the estate of the company. With regard to the Great Oceanic Telegraph Company (Limited), an offspring of the Monarch Insurance Company, and also winding up under the direction of the Court of Chancery, a call is about to be made on the contributories, and the whole of the debts are expected to be ultimately discharged in full. The company possessed no assets except what may be derived from calls upon the shares. Debts to the amount of £1,338 have been proved against the undertaking.

The inspectors appointed under the failure of Livesey and Thorpe, cotton brokers and commission agents, Liverpool and Manchester, who suspended payment in 1869, have declared a further dividend of 3s. in the pound on the estate, making, with those already paid, a distribution of 11s. in the pound on the amount of their liabilities.

A general meeting of the Indo-European Telegraph Company is convened for the 28th inst., when resolutions will be proposed in favour of the articles of association being altered.

An extraordinary meeting of the Suez Canal Company will be held on the 12th proximo in Paris.

Messrs. Jno. Pender and Co. have compiled a table showing the exports of cotton and woollen goods to India and China for fifteen years, viz., from 1857 to 1871.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The market for China continues steady; for red-leaf Congou there is a good demand, and a fair amount of business has been done, including recent arrivals, per Achilles, broken leaf and common at 9d. to 1s. 1d., better qualities up to 1s. 4d. per lb.

At public sale, on the 9th, 633 chests and half-chests Foochow Congou and 556 half-chests Moyune Green were sold without reserve. The Congou sold irregularly, and one chop in chests at cheaper rates. The Moyune Green met a good competition and realised full rates. The prices obtained were as follows—Congou 10½d. to 1s. 1d., No. 1 Gunpowder 3s. 10½d., No. 1 Imperial 2s 8½d., No. 1 Young Hyson 3s. 2½d., No. 2 at 1s. 8d., No. 1 Hyson 3s. 1½d., No. 2 at 1s. 6d. Public sales were also held on the 14th. They consisted chiefly of small quantities in second hands, which attracted little attention, but the bulk was disposed of at steady rates; 2,986 packages were offered, and 2,870 packages sold without reserve. The bulk consisted of Congou, medium to good red leaf 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 5d. A small invoice of Green of common quality sold steadily at previous rates.

SILK.

The market is quiet, the Alabama question having checked for the time much business; the approach of the public sales (to be held on the 21st inst.) is also a further inducement for operators to pause. Prices, however, remain exceedingly firm, importers being quite indisposed to give way; deliveries continue most satisfactory, especially of Canton Silk, and any amicable settlement of the present American difficulty would, no doubt, immediately induce large business, and lead to a very strong market. The deliveries Feb. 1 to 14 have been:—

Canton	490	379
Japan	382	232
Bengal	254	167

COFFEE.

The market has improved within the last few days, chiefly on account of the smallness of the quantity to be put up at the forthcoming Dutch sale. Prices of Ceylon show a slight improvement, and maintain an upward tendency. The current rates are—Plantation: Triage and ordinary, 66s. to 73s.; grey to coloury small, 74s. to 77s. 6d.; low middling grey, 77s. to 79s.; middling, 79s. 6d. to 82s.; good and fine middling, 83s. to 86s.; fine bold, 90s.; pea-berry, grey to fine, 86s. to 92s. Native (fresh import): good ordinary, 70s. to 70s. 6d.; bold, 72s. 6d.; fine bold pale, 74s. to 74s. 6d. In other East India the only sales have been 299 bags sea-damaged and repacked Java, from Cape Town, boldfyellow, 85s.; fine bold brown, 91s. 6d. to 92s., and 114 bags good greenish Penang at 70s. 6d. to 72s. per cwt. Privately fine bold Native Ceylon has been sold at 73s. 6d.

The Dutch Trading Company announce their first public sale for the 21st. inst., when 75,200 bags Java and 5,600 bags Santos will be offered, against 119,000 bags at the corresponding auction last year.

SUGAR.

There is still but little doing, although holders no longer maintain the firmness they lately assumed, and are willing to meet the views of buyers by a small concession in prices. There is, however, but little demand, and the business of the week—of which the following is a record—has been small.

Penang.—At auction 364 mats, brown (duty 4s. 9d.), were bought in at 29s. to 29s. 6d., but were subsequently sold privately at 28s. to 28s. 9d.; 500 bags, low date, are reported sold at 23s. 9d.

Manila.—In auction 9,102 pockets and bags unclayed per Silome, from Mauritius, were bought in at 24s. 6d., except 900 packages dark grainy, which sold at 24s. 6d. Privately 3,500 bags Taal unclayed have been taken at 24s.

Java.—There have been no public sales. Privately 1,025 baskets fine white (duty 6s.), have been sold at 37s. 6d. and 37s. 9d., chiefly the lower figure, and 2,660 baskets grainy (duties 5s. 3d. to 5s. 8d.), per Windsor Castle, have sold for export at 36s. 6d.

COIR GOODS.—At the last sales moderate supplies were placed on offer and went off at about previous rates; of 182 bales Ceylon Yarn 160 bales sold, chiefly fine at £47 5s., very fine and superior make £55 to £60, good £36 to £37 10s.; 70 tons in dhoils chiefly sold, very ordinary and ordinary £28 to £29 10s., good common to medium £30 to £32, good medium to good £34 5s. to £39 5s.; of 23 tons Ceylon Fibre one-half sold at £17 to £18, one lot £14 5s.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market continues to maintain a quiet tone at £38 for Ceylon; at auction, of 249 casks offered 24 pipes good sold at £38, and 114 hogsheads at £38 10s. to £38 15s. per ton.

GAMBIER.—At auction 200 bags cubes were bought in at 24s. 6d., but were subsequently sold at that price; privately, 300 bales have sold at 22s. 6d., and small sales of good fresh block have been made at 23s. For arrival 100 tons December shipment have been sold at 21s. 9d., and further sales have been effected, particulars of which have not transpired.

HEMP.—In auction of 925 bales Manila offered, 301 bales sold, mixed quality at £44 5s. to £44 15s., the remainder, common brown, being bought in at £36 to £38, except first class sea-damaged, which sold at from £33 to £40 5s. Subsequently 242 bales Sorsagon sold at £51, and 10 bales good roping at £50 per ton.

JAPAN WAX.—Slightly lower; of 194 boxes fine hard saucer at auction 60 boxes sold at 90s. to 91s.

PEPPER.—Black: The market has continued active, and a further slight advance has been effected; Penang has sold at 6d. to 6¼d., Singapore at 6⅜d.; for arrival 50 tons Penang, per Cutwater, nearly due have been sold at 6d.; 20 tons Trang at 6¼d.; 10 tons Singapore near at hand at 6¼d. White: Market quiet; little doing.

RICE.—The market has been quiet at steady prices.

SAGO.—No transactions; all offers at auction bought in. In Flour business has been done privately at 16s. 3d. to 16s. 6d.

TAPIOCA.—At auction 87 bags good Singapore sold at 2½d., Malacca kind 2d. to 2¼d.; of 305 bags Penang 100 bags sold at 2⅝d. Pearl: 47 bags extra large sold at 22s. to 22s. 6d.

TIN has shown more steadiness, and a fair business has been transacted at £135 10s. to £137 for Straits. For delivery July next 90 tons realised £134. Banca is held for £143 to £144.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

CHINA.

Fixed and Flashing Light on Chapel Island.—With reference to Notice to Mariners No. 110, dated Oct. 21, 1870, on the establishment of a light on Chapel Island, near Amoy, the Marine Commissioner's Office at Shanghai has given notice that the light is now exhibited. The light is a fixed and flashing white light, the flashes being shown every half minute, elevated 227 feet above the level of high water, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of 22 miles. The illuminating apparatus is dioptric, or by lenses, of the first order. The tower, 63 feet high, is painted black; the keeper's dwelling and wall are painted white. Position, lat. 24 deg. 10 min. 20 sec. N., long. 118 deg. 13 min. 30 sec. E.

Wusung Light and Bar.—Also, with reference to Notice to Mariner's No. 66, dated Aug. 28, 1871, on a light in Wusung River, further notice has been given that the present light is a fixed white catoptric light. The lighthouse is nearly a quarter of a mile S.W. by S. from Fort A, or in lat. 31 deg. 23 min. 20 sec. N., long. 121 deg. 29 min. 30 sec. E. The light bears from the centre of the navigable channel S.W. by W. ½ W. And, further, that a lighthouse is in course of construction close to the one from which the light is now exhibited, and when completed will exhibit a white light through the channel, and a red light over the river. This light is expected to be exhibited in May, 1872. Also, that from the 1st January, 1872, the two red buoys marking the channel over the Wusung Bar would be removed. Also, that until further notice it is recommended that vessels should pass to the eastward of the Langshan light-vessel, as the Waterman, or Middle Bank, is rapidly extending to the eastward. —Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, London, February, 1872.

THERE has been launched from the shipbuilding yard of Messrs. Alex. Stephen and Sons, Dundee, an iron-built and spar-decked steamer, named the Cyphrenes. She is the largest vessel ever built in Dundee, being 1,985 tons register, 300 ft. in length, 34 ft. in breadth, and her depth of hold 24 ft. 4 in. Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present (French) mail brings advices from this port to the 9th January; the French mail of Nov. 10 arrived out Jan. 1. The following summary of news is from the Japan Mail:—

The Mikado paid his promised visit to Yokoska Arsenal on the 1st January. He was attended by a number of his own immediate retainers and by several of his Ministers. There was in attendance a body guard, numbering about two hundred, dressed in gaudy uniforms, who performed the usual duties of such a corps in a tolerably systematic and organised manner. He inspected the various workshops, which were all in full working order, saw the practical use of the graving dock and patent slip, laid the foundation-stone for a second dock to be constructed, and after two nights' sojourn at Yokoska returned to Yedo. As an official ceremony there was entirely wanting that majestic pomp and display which usually denotes the presence of royalty, and there was a complete absence of the humble and cringing form of showing respect which is customary, and was until lately obligatory in Japan.

About the Arsenal everything was as trim and in good order as it was possible to make it. Raised platforms were placed at every point from which a good view of the operations could be got. They were tastefully decorated with holly, and approached by paths laid with clean sawdust. The ponderous steam hammers and the elaborate machinery were put to their accustomed uses, and the capacious cupolas were filled with molten metal, which was run into moulds ingeniously made for the occasion; one mould representing in leviathan characters "Long live the Mikado;" another being a monster Mikado's crest. The processes of bending iron plates hot and cold, of riveting boilers, of drilling holes, of turning shafts, axles, and cylinders, of planing the surfaces of iron, steam saw mills, planing machines for wood, &c., were all exhibited in full working order. On the whole, the greatest credit is due to Mons. Verny and the other officials at the Arsenal for the ingenious and complete manner in which the exhibition was got up.

On the night of the 25th Dec. two fires occurred. The first commenced in a tea-firing godown belonging to Messrs. D. Sassoon, Son and Co., and used by Messrs. Gilman and Co., and in this instance the fire was confined to the stone godown used for the tea-firing purposes, and little or no damage occurred except the destruction of the building. The second fire, of a more serious nature, broke out in a bowling saloon on lot 70, and destroyed the whole of that new row of buildings on lot 71, occupied by storekeepers and others. Another fire has taken place in the store of Mr. Hohnholtz, which was totally destroyed. The American and steam fire engines were quickly on the spot and rendered good service in preventing the conflagration from spreading.

All the ex-Daimios are now in Yedo with their families, and easily obtain permission to go abroad with them—a vast change from the time when they were ordered to the capital and confined there. The attendance of the Shogun alone has been dispensed with for the present and he remains at Shidzuoka.

A special general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce has been held to receive the report of the special committee on the revision of the Treaties. The report was ordered to be printed and circulated, and the meeting adjourned for a fortnight, to permit of the full consideration of the report by the members of the Chamber.

Two marines, belonging to H.M.S. Barrosa, have been charged before Consul Robertson with having caused the death of W. A. Sanders, carpenter's mate, on board the American steamer Alaska. It appeared that a dispute arose on the evening of Chrismas-day at a tavern in the lower part of the settlement, and one or both the marines struck the sailor, who died shortly afterwards. The two men were committed for trial.

The Fesana, Austrian frigate, Captain Funk, arrived on the 30th Dec., and was saluted on coming into port by the various men-of-war in harbour.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 12th January; the P. and O. mail, with ondon advices to Nov. 17, arrived out Jan. 6. We take the following summary of news from the columns of the North China Herald :—

A week since a foreigner intimated at the police-station that his servant had heard some boatmen talk of two foreigners having been seized while up country for having shot two Chinamen. A native constable was sent out, and brought in the boatmen, who were forwarded to the British Acting-Consul. Their statement simply was, that when passing a foreign houseboat near Tanyang the servants on board told them their masters had been seized, bound, and taken to the city of Paong-yue. The country people also told them that two foreigners were seized for shooting Chinese. H.M.'s Consul applied to the Taoutai, who issued a despatch requesting the release of the men if they were really under detention, and a foreign constable proceeded with this to Pang-nue by one of the fast native despatch-boats. However, the report, we are glad to say, turned out to be quite without foundation. Sergeant Yeoman, with the native assistant who accompanied him to make inquiry, and obtain, by means of the Taoutai's despatch, release of the persons alleged to have been seized, has returned, and reports that no Chinamen had been shot nor foreigners taken into custody.

We stated last week the case of the death of a coolie, in a houseboat up-country, the desire of his relatives to make out that the man had died from violence, and the finding at the inquest held by the Chihsien that death had occurred from natural causes. On the return of the houseboat the relatives of the deceased laid hands on the lowdah, and were taking him into the city, with the view of obtaining incriminating evidence against deceased's master. The lowdah distinctly asserts that no violence was used to deceased at any time. The relatives still insist on their accusation, and are anxious to get the men from the houseboat into the city, where they might find means to make them alter the tale to suit their purpose.

A junk has been sunk near the Kintoan beacon, and the mast is sticking some fifteen or twenty feet above water. We understand the mast will be removed as early as possible —and we hope the junk also. In the meantime steamers entering the Yangtsze complain that no mark is set on the wreck. It would be easy to place a ball on the top of the mast, to point it out more clearly by day; and means should be taken to show a light on the spot by night—pending completion of the arduous preparations, and collection of the Tls. 100 worth of gunpowder necessary to blow up the wreck.

A small steamer has made a trial trip from Messrs. Farnham and Co.'s yard. Her hull and machinery were made in England, brought out in pieces and put together in Pootung. The little vessel made a satisfactory run, averaging nine knots. She is 275 tons register, but has greater carrying capacity. She is named the Hanyang, is in the hands of Messrs. Morris, Lewis, and Co., and has just started on her first voyage up the Yangtsze.

The Yangtsze is reported to be falling considerably. We hear that the Cheops got ashore near Silver Island, on her way down from Chinkeang, but got off again without injury and went on her voyage.

We hear that some thieves have got underneath the Hongkew Wharf, cut a hole through the flooring of one of the godowns, and stole the contents of two bales of drills, leaving nothing but the outside packing. No trace of the goods has yet been discovered.

A new local bank is in course of formation, but we have not yet seen the prospectus. The community appears to be keenly alive to the necessity of banking accommodation, and we believe there is plenty of room for another local bank. We do not think it will have any damaging effect on our "first child," the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, but it may singe the wings of such banks as are overwhelmed with laws and bye-laws, instructions, and counter-instructions, remonstrances and suggestions, until they know not where they are.

The Hongkew Wharf Company have purchased the adjoining property (Olyphant's Wharf) and changed the title to the Shanghai and Honkew Wharf Company. The company will now have a very commodious water frontage, plenty of warehouse room, and be in a position to give rapid discharge to all vessels using their wharves.

The Peking Gazette of the 30th November and 2nd December contains instructive papers with reference to the floods in Chihli. Li reports that imperial donations and local subscriptions having alike failed to meet the necessities of the case, he begged the authorities of Kiangsu and Chekeang to collect subscriptions. The appeal was liberally responded to; large quantities of cotton garments, rice, and money were collected; and Li asks that decorations may be given to the officials and gentry through whose efforts these supplies were raised. The Emperor approves, and showers honours on the principal local mandarins; but we do not see anything about reward to the actual contributors.

Our Tientsin correspondent writes that on the 18th Nov. the river was still open opposite the British Consulate; a short distance below it was covered with loose ice floating down from the Peking branch of the river. Numbers of refugees from the flooded districts were dying of cold and want.

The winter at Chefoo has been very quiet, and exceedingly cold. To the great delight of the community, the Nanzing arrived from Shanghai on New Year's-eve, bringing two English, one French, and one American mail. Nearly a month had elapsed since the last arrival from Shanghai. Two sharp shocks of earthquake were felt all over Chefoo lately—one on the 26th, and the other on the 30th December.

A Newchwang correspondent writes on December 15th :—The river is full of ice, but we do not look for its freezing over till the thermometer goes a few degrees below zero. The coldest yet this winter was 1 deg. above zero (equal to 31 deg. frost). The weather is very fine, and one can ride during the day, although fur coat and cap are essential. Fair sales of manufactures have been made—Tls. 180 for 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings, and Tls. 2 for 8 lbs. 4 oz. Last year the latter were eagerly sought for at Tls. 2.50. Malwa is moving slowly; quotation, Tls. 510 to 520 nominal. Sycee is scarce.

Fires seem to have been the prevalent excitement at Ningpo: our correspondent describes three within one week. Some Chinese soldiers have stabbed the foreign toll-keeper at the Bridge of Boats. The court held to inquire into the loss of the Fuhli has exonerated the master from blame. The wreck of the vessel has been sold at auction for Tls. 155.

We are glad to hear that a Volunteer Parade is likely to be called during the week. It is quite time.

The News Letter states that the North China Insurance Company having with 1871 completed the three years to which each term of its operations is confined, has been reorganised for a new term, 1872–1874 inclusive, with some important modifications of its Deed of Settlement suggested by past experience as likely to promote its already remarkable prosperity.

A naval ball has been given at the club by the officers of H.M.S. Juno and Curlew. The entertainment was a great success. Of 200 invitations sent, 175 were accepted, which at such a time of social engagements, was itself a proof how thoroughly the kindly wishes of the gallant entertainers were appreciated.

HONG KONG.

Advices by this mail extend to the 18th January; the P. and O. steamer Pekin, with the London mail of Dec. 1, arrived out Jan. 13. The following summary of the news is from the China Mail and Daily Press:—

Considerable sensation has been created by the announcement that Lum-Shing, the shroff of the police-court, had absconded with large sums of money. This worthy is believed now to be on his way to San Francisco in the Pacific Mail steamer, though a report is current to the effect that he is still in the colony settling up his affairs, and it might, therefore, be perhaps desirable to offer a reward for his apprehension. He has made away with large sums belonging to some traders and to the unlucky Sikh policemen, who were induced to entrust him with their cash for a consideration of 24 per cent. The amount taken is variously estimated between $30,000 and $60,000. The exact sum of course can only be ascertained on going over his accounts. The amount which he held for the Sikh policemen was probably not less than $20,000, and it is said that there are other members of the police force who entrusted their savings to him. For several days before going away he feigned illness in the Court, and after this stayed away on the plea of being to ill to attend to his duties. He left behind him a letter purporting to show the balance due to the Government to be about $180, and stating that there were employés in the Court who owed him sufficient to cover that sum. On a rough calculation this statement appeared to be correct, so that the Government will not lose much. On the news reaching the Sikhs a large number of them put down their arms, and declared themselves too ill for duty. Their statement was that the delinquent carried off no less than a total of about $30,000 belonging to them, but this is probably considerably over the mark. Some, however, had deposited sums of $500, $600 and in some instances as much as $700. It seems that latterly the Sikhs had been pressing the shroff for their money, in view of their approaching departure, and that this was the immediate cause of his absconding. It is stated that he has mortgaged his property to a gentleman in the colony for $3,000, and had received the money. It is to be hoped that something may be done to reimburse at all events the unlucky Sikh policemen. Probably it might be considered that this amount could be appropriately paid out of the special fund. This is the second shroff at the Magistracy that has absconded. We hear that telegrams have been sent to Shanghai, Japan, and San Francisco to stop the runaway on his arrival, and we believe a warrant has been issued for his apprehension. The shroff has a brother at Foochow at one of the Yamens there awaiting appointment to a vacant magistracy, and he may have gone thither.

An official notification has been issued announcing that the notorious gambling-licence system comes to an end on the 20th Jan. This is a result which we prophecied some time back, and little need now be said by way of comment. It will be interesting now (says the Mail) to mark the policy adopted by the Executive concerning the suppression of gambling; and this, together with the distribution of the fund accumulated from the licence fees, will form the last anxieties of Sir Richard MacDonnell's administration of the government of this colony.

We hear that the German Government is taking steps to reorganise its Consular staff in China and Japan by the gradual substitution of paid officials for the merchant Consuls hitherto employed in most places. With this end in view Mr. V. Brand, the German Plenipotentiary for Japan, is bringing out with him a number of cadets, who, after having served the proper time as student interpreters, are eventually to be employed as Consuls for the German Empire in the different ports of China and Japan. Dr. Fooke, hitherto Chancellor of the German Consulate of Hong Kong, is to go to Yokohama as Vice-Consul. This may be regarded as the first step towards the establishment of German political influence in the Far East, and as such it is to be commended.

The Governor has instructed the Acting Attorney-General to draw up an ordinance with a view to suppressing the intolerable nuisance of street cries, stone-chipping, and wheel-barrow squeaking, which nearly drive the community mad during the summer months. The ordinance will be one of the most popular ever passed, and the colony will be lastingly indebted to Sir Richard MacDonnel and to the Hon. Mr. Hayllar if an effective measure be introduced. No doubt there will at first be some little difficulty in enforcing a provision of the kind; but it may be worth while noticing that a measure of the same kind has been quite successful in Shanghai, where the natives are under their own authorities, who, however, at once issued the necessary notifications to put down the calling out of coolies, and more recently the wheelbarrow nuisance, which was as bad there as it has been here.

An interesting illustration of the use of Chinese police is given in the police reports. It appears that two of these valuable defenders of the peace stood calmly by while a serious street riot was going on—no doubt being thoroughly intimidated by the bullies who set it on foot, or rather by the secret organisations to which individuals of this kind in China usually belong.

A meeting has been held of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steam-boat Company. The Chairman, Mr. Deacon, in reply to some observations, explained that the insurance items were—Marine risk, $162,000, entailing a premium of $13,000; Fire risk, $225,000, with a premium of $10,250; making an annual premium payable of $23,250. He would remind those present that more than once the steamers had been nearly lost, one having been on the rocks for about twelve hours, and saved only by the skill and energy of the captain. It would, in his opinion, be a mistake to incur so great a risk. If they had twenty steamers it would be different; as it was, it was very undesirable. Mr. Wicking put it that the marine risk was a mere nothing on the Canton River, and that during the typhoon season the steamers were laid up, and he brought forward a motion, as follows:—"That it is not to the interest of the shareholders to continue the marine and fire insurance at the present cost of nearly $24,000, considering that during the last five years the company has sustained no losses." The motion was rejected, only the proposer and the seconder voting in its favour. The proceedings were then closed.

A fire has occurred in a godown attached to Messrs. Birley and Co., some bales of cotton stored therein having become ignited, and it was only by great exertion that a serious conflagration was averted.

An official notification gives the following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank-notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending 31st Dec., 1871:—

Banks.	Average amount.	Specie in reserve.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

We learn from the Sarawak Gazette that a public dinner was given on the 4th Jan. by H.H. the Rajah to the Borneo Company, Limited. The health of the Rajah and Ranee were proposed by Mr. Helms, Manager of the Borneo Company, Limited. In responding, the Rajah said:—"I would on this occasion pass a few remarks on the three principal branches, not of Sarawak only, but of every community. First, the Government; second, the Missionary and Educational; and, third, the Mercantile and Agricultural. Regarding the first, from my position as Rajah, it will always be my most earnest endeavour to ensure safety to life and property. Regarding the second head (the Mission) I would have all who remark on or take interest in missions first of all to take into consideration the wide sea of troubles, of difficulties, and of disappointments, the missionary has to contend with when working in these far off lands; if these drawbacks be justly considered, I believe the mission work in this country will be found equal to that of missions in other parts of the world; and let us hope that the seed which is already sown may be sufficiently sound and prolific to ensure a plentiful harvest in the future. On Education, I would say, it is commenced and is advancing, not perhaps on a very extended scale, but yet on a sure basis. Commerce to my mind is the very life's blood of every country; it is the all in all by which a country thrives, and without which a country would be nothing. On Agriculture, perhaps the less said the better; I do not flatter myself when I say that I have tried my best to advance this branch, but have most signally failed, and am in consequence much disappointed, but I still entertain hopes that a time for its development is not far distant.

I would now pass to another topic which is very pleasing to me, and I feel sure will be no less so to those around this table; it is the subject of the Borneo Company, Limited. We all know that this Company has been occupied in Sarawak for many years, that it has held fast and stuck to its work through the perils and dangers, the prosperity and adversity, which Sarawak has experienced and encountered. It has shown a good example to other traders; I feel that the backbone, the great supporter and upholder of this Company, has been principally found in a single individual, who has lately been taken from us, and it is my firm conviction, that it is by the untiring exertions and energies of such men as the late Mr. Robert Henderson that the great marts have been established." In conclusion, the Rajah proposed the healths of the representatives and Manager of the Borneo Company.

The gentlemen present were the Honourable the Resident, the Bishop, Mr. Helms, the Government Chaplain, the Commandant, Dr. Houghton, the Rev. F. Abe, Messrs. Denison, Parker, J. St. John and Captain Helyer, of Government service—Messrs. Everett, Fenwick, E. Smith, Ranger, Johns, Wallace, Captain Hewat, of Borneo Company (Limited), and Mr. Crocker.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Our advices extend to the 26th January; the P. and O. mail, with London dates Dec. 15, arrived out on the 18th, and the following French mail of Dec. 22 on the 23rd January. The Singapore Daily Times supplies us with the following items of intelligence:—

The people of Penang, if we may judge from the report of the meeting of their Chamber of Commerce and the general tone of the press there, are in one of those unhappy moods that lead them to perceive in every public work not carried out in that settlement, a special slight to themselves and an ignoring of their claims for consideration. Not a public work has been undertaken for some time past but an outcry has been made that Penang gets no improvements, and that its wants are looked upon with stolid indifference by the Government. The building of our expensive Government House has apparently given Penang even more offence than it did the people of this place, and they point to this as one of the "improvements" that have been bestowed upon Singapore to the detriment and at the expense of the other Settlements—although, according to the figures of the Auditor-General, those other Settlements do not appear to have contributed one cent towards it. It is with communities as with individuals,—continued indulgence in grumbling and ill-feeling begets an ill condition of mind.

The road repairs are not progressing very fast, nor very satisfactorily. The roads have for some years past been wearing down, until they lay between banks of earth. These banks have now been cut away and the earth removed, so that entire streets are now fully a foot lower than they were in the first place. In the higher parts of the town this does not much matter, but in the low streets it makes a serious difference, as they are flooded during heavy rains. It is to be hoped the work will be pushed on a little faster. The road from Cavenagh Bridge along the Esplanade has occupied a couple of months and is not yet finished, and at this rate there is little prospect of getting through the North division of the town this year.

From the Government Gazette we learn that the next criminal session at Malacca will open on the 5th Feb. We are not aware whether the Chief Justice will preside, or whether he will be assisted by Sir William Hackett, Judge of Penang. At present it seems doubtful if the Singapore session will be over by that date.

An all-comers' rifle match has been shot off at the butts on the racecourse. The entrance fee was $2, and the prizes competed for were—first prize, $21; second, $10.50. The weather was very favourable, but the competition was not lively, and the firing was not up to the mark. The two highest scores made were by W. R. Wilmott, of H.M.S. Iron Duke, total 37; and Ensign Dunman, of the Local Volunteer Corps, total 36.

A Labuan correspondent writes that the British barque Burlington, from Bangkok for Hong Kong, with rice, encountered a severe gale in the China sea, and put about for Labuan. She had six feet of water in her hold, but while making for Victoria Harbour (Labuan) ran upon a reef to the north of Collier Bluff, and began to fill rapidly. Part of her cargo was got out and sold, and the wreck and remainder of cargo were subsequently sold at auction for $1,050.

News has been received from Rhio of the loss of the schooner Lucretia, belonging to a Chinaman named Teng Yok, bound from Pontianak to Singapore. She was stranded on Puloh Kottoh on the 2nd January. A portion of her cargo, consisting of oil, gutta-percha, and rattans, has been landed at Gunong Kidjang.

The police have made a raid upon a regular gambling-house in Upper Circular-road, without warning, and surprised half-a-dozen Chinese gambling. Five of the six were arrested, and were taken before the police magistrate, who fined them each fifty dollars.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—A better feeling existed in the market for Grey Shirtings, and reported transactions showed a slight improvement in the prices of all weights. Yarns had been quiet without any particular change in value; the demand for Black Velvets, Turkey Reds, and Alpacas had to a great extent subsided, but Cloth continued readily saleable at fully previous quotations:—Quotations for Grey Shirtings were—7 lbs., $2.25 to 2.30; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., $2.42½ to 2.47½; 9 lbs., $2.80 to 2.85.

SHANGHAI.—The business of the import market for piece goods had been pretty brisk for the time of year, and, though transactions had not been large, a feeling existed that, in spite of large stocks, prices will not be lower for Manufactured Goods. The business in Piece Goods during the week had been confined almost exclusively to Grey Cottons, and a lively demand, resulting in a general advance, had prevailed for all kinds. The settlements, however, excepting in the case of English Drills, had not been very extensive, because holders still steadily refused to quit their stocks even at the enhanced prices tendered. A telegram, dated London, Jan. 3, circulated immediately after the departure of last mail, quoting 8¼ lb. Grey Shirtings in Manchester 10s. per piece and flat, caused some uneasiness amongst buyers here; but a subsequent despatch of 10s. 3d. per piece restored confidence. For best common chops Tls. 1.90, subject to brokerage, has been paid, establishing a rise of 3c.; 7lbs. best common were worth Tls. 1.72, and for Crown Chop 10 lb. Tls. 2.70 had been paid, Dewhurst's best of this weight being worth 3c. to 5c. White Shirtings: Little had been done, and there was little desire to sell, unless on the basis of Tls. 2.05 to 2.10 for ordinary to good 64 Reeds. T-Cloths: The following were the current rates for Mexican qualities: 6 lbs., Tls. 1.40 to 1.45; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.52 to 1.60; 8 lbs. Tls. 1.85. Mexican qualities had been in better request than the lower counts, still a fair enquiry had also been experienced for the latter descriptions, and rates showed a marked improvement. Drills: Sales chiefly of English; Tls. 3.10 for best 15 to 16 lbs. Jeans changed hands at Tls. 2.25 to 2.30, and were very firm. Sheetings: Tls. 3.25 to 3.30 was the value of English, but the inquiry was weak and fitful. American taken "to arrive" at Tls. 3.80 to 3.90, and on the spot at Tls. 4.10. Fancy Cottons called for little notice. Of Woollens, only a few sales of Long Ells, Crape Lustres, and Crape Lastings had transpired, quotations being unchanged. Metals: Nail-rod Iron without transactions. Lead: Recent advance not maintained; L B offered at Tls 4.65 to 4.70 without finding a buyer. Coals without transactions.

HONG KONG.—There is no change of importance to note in the market.

SINGAPORE.—The market showed little or no alteration. The current quotations were:—40s mule twist, $118; 8¼ lbs. shirtings, $2.55; 7 do. do., $2.17½; 5 do. T-cloths, $1.40; 6 do. do., $1.65; 7 do. do., $1.85.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Continued unfavourable advices of the state of the American market had curtailed business to some extent, and since the publication of the last report transactions had been on a limited scale only; settlements were estimated at about 3,000 piculs, consisting almost entirely of the lower grades; these settlements had been made at about prices last quoted, in some instances at a reduction, but not sufficient to establish a change in quotations. Supplies had been very meagre, and of a poor description; stocks were slightly reduced, and comprised the common and medium grades only, there being scarcely a parcel of the finer kinds on offer. The Lizzie Iredale sailed for New York on the 31st Dec., with 715,727 lbs.; the Ada and the Naworth Castle were reported as on the berth for New York. Quotations:—Common, $18 to 20 per picul; good common, $21 to 23; medium, $24 to 27; good medium, $28 to 31; fine, $35 to 40; finest, nominal, $42 to 50; choice, nominal, $52 upwards.

HANKOW.—The following is taken from Messrs. J. H. Evans and Co.'s Circular:—Prices during the past season have on the whole been fairly reasonable. Extreme rates were paid for fine Ningchows, and Oopacks and Oanfas during the first fortnight were too dear. We confirm what we wrote early in the season, that we consider that the crop has on the whole been an average one as to quality. The heavy losses sustained on some of the early shipments were not caused so much by high prices paid here, as by the manner in which the teas were forced on the London market, where enormous quantities arrived simultaneously. Many merchants there were determined to sell on arrival, apparently regardless of the interests of their constitutents in China. This is, we think, proved by the great improvement that is now reported in prices, which in some classes is, we believe, 20 to 30 per cent. The export from all China has undoubtedly been heavy, but it appears that the home deliveries have fully kept pace with it.

SHANGHAI.—Black: A very small business had been done, at former rates; transactions had been chiefly in common Shongtams at Tls. 12 to 13, and Hohows at Tls. 16 to 19. There had been hardly any arrivals, and the stock was only 9,000 chests. Settlements for the week 3,500 chests. In Green there had been much less demand, but no decline in prices. There were very few desirable chops left. Settlements 4,200 half-chests, stock 23,000 half-chests.

AMOY.—The Clementia sailed for New York on the 8th Jan., taking 353,046 lbs. Oolong, which comprised the greater portion of the Teas awaiting shipment.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Since our last report there had been a fairly active business passing, and the market at the close was decidedly firm; Oshus were still in request and were quoted firmer, only a few parcels remaining unsold. Hank sorts were stiff, and could not be purchased on as favourable terms as recently. Arrivals continued light, and the unsold stock was still further reduced. Total settlements, 800 bales. Quotations, hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, best, 28s. 6d. to 30s.; medium, 25s. 6d. to 27s. 9d.; inferior, 22s. 9d. to 25s. 2d.; Oshu, extra, 33s. 9d.; best, 30s. 9d. to 32s. 3d.; medium, 27s. 9d. to 29s. 6d.; inferior, 25s. 6d. to 27s.; Hamatski, inferior to best, 25s. to 28s. 9d.; Coshu, medium, 24s. to 25s. 9d.; inferior, 22s. 3d. to 23s. 3d.; Sodai; best, 27s. 9d. to 29s. 6d.; medium, 25s. 6d. to 27s.; Etchesen, medium, 24s. to 25s. 9d.; inferior, 21s. 9d. to 23s. 3d.

SHANGHAI.—Since the departure of last mail a fair amount of business had been done both for Europe and America. The settlements amounted to 700 bales, viz., 400 bales for Europe and 300 bales for America, making total to date 43,800 bales. Purchasers had shown some eagerness to secure the little desirable silk on offer, and prices had in consequence been daily advancing. Blue Elephant had been bought at Tls. 535; Ted Peacocks at Tls. 520. Rereels, both Tsatlees and Hainings, had also fetched very extreme prices, fully Tls. 15 over last quotations. The stock was estimated at 2,000 bales, but the quality of the silk was far from being satisfactory.

Sharples, who has been moved from the 39th Regiment to Capt. Birney's company, was promoted to an ensigney from the rank of sergeant 1855, and became lieutenant by purchase in the same year. He served at the battle of Mahajpore, and was also at the siege of Sebastopol.

The two promotions consequent upon Col. Layard's retirement from the Ceylon Rifle Regiment are bestowed upon Col. Hook and Capt. Meaden. Neither officer has been actively engaged, but both have served for a lengthened period on foreign service. Col. Hook entered the army in 1834, became major in 1861, and brevet lieutenant-colonel in December last. Capt. Meaden obtained his ensigney in 1852, and his company in 1857

Captain Lloyd, Artillery, 6th Regiment, will proceed out to the Straits Settlements to succeed Captain Shaw, 73rd Regiment, as Brigade-Major. Captain Lloyd passed from the Staff College in December, 1869.

The appointments are notified from the Admiralty of Lieutenant Seymour S. Smith to command the Salamis, and Henry T. Clanchy to command the Cockchafer, on the China station.

Notice is given that the Universal Marine Insurance Company (Limited) is authorised to underwrite in London for the Standard Marine Insurance Company (Limited), of Liverpool, to issue policies, and to settle claims thereon.

At a meeting of the Great Northern China and Japan Extension Telegraph Company, held on the 23rd inst. at Copenhagen, it was resolved to amalgamate with the Great Northern Telegraph Company, and to lay a telegraph cable to the port of Amoy.

The Great Northern Telegraph Cable between Shanghai and Hong Kong, which was recently broken, has been repaired, and messages for Hong Kong can be forwarded as usual by the company's lines.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Feb. 20.

The mania for establishing new joint-stock companies is raging in Germany as fiercely as ever, and it is wonderful to see what a run there is upon the shares, and how the public think nothing of paying ten or twenty per cent. premium to get them. Hamburg has not escaped the mania, though I am bound to admit that the companies formed here have, on the whole, more chance of success than those got up at Berlin and other parts of Germany. The latest novelty in this article is the "Transatlantic Fire Insurance Company," which, at a public meeting held in the Exchange Rooms here last Saturday, declared itself duly "constituted." The capital in this instance is only the moderate nominal amount of one million thalers, with a paid-up instalment of twenty per cent. The following gentlemen were elected members of the Court of Administration: Consul Ad. Bauer, of Wandsbeck (of the firm of C. Bahre and G. Kinder, Batavia); Ed. Busing, of Bremen (of the firm of J. W. Bastian's Sons, Bremen); Joseph Herzfeld, of Berlin (of the former firm of Hallgarten and Herzfeld, New York); G. Hesse, of Altona (of the firm of Hesse, Newman, and Co., Altona); Consul L. Kniffler, of Dusseldorf (of the firm of L. Kniffler and Co., Yokohama); Ed. Krause (of the firm of Eduard Krause and Co., Hamburg); M. Meyersberg, Hamburg; W. Nissen, of Hamburg (of the firm of Siemssen and Co., Hong Kong); §A. von Pein (of the firm of Haller, Sohle, and Co., Hamburg); Paul Pickenpack, Hamburg (of the firm of Pickenpack, Thies, and Co., Bangkok); Adolph Schroder, jun., of Bremen (of the firm of G. H. and C. Primavesi, Bremen); and H. Vaupel (of the firm of Deichmann and vomm Rath, Amsterdam). Messrs. H. Dreyer, C. Karuth, and Ad. Koch were elected auditors, and Herr W. Jacobsen, formerly of Batavia, is appointed managing director, with power to sign policies of insurance. From the foregoing list it will be seen that the greater part of the directors are largely connected with foreign trade, and therefore have it in their power to bring much business to the institution.

Another company of a very different nature, and for a very different object, is now in course of formation—not here, but at Berlin; and though the prospectus has not yet been issued, I am enabled from a private source to inform your readers of the principal features of the scheme, which, if carried out, may have a serious effect on the trade of Hamburg. A railway is to be constructed from Harburg, on the opposite bank of the Elbe, through Stade, down to Cuxhaven, whore magnificent quays, docks, and everything else appertaining to a first-rate harbour are to be constructed, and thus make it the principal commercial port of Germany on the North Sea. A branch railway is to be constructed to Geestemunde, at the mouth of the Weser, so as to admit the merchants of Bremen to participate in the advantages offered to commerce. And, to crown the whole, ten of the fastest steamers are to be built and have daily communication with Harwich for goods and passengers, as well as mails, which will then be forwarded by the Great Eastern Railway system to their destination. The company is to start with a capital of twenty millions of dollars, of which thirteen are to be spent for railways, five millions for the harbour works at Cuxhaven, and two millions for the cost of the ten fast steamers. Great stress is laid on the alleged fact that every winter from 500 to 700 sea-going vessels put into Cuxhaven, as a port of refuge, and overcrowd the harbour, waiting there till the Elbe is free of ice, and they are able to proceed up to Hamburg or Altona. I may add that I have seen the rough sketch of the proposed prospectus, in which a calculation of the operations of the undertaking is ventilated. It is based on the foreign trade of Hamburg, amounting annually to eighty millions of centners—all of which they expect to get—which will ensure their sending off twenty heavily-loaded full trains of thirty waggons each daily from each end; these goods to be shipped or landed with incredible speed to and from the interior of Germany, Hamburg being totally ignored, left out in the cold, and commercially ruined. The large transatlantic steamers and sailing ships that carry the great bulk of the goods will, "of course," prefer the convenience of loading and discharging their cargoes at Cuxhaven to risking the dangers and delays of the river navigation up to this city. It is manifestly too early to point out the absurdity and ignorance of the promoters of this wild scheme till we have something tangible to refute; but it may be consoling to your readers in the Far East who are in any way connected with Hamburg, to show that there are many unconquerable difficulties in the way of realising the project, to only two of which I will call their attention to-day. The first is that Cuxhaven, with the surrounding country at the mouth of the Elbe, belongs exclusively to the State of Hamburg, and however desirable it may be to improve and enlarge the accommodation for ships as a port of refuge, nothing can be done without the joint consent of the Senate and Burgerschaft of this Free Hanseatic Republic, with whom the Berlin capitalists will find it rather difficult to deal. And secondly, I may observe that it is not at the option of a skipper to discharge his cargo at Cuxhaven if his charter-party or bills of lading bind him to proceed up to Hamburg; and that as by far the greater part of the ships are owned here, and the cargoes, both inwards and outwards, are the property of Hamburg and Altona merchants who are not likely to patronise the scheme unless they can see clearly that it is for their own interests, it is quite obvious that a deal of water will run into the sea before the project can be brought into operation.

It appears by the latest accounts from Berlin, that the new Currency Bill is postponed till next year, as it has been found impossible at present to come to a definite conclusion as to whether the thaler piece shall be retained or not. It is considered by the supporters of the purely gold system to be a favourable feature that the shipments of silver to China have again recommenced, which fact accounts for the present high value of that metal in the London market.

A local paper of this city—the Reform—states that an agent of the Chinese Government is now here for the purpose of engaging telegraphists for employment on the new lines about to be erected in the interior of that country. They are required to have some knowledge of the English language, and if possible, to know how to repair and put up new wires. The terms offered are very liberal, consisting of $120 per month pay, and a free passage out to their destination; but on the other hand they must bind themselves for ten years' service, whilst those engaged for the railways and telegraphs in Japan are only bound for six years, and those on the Danish, Russian, and Indian lines only for five years.

From Copenhagen we learn the formation of an Asiatic Steam Company for the purchase of a couple of iron screw steamers to be employed regularly in the coasting carrying trade in China, Japan, and India. They are to have engines of 120-horse power, draw not more than fifteen feet of water, and have a speed of nine miles per hour. At first it was thought such a vessel would cost not more than 180,000 rixdollars; but in consequence of the late advance in the price of iron and skilled labour the directors are authorised to go as far as 200,000 rixdollars.

At the last sitting of the Court of Administration of the Transatlantic Steam Company of this city, Herr Johannes Mooyer was appointed director-general of the company, a selection that appears to have given general satisfaction on change, and is duly appreciated by the press of this city.

COMMERCIAL.

The Tea Market has been animated and firm, but there is no alteration to notice in the quotations. About 1,200 chests of Congou and Souchong were sold ex warehouse for consumption, and the following parcels for delivery on arrival:—1,017/4 and 769/16 chests of Congou, 175/8 and 326/16 do. of Souchong, all per Ino from Foochow; 500/4 chests of Congou per Avon from Shanghai; and 10/4 and 195/8 chests of Congou, and 158/8 do. Souchong per Falke from Foochow. Rice is rather calm, the dealings being confined to the execution of small orders at previous rates. Cassia Lignea is much recovered since the late fall, in consequence of the large forced sales, and is now in good demand at 10½ sch. bco. In Flores no alteration to report; price steady at 16½ sch. bco. At public sale 41 chests of China Galls found buyers at 43 to 43¼ marks bco. per centner. There is a decided improvement in the demand for Pepper, and a slight advance is the result, 7 sch. bco. having been paid for Singapore and 6½ sch. bco. for Penang. No transactions in Spelter; holders are firm, and will not give way, and this precludes business.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 21.

The members of the Second Chamber of the States General met yesterday. The dulness in politics which has prevailed during the recess will end now, and the papers will have something else to do than to scribble about Mr. Haffmans, a canton judge, who was relieved of his duties some weeks ago against his wish. This gentleman, being a M.P., and belonging to the Ultramontane section of the Opposition, endeavours to make party capital out of the matter, but I do not think he will meet with any success. His letters, which have appeared day after day in the papers, tended only to amuse the public, and will now give place to matters of greater importance.

The King's birthday on the 19th inst. was observed with more than the usual celebration, especially in the Hague. This town was also illuminated with much splendour. As usual, his Majesty conferred decorations on several gentlemen, amongst others Mr. F. Kroes, ex-Consul at Shanghai, was named officer of the "Crown of Oaks." The knighthood of the Order of the Netherlands Lion was conferred on Mr. A. J. Bauduin, Consul at Hiogo and Osaka; on Mr. H. D. Levyssohn Norman, Director of the Inland Administration in Java; and on the general-major of the East India Army, G. M. Verspyck. It has created some astonishment that the ex-Minister of the War Department, Mr. A. Engelvaart, was not honoured on this occasion, not, perhaps, as a reward for his good services, but as a personal mark of distinction. He may console himself, however, with his appointment as Governor of the Military Academy. Before entering the Cabinet he held this post, and when he was appointed Minister he was sly enough to leave the office vacant.

I was much astonished by the letter of "Fair Play" which appeared in your columns, about the protest signed by some of the Rotterdam underwriters against the appointment of Captain Oort to the command of the steamer Conrad. The Rotterdam underwriters have not been guided by "hearsay," but they have founded their motives on the official report of the committee appointed to inquire into the loss of the Willem III. An unskilful advocate, in most instances, makes things worse they they were, and the way in which "Fair Play" undertook to say something in favour of Mr. Oort has put everybody here on the scent that there must be something wrong. The least said about the matter the better. The Nederland Company maintains Mr. Oort's reputation in the best way they can by placing him in charge of the Conrad, and this renders all further comment wholly unnecessary.

I regret having to record the death of Mr. J. K. Caron van Goltstein, member of the First Chamber. He was a statesman who was esteemed by Conservatives as well as by Liberals. He was for a long time member of the Second Chamber, and once held the portfolio of Foreign Affairs.

The fine and mild weather which has prevailed here for some time past has been followed by snow and light frost, which seems, however, not to have exercised any prejudicial effect upon the growing crops.

The West India Mail brought us some better news from Curacao. The fear of a revolution had somewhat subsided.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

THE following extracts from the Blue-book referring to Missionaries in China, to which allusion was made in our last issue, will, we have no doubt, be of interest to our readers.

No. 1.

Lord Granville to Lord Lyons.

(Extract.) Foreign-office, June 27, 1871.

In an interview which I yesterday had with the French Chargé d'Affaires, he spoke about the questions pending with the Chinese Government, and expressed a wish to know what were the opinions of Her Majesty's Government with regard to the late Chinese Circular respecting missionaries.

M. Gavard told me that, just as the United States had done, the French Government took great exception to that Circular, and that the pretensions put forward in it were inadmissible. He said that he feared from the conversation he had had with Mr. Hammond, that we took a favourable view of it.

I told M. Gavard that I could not pretend to think that the conduct of the French missionaries, stimulated by the highest and most laudable object, had been prudent in the interest of Christianity itself, and that the support which had been given by the representatives of France to their pretensions was dangerous to the future relations of Europe with China; that I had always frankly communicated to the Government of France all the information I received from China on this subject; and that I certainly trusted that the French Government would consider what was to be done with calmness and moderation, and only after communication with other Governments; that I should be ready to go into the question of the Circular, as soon as he was able to tell me what were the views of his Government.

M. Gavard assented to the principle which I had laid down; but he denied that the facts justified the accusations. If they did so, the French Government would be the first to condemn them.

I asked M. Gavard whether he knew what had passed between his Government and the Chinese Envoy; but he said that he had received no information on the point.

No. 2.

Earl Granville to Lord Lyons.

Foreign-office, July 1, 1871.

MY LORD,—On the 27th ultimo I informed your Excellency of what had passed at an interview which I had on the previous day with the French Chargé d'Affaires on the questions pending with the Chinese Government, and particularly with reference to the Chinese Circular respecting missionaries.

M. Gavard called upon me again yesterday, when the same subject was touched upon. I observed to him that it was unnecessary to repeat what I had said on the previous occasion as to the importance which Her Majesty's Government attached to the French Government restraining their missionaries from doing things which, on account of the important objects which they had in view, appeared justifiable, but which seriously endangered the relations of European Powers with China. But I said there were objectionable details in the Circular, and that I should be ready to communicate to him the views of Her Majesty's Government respecting the different Articles, if he received instructions from his Government to communicate theirs.—I am, &c.,

Lord Lyons to Earl Granville.—(Received July 8.)

(Extract.) Versailles, July 6, 1871.

M. Jules Favre told me this afternoon that he thought the best mode of dealing with the late Chinese Circular respecting missionaries would be, that a collective answer, pointing out the particulars in which it was open to objection, should be made to it by the Powers to whom it had been addressed.

Foreign-office, August 10, 1871.

SIR,—I transmit to you herewith, for your information, and for communication to the United States' Government, a draft of a despatch which Her Majesty's Government propose to address to Mr. Wade respecting the Circular of the Chinese Government on the subject of religious missions in China.—I am, &c., (Signed) GRANVILLE.

France in any representations which may conduce to the better regulation of the intercourse between China and the Treaty Powers, but on the present occasion it appears to them that, from the different nature of the Treaty provisions as affects the position of Protestant and Roman Catholic missionaries in China, it would be better that each nation should return a separate reply to the Circular; and they mean to address a despatch to Mr. Wade, of which the draft is inclosed for communication to the French Government.

No. 6.

Mr. Wade to Earl Granville.—(Received August 15.)

(Extract.) Peking, June 8, 1871.

I have the honour to forward your Lordship translations of a note or Memorandum addressed by the T'sung-li Yamen, in the first instance, to all foreign Representatives resident in Peking, and subsequently to those of all foreign Treaty Powers, of eight propositions appended to the Memorandum, and of a note addressed by the Minister Wensiang to Sir R. Alcock shortly before he left Peking in 1869.

The last was doubtless submitted by Sir R. Alcock to Lord Clarendon; but as I have been unable to find a translation of it in the archives, and as the Minister Wensiang has again drawn attention to it, I have had a fresh translation of it made.

The note or memorandum is, in the main, an expansion of the note to Sir R. Alcock.

Admitting that, so far as trade is concerned, the Treaties work well enough, the writer complains that their provisions fail entirely in the regulation of the missionary question; and that, through the unsatisfactory position of this, the whole question of foreign relations is affected.

The promiscuous enlistment of evil men as well as good by the Romish missionaries, and their advocacy of the claims advanced by these ill-conditioned converts, has made Romanism most unpopular; and the people at large do not distinguish between Romanist and Protestant, nor between foreigner and foreigner; not that Government has made no effort to instruct the people, but China is a large Empire.

The growing feeling against propagandism had long rendered the Government anxious before the Tientsin massacre, and now, although mandarins have been exiled, criminals executed, indemnities paid, Government still continues anxious, feeling that, if there are to be more such outbreaks, recurrence to such measures will be in each instance more difficult. How then about the future?

First, as to the past. The high officers both of China and of foreign countries have been sadly to blame for a hand-to-mouth policy in dealing with the missionary question. Foreigners ask and China concedes what will make things smooth for the moment. Foreigners also ask what is impracticable in order to place China in an impasse. The Chinese Government would have the missionaries all brought under the same control, as in other countries, amenable to the laws of the land, restrained from undue assumption of status and authority, and from acts that produce scandal (see Article 2). There should be no mystery in what they do (this refers to the Orphelinats), and their conduct should in all respects conform to the doctrine they teach.

At present they constitute in China an imperium in imperio; and it is to be apprehended that their followers, seeing how the Tientsin massacre has been punished, will presume more than heretofore, and that of this will come an uprising of the people beyond the power of Government to control. The responsibility of Foreign Governments will be great if they do not join China in devising precautionary measures.

This is the sum of the note. Appended to it is a Memorandum containing eight Articles, in which are set forth various griefs, each article being supplemented by a note purporting to supply evidence in support of the charge preferred.

Article 1 recommends the entire suppression of the foreign Orphelinats; if this be impossible, the exclusion of all but Christian children; in any case registration of the children, and free admission of their friends. The present secrecy of proceedings in the asylums provokes suspicion. The common people still believe in the removal of the childrens' hearts and eyes. These Orphelinats besides are really not wanted, for similar asylums abound in China.

Article 2 protests against the appearance of women in the same chapels as the men, and against the employment of female missionaries.

Article 3 assails the missionaries' independence of the laws, their assumption of power and position, their oppression of the people not Christian, their abuse of Confucianism, by which they exasperate the people.

It complains equally of the assumption of independence by the Christian congregations, their refusal to render certain service as subjects of the Empire, to pay revenue to Government, to pay rents to individuals. In all such refusals they are supported by their missionaries, who interfere in suits before the Courts. Betrothals also are repudiated by Christians, and their alienation of property produces family feuds.

Articles 4 complains of the demands made for indemnity over and above the punishment of offenders, while Christians offending are withheld from justice by missionaries. Missionaries so offending should be required to undergo the same punishment as the offender, otherwise to leave the country. (See the note following this Article.)

Article 5 would regulate the use of their passports by the missionaries, prevent their transfer, and limit the area of the holder's movements, the penalty of disobedience being deportation.

Article 6 condemns the reception as converts of men whose characters cannot be guaranteed. Bad Christians should be expelled, and a return of all Christians should be periodically made.

In the note to this Article some instances are given of the admission of rebel leaders and other disreputable people into the Church, and of their subsequent lawless conduct, in one case quoted, apparently under missionary protection.

Article 7 denounces the abrogation by missionaries of official attributions in intercourse and correspondence. They should accept, it urges, the status of Chinese literati in both. Cases are cited in the note of their assuming the use of seals, or titles, or forms of correspondence to which they had no right.

Article 8 and last deals with the restitution of property formerly belonging to Christians (and now claimed by the Church under Article VI. of the Convention of 1860). Buildings are demanded back without reference to popular sympathies or prejudices; some that have passed through many hands since the Christians, the original proprietors, sold them; some that their purchasers have greatly improved. The missionaries will pay nothing, but, on the other hand, when a house they claim is in ruins, they seek to exact money for the repair of it.

Had it not been for the strong resemblance between the note addressed to Sir Rutherford Alcock and the memorandum now under review, I should have been disposed to regard the latter, to a certain extent, in the light of a defensive document, put forward in deprecation of any further demands that might be made on the score of the Tientsin Massacre. This is, to a certain extent, its aim, but not, I am satisfied, its only aim. It is intended to be an exposé of a state of things that is sorely irritating the educated class who govern China, and an appeal to Foreign Governments to unite in effecting some arrangements by which the causes that provoke this irritation may be controlled.

The papers, especially the supplement, are very badly put together. They contain some statements which will be easily contradicted and some imputations which cannot be sustained; but taken with the matter of many a long conversation on the same subject, to which I have listened in the last eight years, they strengthen my conviction that, to secure the missionary against the hostility of the lettered class, one of two courses must be pursued,—either the missionary must be supported, out and out, by the sword of the protecting Powers, or he must be placed by the protecting Powers under restrictions which, whilst leaving him always as much latitude of action as, if simply intent on Christianizing China, he is justified in desiring, will yet enable the Chinese Government to declare to those whose conservatism chafes at the present pretensions of the missionary, that he, the missionary, is not authorised by the Power protecting him to put forward the pretensions objected to.

That the appeal of the Yamén is feebly drawn up I have already admitted, and I cannot say much for its candour. Its incompleteness, in my eyes, will be seen from the rejoinder I have drafted to the Grand Secretary Wén Siang, copy of which I enclose. In this I am obliged to impugn the correctness of some of his information, and especially to reject as insufficient the explanation of the Tientsin massacre.

The passage, to my taste, the most offensive in the whole paper is that in which credit is taken for the decision of that case as satisfactory, so much too satisfactory that Christians may be emboldened by it to go greater lengths than heretofore.

The papers when first circulated appeared to the French exceedingly aggressive. I am not a convert to this view. The Chinese keep back, as might be expected of them, all reference to the barbarous persecution of converts and missionaries in various places, if not at the instigation of the mandarins, at any rate with their full knowledge of what was passing, and they have scanty data for some of their charges of missionary intervention and pretentiousness. But I do not believe that this appeal is an excuse for some blow that they know is about to be struck.

It is fair to add that, by the testimony of Romish missionaries in all directions, the Government is doing its best to prevent any collision with Christians. Three-fourths of the Romish missionaries in China, in all, between 400 and 500 persons, are French; and Romanism in the mouths of non-Christian Chinese, is as popularly termed the religion of the French as the religion of the Lord of Heaven.

A dread of Romish ascendancy, as I have more than once reported, I have heard very frequently allowed; and the fear that the ranks of the Romanists, recruited by all who wish to set their own Government at nought, will presently outnumber the well-affected, or that the Romish community, without attaining such proportions, will throw itself for support upon the French, although it is not avowed in the Memorandum, is, in my belief, the suggesting cause of its production.

(Translation.) Versailles, August 31, 1871.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs has received the note which his Excellency the English Ambassador did him the honour to address to him on the 18th instant, and which was accompanied by a draft destined to inform Mr. Wade of the opinion of the Cabinet of London on the subject of the Chinese Memorandum on the exercise of religion in China.

It was of special interest, in the opinion of the French Government, that the Powers represented at Peking should be unanimous in repelling the attempt of the Chinese Government to free itself from the engagements which it has contracted by seeking in pretended abuses justification for new regulations. The French Government, in this respect, congratulate themselves at the sense in which the Cabinet of London propose to reply to the Chinese Memorandum, and understand perfectly that the different nature of the clauses inserted in the Treaties with regard to the position of the Catholic or Protestant missionaries has led the Cabinet of London to consider a separate answer from each of the Powers to the document emanating from the Chinese Ministers as preferable to collective action.

M. de Rémusat has the honour to thank Lord Lyons for the communication he has been good enough to make to him, and begs, &c.

Mr. Davis to Mr. Low.

(No. 57.) Department of State, Washington, October 19, 1871.

SIR,—The delay in answering your No. 56 has not been caused by a disposition to disapprove of your reply to the Foreign-office note on the subject of missions. On the contrary, the President regards it as wise and judicious.

Two versions of these regulations have found their way to the Department—the translation enclosed in your No. 56, and a translation, apparently made from a French version, presented to the Houses of Parliament in Great Britain, in June or July last, and printed in the British Blue-book entitled "China, No. 3, 1871." These versions differ widely in form and expression, and, to some extent, in sense.

The version presented to Parliament has been or will be made the subject of instructions from Her Majesty's Government to Mr. Wade. A copy of these proposed instructions was communicated to this Department by Her Majesty's Chargé at Washington in August last. A copy is herewith inclosed, and also a copy of the version to which they relate.

The most material variance between the two versions is in the designation of the missionaries against whom the Chinese Foreign-office complain. Your version limits the complaints to missionaries of the Roman Church. The British translation, following the French version, represents the complaints against "Christians." For instance, the British version renders the beginning of the first article or rule as follows:—"The Christians, when they found an orphanage, give no notice to the authorities, and appear to act with mystery." Your translation of the same sentence reads, "The establishment of asylums for training up children by the Romanists has hitherto not been reported to the authorities, and, as these institutions are carefully kept private," &c., &c. From the English version of the accompanying note from the Yamên, it is evident that the Chinese Foreign-office recognises that there are in China Christian missionaries of different faiths; for they say that "the people in general, unaware of the difference which exists between Protestantism and Catholicism, confound these two religions under this latter denomination." Your version is to the same effect.

Under these circumstances it may be well to re-examine the original, and ascertain which version is correct. Both, however, agree in the statement that the Government of China is apprehensive of a popular outbreak which may endanger the peace of the country and its relations with the United States and the European Powers, and that therefore it has determined to submit to the representatives of the foreign Powers a plan for regulating the condition of Christians in China. Your prompt and able answer to these propositions leaves little to be said by the Department.

The rights of citizens of the United States in China are well defined by Treaty. So long as they attend peaceably to their affairs they are to be placed on a common footing of amity and good-will with subjects of China, and are to receive and enjoy for themselves, and everything appertaining to them, protection and defence from all insults and injuries. They have the right to reside at any of the ports open to foreign commerce, to rent houses and places of business, or to build such upon sites which they have the right to hire. They have secured to them the right to build churches and cemeteries, and they may teach or worship in those churches without being harassed, persecuted, interfered with, or molested. These are some of the rights which are expressly and in terms granted to the United States, for their citizens, by the Treaty of 1858. If I rightly apprehend the spirit of the note of the Foreign-office, and of the regulations which accompany it, there is, to state it in the least objectionable form, an apprehension in the Yamen that it may become necessary to curtail some of these rights, in consequence of the alleged conduct of French missionaries. This idea cannot be entertained for one moment by the United States.

The President will see with deep regret any attempt to place a foreign ecclesiastic, as such, on a different footing from other foreigners residing in China. It is a fundamental principle in the United States that all persons, of every sect, faith, or race, are equal before the law. They make no distinction in favour of any ecclesiastical organisation. Prelates, priests, and ministers, can claim equal protection here, and enjoy equal rank in the eye of the civil law. The United States asks no more in China than they confer at home. Should the peace of the Empire be disturbed by efforts from any quarter to induce or compel the Government to confer unusual civil rights on foreign ecclesiastics, you will make it plain that the United States have no sympathy with such a movement, and regard it as outside of the Treaty rights which have been conferred upon the Western nations. Should these demands, however, be complied with, this Government will then consider whether, under the Thirtieth Article of the Treaty of 1858, a similar right will not at once inure to the benefit of all the public officers, merchants, and citizens of the United States.

The President would look with equal regret upon any attempt to withdraw the native Christians from the jurisdiction of the Emperor without his free consent, or to convert the churches founded by the missionaries into asylums. He can well conceive that the enjoyment of such a right might, as intimated by the Yamen, operate for the nominal and apparent conversion of desperadoes and criminals, who need a place of refuge to escape from punishment. On the other hand, he is mindful that the faith of the Empire is pledged to the United States that not only citizens of the United States, but Chinese converts, who peaceably teach and practise the principles of Christianity, shall in no case be interfered with or molested. He feels confident, therefore, and expects that whatever may be the disposition of the turbulent and evil-disposed among the subjects of the Emperor, the native converts to Christianity will enjoy the full measure of protection guaranteed to them by the Treaty of 1858. Except so far as the guarantee of that Treaty extends, the President cannot permit the officials of the United States to participate in any attempt to disturb the natural relations between the Emperor and his Christian subjects. He particularly desires it to be understood that the profession of the Christian faith is not regarded by the officers of the United States as a protection against punishment for crime. Ecclesiastical asylums for criminals have never existed in this country, nor will they be planted elsewhere through its agency.

This Government has studiously and stedfastly observed its Treaty engagements with China. The policy of the President and of his administration was elaborately set forth in the despatch of August 31, 1869, to Mr. Bancroft, a copy of which was enclosed in Mr. Fish's No. 2 to you. The President has no reason to change that policy. On the contrary, the events which have occurred since that despatch was written have the more convinced him of its justice. We stand upon our Treaty rights; we ask no more, we expect no less; if other nations demand more, if they advance pretensions inconsistent with the dignity of China as an independent Power, we are no parties to such acts. Our influence, so far as it may be legitimately and peacefully exerted, will be used to prevent such demands or pretensions, should there be serious reason to apprehend that they will be put forth. We feel that the Government of the Emperor is actuated by friendly feelings towards the United States. We recognise the existence, to a limited extent, of the popular feeling and danger of outbreak which are set forth in the note of the Foreign-office. As far as we can, consistently with the duty which the Government owes to those who have the right to claim its protection, we desire to aid the Government of the Emperor in calming that feeling and in preventing such outbreak.

Should other nations seek our advice, or counsel with us on this subject, we shall not fail to urge these views. But in order to urge them with success we must be in a position to say that the Chinese Government is able and anxious to perform all its international duties, whether founded upon Treaty or on well-settled principles of public law. We could speak with still greater force if we could give an assurance that it is disposed to enlarge its intercourse with the West, and to revise its Treaties in that spirit. The guarantees for peace lie in this direction rather than in the revival of a restrictive policy.

With these general principles stated, it is not necessary to refer in detail to the note of the Foreign-office, or to the rules. Your reply to them has anticipated much that I should have otherwise said. I content myself with saying that as no complaint is made against the American missionaries, so there is no necessity to make such rules for their observance.

A copy of these instructions will be sent to the various Treaty Powers. You will communicate the substance of them to Prince Kung.—I am, &c.

THE COOLIE QUESTION IN PARLIAMENT.

THE debate on this subject—to which we have so often drawn attention as one affecting our interests in more places than those which seem immediately concerned, as well as involving the national honour in every place where the odious traffic is carried on—in the House of Commons, on the 16th, was singularly barren, if not altogether unpromising. Scarcely a member rose without parading, somewhat ostentatiously, his ignorance of, or want of sympathy with, the question. Mr. R. N. FOWLER'S opening speech was a very tame affair, and Mr. HUGHES, as seconder, fell as far short of "Tom Brown" as Mr. FOWLER did of "Ginx's Baby"—the author of which trifle he most superfluously dragged into the discussion. Mr. EASTWICK followed in worse taste than either of his predecessors, inquiring with surpassing audacity, "why "this country should be so Quixotic as to interfere in mat- "ters that did not concern her directly"—though he "did not deny the horrors of the traffic." Mr. MCARTHUR and Sir CHARLES WINGFIELD having followed with short addresses which might have been omitted from the debate without any disadvantage to its interest, Lord ENFIELD made a lengthy speech, which might not have been out of place in ENFIELD'S "Speaker," but which was unquestionably far behind the spirit of the present House of Commons. Sir C. ADDERLEY was more brief, but quite as aimless, in the next speech; and Mr. GILPIN, who never loses an opportunity of speaking on any subject with which he is unacquainted, uttered some of the platitudes which find favour in Northampton. To crown the whole, Mr. Under-Secretary KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN frankly stated that "if he "had expected that Hong Kong would be so much referred "to he would have prepared himself with more exact "information," and proceeded to treat the Senate with some information which we may presume was inexact. And so the debate ended; and, for any practical purpose—putting aside for the time the unquestionably good intentions of the mover and seconder—it had better not have been brought forward at all than conducted to so sorry an end.

THE SINGAPORE JUDGESHIP SCANDAL.

OUR readers can scarcely have forgotten the very peculiar circumstances under which, in the absence of the Chief Justice, the Senior Magistrate, Mr. OWEN, was temporarily appointed Judge of the Supreme Court of Singapore, and as suddenly removed because it was alleged that he had refused to accept the order of Government as to the hearing or non-hearing of a certain suit. Into the merits of this question we have no occasion to re-enter now. We give below an official despatch from the Earl of KIMBERLEY on the subject, which fully corroborates the view we originally took of the circumstances. As our readers will perceive, Lord KIMBERLEY has written to Mr. OWEN'S brother to say that he has "no reason to believe that Mr. OWEN either neglected or evaded his duties." In his official despatch on the case, Lord KIMBERLEY says also:—"I must further express my opinion "that a good deal of not strictly relevant matter has been "introduced into this case by the Colonial Secretary," who seems to have gone afield in search of dirt to throw on an honourable man. If the Colonial-office take no further notice of aspersions which it has pronounced unfounded and irrelevant, yet at the same time it failed to rebut, it must not expect a high standard of character or bearing in the officers of its service. The official despatch to which we have referred was addressed to the Governor of the Straits Settlements, and ran as follows:—

I have received your despatch No. 166 of the 11th July, containing a letter addressed to me by Mr. Charles Owen on the subject of his temporary appointment as judge, and enclosing various other papers with reference to the same. The subsequent death of Mr. Owen, which I have learnt with great regret, renders it unnecessary for me to go so fully into the case thus brought under my notice, as I should otherwise have felt called upon to do. Looking, however, to the possibility of similar appointments being made in the future, I am bound to observe that you had no legal power under the Ordinance No. V. of 1868 to limit the powers of the person appointed to act as temporary judge.

Mr. Owen unquestionably had the full powers of a Judge to deal with all cases that were brought before him; and, subject to any special reasons for adjourning the trial of such cases, or for reserving them for Sir William Hackett, he was bound to deal with them in the ordinary manner so long as he continued to hold the office.

It is to be regretted that there was any misunderstanding between Mr. Owen and Mr. Birch as to the nature of the duties which the temporary Judge would have to perform; but it seems to me that the apparent discrepancy of evidence upon this point may be explained without much difficulty. Mr. Birch probably expected that the duties of Mr. Owen would be confined to dealing with a certain class of work, and intended, though he had no legal right to do so, to make Mr. Owen's appointment to the office conditional upon his confining himself to that work; Mr. Owen, on the other hand, did not understand that any condition of this kind was imposed, though he may have supposed, after Mr. Birch's explanation, in answer to the doubt expressed whether the work would not be too onerous, that the work he would practically be called upon to perform would be of this lighter nature.

I must further express my opinion that a good deal of not strictly relevant matter has been introduced into this case by the Colonial Secretary, but I shall submit to the Board of Trade the papers relating to the inquiries into the loss of the Amazon and Clarendon, and request their opinion as to the proper mode of transmitting the depositions taken in similar inquiries."

REAR-ADMIRAL GARNAULT has been appointed to the command of the French naval division in the waters of China and Japan, vice Rear-Admiral GIZOLME, whose term of service has expired. The new commander will hoist his flag on board the ironclad corvette Belliqueuse, which is being prepared for sea at Toulon, and which will replace the ironclad Alma, now on the China station, but which has been ordered home.

A NEW line of P. and O. steamers between Southampton and Bombay, to be despatched at regular intervals via the Suez Canal, will commence running towards the close of the current year.

TRADE BETWEEN FRANCE AND CHINA.

The annual returns just issued by the French Board of Customs exhibit the trade between France and the Far East in 1871, compared with the preceding year. To form, however, a fair estimate it is also necessary to include the year 1869, which was free from the disturbing elements of war and revolution, from which the last two years have suffered. The importations of silkworms' eggs, which had risen from 4,064 kilos. in 1869 to the enormous quantity of 87,500 in 1870, ceased almost entirely last year, having fallen to 400 kilos. only. On the other hand, the importations from Japan show exactly opposite results. The eggs sent from that country, set down at 88,853 kilos. in 1869, appear to have been discontinued in 1870, as none are registered; if any exportations of eggs were made the quantity must have been so insignificant as not to be worth classification, in which case they would be comprised under the heading "other countries." In 1871, however, when the importations from China had descended to 400 kilos., those from Japan had again increased to 98,600 kilos., or nearly 10,000 more than in 1869. The above figures represent the entire imports, a large portion of which were re-exported to other silk-producing countries, the principal of which is Italy; thus the total importations from all countries amount in 1869 to 107,184 kilos., of which 85,567 only were retained for home consumption; in 1870, when the general imports were almost unvaried, amounting to 106,900 kilos., the quantity taken for home cultivation was only 67,900, or a diminution of 18,000 kilos.; last year, however, with the return of peace the trade revived, and of 122,900 kilos. received in France, 106,900 were employed at home. This trade with the Far East has increased during the last ten years in extraordinary proportions. The largest importations of silkworms' eggs were previously from Turkey, which country then sent from 30,000 to 40,000 kilos. to France every year. The first importation from Japan dates from the year 1864, when 448 kilos. were received, and in the following year the trade had increased to 56,899 kilos. From China 227 kilos. were imported in 1863, 1,027 in 1864, and 19,166 in 1865. At present four-fifths of the total importations are from those two countries.

The importations of cocoons from China amounted to 59,780 kilos. in 1869, 56,100 in 1870, and 75,100 in 1871, all taken for home consumption. No return is given for Japan beyond what may be comprised under the general heading of "other countries." Even from China the trade had until the last seven or eight years been of a very intermittent nature. Thus in 1858 the value of the imports of cocoons had amounted to 324,000f., during the five following years they had almost entirely ceased, the total value during the whole of that period not having amounted to 80,000f. From 1864, however, there was a revival, the trade in that year amounted to 261,100f., in 1865 to 355,235f., and in 1866 to 1,313,224f., which is about the present average.

The trade in raw silk from China was 681,122 kilos. in 1869, 800,500 kilos. in 1870, and 377,500 kilos. in 1871, the proportion taken for home consumption in the three years being respectively 509,898 kilos., 585,600 kilos., and 308,100 kilos. Ten years ago, in 1862, the imports amounted to only 4,728 kilos., but the following year they sprung to 318,543 kilos., and have since steadily increased.

The direct importations of tea were 238,996 kilos. in 1869, 287,070 kilos. in 1870, and 285,043 in 1871; from England in the same years 197,971 kilos., 175,151 kilos., and 163,911 kilos.; and from other countries 81,078 kilos., 41,513 kilos., and 40,781 kilos. Of the total of 518,045 kilos. imported in 1869, 317,760 kilos. were entered for home consumption; of 503,734 kilos. in 1870, 419,063 kilos. were taken for home use; and of 489,735 in 1871, 279,786 kilos.

The consumption of tea in France, although it has doubled within the last twenty years, is still quite insignificant, that beverage being little used, except medicinally or as an article of luxury. The average consumption of the last three years was but 338,000 kilos., or about three ounces per head of the population, while in England it exceeds four pounds per head.

The importations of porcelain ware, which may also be considered as an article of luxury, have also suffered from the war, and the pecuniary embarrassments it has caused. From 1,293,363 kilos. in 1869 they fell to 25,003 kilos. only last year. This diminution of trade has naturally led to an entire cessation of the exportations of silver, which in 1869 had amounted to 570,000 ounces.

MR. MEDHURST ON CHINA.

The effort recently made by Mr. Herbert Laurance to implant among the British public some knowledge of the manners and customs of the Chinese people, has been followed up by Mr. Medhurst, Her Majesty's Consul at Shanghai, who delivered a lecture on Thursday, at Streatham, taking as his text "The Foreigner in Far Cathay," and we are glad to be enabled to state found a numerous and an appreciative audience.

In commencing his address Mr. Medhurst—being, doubtless, fully aware that his auditors knew little or nothing of the subject before them—drew a brief, but at the same time comprehensive, sketch of the first acquaintance of European nations with the "Flowery Land," and of the various circumstances which in the end led to the establishment of our existing relations with the Chinese Empire; and he concluded his preliminary remarks by expressing his opinion that the leaders of all the several expeditions which it has been from time to time found necessary to organise in protection of our interests in China have fallen into the same error, namely, of withdrawing the pressure upon the Chinese Government at the moment when complete success had crowned our military operations under the influence of pledges which, the pressure once removed, were no longer respected. The bases of the mistake consisted in placing the Chinese Government on an equality with the more civilised Western nations, and in believing that it would hold sacred promises made under the influence of a successful foreign invasion. The great point which should have been insisted on was personal access to the Emperor, and this, he believed, would yet have to be achieved at the cost of further bloodshed.

Passing on to the immediate subject of the lecture, Mr. Medhurst drew a graphic description of life and manners in the Foreign Settlements in China. Taking Shanghai as the "model Settlement," he said that the English merchants there differed but little in their social characteristics from their prototypes at home; and that, as regards municipal arrangements and public and residential buildings, Shanghai could favourably compare with like establishments here. The community might be divided into two sections, the mercantile and the missionary. Alluding to the remarks passed at various periods by the press upon the Opium trade, he characterised that pursuit as a "political necessity," and repudiated the assertion that British merchants had been the only persons concerned in the introduction of the drug. In describing the daily routine of domestic life, he put in a word of praise for the Chinese servant whom he distinguished as being trustworthy, willing, and competent. Glancing at the peculiar dialect termed "pidgin English," he considered that the foreign merchants would greatly benefit by the acquirement of a colloquial knowledge of the Chinese language, which would enable them to communicate personally with the native dealers, and thus tend to the suppression of that bete noir, the Chinese "middleman" or broker. Passing on from the mercantile to the missionary element of the foreign population, he acknowledged our indebtedness to the Roman Catholic missionaries as being the pioneers of the introduction of foreigners into the country. He, however, regretted that the French Government had made the toleration of Christianity a special clause of a treaty. This, he said, had led to the Catholic missionaries meddling in political matters, in endeavouring to sever the allegiance of their converts from their native Government, thus bringing the Christian religion into bad repute, and paving the way for the terrible massacres (such as that at Tientsin) which had shocked the civilised world. The Protestant missionaries, although at times guilty of indiscretions, compared favourably in this respect with their Catholic confreres. The comparative failure of Protestant missionary enterprise was attributable to several causes, among which he would specify the obtrusion of denominational differences, and the erection of pretentious ecclesiastical edifices, which had the effect of exciting the jealousy of the Chinese priesthood. He would add that the more frequent adoption of native costume, and a more persistent mixing in the society of the natives than at present obtained would enable the missionaries to exercise a greater influence than they now possess among those they seek to convert. The lecturer went on to say that the opposition to foreigners displayed by the Mandarins was not based upon religious grounds, but arose from the fear that the introduction of railways, telegraphs, and other modern improvements would, by enlightening the people, weaken their authority and gradually undermine their influence. He protested against any concession of our Treaty Rights, believing that they should rather be extended than lessened in any respect. With regard to the Consular Service—to which as concerning himself personally he alluded as briefly as possible—he considered the British Consuls as a body hardworking, zealous, and efficient in carrying out what were often very difficult duties. They had been accused of being too ready to call for the assistance of the naval force, but he believed that all those who had had personal experience of China would acknowledge that such aid had never been claimed except when absolutely necessary.

Passing from his sketch of foreign life in China, Mr. Medhurst made a few observations upon the Chinese themselves, whom he described as by no means so bad as they had been represented. The stories told of the prevalence of infanticide, although based upon some foundation of fact, had been greatly exaggerated. The crime was in reality contrary to the Chinese character, in which love for children was an universal feature. The generally credited report that the Chinese were, without scarcely an exception, opium smokers must also be received cum grano salis. He acknowledged that the houses specially set apart for the indulgence of the habit referred to were lamentably numerous; still every country possessed some popular vice, and he believed that opium smoking prevails to no greater extent in China than does drunkenness among many nations of Europe. The production of native opium was rapidly extending, but its quality was far inferior to the Indian growth, and, consequently, its effects were less pleasurable. This, he hoped, would in some degree check the vice. Contrary to the generally received opinion, the Chinese were extremely fastidious in their food, and Mr. Medhurst could assure his hearers that neither cats nor dogs were esteemed as luxuries, as had been often stated. He had himself partaken of a soup composed chiefly of the celebrated edible birds'-nests, which was superior to any soup known to English cooks, turtle only excepted. The lecturer went on to describe the manners and customs of the Celestials; their marriage ceremonies and general social etiquette illustrated by anecdotes, and the exhibition of several "curios" collected during his residence in China. He alluded to the singular fact that in a country in which literature had been universally known from time immemorial, no newspaper press existed, and he believed that the introduction of a properly conducted native journal would exercise a most enlightening effect, and conduce in a great degree to raise foreign prestige in the country.

Concluding his lecture with a few remarks upon the present position of affairs in China Mr. Medhurst stated his belief that the presence of foreigners in that country had hitherto exercised no good effect. Missionary labour had produced but barren results, and the Chinese absolutely declined to take advantage of the improvements placed within their reach and offered for their adoption; this was attributable to the general apathy of the Chinese character. An apt illustration of this was afforded by the conduct of Chung How, who during his visit to this country and to France had had the opportunity of inspecting the most wonderful inventions which European civilisation is able to produce, but had not expressed, nor apparently felt, the slightest desire for their introduction into his own country. Notwithstanding this want of appreciation China must eventually make some progress, and this must be brought about by the extension of foreign influence, not suddenly or violently, but gradually. With this expression of opinion Mr. Medhurst brought a most interesting lecture—of which the limits of our space prevent us from giving more than the present brief report—to a close.

THE SUMATRA TREATY.

We received on Sarurday last from the Foreign-office the subjoined communication, giving the official text of the Convention between Her Majesty and the King of the Netherlands for the settlement of their mutual relations in the Island of Sumatra, of which the ratifications were exchanged at the Hague on the 17th inst.:—

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and His Majesty the King of the Netherlands, being desirous to consolidate more and more, in the spirit of the Treaty of the 17th of March, 1824, the friendship between the two countries, and consequently also to remove all occasion of misunderstanding in their mutual relations on the Island of Sumatra, have agreed to conclude a Convention for that purpose, and their Plenipotentiaries have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:—

ARTICLE I.

Her Britannic Majesty desists from all objections against the extension of the Netherland dominion in any part of the Island of Sumatra, and consequently from the reserve in that respect contained in the notes exchanged by the Netherland and British Plenipotentiaries at the conclusion of the Treaty of the 17th of March, 1824.

ARTICLE II.

His Majesty the King of the Netherlands declares that, in the kingdom of Siak Srie Indrapoora and its dependencies, as it is defined in the compact concluded by the Netherland Indian Government with that kingdom on the 1st of February, 1858, the trade of British subjects and the British navigation shall continue to enjoy all the rights and advantages that are or may be granted there to the trade of Netherland subjects and to the Netherland navigation; and, further, that the same assimilation shall be granted to the trade of British subjects and to the British navigation in any other native State of the Island of Sumatra that may hereafter become dependent on the Crown of the Netherlands, provided always that British subjects conform themselves to the laws and regulations of the Netherland Government.

ARTICLE III.

The stipulations of the preceding Article shall not interfere with the distinction established by the Netherland-Indian laws and regulations between individuals of Western and individuals of Eastern extraction, nor with the application of the stipulations of the Convention of the 27th of March, 1851.

ARTICLE IV.

The present Convention shall be ratified as soon as possible, and shall remain without force or effect until it has received, as far as shall be required, the approval of the States General. In witness whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and have affixed thereto the seal of their arms.

THE NEW BILL OF LADING—MEETING OF UNDERWRITERS.

A meeting of underwriters was held at Lloyd's on the 21st inst., to consider the question of the new Bill of Lading for the Eastern Trade as it may affect insurance on goods.

Mr. F. B. B. Natusch, the chairman, read the notice convening the meeting. He explained that the meeting had been occasioned by a circular addressed, by Mr. Macandrew, to merchants and others interested in the Eastern trade, recommending them to insert in the policy of insurance a clause which would cover all the risks taken upon himself by the merchant under the new Eastern Trade Bill of Lading. The clause in this Bill of Lading which he considered objectionable was that which exonerated the shipowner from loss arising through the neglect or default of the pilot, master, or crew. This clause relieved the shipowner of the anxiety he now very properly felt to put in command of his ship a careful captain.

Mr. R. J. Lodge, after expressing the importance he attached to this matter, said that it would be well to keep in view the fact—though no doubt it was but a truism—that the shipowner and the shipper had an undoubted right to come to any agreement whatsoever, and it would be impertinent on the part of the underwriter to offer any observation on it, supposing it were simply an agreement between the shipowner and the shipper. But when this had been done, as he was almost afraid that this had been done, relying in some sort on the acquiescence of the underwriter, the underwriter could no longer remain silent, and it became their duty to face the thing in all its bearings. He thought that in coming to this agreement both parties had all along had an eye on the underwriter as the most convenient person to take upon himself these risks, which belonged legally to the shipowner. It was for the underwriter to say whether this should be done. He thought that a merchant running his own risk would not have made such an agreement; but the fact of the insurance by the merchant had no necessary connection with the shipowner, who was not entitled to any benefit from that insurance of the merchant. He thought they had already been paying for some time past liabilities properly attaching to the shipowner, and the interests of shipowners, he thought, would have been to leave the underwriters alone. There were owners who took a pride in the way in which their ships were navigated, and the state in which the goods were delivered, and if this alteration were made these great shipowners would be degraded down to the lowest level. He thought the proposed alteration would be fraught with mischief and trouble to them all.

Mr. Mackintosh moved, "That this meeting, having considered the Eastern Trade Bill of Lading, and a proposal from a committee of merchant shippers to attach it to, or to import certain of its conditions into the marine policy of insurance, hereby nominates the following gentlemen a committee to consider this proposal, and to ascertain, as far as may be, its precise bearing on the position of the underwriter, and, if need be, to take the opinion of counsel thereon, and to report thereon generally to a further meeting of underwriters, to be summoned by them for that purpose." This was seconded by Mr. Danson.

The resolution was then put and carried, and the following gentlemen were appointed on the committee:—Messrs. Tozer, Leathley, Mackintosh, Danson, and Natusch.

THE PRESS ON THE COOLIE QUESTION.

The Times says that any one who will be at the pains of searching out such misdeeds as these, and forcing them on the attention of civilised Governments, performs as great a service to humanity as can fall to the lot of a private person in our day. The attention of the public has been called to this subject by the murder of Bishop Patteson. It has been shown that in the reign of Queen Victoria, forty years after slavery has been abolished throughout the Empire, it is possible for the simple islanders of the Pacific to be drugged, kidnapped, and carried off by British subjects in British vessels for service in a British Colony. "Emigration," "apprenticeship," "hiring for a term of years," and other fine names may be given to the process by which the rich fields of Queensland were to be supplied with labour; but no one now doubts that the thing was a slave trade, and nothing else. What is called the Chinese Coolie Traffic is beset by malpractices of the same nature, which, if suffered to continue, may produce evils of far greater magnitude. One of the most extraordinary phenomena of the present age is the entrance of the Chinese people into the labour market of the world. Such a movement as this is worth encouraging and protecting merely as a matter of policy, and putting humanity out of the question. But nothing is more certain than that a traffic in the transport and the hiring out of labourers in a distant country is apt to induce horrible abuses unless it be strictly watched. Whether in Peru or Cuba, the condition of the immigrants differs in no respect from that of slaves. "Every year thousands of Chinese are kidnapped or induced under false pretences to leave their country, many of them die on the voyage, others destroy themselves, while the scuttling and burning of the vessels in which they are conveyed show that they are not willing emigrants." These are the circumstances under which an appeal is made to the British Government and the House of Commons. The Coolie Slave Trade, as it may truly be called, is carried on at certain known points of the Chinese coast. The Portuguese at Macao appear to be among the chief offenders. Lord Enfield assures us that Her Majesty's Government have several times remonstrated at Lisbon, but to no purpose. If it be so, we cannot but think the remonstrance must have been not very zealous and not very impassioned.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the "reply" of the two Under-Secretaries (sic), each for his own department, the Foreign and the Colonial, afforded an example, only too common in these days, of a Government under representative institutions admitting the existence of a crying evil as well as a scandal, and yet putting off all responsibility for inaction. Mr. Eastwick, in the true spirit of the non-intervention policy, asked why this country was to be so Quixotic as to interfere in matters that did not directly concern her? This is to descend rather low in the scale of motives for a justification of indifference to the perpetration of a great wrong. But under the existing rule the supply to the labour market is checked. Give a Chinaman a fair prospect of saving money and returning within some definite and reasonable period to his own land, and he will go to the ends of the world of his own free will. The problem to be solved is doubtless not without its difficulties—real and practical difficulties—but they are so far from insurmountable that a short time would suffice, if not to apply a radical remedy to all the abuses of the existing system, at any rate to diminish the evil greatly, and prepare the way for a speedy termination of anything approaching to a mere slave traffic. The first step would seem clearly to be the prohibition by law of all shipment of coolies under contract from the Chinese coasts, including Macao, in British ships. The next step would be to devise a system of emigration which might afford a more sufficient safeguard against the employment of deception or force in the shipment of coolies willing to seek more distant labour-markets.

The Daily News, after a rambling reference to Goldsmith's "Citizen of the World," appears to agree with Mr. Hughes when he urged that the system of licensing, and deriving a revenue from the infamous gaming-houses, makes us accomplices in the perpetration of all evils which arise from their existence. Some things, of course, this country and the United States can do by virtue of their own authority to stop this odious traffic; but there is a great deal which can only be accomplished by remonstrance and moral pressure. One good result which came directly from the debate was that it elicited a strong declaration of opinion, not merely from Mr. Hughes and Mr. Gilpin, but likewise from the representatives of the Colonial-office, against gambling-house licensing in Hong Kong.

Monetary and Commercial.

The tenders for £600,000 in bills on India were received on the 21st inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, £415,000; to Bombay, £185,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 58 per cent., and on Bombay at that price in full. These results exhibit a diminution in the demand for the means of remittance to the East.

The report of the Indo-European Telegraph Company for 1871 has been issued. The receipts during the year were £49,030 13s. 1d., against £25,268 1s. 3d. in 1870, and the expenditure was £43,746 17s. 7d. The company have secured from the German Government a prolongation of their concession for ten years, and negotiations are in progress with the other Governments for similar privileges. A disputed point with the Post-office relative to a sum of £12,000 has been submitted to arbitration.

The report of the Anglo-Italian Bank, announces that, owing to the old losses at Naples having exceeded by £40,000 the sum anticipated, no dividend can be recommended. The directors of the Commercial Union Assurance Company recommend a dividend of £10 per cent., free of income tax—making with an interim dividend paid last September, £12½ per cent. for the year. The report of the British Land Company ( ) recommends a dividend of 4 per cent.

Bar Silver has decidedly lessened in value, a very large quantity having been sent out during the past week, and the exchanges from India on London showing a decline. The price may be now quoted as 60½d. per oz. Mexican Dollars remain without alteration in value, the arrivals being unimportant; the demand for the New Coinage is, however, not very active.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The market has continued in a satisfactory position, though easier rates have ruled for Tayshan leaf and Congou below the value of 1s. per lb., supplies being in excess of the requirements. The demand has been chiefly for useful to medium Teas of China growth, and large transactions have also taken place in Indian leaf, supplies of which have again been very heavy, and sales have been advertised almost daily. The export trade has been quiet. During the past few days the market has been quiet, transactions being on a more limited scale than for some time past; prices, however, show little if any alteration, importers holding their Teas with great firmness. The deliveries for the week have amounted to 2,882,281 lbs., against 2,808,518 lbs. last year.

Black: Red leaf, of siftings and broken, there has been a pause in demand; good flavoury and Kaisow kinds are ½d. per lb. lower; for medium to fine Kaisow there has been no inquiry. Pakling: Few sales, supplies being limited. Tayshan leaf: Large arrivals, per sailing vessel, of medium to fine; per steamer, of good common to fair, the latter have sold at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 2½d., medium, strong malty kinds at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d., fine at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d., and finest at 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb. Dealers must be well in stock, as arrivals past six weeks have been exceedingly large, and importers have been free sellers. Quotations are ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower all round, except for finest. Black leaf: Ordinary to good common Shantam district, ex Ottercaps, has sold at 9d. to 11½d. per lb., or 1d. per lb. decline on sales a fortnight ago; fair to good at 1s. to 1s. 2d. has rather favoured buyers; medium quality; several chops have sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; in good medium to fine at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. transactions have been few; finest, very little done. Souchong: No change. Oolong: Medium to fine, yellow leaf kind closes 1d. per lb. lower; Formosa sort as before. Scented Teas: Canton Orange Pekoe, supplies have come on in good quantity, and owing to an improved demand, advanced rates have been paid; good to medium 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d., fine 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d., finest 1s. 10d. to 2s. per lb. Caper, also, shows improvement, more particularly finest, which has sold at 1s. 10d. to 2s. per lb. Foochow Scented Orange, medium well scented 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d.; fine and finest in no request. Green: Small lots of Moyune have been received, and very high rates paid for finest qualities, say 3s. 6d. to 4s. for No. 1 Gunpowder, 2s. 9d. to 3s. 1d. for No. 1 Young Hyson, and 2s. 4d. to 2s. 6d. No. 1 Imperial. Ping Suey kinds, no change. Japan leaf, no improvement; small lots of common quality, two or three years old, sold at public sale at 5d. per lb.

The public sales of the 16th inst. comprised 2,616 packages, and all sold without reserve; those of the 20th inst., 16,541 packages, of which 11,827 were sold without reserve.

SILK.

The public sales were concluded on the 22nd; there was a full attendance of the trade, but as usual the business done in the sale-room has been chiefly limited to a few parcels of various Silks, either taxed at easy rates or advertised for unreserved sale. Prices show firmness generally, but there has not been much business doing during the week.

The current quotations are—Tsatlee, 23s. 1d. to 31s.; Taysaam, 13s. 10d. to 26s.; Canton, 15s. to 22s. 6d.; Japans, 15s. to 29s. The deliveries from 1st to 22nd inst. were—China 1,624 bales, Canton 653 bales, Japans 529 bales.

COFFEE.

Notwithstanding that the Dutch sale has passed with a favourable result, the market here is dull, and the public sales have gone off heavily at a slight reduction in the rates current for last mail. Plantation Ceylon has, however, maintained a firmer tone than other kinds. The latest prices paid for Ceylon have been, Plantation: triage and ordinary 66s. to 72s. 6d., small 74s. to 76s. 6d., low middling 77s. to 78s. middling 78s. to 82s. 6d., bold 85s. to 87s., pea-berry 87s. to 89s. Native: good bold 72s., fine 73s., pea-berry 72s. 6d. Privately 1,200 bags Native have realised 70s. 6d. to 71s., fine bold 72s. 6d. to 73s. The only other sale of East India has been 275 bags Singapore pale Bonthyne sort, at 70s., two lots 70s. 6d.

The deliveries for last week show a considerable falling off compared to the several preceding weeks, both as regards those for home use and for export, and were 330 tons less than in the corresponding week last year; and the landings being 200 tons larger, the deficiency in the stock is reduced to 5,300 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 160,707 cwt., against 184,011 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1871; Native, 45,512 cwt., against 22,001 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the seven weeks ended Feb. 17, 1872, was, of Ceylon, 3,366 tons, against 2,370 tons during the corresponding period of 1871; of all descriptions, 6,536 tons, against 4,982 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 1,160 tons, against 1,405 tons; of all descriptions, 2,329 tons, against 2,667 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 2,241 tons, against 1,404 tons; of all descriptions, 6,199 tons, against 3,649 tons. The stock on Feb. 17 was, of Ceylon, 9,096 tons, against 13,166 tons; of all descriptions, 17,932 tons, gainst 23,214 tons.

The first periodical auction of the Dutch Trading Company this year was held on the 21st inst. at Amsterdam, when 75,200 bags Java, &c., were offered. The sales went off with good spirit at 1c. to 1½c. above the valuations, which were rather below the previous prices; good ordinary Java sold at 44½c. against 42c. in the November sale.

SUGAR.

Notwithstanding that prices continue to decline, the rates for unclayed Manila being 1s. lower than those quoted for last mail, there is still an almost entire absence of demand, and the offers at the public sales have gone off wholly without competition. Prices show a reduction from the late highest point of 4s. per cwt. The only sale during the week has been 8,860 bags unclayed Zebu Manila, at 22s. 9d. to 23s. per cwt.

The landings last week consisted chiefly of Java, Manila, and Mauritius, and were slightly in excess of those in the previous year; the deliveries showed a further reduction, being as much as 1,100 tons below those in 1871, and the deficiency in the stock was therefore diminished to 15,600 tons. The quantity of Sugar landed in the seven weeks ended Feb. 17, 1872, was, of Penang, 373 tons, against 11 tons in the corresponding period of 1871; of Manila, Java, and China, 4,849 tons, against 1,567 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 383 tons, against 595 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 3,702 tons, against 3,744 tons. The quantity exported was, of Manila, Java, and China, 277 tons, against 490 tons. The stock on Feb. 17 was, of Penang, 447 tons, against 2,364 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 12,938 tons, against 25,127 tons.

COIR GOODS.—Steady, without alteration in prices.

Afloat 100 tons near at hand 22s. 6d., and 650 tons, December to March shipment, at 21s. 6d. to 20s. 6d. The stock is much reduced.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—Market quiet, but about 250 tons reported sold privately at 3s. per lb. for good middling genuine. At auction, of 1,868 packages and 11 tons offered, barely half sold; fair to good genuine at 2s. 6d. to 3s.; middling 2s. to 2s. 4d.; reboiled 1s. 6d. to 1s. 6½d.; White, part weak 1s. 2d. to 1s. 7¾d.

HIDES.—At the public sales on the 22nd the supply of East India Kips was very heavy, but with a continued good demand both for home consumption and export the principal portion was disposed of without material alteration in prices, although better qualities sold in some instances at a decline of ¼d. to ½d. per lb. Of Buffalo the quantity offered was also large, but with a fair demand abour former rates were realised. Ox and Cow: Of 10,572 dry Penang offered 9,500 sold, first light, 5⅞ to 6⅝ lb., at 11d. to 11½d., one lot 10¾d.; heavy, 9 to 9½ lb., at 9¾d. to 10¼d.; extra heavy, 13½ to 14⅜ lb. at 10d. to 10½d.; thirds, 7d. to 7¾d. Buffalo: Of 5,406 Penang and Singapore offered 3,150 sold, heavy, 28½ to 36¾ lb. at 5½d. to 5¾d.; seconds, 5d. to 5⅜d.; light, 13⅜ to 17½ lb., at 6¼d. to 7d., one lot, 10¾ lb., at 9d.; 1,635 indirect Java were all withdrawn.

INDIA-RUBBER.—At public sale 36 packages Singapore and Penang, and 18 packages Borneo were retired; privately 50 tons Borneo sold at 1s. 9¾d. up to 1s. 10½d.

JAPAN WAX.—A further slight advance is to be reported; of 323 boxes at auction, about one-half sold at 90s. to 91s. 6d. per cwt. for good hard saucers.

MUSK, with continued scarcity, has advanced considerably, and at auction the bulk of 53 caddies was sold, good to fine even well shaped pods 38s. 6d. to 43s.; rough and bally good 19s. to 20s.; ordinary old 15s. to 17s. per oz.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—FEB. 10.

TEA.

There has been an improved demand for Green, but owing to the extreme views of holders transactions have been rather limited. Blacks remain quiet but steady at former rates. The inquiry for Japan is moderate, and prices are irregular. The import of Tea from China and Japan to the United States from June 1 to Dec. 6 amounted to 39,840,000 lbs., about one-half of which came via San Francisco. The exports during the same time in 1870 were 29,115,000 lbs.

SILK.

The imports during the past season continue to show an increased supply, and the deliveries have been in proportion larger than for previous years. The stock remaining unsold is relatively small at this date. Prices are firmer, and have ruled for some time below the quotations in China ports, and late advices from Canton report an advance, owing to small supplies to come forward. Fine Silks are quite scarce. With the present prospect of a good spring trade, and a semi-monthly steamer from China, via San Francisco, a larger business is expected. Total imports received from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1871, 9,973 packages; same time 1870, 5,552.

COFFEE.—The market for all kinds is dull, with a declining tendency. The sales of the fortnight include 500 bags Government Java at 23¼c., and 5,919 piculs Java, per Jan van Brakel, on private terms.

CORDAGE.—Manila is steady, with a fair demand at previous rates.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 16c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $3; Cassia, $2.25 gold (duty paid).

GUNNY CLOTH.—Market quiet at 16c. to 17c. for Borneo.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues very dull, and the fortnight has passed without any transactions being effected. The nominal quotation is 13c. to 13¼c. gold.

SUGAR.—There has been a steady business doing, but the demand has chiefly centered in new crop Cuba Muscovado, which has begun to come forward. The sales of East India have been 18,071 bags Manila ex Samuel G. Glover at 8⅛c., and 17,540 bags ex City of Agra, at 8⅛c.

SPICES.—The market has been more active for invoices than for many weeks past, and the increased business is accompanied with a feeling of greater buoyancy. Considerable transactions have taken place in Pepper, the purchases embracing 5,000 to 6,000 piculs, to arrive here, on private terms; prices are firm, but no higher. Cloves have been active and excited, and, with a very large business, prices have rapidly advanced, say 1½c. per lb., closing strong at 14c. gold; the sales are four cargoes, to arrive, the exact quantity that the vessels will bring as yet unknown, and 5,000 to 6,000 bales on the spot, for export, on terms not made public. In Nutmegs there has also been considerable business, both on the spot and to arrive, but the particulars have not transpired; quotations, however, are unchanged, and we quote Penang cases as before, 99c. to 100c. Mace, with an advance of $7 to $8 per picul in the primary markets, is held firmer, though prices here are not notably higher. Cassia, with a still accumulating stock, is unsettled and nominal. There is a steady trade demand, and we notice sales from store of Mace at $1.35 to $1.42½, according to quality; Nutmegs, 99c. to 100c.; a few casks, 97½c.; China Cassia, 30c. to 31c.; Batavia, 20c. to 32c., a wide range, owing to the quality of this article differing greatly; Pepper, 17c. to 17½c. for Sumatra, and 18c. to 18½c. for Singapore; White Pepper, 37½c.; Cloves, commencing at 12½c., and closing at 14c., all gold. Cassia Vera is quiet at 25c. currency.

TIN.—The market is again at a standstill, and prices are in consequence nominal; Straits is quoted 36½c.; Banca, 41c. gold.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 19th January; the French mail, with London advices to Nov. 24, arrived out Jan. 12. We take the following summary of news from the North China Herald:—

The prospectus has been published of the new Bank which has been so much talked of lately. It is to be called "The Bank of China." The proposed capital is Tls. 2,500,000, in 25,000 shares of Tls. 100 each. The design is that the bank shall be principally directed in Shanghai. The provisional committee are Messrs. O. C. Behn, F. Hormusjee, A. A. Hayes, C. J. King, R. W. Little, J. A. Maitland and D. Reid.

The Asiatic Society has held its opening meeting in the new rooms in Yuen-ming-yuen-road, when a large number of members and the public were present. After a few remarks from the President, Judge Goodwin, relative to the auspicious circumstances under which they were met, and from Mr. F. B. Forbes regarding the manner in which the funds for the building had been provided and other financial detail, officers and council were elected. (Mr. Goodwin President, Messrs. Forbes and Wylie Vice-Presidents). The President then introduced Mr. Thomson, F.R.G.S., who read a paper on the antiquities of Cambodia, afterwards illustrating it by a series of photographic views enlarged by the lime-light process. On the invitation of the President a number of those present visited the upper room—a spacious and cheerful library and museum, where the Wylie Library was seen to advantage in new bookcases, and a number of specimens in natural history, chiefly entomological, were displayed. Among the specimens was a vulture, recently shot by the keeper of the Shaweishan lighthouse, and preserved by Messrs. Pryer and G. Barton.

We understand that a requisition addressed to the Commissioner of Customs, urging him to represent to the proper authorities the importance of immediate action being taken with a view to deepen the channel over the Woosung Bar, is being circulated, and has been already very numerously signed.

A somewhat curious case came up at the Mixed Court lately, before Chen and Mr. Haas, Acting American Assessor, when a foreigner named Delcour was prosecuted at the instance of a Chinaman. The plaintiff, a photographer, had, at defendant's order, taken a number of views of "Au Chalet," which were handed to an agent for the sale of the property, the latter getting a commission covering disbursements incidental to the sale should it be disposed of, but receiving nothing if it were not. No sale was effected, the agent left Shanghai, and the photographer applied to defendant in this action for payment of his claim of $13. Defendant refused to pay, and plaintiff therefore applied for a summons at the French Consular Court, when he was informed that the defendant was not registered as a French subject, and that the Court had no jurisdiction. He was advised to try the American Consulate, and on doing so received a similar reply

The British authorities referred him to the Mixed Court where, after urging his case for two months, a summons was granted him, of which defendant, however, when it was served, took no notice. Plaintiff was again thrown back on the Mixed Court, which subsequently issued a warrant for defendant's arrest. As defendant was living on the French Concession, the warrant was, as is usual even in the case of Chinese, viséd by the French Consul-General, and duly put in force. Defendant was at once liberated on engaging to appear at the Mixed Court, which he did, and paid the amount under protest that he was a French subject.

The Volunteer Parade, which we lately spoke of as pending, is definitely fixed for the 19th January. It is several months now since we have had a general parade, and a march out will come back with all the force of novelty, for a march out is, we believe, to be the programme, with the usual refreshment at the end of the fight. These "field" days were so much enjoyed last year that there is sure to be a good muster of all who have shared in them, as well as of new comers who have heard the tradition.

We are glad to learn that while almost every other kind of amusement has its zealous votaries in Shanghai the noble game of chess is not neglected. A meeting for the arrangement of a chess tournament has been held at the Library, and was well attended. It was decided that a tournament should be held in the Library, commencing on the 22nd. Regulations for the tournament were made, the entrance fee fixed at $2, and a committee elected, consisting of Messrs. Rennie, Curjel, E. George, L. J. Mullins, and Drs. Barton and Gottburg. It was resolved that any surplus funds there might be should go to the formation of a chess club, in favour of the establishment of which there was a very strong feeling.

The annual meeting of the Committee of the Sailors' Home has been held. The report and accounts show a very satisfactory improvement in the condition and working of the Home under its new constitution.

The steamer Patroclus has brought a large and expensive plant of machinery for the Keangnan Arsenal, to be used in the manufacture of Remington and other breech-loading cartridges. We hear that a gentleman will come out by next mail, from the Laboratory department, Woolwich Arsenal, to superintend the working of the machinery.

For some months past rumours have been more or less prevalent that the Chinese Government intended to open one or more new ports, of which Ichang on the Yangtsze was to be one. We by no means feel certain of the truth of the report, but it seems to have come from quarters sufficiently well-informed to have some blush of probability about it; the more especially as the audience question is sooner or later likely to take a more definite form than it at present presents. While there is no doubt that the Chinese Government has not been so blind as not to see the advantages both it and the people under its charge have gained from the opening of the present ports, it would yet be too much to expect from that body to grant freely, and without a quid pro quo, what they—for all that they themselves were the greater and most immediate gainers—would still pretend to look upon as a concession. In other words, we look upon the report as a feeler in order to find out what privilege is already granted.

The News-Letter reports another little "complication" at Kiukiang, about the treaty rights of missionaries. It appears that some months ago an American and an English missionary visited Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi province. They were denied admittance into the city, and forced to leave the place by the mandarins. A week or two ago the English missionary returned and anchored in the water-course outside the walls. His boat was besieged by deputations of mandarins, trying by every device to get him to leave. But as he sturdily stood on his treaty right to preach and sell books, they at last incited the soldiers, whom they had placed professedly as a guard over the boat, to assail it with stones and bricks; under which, and the fear of worse violence, the missionary was forced to retire. A communication from the Taotai or Chi-fu of Nanchang had reached Kiukiang almost as soon as the missionary, representing that the people had risen upon the missionary, and would have done him grievous harm, had not the mandarins restrained them, and got the foreigner away in safety!

A Peking correspondent writes:—"This is really not so bad a place in winter as you Shanghai people imagine. It is cold, certainly, when we get a strong north wind; but we don't have these often. We are a little isolated too, and not quite so busy and practical as you are in Shanghai; but there is plenty of society; and for amusements we have billiards, bowls, riding, and skating. The atmosphere is beautifully clear and dry. We have only had one fall of snow, three or four inches deep; and that has entirely disappeared, except in shady corners, where it will probably lie till April. There is no particular news. Why don't your Chamber of Commerce insist on having an official declaration in the transit-due matter? If this is let slip back again into the old groove, it will be all the Ministers' fault—and the merchants' for not agitating it."

The Peking Gazette contains a memorial from the Governor of Hunan, reporting destructive floods in his province. Judging from the map, the area which he reports inundated must be larger even than that covered by the floods in Chihli. And the distress, notwithstanding that the harvest had already been gathered, must be very great.

HONG KONG.

Advices by this mail extend to the 25th January; the London (French) mail of December 8 arrived out January 19. The following summary of news is from the China Mail:—

The licensed gambling-houses were finally closed on the 20th January. The effect of the system is so well known after an experiment of nearly four years that it is quite superfluous to say what the opinions of the majority of the community are on the matter. Everyone knows that it has worked mischief, bringing to ruin many a man who would otherwise have remained uncontaminated had not the temptation of open gambling, carried on under the special sanction and to the increase of revenue of the Government, been glaringly set before his eyes. This has been pointed out to the authorities so many times that we shall only briefly note what the licensees think of the coming withdrawal of their license. Hitherto they have derived great profits from this source, and they cannot but view the withdrawal in an unfavourable light, as their goose that lays the golden egg will be killed; they regret it the more as they know perfectly well that for the future, unlike all previous attempts, secret gambling will be visited with unflinching severity, and that they will not be able to carry on their game even on the sly with perfect impunity. They also knew that Sir Richard, with his usual energy, will endeavour to put an end to police-connivance, so that they have not the slightest chance of resuming their nefarious business. At any rate, even if they did, they would not be able to realise an out-turn sufficiently remunerative to make it worth their while to incur the risk of the severe penalty of the law, as the stakes at these secret tables are invariably smaller than those at the licensed ones. This conclusion may appear strange, but certainly there is plausibility in the argument given in support of it, and it is this: when people play at unlicensed houses they are in constant fear of the police, and not unfrequently it is the trick of the keeper of the table, when he is about to lose a large amount, to cause an alarm of "the police are coming" to be given, and in the scramble and confusion he will sweep everything into his drawer, or, at any rate, will evade paying the winnings. Thus it has been urged that secret gambling can never assume the magnitude of licensed gambling, and with stringent laws it may be reduced to a minimum, if not entirely eradicated. We are sure his Excellency will now turn his energy in a direction opposite to his old policy for the suppression of gambling, and, let us hope, with good results.

Twelve men charged with conspiracy to make an armed attack on certain piece-goods shops at Showkewan have been brought up before the Acting Chief Justice, when the Acting Attorney-General said that he had decided, under the circumstances of the case, to enter a nolle prosequi against the prisoners, as he was sure a verdict could not be obtained against them. The prisoners were then removed to answer a minor charge at the Magistracy. It appeared that the informer contradicted himself in so many important points that it rendered his evidence of no use, and the Acting Attorney-General therefore came to the determination of not proceeding with the case unless fresh evidence was obtained. Nothing can illustrate more clearly the inapplicability of English law to the governance of the Chinese than this trial. The desperate character of the intended attack was shown by the large quantity of arms and other offensive weapons found on board the junk in which the plot was concocted, and had the plan not been frustrated, we might fairly have expected a repetition of the tragedy that occurred in the same village some two years ago, in which Sergeant Mahoney met his death and two Sikh constables were severely wounded. That the law should be powerless against a set of vagabonds who were caught "red-hot" in the act of accomplishing their atrocious design is much to be regretted, seeing that others of the lawless population will be sure to take courage from what has happened to the twelve men. It is evident from the quantity of formidable weapons, offensive as well as housebreaking, with which the prisoners had armed themselves, that they meant to show fight, and to take life if need be, especially when we are told that the surrounding of the police station to prevent the police from acting formed part of the programme. If, in a case of such audacity, and with an object so villainous, the perpetrators could not be indicted on a more serious charge than misdemeanour, our laws are deplorably defective. But what are we to say when the Attorney-General, finding that nothing can be done to them, was obliged to enter a nolle prosequi against them? Surely the time is come that our laws should be modified to meet the special wants of the Colony. We are averse to arbitrary legislation, but what can be done when people of this depredatory stamp are allowed to escape through the meshes with which our law is surrounded? Had this occurred in China, the mandarins would undoubtedly make short work of the criminals, in fact the mere possession of the arms was in itself sufficient to convict the men.

At present, while China is in its semi-chrysalis state, we must be prepared for very glaring blunders, or hugely impertinent and clumsy attempts to damage the local trade of Hong Kong. The Customs cordon and alleged right of search were what may be termed to be, and fortunately were treated as, very "cheeky" proceedings; and the little scenes at Macao even, though probably more defensible, were not devoid of a rising arrogance, apparently caused by a dim notion of power acquired through the means of Western appliances. vertiser. It appears to be an account ... has been taken by the Haikwan at Canton, to ensure the Adjunks foreign-laden proceed to Canton or Pakhoi, in the first instance, whatever may be their port of destination. If the Chamber of Commerce ever had presented to it a subject of immense importance, bearing on the trade of the port, that is assuredly the proposition thus coolly made by the Haikwan. It is fortunate that Sir R. G. MacDonnell is now amongst us, because one of the best and most popular traits of his Excellency's administration is the true English jealousy with which he has always guarded the port and its tradal interests from outside enemies. We should not be at all surprised to hear that Sir Richard had snuffed out such a barefaced proposition before the bodies here had time to take any step in the matter.

The case of Remedios v. Reynolds has been decided in the Supreme Court. It appeared that the plaintiff entered the defendant's employ as clerk in June, 1861, but no understanding as to what should be his salary was come to. In October, 1863, Mr. Reynolds left the colony and the plaintiff assumed the management of the firm in Hong Kong, the defendant giving him a power of attorney and a letter in which the plaintiff was allowed to draw salary from the firm at the rate of $1,500 per annum to begin with. The plaintiff continued charging $1,500 per annum up to December 31, 1865, but in the month following to July, 1867, he drew a salary at the rate of $320 a month. The plaintiff had rendered the accounts to the defendant, who did not take objection to the different items charged for salary, and now he complained of overcharge to the extent of $8,925. This was the subject of this action. The acting Chief Justice gave judgment in favour of defendant.

Another case brought before the Court had reference to the bankruptcy of Lyall, Still, and Co., being a motion by Henderson and others to recover from the official assignees fifty trusses of long ells, ex steamer Poonah, or the proceeds thereof, viz. $10,000; and a motion by Liebert and another to recover ten bales of jeans, or the proceeds thereof, viz., $2,311.27. His Lordship decreed in favour of the petitioners; the costs of this proceeding to be borne by the general estate.

The first concert of the season given by the Choral Society on the 22nd Jan. was in every way a great success, whether judged by the well-selected music chosen to form the programme, or by the admirable manner in which it was performed.

REPLY TO THE PUBLIC MEMORIAL.

The following is the reply vouchsafed by the Home Government to the memorial passed at the indignation meeting held on Sept. 25th of last year. It speaks for itself:—

Colonial Secretary's Office, 22nd Jan., 1872.—Gentlemen: With reference to the memorial addressed to the Secretary of State requesting appointment of a Commission of Inquiry into the Police, I am directed by the Governor to acquaint you, for the information of the gentlemen who signed the document, that by the last mail his Excellency received a despatch of the 1st Dec. from the Right Hon. the Earl of Kimberley, who desires his Excellency to inform the memorialists that the condition of the police force has for a considerable time been a source of anxiety to his Lordship, and that he had had frequent communication with the Governor on the subject. His Lordship has further instructed his Excellency in connection with the suppression of the gambling-houses to strengthen the police force, and to spend on it a considerable portion of the special fund. His lordship had been enabled to secure in England a certain number of well-trained police of good character, young and physically strong, and trusts to be able to obtain more men of the same stamp, and confidently hopes that the Governor's experience will enable him to establish an improved condition of affairs. His Lordship fears, however, that the complete reorganisation of the police system, to which the memorialists point, and which may, perhaps prove to be necessary, cannot well be undertaken by Sir Richard MacDonnell, as the termination of his tenure of office is so near at hand. He is, however, authorised to inform the petitioners that his successor will, before proceeding to the colony, be made fully acquainted with the condition of affairs and with the views of the memorialists, and it will be his first duty to inquire thoroughly into the matter.

After giving the memorial careful consideration his Lordship is of opinion that the appointment at the present moment of the proposed Commission would not be opportune, and that it would be better for the Governor's successor to enter on so important a question without finding any points prejudged, or any recommendations formally placed on record. He will have the advantage of hearing the opinions of the Legislative Council and consulting them freely on all matters of principle or detail connected with the police force. But, although for these reasons Lord Kimberley has not thought it expedient to advise Her Majesty to comply with the prayer of the memorialists, his Lordship feels it unnecessary to commend the subject to the Governor's most serious attention, and requests him to take whatever steps he may deem practicable for effecting an immediate improvement in the efficiency of the force.

I am further directed to acquaint you that previous to the receipt of the despatch above referred to his Excellency had received a telegram from the Earl of Kimberley approving of the Commission which he had decided on appointing.—I have the ... to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant, J. GAR... Secretary.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present mail brings advices to the 1st February; there had been no mail arrival since that of the French mail of Dec. 22; but the P. and O. mail of Dec. 29 was due on the 2nd Feb. The following is from the Straits Times:—

There has been little of public interest occurring during the fortnight. The criminal session is dragging slowly along, and there are a number of cases yet to be tried. The case of Captain Sachsze, of the barque Burlington—who was sent down by H.B.M. Consul-General of Siam for trial on a charge of murder—has not yet been before the grand jury, and we hear there are several more bills to be sent in. The case against Moh Choon, the head of the Ghee Hok kongsee, has been fixed for the 5th of Feb., and will, we presume, occupy four or five days. In addition to this, the jury failed to agree in two cases, which will have to be re-tried, so that there is little prospect of the closing of the session under another fortnight.

The want of court accommodation has been severely felt during the present session, and Chief Justice Sidgreaves has passed some severe strictures upon the Government with regard to the matter, calling the attention of the Attorney-General, as the legal adviser of the Government, to the serious inconveniences under which he was obliged to labour. The Attorney-General replied that it would be impossible to get any improvements made until the return of Sir Harry Ord, who is shortly expected, the judge pointedly remarking that he might be in his grave by that time, as his health was suffering from the constant exposure to which he was subjected. He says truly that it is a disgrace to the Settlement. His position as Chief Justice in Court is exposed to such violent draughts from the external air that he has difficulty in preventing his papers from being blown away, and precluding his properly taking notes. Though it is a usual custom for administrators to decline undertaking public works or material alterations on the eve of a governor's return, yet this is no excuse for neglecting really urgent works.

The approach of the Chinese new year has, as usual, been made an excuse for levying a heavy percentage upon coppers and small coin in exchange for dollars—four and five per cent. being charged here, and we hear the exactions in Penang have reached seven per cent. Various theories are given to explain this annual extortion, one of which is that the Chinese are hoarding copper cents to gamble with during their new year, but as there does not appear to be any scarcity of coppers, the true explanation appears to be that the charge is a tax levied by the Chinese shopkeepers, through whose hands most of the coppers pass, to enable them to have more money to spend in their new year celebration. The want of a plentiful supply of a small coin currency in the colony is just now painfully apparent, and it is to be hoped Government will take steps to provide so urgent a need.

Although there has been no serious riot, the turbulent spirit of the Chinese population requires all the vigilance of the police to keep them within bounds. There has for some time past been ill-feeling between the Say Lims—or the Lim family—and a portion of the Ghee Hok kongsee, which during the past fortnight became threatening, there having been one or two street fights. More serious consequences were prevented by the promptness of the police, who were on the alert and quickly arrested the ringleaders; the headmen were then made special constables, and compelled to do active police duty, of which they eventually got tired, and came to a settlement of their differences.

This difficulty was hardly over before another event occurred which gives more serious ground for apprehension. On the 30th Jan. the dead body of a Chinese was found in the sand on the Brass Bassa Canal, where it had evidently been left by the tide; the skull was broken in, and appearances indicated that the man had been murdered. The body was identified as that of a Teo Chew Chinese named Quay Ah Tow, aged about fifty years, who was the head Sin Say er secretary of the Ghi Hin kongsee—a powerful secret society—and who bore a high reputation among his clan, he being chosen as referee in nearly all their disputes, and was greatly respected by all who knew him. Strange to say, among the papers found on his person was one containing an extract from the rules of the society, stating the procedure in case of the murder by one member of another member of the society. The object of his murder could not have been plunder, as his clothing and purse were untouched, and suspicion rests upon persons who were known to have been in his company the previous evening, three of whom have been apprehended. The murder has awakened considerable excitement among his countrymen and his numerous friends, and unless it can be proved against the guilty parties, may be charged by the Teo Chew Chinese upon their enemies the Hokiens, and used as an argument to stir up another general riot.

Cases of robbery by gangs of petty thieves are increasing in number and boldness. Numerous cases of thefts of poultry and clothing continue to be reported, showing that an increase in the number and efficiency of the police is a crying necessity. A few nights since some of these thieves paid a visit to the [illegible] occupied by Mr. H. J. D. Desker, [illegible] nights afterwards the while the occupants [illegible] Desker's premises, and carried off an[illegible] of clothing, &c., being the fourth box of sundries which they have succeeded in stealing within a few days.

A Marine Court of Inquiry into the loss of the British barque Burlington has been held before F. H. Gottlieb, Esq., Magistrate of Police, H. Ellis, Esq., Master Attendant and Marine Magistrate, and J. L. Kirby, Esq., Lloyds' surveyor, but the decision has not yet been given.

The schooner Night Glass, which left this port on the 2nd Dec. for Rangoon, has not since been heard of. A reply to a telegram to Rangoon, and dated the 17th Jan., states that she had not arrived there at that date.

PENANG.

Dates extend to the 3rd February; the P. and O. steamer with the London mail of Dec. 29 arrived out Feb. 1. We take the following from the Penang Argus:—

We have been furnished with the return of our imports and exports for the past year. The return is a very satisfactory one, inasmuch as we have it officially announced that our increase in trade for last year exceeds by several millions of dollars any previous advancement we have had since the transfer. The total under the head of imports from British colonies and foreign countries amounts to sixteen millions, eight hundred and eighty one thousand, and six hundred and thirty nine dollars, being an increase of nearly four millions over the imports for the previous year. The value under the head of Imports from British Colonies has attained the high figure of nine millions, two hundred and sixty-two thousand, and seven hundred and fifty dollars, being an increase over the previous year of a little above two and a quarter millions of dollars. From foreign countries our imports were seven millions, six hundred and eighteen thousand nine hundred and eighty-nine dollars, showing an increase of nearly a million and a half over the imports for the previous year.

The total value of exports to British colonies amounts to nine millions, two hundred and eighteen thousand and nine hundred and twenty dollars, which, when compared with the exports of the year 1870, which were seven millions, six hundred and eighteen thousand and eight hundred and twenty-six dollars, show an increase of more than a million and a half of dollars. Our exports to foreign countries have also increased nearly thirty per cent. over those for 1870. We have for 1871 a total of seven millions, nine hundred and seventy eight thousand and six hundred and forty-five dollars, whereas in the previous year we have only six millions, two hundred and forty-two thousand, and four hundred and one dollars. Our readers will therefore perceive that the total value of our Imports for 1871, which are sixteen millions, eight hundred and eighty-one thousand and six hundred and thirty-nine dollars, exceeds that of the previous year, which were only thirteen millions, two hundred and eighteen thousand and nine hundred and forty-four dollars, by the very respectable sum of three millions, six hundred and sixty-two thousand, and six hundred and ninety-five dollars, being fully twenty-seven per cent. in excess.

We are glad to find that the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce have passed a resolution calling upon the Colonial Government to take steps to provide a fresh supply of copper coinage without delay. We have alluded to this matter before, but the subject is so important that we do not hesitate to reiterate our opinion upon it—namely, that the neglect of the Government has been the cause of the great inconvenience and loss the Penang public are exposed to in the difficulty of getting a fair exchange for a dollar. The discount now has reached a height that is more than a serious inconvenience to the poor, and is far from pleasant to the rich.

On the 22nd January Mr. Siddons was arrested on a charge of having embezzled certain sums of Government money while acting chief clerk of the Magistrate's Court at Butterworth. He was released on bail, and brought up before Captain Ord on the following day. The prosecution, however, had not got their case ready, and the magistrate postponed the hearing to suit their convenience to the 29th; but on that date again, when Mr. Siddons appeared with his sureties, he was informed that a further postponement to the 5th Feb. had been decided upon. The reason for this delay was not given, and we think as no one appeared on behalf of the prosecution the magistrate should have dismissed the case. The charge against Mr. Siddons is of a serious nature and if the prosecution have no case, we ask in common justice that the charge should be at once dismissed.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Hogg, who for a short time held an appointment of Inspector of Police, from which he was removed by order of the Administrator because the appointment had been made by Captain Speedy, has again been taken on, the Administrator having been pleased to reconsider his decision in the case.

It is proposed to locate a portion of the European troops shortly expected in the building now used as Her Majesty's gaol, and eventually to extend the barrack accommodation by occupying the two premises by the [illegible] of an additional wing between the latter and the gaol.

The owner of a house who is known to keep his premises for the purpose of gambling has been summoned by the assistant superintendent of police for "being the keeper of a common gambling house." We hope, if this charge is proved, the magistrate will impose a heavy fine on the offender. It is time some more stringent measures were taken to check this vice. The employment of "honest detectives" would be a step in the right direction.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The transactions in Piece Goods had been on a fair scale for the season of the year, and, owing to the firmness of holders, rates had improved, and closed with an upward feeling for Grey Cottons. An improvement had taken place in Grey Shirtings, the closing quotations being firm and likely to advance; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.70 to 1.74; 8¼ lbs., Tls. 1.84 to 1.94; 9¾ lbs., Tls. 2.40 to 2.60 per piece. White Shirtings: Small sales of best counts, common being still neglected. T-Cloths: Good inquiry at a rise of about 2 to 5 candareens on 6 and 7 lbs.; 6 lbs. common, Tls. 1.15 to 1.20; Mexican, Tls. 1.38 to 1.42; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.38 to 1.45 and Tls. 1.50 to 1.63; 36-inch, Tls. 1.80 to 1.86. Drills: Inquiry favourable, and prices well maintained. Fancy Cottons: Business limited to a few small sales at about former values. Woollens and Worsteds: Rates demanded for Camlets curtailed operations, and the dealers were only purchasing for actual requirements. Low prices continued to be offered for Long Ells with no immediate prospect of recovery. Other descriptions without change.

SHANGHAI.—We last reported a growing disposition on the part of the dealers to operate in Plain Cottons in anticipation of the spring demand. Since then the desire has been somewhat stimulated by telegraphic advices quoting a material improvement in Manchester; but these advices had, at the same time, influenced holders to greater firmness, and the settlements, although large, had in consequence been considerably restricted. Grey Shirtings: At the close there was less excitement apparent, buyers being unwilling to give prices asked, while holders, generally, refused to make any concession. Best common chop 8¼ lbs. held for Tls. 1.94 to 1.95 per piece, dealers offering Tls. 1.91 to 1.92. Dewhurst's Eagles sold to some extent at Tls. 1.96 for immediate clearance, and as high as Tls. 2.00 paid, by a speculator, for delivery before China New Year. 7-lb. continue scarce. Value Tls. 1.70 to 1.76 per piece for common to best qualities. Best heavy Shirtings worth Tls. 2.75 to 2.80, and in good request. White Shirtings: Steadily improving. Ordinary to good 64 reeds, Tls. 2.0.5 to 2.1.0; best Tls. 2.1.5 to 2.1.8 per piece. T-Cloths: Prices improved; M.T. quality quoted Tls. 1.6.1 to 1.6.2 and saleable. Mexicans, as usual at the season, had attracted most attention; but lower counts had likewise been in fair request. Drills: A further advance had taken place; best English 15-lbs worth Tls. 3.1.0 to 3.1.2. Dutch Improved to a similarr extent. American nominal. Jeans: English Tls. 2.32, markets at the close shewing signs of renewed activity. Sheetings: Only one sale of English —950 pieces at Tls. 3.27; and another of American—900 pieces at Tls. 4.10 reported. Fancy Cotton: Prices, with the exception of those of Brocades and Spotted Shirtings, fully maintained. White Spots and White Brocades—inferior—quitted at Tls. 1.80, and Dyed Brocades at Tls. 2.71½ to 2.72½ per piece. Dyed Damasks advanced to Tls. 5.00. Chintzes and Turkey Reds are slightly dearer. Woollens: Market stronger, and beyond recording sales, that is all that can be said of it at present. Metals.—Lead: Good inquiry for long dates; sales reported at Tls. 4.80 to 4.85 for L.B. Iron: Settlements 19,200 bdls, at Tls. 2.75. Market very strong, and holders, as a rule, asking much higher prices than natives were inclined to give. Coals: Market without noticeable alteration; Cardiffs—nothing done; English—sales to arrive at Tls. 10; American—without either sales or inquiry.

HONG KONG.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co. report as follows:—Cotton Yarn: Although the demand for shipment to the northern markets and elsewhere is light, dealers have been supplying themselves freely, and have bought largely of Nos. 16 to 24, as the stocks at Canton are known to be small; prices have consequently improved, and an advance of $2.50 per bale is well supported; Nos. 28 to 32 are saleable to a slight extent at former prices; Nos. 38 to 42 are unchanged in value, but good chops still find buyers. Piece Goods: A good business has been done during the fortnight, and the staple goods generally have improved in price; 7 and 8.4 lbs. Grey Shirtings have been steadily bought, and are now in demand at the advanced quotations given; heavy weights are 5 cents dearer. White Shirtings have commanded considerable attention, and the common descriptions have been taken at a rise of 15 to 20 cents per piece; 64/66 and 68/72 reeds are dearer, and previous values of best sorts are well maintained. Drills have been comparatively neglected, and Dutch and English makes are now obtainable upon easier terms; Americans being out of stock are nominal. Stocks of common 6 lbs. T-Cloths are light, and prices 2½ cents per piece dearer have been paid; 6 lbs. Mexicans are not asked for; common 7 lbs. goods are saleable at quotations, and Mexicans are in more request; 8 lbs. are held for higher figures. Assorted Brocades and Spotted Shirtings find buyers at a rise of 10 cents. Turkey Reds and Chintzes are but little wanted. Woollens: Advices from the home markets have led to speculative enquiries here, and prices for nearly all articles have advanced. Long Ells are readily saleable, and Scarlet kinds are 15 cents. per piece dearer. English Spanish Stripes are wanted at an advance of 3 cents. per yard, though German sorts are unchanged. Blankets are quoted 15 to 25 cents. per pair higher. Lastings and Crapes are steady. Camlets are $1.00 to $1.50 per piece dearer. Metals: Bar Iron has advanced 10 to 15 cents in value, and Hoop and Nail Rod kinds are wanted at last rates. Wire and Steel are firmly held for quotations. Lead is not being asked for, but holders are not anxious sellers. Tin Plates are 50c. per case hearer. Tin has declined $1 per picul. Quicksiver does not command former prices by $3 to 4. Coal: The arrivals comprise only 420 tons of Australian, and the reported sales are 1,594 tons of English at $13.50 per ton "to arrive." Inquiry has further strengthened during the past fortnight, and holders of the present moderate stocks are now firmly demanding maintained and better prices, the position of the market being very strong. Australian is much wanted, English cannot be bought "to arrive" under $14, and Cardiff is held for $15 per ton; Anthracite would command quotations, but there is none in stock, and no supplies are expected. Quotations: Yarn, per bale, $98 to 103; No 16 to 24, $115 to 122.50; No. 28 to 32, $125 to 130; No. 38 to 42, $125 to 137.50. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.22½ to 2.27½; 8.4 lbs., $2.50 to 2.60; 9 to 10 lbs., $2.85 to 3.50. White Shirtings, $2.30 to 3.25; finer qualities, $3.65 to 4.75. Grey T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.65 to 1.67½; 7 lbs., $1.85 to 1.87½; 6 lbs., Mex., $1.70 to 1.75; 7 lbs., $2 to 2.20; 8 to 8.4 lbs., $2.40 to 2.45 per piece. Grey Twills, English, 15 to 15 lbs., $3.85 to 4.05; American, 15 lbs., $4.10 to 4.20; Dutch, 13½ to 14½ lbs., $3.82½ to 3. 87½; Jeans, 8 lbs., $2.90 to 3. Brocades, White, $2.60 to 2·70; Dyed, assorted, $3.65 to 3.95. Damasks, Dyed, assorted, $6 to 6.30. Turkey Red Cambrics, 3 lbs., $2.30 to 2.55. Blankets, asserted, p. lb., 45c. to 51c. Long Ells, per piece, H Scarlet, $8.10 to 8.15; HH, $8.15 to 8.25; H assorted, $7.50 to $7.60; HH, $7.60 to 7.70. Camlets, SSS, assorted, $17.50 to 18; SS, $19.50 to 20; S, $20.50 to 21; Dutch, $23 to 24. Lastings, assorted, $15 to 17. Iron Nail Rod, $2.95 to 3.10. Iron, Bar, $2.80 to 3; Hoop, $.40 to 3.50. Quicksilver, $91 to 92; Lead, L. B., $6 to 6.05; W. B., $6.20 to 6.30.

MANILA.—The market had been quiet but steady. On a limited business had been transacted during the fortnight, but prices were firmly maintained at the previously ruling range.

BATAVIA.—There had been little alteration to notice in our market for Cotton goods during the fortnight. Late telegraphic advices from Europe had tended to impart some firmness to holders, but the demand for consumption was as yet too meagre to enable importers to establish any advance in prices. Heavy rains had seriously interfered with business, communication with the up-country markets having been rendered extremely difficult by the unsatisfactory condition of the roads, while traders with the coastplaces were unable to ship off their goods owing to the bad state of the weather and the interruption of communication with the harbour.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co.'s Circular contains the following:—39-in. Grey Shirtings: Transactions had been limited in all weights, dealers not being in a position to give the advance asked by holders; sales of 8½ lbs, at $2.50 to 2.57½, 7 lbs. at $2.17½ to 2.25; 6 lbs. firmly held for higher rates. 45-inch 8 lbs. in no demand, and nominal; 9 lbs. worth $2.95 to 2.97½, but not much doing; other weights very dull. 32-in. Grey T-Cloth: Quotations for all weights show a slight advance, at which a moderate business had been done. 32-in. Grey Madapollams: 2¾ lbs. continue in inquiry at $18.75; 3 lbs. small sale at $20. 36-in. Grey Supers: No. 1 still inquired for at $2, but holders ask an advance; No. 2, quiet, at $2.05 to 2.07½; No. 3, no demand, and nominal at $2.15 to 2.17½. 36-in. White Shirtings: All descriptions quoted slightly higher but not much doing at the advance. 45-in.: Demand small at $3.45 to 3.50. 36-in. Dyed Shirtings and Brocades: Very little demand for both plain and figured at about last quotations. Velvets very dull. Turkey Red Cambrics in good demand; 2¾ lbs. $2.35 to 2.37½; 3 lbs., $2.40 to 2.45; light weights little inquired for. Turkey Red Mulls in better demand; 1¾ lbs., $30½ to 31. Woollens Goods generally very quiet. Grey Yarn: Speculative demand for 40s and 18-24s met at $118 to 121 and $100 to 107½ respectively, large sales made; 30s, small sales at $110. Iron: Stocks of saleable descriptions keep low, and but little business doing; Staffordshire flat bar sold at $2.85, and a sale of Nailrods at $2.82½ to arrives reported. Lead: Holders firm, but demand still very dull, and no sales reported.

PENANG.—The improvement lately affected in the market had been sustained, and although transactions had been only moderate in extent, price showed an upward tendency, buyers being willing to pay advanced rates.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

KIUKIANG.—No business had been transacted, and but three chops of Green Tea had come in during the fortnight.

HANKOW.—Arrivals had been very small; only one small chop of common Oonam had been settled, and but 2,461 chests had been shipped to Shanghai.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Transactions had been small, and showed little alteration in the market. Purchases consisted entirely of Hohow and Oonam produce of indifferent quality. Supplies appeared to have come almost to an end, and the stock was reduced to a small compass. Green: There was but a very small business transacted during the first part of the interval, but subsequently a better demand had set in, and the settlements were fully up to those of the previous fortnight. Prices had undergone little change, though chops had been settled which Teamen held for some time for a much higher figure. The prices paid had been about as follows:—Teenkai, Tls. 39½ to 43; Moyune, Tls. 35 to 47.75; Pingsuey, Tls. 34 to 51; Local-packed, Tls. 29½ to 31. Settlements, 12,964 half-chests.

AMOY.—The total supply of Ooloongs was reported to have been received, and the stock on offer had been entirely cleared off the market, with the exception of a few insignificant parcels. The Clementia sailed for New York on the 8th Jan., and there was no other vessel expected.

CANTON.—The market has been quiet, and the small purchases reported have been made at previous rates.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says:—During the fortnight considerable anxiety was shown to secure Silk, and prices advanced Tls. 5 to Tls. 10 on about 1,000 bales shipped as follows:—429 bales per French mail steamer, 418 bales per Holt's steamer, and 293 bales per American mail steamer. Since the above departures dulness has again prevailed, and only about 250 bales are reported to have been settled at similar rates. The stock is small and of unattractive description, besides which the dealers are very firm and exchange has advanced, all combining to check business. No chops have been fixed, but the following market Silks have been taken:—Euke-fong Blue Elephant, 27s. 11d.; Chin Jan Kukee's, 27s. 11d. to 28s. 2d.; Chun-ling Red Peacocks, 27s. 2d.; Kin Hock Kukee's, 26s. 11d. to 27s. 2d.; Ting-fong Green Elephant, 26s. 4d.

CANTON.—There had been a fair business doing during the fortnight at rather advanced rates, and holders were very firm. On account of the near approach of the China New Year dealers refused to contract for any re-reeled kinds, and as there were none but common parcels on the market quotations for the superior kinds were nominal. Settlements for the fortnight:—272 bales for Europe, 40 bales Re-reels for America, and 70 bales of inferior Silk for Bombay. Stock:—1,000 bales Tsatlee Reels, 70 bales Longkoongs, 150 bales Re-reeled kinds, and about 400 bales of common kinds. Quotations:—Tsatlee Reel, extra, $585 to 590 per picul; best No. 1, $540 to 545; market No. 1, $490 to 495. Loongkong, extra, $600; best No. 1, $565 to 585; market No. 1, $530. Cumchook and Lacklow, $500; re-reeled do. best, $565 to 585; market No. 1, $545 to 550; Re-reeled Kotengon, best, $660. Waste No. 1, $85 to 88; No. 2, $70 to 71; Pierced Cocoons, $82.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Considerable transactions in the coming season's Sugars had transpired, and the price had been maintained firmly at f.16.50 for whole crops mostly consisting of Nos. 15 and under; on these terms low numbers especially, were being eagerly bought up for the American market. Total transactions of the fortnight 150,000 to 200,000 piculs, mostly at Sourabaya and the Eastward ports. For immediate delivery f.17.25 paid for No. 14 and under, and Nos. 19/20 had been sold at f.16, for No. 14, but at close were held for a higher price. Coffee: without any transactions on delivery to report. Planters in the Samarang district asking f.43, for West India preparation, and f.39 at f.40 for ordinary. Small lots of Palembang sold for consumption from f.39 to f.42; and f.35 paid for 400 piculs Bali. Rice: in better demand; sales of No. 1, Batavia from f.155 to f.175, per coyan, according to quality, No. 2, also higher, and for local consumption f.135 to f.148 had been paid. Cargo not in the market, worth nominally f.115 to f.130. Black Pepper and Gum Damar: No transactions. Hides: still in great demand at last quotations. Arrak: 100 leaguers sold at f.105. Nutmegs and Mace: quiet, without arrivals or sales.

SINGAPORE.—The Produce Markets had continued very firm, and quotations for most articles showed an advance on last rates; there had been a good demand and a fair amount of business. Gambier had risen considerably, the market opened at $3.72½ per picul, at which quotation a limited business was done, the rate afterwards advanced to $3.85 and 4, and at the close a sale was reported at $4.15 per picul; about 1,000 tons had been contracted for. Black Pepper: In fair inquiry and price hardened, moderate business at $10.75 and 10.85 per picul closing firm at the higher quotation. White Pepper advanced, but market closed weaker. Coffee unchanged; sales reported at previous rates. Pearl Sago bought at an advance on last rates, fair inquiry. Flour unchanged, and readily taken up at previous prices. Tapioca much firmer. Tin opened weaker, a considerable business being done at $35¾ to 35¼, but latterly recovered and the last sales reported were at $36¼ per picul. Active demand for Gutta-Percha of all qualities, and prices had risen considerably, best descriptions very scarce, medium and low readily taken up at a heavy advance on last prices. India-Rubber nominally unchanged, no business transpired.

PENANG.—A good demand had been exhibited during the fortnight. Prices for the most part remained as last quoted.

CASUALTIES.—The Emiliano (str.), from Manila and Singapore (via S. C.), arrived at Liverpool, which was sunk after collision with the Parthia (str.), and afterwards floated, had discharged 600 bales of her cargo, wet, into lighters. The Yarra, Orfeur, which sailed from London, Feb. 19, for Amoy, Chefoo, &c., put into Falmouth, 29th, to restow cargo. A portion of the cargo, consisting of 762 bales of tobacco, has been discharged perfectly dry from the fore hold of the Emiliano (str.), de Larrinaga, arrived at Liverpool from Manila and Singapore (via S.C.). It is believed that a further quantity of 250 bales (dry) is still in that compartment of the vessel. The whole of the vessel aft of the fore hold was submerged, and the cargo, particularly the tobacco, in the other compartments is much damaged.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY—PAPER ON MANCHURIA.—At the last meeting of the Royal Geographical Society the paper read was, "On the Recent Journey of the Archimandrite Palladius through Manchuria," by Mr. D. Morgan. The paper, which had been translated from the Russian original and adapted by Mr. Morgan, gave an account of a journey performed by Palladius (a priest of the Russian Mission at Pekin), from Pekin to Newchwang and Moukden, and then north-westward through Tsitsihar, by the Nonni river, to Blagovestchensk, on the Amoor. Palladius had also descended the Amoor, and passed by the Ussuri and Lake Khinka to the Russian coast settlements of Manchuria; but the part of his journey entirely new was that through the north-western districts. A large portion of this region consisted of rich prairie land, thinly peopled; the towns, however, were well built, and important as places of trade. A remarkable fact was the almost complete supersession of the native Manchu national habits and language by the Chinese immigration, so that a nation which, by its warlike habits and force of character, had formerly conquered China, was now becoming quietly suppressed by the superior civilisation and perseverance of the conquered race.

IN our last issue, in recording the appointment of Colonel Hook to the command of the Ceylon Rifle Regiment, we inadvertently stated that he had never been employed on active service. A correspondent calls our attention to the fact that the gallant Colonel took part in the Affghanistan and Sutlej campaigns, his services being detailed as follows in "Hart's Army List:"—"Lieut. Col. Hook served with the 9th Regiment throughout the campaign of 1842 in Affghanistan (medal) under Sir George Pollock, and was present at the forcing of the Khyber Pass, storming of Namookail, storming the heights of Jugdulluck, affair in the Tezeen Valley, storming of the Tezeen and Huft Kotul mountains, occupation of Kabool, expedition into Kohistan, storm, capture, and destruction of Istaliff. He served as adjutant of the 9th Regiment through the Sutlej campaign of 1845-46, and was present in the battles of Moodkee, Ferozeshah (horse shot under him), and Sobraon (medal and clasps)."

THE irregularities and delays for which the Modane Station on the Mont Cenis route has become proverbial has occasioned the issue of a public notice by the Alta Italia Railway Company, advising passengers to attend to the transfer of their luggage from the French to the Italian lines. Without this precaution their luggage may be left behind them, or possibly sent round by Marseilles. The Alta Italia Railway Company wish it to be distinctly known that the Modane Station belongs exclusively to the Paris, Lyons, and Mediterranean Company. Though the former has no responsibility for delays which may occur there, it will continue to inquire into complaints to which the joint service may give rise.

CHINESE LABOURERS IN CUBA.—The official paper at Havannah publishes a new batch of edifying provisions by Valmaseda in regard to the Chinese labourers in the Island of Cuba. Chinamen out of work will be sold; those who want passports shall not have them; those who do not have them will be sold; having no passports they cannot change their place of residence; if they want to go anywhere they must go to the "Government Depositories," which is official Spanish for slave-pens. It is thought this will have a tendency to check vagrancy and furnish the planters with cheap labour.

THE paper, by Captain Blakiston, which Sir Harry Parkes read at the Geographical Society, 'On the Island of Yeso,' was, we understand, part of a large work by that writer on Japan, which cannot be completed and printed for some time to come.

THE SUPPRESSION OF THE GAMING HOUSES IN HONG KONG.

WE welcome with much satisfaction the official announcement that the gambling licence system is not only doomed, but absolutely put a stop to. Gaming has been described by COTTON—an amusing author who wrote in the beginning of the last century—as "an enchanting witchery, gotten betwixt idleness and avarice." But that a vice which causes so much wretchedness should not merely be permitted, but the practice of it superintended by Government, and that it should contribute to the revenue, has long been a subject of indignant remonstrance. It is, perhaps, a subject of painful reflection that, at this moment, and within immediate access, there exist a greater number of gambling houses in London than in any other city in the world, though it was professedly put down by that most sincere and potential of "Defenders of the Faith"—HENRY the EIGHTH—some three centuries ago. It must be admitted that we come before the Asiatics with a rather ill-grace under such circumstances, but perhaps, next to the repenting of our own misdoings, comes the reforming of our neighbours.

SALARIED CONSULS V. MERCHANT CONSULS.

As we have never ceased to advocate the substitution of paid officials for the merchant Consuls hitherto employed in most of our dependencies, we cannot but regard with satisfaction the movement of the German Government in this direction. While, however, we hail the new system as a step in the right direction, we should be very sorry to appear to deny for a moment the great services our own merchants have rendered to their country and their country's allies in the execution of the arduous, unwelcome, and tedious duties that devolve upon Consuls in remote ports. It is precisely because the duties have these drawbacks that we have advocated their transference to paid and regularly constituted officials. We believe that the new system will be more satisfactory o the shipping, the mercantile, and the diplomatic world. By the great majority the demands of personal business have ever been set aside with a self-denial that has been most honourable for the adjustment of petty disputes of the most vexatious and ungrateful kind. It is discreditable to our Government that it should now hesitate to appoint a paid official for the Consulate at Saigon, and we understand that the matter will be brought before the House of Commons on an early day.

A QUESTION was asked on Friday last in the House of Commons by Mr. WHITWELL, whether our Treaty relations with Japan were likely to be revised at an early period; and if the attention of the Foreign-office had been directed to the report of the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce, issued in December last, on the revision of our Treaty with that country. The Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs replied to the effect that the Government had complied with the request forwarded in the month of November last by the Japanese Government, asking us to postpone the revision of our Treaty with that country until the return of the special Japanese mission, which was expected to arrive in this country shortly. Lord ENFIELD stated further that an important communication in connection with the subject had been received at the Foreign-office, which would be considered when the negotiations in respect of that Treaty took place.

WE give below some additions to the report of the lecture of Mr. MEDHURST, our Consul at Shanghai, who is now in London on leave. We think it is a pity that Mr. MEDHURST's services cannot be retained here for the guidance of our Foreign-office magnates, but, failing this, we hope that Lord GRANVILLE will see the wisdom of making him Consul-General at Shanghai. His long service and generally recognised ability entitle him to this distinction; but, apart from that, it is necessary for the maintenance of British authority and prestige in Shanghai. At present it is a common occurrence to see our Consul playing second fiddle at general meetings in consequence of other Powers having Consuls-General. Considering what it has cost Great Britain to open up China, in comparison to other nations, it is an anomaly that we trust will shortly cease.

MR. F. O. ADAMS, now Secretary to Her Majesty's Legation in Japan, has been appointed Secretary to the British Embassy at Berlin. Although we congratulate Mr. ADAMS on this promotion, we trust that in the interests of our relations with Japan he will not be removed before the return of Sir HARRY PARKES, accompanied by the new Secretary of Legation. In another paragraph it will be seen that Lord ENFIELD has stated in the House of Commons that the revision of our Treaty is to be postponed until the return to Japan of the mission now en route to Europe.

THE March number of the Cornhill Magazine contains a second article on Travel in Japan, by Mr. A. B. MILFORD, which we trust will serve as a spur to residents now in that country—with similar facilities—to utilise their opportunities to enlighten others with knowledge so interesting and instructive. The interest displayed in Europe and America in Japan increases daily.

MR. WALTER EDWARD KING has been appointed to the post of Vice-Consul at Kiukiang. Mr. KING, who is now at home on leave, entered the Consular Service in China in 1855, and until lately held the appointment of Acting-Consul at Newchwang.

THE appointment of M. HENRI HINNEKINDT as Consul at Singapore for the Belgian Government has received Her MAJESTY'S approval.

MR. MEDHURST ON CHINA.

In the report of Mr. Medhurst's lecture which appeared in our last issue an inaccuracy appeared sufficiently important to require correction. We made Mr. Medhurst advocate the more frequent adoption of the native costume by missionaries in China, whereas he expressed a diametrically opposite opinion. His exact words were: "The Protestant missionaries, save in the case of one particular denomination, retain their national dress and habits, and they are right. Disguise, although so universally and successfully employed by the Romanists, I regard as objectionable. It is calculated to lower the individual in the opinion of the natives, and when it is employed in the exceptional case I have alluded to by the female members of the mission, I think the effect is even more mischievous."

We embrace this opportunity to give the full text of the observations with which Mr. Medhurst brought his lecture to a conclusion, and of which, owing to the limited space at our command, we were only enabled to summarise last week.

Two individuals, said the lecturer, cannot be thrown together for any considerable period without in some way or another exercising an influence the one upon the other—it may be for good or it may be for evil. With nationalities the same rule more or less holds good, and it is well worth considering what has been the influence in this instance and in which direction. As the stronger, more pushing, and more assertive people, the foreigners, it may be taken for granted, would be able to show the preponderance of influence on their side. And such has been the case, no doubt, in a commercial and political point of view. A trade has been exacted which has developed itself into vast dimensions, and China has been compelled to take up a position relatively to other nations, whether she likes it or no. But the amount of good concomitantly effected is questionable. Their own favourite motto, that "Commercial intercourse enriches a nation," has certainly received practical illustration in the material enrichment of various tracts and districts more immediately connected with foreign trade. But it may be questioned how far this good has been counterbalanced in the one case by the immeasurable misery which has been occasioned by the rebellions indirectly brought about by repeated collisions with Western Powers, and in the other case by the introduction of opium, the sad effects of which have hitherto been ever on the increase. There are the beneficial results of missionary teaching to be brought into account, but these are so far infinitesimal as compared to the mass of the nation that even they too would fail, I fear, to bring the preponderance on the right side. As to any influence that foreigners may exercise by their mere presence in the country, it is simply nil. A few sparks of fire dropped upon an iceberg might really be attended with more tangible results, comparatively speaking, than have as yet transpired through the residence of the few handfuls of foreigners amongst the millions of the Chinese. Indeed, if anything, the influence has lain the other way, for I have found as a rule that Chinese do not improve by being brought into intimacy with foreigners and by adoption as a consequence of their habits and ideas. The few Europeanised Chinese that are to be met with are, with very few exceptions, most insufferable creatures. The people generally, of course, know us better than they once did, and the inhabitants of those districts which have been most resorted to by us would I think for the most part be glad to increase this acquaintance, not only on grounds of self-interest but from their own natural kindly feeling. But the ruling and influential classes still only tolerate our presence in the country, and I firmly believe they would hail the day when they could see—were such a thing possible—the last foreign factory razed to the ground, and the last ship leave the coast, malgrè the loss to the national revenue and the ruin of the districts dependent on our trade that would certainly follow. Experience of our more advanced civilisation and our improved appliances appears to have brought the Chinese nothing so far. Returning emigrants fall back instinctively into their native notions and conceits, looking back upon their foreign sojourn as an ordeal happily over. Even men of some pretence to social position who have of late years visited the West in a quasi-diplomatic capacity have shown no sign of having been impressed by what they have observed, or moved to introduce like innovations and advantages into their own country. Chung How, the only really high-class mandarin who has visited Europe, disappointed me keenly when I was conversing with him last August by exhibiting the most listless indifference to my suggestions as to the vast amount of novel and interesting sights which it would be well for him to see whilst in this country. I happened to attend him at Shanghai when he embarked for the first time on board one of the finest vessels of the French Messageries fleet, and took possession of his cabin for the voyage. The next time I met him was in his handsome room at the Grosvenor Hotel, a day or two after his arrival. Yet on both occasions he took as litte heed of his novel surroundings as he would have done when stepping on board one of his own wretched Chinese junks, or walking into one of his still more primitive native hotels. To my mind there must be something more in this than an affected indifference, arising out of simple conceit. It must be the result of an inborn incapacity in the Chinese mind to entertain any subject, save by the particular process of thought, or to notice any object apart from the particular association to which it has been schooled by custom and tradition. . . . As regards Chinese passengers and shippers in foreign vessels, I have never observed the betrayal of a single word of admiration or wonder at the amount of science, labour or means expended in the construction of the very vessels in which they were being conveyed, although most of them now plying in the Yangtaze are specimens of the largest and finest river steamers that the Americans can build. On the contrary, I have heard the terms "barbarian" and "foreign devil" freely employed at such times by Chinese conversing among themselves, and I verily believe that most of these travellers in first class foreign vessels have in every case returned to their several homes only to ridicule or sneer at the outlandish people amongst whom they have for the moment been thrown, although fully appreciating, mind you, all the time the comfort and rapidity with which they have been carried, and the security and despatch attending the transit of their merchandise.

The establishment of large and effective arsenals by the Government loses much of its value as an indication of influence in favour of progress, from the fact, as I believe, that the innovation has been adopted with the object of so improving the effective appliances of the country as to place it in a position to cope with foreign Powers when a favourable opportunity offers for realising that dream of eventual ejectment which still lingers in the brain of the majority of Chinese statesmen. There have been those who have asserted from high places and in authoritative style that the Chinese desire progress, and many English and American newspapers have echoed the sentiments. But it is a mistake; and those who initiated the cry too readily allowed their eyes to be blinded to the fact that it was a mistake. One has only to live among the people, to correspond and converse with the mandarins and to study the numerous memorials addressed to the Throne by leading statesmen to convince one's-self that however much portions of the trading section of the population would like to see foreign relations extended, the ruling Powers deprecate progress even at the slowest rate of advance, whilst the mass of the people are altogether indifferent to the subject. Yet it does not follow that progress is to be despaired of in the future of China. Further awakenings through collision with foreign Powers must occur, for the Chinese cannot indefinitely go on shilly-shallying, one moment solemnly accepting international obligations, and another moment covertly receding from them. At the same time, I am not one of those who advocate an abrupt and unreasoning obtrusion of progress as we understand it, either by force or persuasion. China is by no means ripe for an instantaneous reception throughout her entire territory of the highly advanced condition of civilisation to which we and the Western peoples have attained. Let, however, the thin end of the wedge be introduced as opportunities may offer, in whatever shape, method, or direction may seem most suitable, but always in the way of private enterprise, not as a matter of Governmental institution, and the commercial enterprise of the people is so active that it will gradually but surely overrule all the obstructiveness and conceit which form such marked characteristics in the Chinese nature, and no very long time need elapse before a radical regeneration ensues which shall at once satisfy the merchant, the diplomatist, and the missionary.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 28.

The manifestations in Antwerp, caused by the presence of the Count de Chambord, have created much sensation here, which has been augmented since it has become known that he has gone to Dordrecht. It is rumoured that the Count has put himself in communication with our Papal Zouaves, who will be ready to fight at his call for the restoration of the Papal temporal power. I must add that this on dit has no official confirmation, and I believe it to be wholly without foundation. This much seems certain, that if the Count decides to reside here or in the Hague no such boisterous, and at the same time nonsensical, manifestations will be permitted as those of which Antwerp was the scene. Our people are more calm, and do not care much for "Henri V.," and our police will not be so indulgent to the pretender as were those of Belgium.

Mr. Hoffmans, the canton judge who was superseded against his wishes, has been heard in the Second Chamber, and the result was a complete fiasco, and the matter has entirely dropped. I regret that I have to state the same with reference to the "question Janssen," the officer who was dismissed because he had dared to write to a daily paper about military matters, and who most certainly is a victim of the former Minister of the War Department. Public opinion being roused, it was hoped that Mr. Janssen would be restored by the influence of the Second Chamber. One of the Liberal members made a proposal in that sense, but after a lengthened discussion this motion was altered in such a way by Mr. de Roo that the vote of the Chamber is now of no value. In a few days Mr. Heemskerk, the leader of the Conservative party, will interpellate the Ministry, and will once more bring forward the question of the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa, in view of the debate held in the English Parliament. It is not very clear of what use this interpellation may be, because the transfer is an accomplished fact, which cannot be altered. I was much astonished to find that the official text of the Sumatra Treaty was not published earlier. You will remember that I gave you the full and literal details of the Treaty early in November last. Of what use was it to keep secret what was known publicly elsewhere?

The Bill about the revisal of the East India tariff and that about the construction of the railways in Java are now under examination in the sections. It is said that there is some likelihood that the members will deal with these Bills before the Easter recess.

In almost every town lists are circulating to collect contributions to cover the cost of the national festivals, which are to take place on the 1st of April next, in celebration of the foundation of our liberty on that date three hundred years ago.

The department of the Colonies has received a telegram from the Governor-General of Java, stating that the expedition against the Rajah of Goenoeng Tinggi on the east coast of Sumatra had resulted in a complete success. This news has caused great satisfaction. Some papers, however, ask whether the reports which were published by the Batavia papers about this expedition were not exaggerated.

The steamer Conrad, of the Company Nederland, will leave Texel on the 24th of March for Java.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The chief event since my last letter in our Produce Market has been the spirited result of the Trading Company's public sale of coffee, which went off at advanced rates, and continue since to be fairly maintained. The tea sales held here some days ago have also been attended with a satisfactory result, and the business done privately in other articles of produce bears general evidence of continued firmness, without, however, transactions being characterised by much animation.

COFFEE.—A brisk competition manifested itself at the Trading Company's public sale, which caused prices to advance, on an average, 1c. to 1½c. over the valuations for the Java, and ½c. for the Santos. The whole quantity put up was eagerly secured, and the market has since continued in a firm position, with buyers at the sales' prices, but no sellers, except at some advance. About 1,100 bags Java, ex Ada, and 3,738 bags African and San Thome, ex steamer Waverley, have changed hands by private treaty on secret terms.

SUGAR.—Without anything doing; no transactions, and little on offer.

SPICES keep steady. Some parcels Nutmegs and Mace, ex Veritas, have changed hands. A speculative demand has sprung up for Cloves, consequent upon a report of the destruction of the crop, which, however, still lacks confirmation. Amboyna No. 2 are held for 35c. to 36c., and No. 3 for 34c. to 35c.

TEA.—The public sales of Java and China, held here, went off very currently, nearly the whole quantity put up having been disposed of at fair prices.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Sales have been closed by secret tender of 201 bales Java, mark PA/Malang, 166 bales AS/Malang, and 395 bales sundry marks afloat.

RICE remains dull. The cargo of Java Table ex Noach III. has been sold; the same consists of 8,338 bags Indramayoe and about 4,200 bags Kandanghauer.

RATTANS.—The first of the public sales, on account of the Netherlands Trading Company, of this article for the present season will take place on the 14th proximo, and will comprise about 61,000 bundles.

TIN.—A somewhat better feeling has prevailed for this article since my last. Banca has sold for usual prompt, at f.84¾ and f.85, and ex the coming spring sale at f.85½, whilst Billiton, ex the late Batavia public sale (February), changed hands for forward delivery at f. 83½ and f.84 to f.84¼.

COCOA NUT OIL.—About seven tons Cochin changed hands in resale at f.26½ to f.27¼. Ceylon at f.25.

KAPOK.—A public sale of 297 bales cleared ex Amazone will take place to-day.

HIDES.—This article remains quiet, in waiting for the forthcoming public sales.

ARRACK.—Twenty casks Batavia, ex Reichstag, have changed hands.

Monetary and Commercial.

The report of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company for the past year has been issued. The net profit amounted to £108,704 13s. 9d., to which is added £13,776 17s. 3d., brought forward from last account, making a total divisible sum of £122,481 11s. Of this £22,410 has been appropriated to the payment of an interim dividend of 5 per cent., and the directors now propose to distribute 48s. per share, or 20 per cent., making a total of 25 per cent. A contract has been entered into for the manufacture of 3,530 miles of cable, to be laid in 1873, from near the Land's End in Cornwall, to New York.

At a meeting of the Indo-European Telegraph Company (Limited) the report given in our last issue was adopted, and a resolution passed, authorising the directors to declare dividends previous to providing £10,000 per annum to reserve fund. At a meeting of the Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company (Limited) the following resolutions were adopted:—

That the company is hereby authorised to acquire the concessions of, and to purchase or lay down and to maintain and work, as branches and extensions of their telegraph system, all or any of the lines of telegraph comprised in a concession from the Ottoman Government of 28th and 29th November, 1870; concessions from the Greek Government of 1st December, 1866; 19th January, 1867; 30th May, 1868; 19th October, 1868; and 14th January, 1869; a concession from the Emperor of Austria of a line between Ragusa, Corfu, Malta, or Egypt, and in a provisional concession from the Government of Italy to this company for a line from Brindisi to the Ionian Islands and Egypt; and the directors are hereby authorised to take such steps with respect to carrying out this resolution as they may think advisable, but so that no further payment in respect of the proposed purchase beyond £50,000 be made without a meeting of the shareholders. 2. That in the opinion of this meeting it is desirable that an amalgamation should be effected of the several telegraph companies having lines between England and the East, and the directors of this company are hereby authorised to negotiate with the directors of the other companies with a view to bring about such amalgamation.

The half-yearly meeting of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph Company (Limited) is convened for the 12th inst., to declare a dividend.

The annual meeting of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company was held on the 26th ult. The fire premiums of the year were £1,131,594, but the total losses, inclusive of £614,000 at Chicago, amounted to £1,178,749. No dividend was, therefore, declared beyond the 10 per cent. paid in September last, leaving the invested funds at £3,647,783.

A dividend for the half-year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum has been announced by the Anglo-Indian Tea Company (Limited). A second issue of 1,000 £10 shares of the company is announced.

Bar Silver has again slightly declined in value, and the price may now be quoted as 5s. 0¾d. per oz. standard. The demand has somewhat lessened, owing to a further fall in the Exchange. Mexican Dollars remain as last quoted, the quantity arriving being but small. There is little or no demand for China; the new coinage remains at 4s. 11 9-16d., and the old at 5s. 1d. per oz.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Ceylon, which left Southampton 29th ult., was, in gold—to Singapore, £5,000; to Calcutta, £5,000; to Madras, £8,500: to Bombay, £41,100; in silver—to Shanghai, £7,645; to Hong Kong, £29,350; to Singapore, £19,850; to Penang, £1,165; to Bombay, £179,800; total in gold, £59,600; total in silver, £237,810.

TEA.

There has been a quiet market since our report of the 26th ult., the Thanksgiving holiday having in a measure interfered with business. There is but little change to notice in prices, except in Canton Teas, large supplies of which have been on offer, ex Burdwan and Warrior; Congous show 1d. per lb. decline for fair, and 1d. to 1½d. for good, whilst Orange Pekoes of good medium quality have given way 1d. per lb. The public sales of the 23rd ult. comprised 6,857 packages, of which 5,564 packages were sold without reserve; those of the 26th, 1,970 packages, all without reserve; those of the 28th, 3,631 packages, of which 2,531 packages were sold without reserve; and those of the 29th (yesterday), 4,335 packages, of which 3,925 packages were sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amounted to 3,327,277 lbs., against 4,137,250 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have been dull. Broken-leaf kinds have sold rather lower, both privately and at public sale; fair to good common have been firm, there being some demand for export. Fair to good Kaisows have met with but little enquiry; fine to finest show no change. Pak Lin kinds remain steady. Black-leaf kinds: Low quality has sold at public sale from 8½d. to 9d. per lb.; fair to good common are without change; fair to good medium have sold to a moderate extent at about previous prices; in fine to finest but little has been done. Amoy kinds show no alteration. New-make Canton kinds: Large supplies have been offered, and prices for common to fair show 1d. per lb. reduction; good, 1d. to 1½d.; the finer kinds have sold at previous prices. Oolongs: The demand for all but fine Formosa kinds has been dull, and prices show 1d. per lb. decline. Souchongs show no material change. In Flowery Pekoes there is nothing of interest to report. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have sold rather lower. Foochow kinds at previous prices. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds have sold from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d. for good, and 1s. 10d. to 2s. for fine quality; the later sales show a decline of 1d. per lb. Foochow kinds continue difficult of sale at about former prices. Uncoloured Japans show no change. Green: The market has been steady. At public sale the fine and finest kinds have fetched extreme prices up to 4s. per lb. for finest Moyune Gunpowder; the common to medium kinds have not been quite so firm.

SILK.

The market is without change; the tone continues quiet, and prices are as last quoted.

COFFEE.

The quiet tone of the market has continued throughout the week, and prices have suffered a further slight decline. The public sales, although of moderate amount, have gone off without spirit, and prices were mostly in buyers' favour. The rates realised for Ceylon have been—Plantation: Triage and ordinary, 65s. 6d. to 72s.; small, 74s. to 78s.; low middling, 76s. to 77s. 6d.; middling, 78s. to 80s.; bold, 81s. 6d.; pea-berry, 86s. 6d. to 91s. Native, 70s. 6d. to 71s. An offer of 132 bags Singapore, mixed pale greenish, sold at 70s. to 70s. 6d. For arrival about 600 tons Native Ceylon are reported to have been sold or resold, but no further particulars are divulged; 80 tons Native Ceylon are known to have been sold at 71s., guaranteed good ordinary.

The landings last week included 900 tons Plantation Ceylon and 250 tons Brasil, and were 200 tons in excess of the same week last year, the deliveries being 2,260 tons less than the unusually heavy amount in 1871, which was owing to the opening of the Continental ports after being closed by ice; the deficiency in the stock was thereby reduced from 5,300 tons in the previous week to 2,800 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 160,707 cwt., against 184,011 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1871; Native, 45,512 cwt., against 22,001 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the eight weeks ended Feb. 24, 1872, was, of Ceylon, 4,254 tons, against 2,877 tons during the corresponding period of 1871; of all descriptions, 7,912 tons, against 6,122 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 1,320 tons, against 1,604 tons; of all descriptions, 2,655 tons, against 3,092 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 2,477 tons, against 2,886 tons; of all descriptions, 6,749 tons, against 6,357 tons. The stock on Feb. 24 was, of Ceylon, 9,588 tons, against 11,992 tons; of all descriptions, 18,432 tons, against 21,221 tons.

CINNAMON.

The first periodical auctions of the year were held on the 26th ult., when a larger supply of Ceylon was brought forward than for a long time past, the total amounting to 3,439 bales, against 2,886 bales at the corresponding sales in 1871. Holders were, for the most part, willing to accept easier rates, and the greater part was disposed of with fair competition. Compared to the previous quarterly sales in November last, prices show a general decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. for good and fine qualities, of 2d. for medium, and 2d. to 3d. for ordinary and inferior. Of the whole quantity offered about 2,650 bales were disposed of as follows:—

Bales.		s. d.	s. d.
660	First sort, good to superior, sold at ...	3 5	to 3 8
	A few bales very superior ...	4 0	to 4 2
	Medium to good medium ...	2 8	to 3 4
	Ordinary and low medium ...	2 4	to 2 6
1394	Second sort, fine to superior	3 2	to 3 5
	Medium to good medium ...	2 6	to 3 1
	Low and ordinary	2 0	to 2 5
242	Third sort, good to superior	2 5	to 2 11
	Low to medium	1 6	to 2 4
443	Fourth sort, medium to fine	2 1	to 2 6
	Low to good ordinary ...	1 0	to 2 0

A large quantity of chips, amounting to 2,206 bags Ceylon, was offered, but there was little demand, especially for common and medium kinds, which were all bought in, and only about 600 bags found buyers, coarse to thin bark, 2½d. to 3½d.; medium to good chips, 6d. to 7½d.; small lots of fine quills, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 9d. per lb.

SUGAR.

The dulness which has of late characterised the market has continued, and scarcely any sales have been effected, although holders have again lowered their terms. The only transactions to report consist in the sale of 30 baskets Penang (duty 4s.), at 28s., and 100 bags washed at 22s. per cwt.; also by private contract 2,050 bags Taal unclayed Manila of old import at 21s.

The delivery for home consumption last week was again small, but as the amount in the corresponding period last year also showed some falling off, this year's shows a deficiency of only 400 tons, and as the imports were 2,000 tons less, the discrepancy in the stock is increased to 17,300 tons. Stock, Feb. 17, 39,801 tons, against 55,418 tons last year; Feb. 24, 39,634 tons, against 56,982 tons last year. The quantity of Sugar landed in the eight weeks ended Feb. 24, 1872, was, of Penang, 373 tons, against 11 tons in the corresponding period of 1871; of Manila, Java, and China, 6,351 tons, against 2,707 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 418 tons, against 6,251 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 4,338 tons, against 4,559 tons. The quantity exported was, of Manila, Java, and China, 611 tons, against 583 tons. The stock on Feb. 24 was, of Penang, 417 tons, against 2,313 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 13,470 tons, against 25,359 tons.

HEMP.—Holders of Manila continue to show great firmness in declining to accept any reduction upon current rates, and the greater portion of the quantity offered has been bought in; at auction 355 bales were chiefly bought in, Sorsagon at £53, only 35 bales second class sea-damaged selling at £50, and 31 bales indirect repacked at £47 15s.; privately the tone is very firm, and there are no sellers under £50 for good fair roping.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Market firm; we note the sale of 2 baskets Singapore at 2s. 1d. per lb.

PEPPER.—There has been but little inquiry, and sales are unimportant. Black: At public sale 2,003 bags Penang were offered, but there was only a limited demand, and nearly the whole was bought in, only 150 bags finding buyers at 6½d. For arrival 1,000 bags Singapore, February shipment, have been sold at 6¾d. White: At auction 289 bags Singapore went off slowly, and only 170 bags sold at 11½d for dull, and 11½d. for fair quality.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction 340 barrels Ceylon met a strong demand; 300 barrels, chiefly of fresh import, sold at dearer rates, especially good bright lump and chips; good bright lump sold at 30s.; middling small to fair clean, 25s. to 27s.; ordinary, 23s. to 24s.; ordinary small lump and dust, 20s. 6d. to 21s 6d.; fair to fine bright chips, 18s. to 21s. 6d.; ordinary to good dust, 8s. to 11s. per cwt.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present (French) mail brings advices from this port to the 23rd January. The following summary of news is from the Japan Herald:—

The Government has recently received the new kinsats which have been made under contract at Frankfort. We presume that as soon as the necessary arrangements have been made the old issues will be recalled, and the new paper money substituted. It is by no means improbable that a part of the existing paper circulation, representing the internal debt of the country, created by the necessities of civil war, will not be re-issued; if not redeemed in cash, Government bonds, bearing interest, may be issued. They would be a convenient investment, and could be bought up, and paid off when the finances of the country are sufficiently elastic to enable such a step to be taken without embarrassment.

Some excitement has been created by a photographer here having taken a negative of a group of which the Mikado was the prominent figure at the recent ceremony at the Yokoska Arsenal. Application had previously been made for a sitting, but had been refused; in spite of this the photographer succeeded in getting a couple of negatives, and advertised the pictures for sale; when, however, the native authorities became aware of the proceedings, they applied to the photographer, who is an Austrian subject, to abstain from selling them, and after some official correspondence the negative was seized by policemen acting under the orders of the Austrian Minister; it is impounded in Court until the case can be adjudicated on.

We believe that we are correct in stating that the long-advocated measure of placing the Japanese Customs under foreign inspection is on the point of being carried out, by the appointment of a gentleman, now on his way from America, to fill the important and lucrative office of Chief Commissioner, or Inspector-General. In addition to this, several subordinate offices have necessarily been created, and which will be presently filled.

On the return of the Embassy from abroad his Imperial Majesty the Mikado will visit foreign countries. His Majesty will remain about one year. Three Japanese men-of-war will shortly leave here for Europe to meet the Embassy which left for Washington by the steamer America, and will take the route to Hawaii and ports of South America, on the way to London. Prince Akidsuki and his son will leave for Europe in February.

It is the intention, we learn, of the Japanese Government to erect in the course of a few months a handsome Custom-house on the site of the present structure, commensurate with the importance of the port. The plans, designs, and estimates for the new building are now in hand.

By a proclamation in the Government Gazette we learn that the flag of Japan is to be altered as follows:—A red lozenge on white ground as heretofore, with the addition of a green band stretching diagonally to the lozenge from the four corners.

Dollars have been ranging at as high as 415 boos per hundred, with every possibility of reaching 440 before Japanese New Year —some forty days hence. Transactions amounting to nearly a million are daily reported at the Sho-sha.

Government sales of Japanese rice will shortly take place, at which foreigners and natives will be enabled to purchase, and if purchased by foreigners they will be allowed to export without duties having to be paid in addition.

The Government have sanctioned the survey of a line of railway from Yedo northwards to Oshu (Awamori). The erection of the telegraph across the same line of country is ordered to be [illegible].

The Japanese cavalry have received a new uniform, consisting of a red cap, a green coat with red facings, red trousers and long boots, and a cavalry sword.

The new police of Yedo are dressed in dark blue with red facings, and a hat somewhat after the shape of that of "sergeants de ville" in France.

Out of 160 guards for the use of foreigners in Yedo, 120 have been dismissed; the remainder are stationed at the different Legations.

The Pacific mail steamer Japan, from Yokohama January 24th, arrived at San Francisco on the 15th Feb. The summary of the news as telegraphed to New York contains nothing additional to that received by this mail, the date being only one day later.

HIOGO.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the following gentlemen were elected a committee for the current year:—Messrs. A. O. Gay (chairman), Bovenschen, Browne, Korthals, and Heimann.

Some twenty steamers are now employed in carrying on communication between Kobé and Osaka, but as these are chiefly commanded by Japanese masters, in whose skill no great faith is placed, the completion of the railway between the two ports is anxiously looked forward to. The works are progressing favourably.

An energetically disputed election for Municipal Councillors has resulted in the return of Messrs. Borse, Byrne, and Millitzer.

Another steamer, the Tamai Yoshai Marui, has been launched from Messrs. Board and Co.'s yard. H.M.'s Sylvia has returned from a surveying cruise in the north.

The steamer Orphan has been burned near Simonoseki, while on her way from Hiogo to Nagasaki. All hands were saved.

The weather has been excessively cold.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent writes from this port as follows:—

The first day of the year rises upon us here mild and beautiful. In the way of business there has been nothing done for some days past. The weather has been mild, but the roads are said to be so soft as to prevent carts travelling on them; consequently goods cannot be sent any distance into the interior. Small carts, however, can run through from Tientsin to Peking.

A gentleman has arrived here overland from Chinkiang-fu, and was thirteen days on the way. He reports that, with the exception of about ten or fifteen miles from Tientsin, there was no sheet of water or of ice visible on either side of the Grand Canal. In the distance to the westward he saw ice. This information proves conclusively that our river at Tientsin has overflown by the water from the plain, and upon that alone. You will remember that during the flood season the water covered both sides of the Grand Canal for nearly 700 li. Our river is still open here, and is clear of ice, although the water is gradually falling. A current three to four knots an hour keeps running down. There ought to be no difficulty in draining the plain when the river gets low, and it continues to drain as it has done. We should have dry land all around us in the early spring if the authorities would give some assistance.

Several foreign gentlemen, assisted by native officials, have lately been distributing money, collected from foreigners, among the poor in the villages about this. Great distress is visible among them, and the poor people receive with evident thankfulness the donations so kindly given them. Much distress also exists on the road from Chinkiang, but as at several parts on this line of road a large quantity of grain has been stored, waiting till the opening of the canal to be sent north, it is to be hoped the poor people will not be called to suffer more than they can bear.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 26th January; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 1 arrived out Jan. 19, and the following French mail of Dec. 8 was expected to arrive the same day that this mail left.

On the proposed extension of the Holt Line to the Yangtsze, the North China Herald has the following:—Our readers will remember that we gave this information some little time ago. Mr. Holt has organised a new steamer company in England, to contest with the S.S.N. the monopoly of the Yangtsze. It is only right and fair to say that S.S.N. Company, considering the power possessed by it, has acted during the term of its virtual monopoly with liberality and justice. It has afforded reasonable accommodation for the public, has patiently listened to complaints, has never been accused of undue preferences; and, in a word, has seldom committed those faults to which monopolists are prone. When the tea trade of China with Europe was carried on by sailing vessels, the traffic on the river attracted but little notice, except amongst the houses immediately concerned. But when the opening of the Suez Canal threw the home trade into the hands of steamers, and gave a spurt to the introduction of steam on every possible line of traffic, the manner in which the large tea export of Hankow was carried down the river naturally began to draw attention. While steamers were not unwilling to accept, for a passage of some ten thousand miles, rates of three or three and a-half pounds sterling, other vessels here were earning, from a short run of six hundred miles, an average of thirty shillings a ton. It was true there were extra expenses, but these expenses seemed out of proportion with the rates; and the more this conviction forced itself on men's minds the more they began to look about for a remedy. It was not, however, till the events of the last two years showed how enormous were the capabilities of the trade, that men were found willing to run the risk. The gradual return to prosperity of the valley of the Yangtsze shows that a great and increasing local traffic has to be accommodated; that this traffic is capable of still greater development there can be no reasonable doubt, and to this development we look for a prosperous time, not only for the new but for the old companies.

The following items are also from the North China Herald:—

Once again the nuisance of the Woosung Bar has been brought up. The steamer Sunda had to wait for a high tide to enable her to cross, and the steamer Peking, from Hong Kong, was detained outside, unable to enter the harbour.

We are glad to hear that the Taoutai has given his assent to the extension of the Yangtzee-poo-road to Woosung. He stipulates only that the bank along which it is purposed to carry it shall not be lowered, and that amicable arrangements shall be made with the country people for any land required on either side of it.

The "Chinese Giant," Chang, has returned from his travel round the world. He arrived by the barque Novelty, from Sydney. He is dressed in European clothes, and excites vast interest among the native population in his walks. He has married an Australian wife.

The completion of the filling out of the English Bund in front of the Club is now all but complete, and gives one a pleasant prospect of what a magnificent promenade the settlement will possess when the same process has been carried out all the way to the Jetty.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.

Sudden deaths have occurred with alarming frequency during the past few months, and after a pause in the series a fresh shock was given to the community on the 23rd inst. by a report that Mr. Littledale, of Barnet's house, had, while apparently in perfect health, dropped dead in his office. The main fact was true, but it appears that he had been ailing for a few days, complaining of headache and seediness, with inability to work, and it is conjectured that the rupture of a small vessel in the brain, with subsequent continued bleeding, brought on the fatal event. Littledale was very popular, in spite of, or, perhaps, on account of, his strongly-defined principles, which, though not shared by all his friends, were respected by them. By the public he was chiefly known as one of the champion athletes of the place.

The Christmas and New Year festivities are nearly over, and by way of relaxation after the weekly balls which have for some time been regular institutions, we are promised a series of theatricals—English and German—and concerts by the German and Philharmonic amateurs. A new and ambitious experiment is to be made some evenings hence by the "Amateur Dramatic Corps," who, pending the erection of a new theatre, are hospitably housed by their rivals of the German Club Concordia. "The divine Williams" is to appear on the Shanghai stage, the "Road by Gadshill" and "Room in the Boar's Head Tavern," scenes from the first part of King Henry IV., being the selection made. To Mr. Henry Raymur—who under this anagrammatic alias will be at once recognised by old Shanghai and Hong Kong theatre-goers—is due the credit of starting the notion. Upon him, as "fat Jack," will, moreover, fall the chief burden of the representation. I understand that infinite pains have been taken to secure success, and there can be little doubt of the result. At any rate the attempt ought to be welcomed, for the Shanghai Amateurs are perfectly competent to play high comedy instead of the broad farce or burlesque which they have hitherto chiefly attempted.

The French mail, which is due here to-morrow, will bring Chung How, on his return from his successful mission to France. By an early opportunity we also expect Dr. Thin, Chung How's mortal enemy—on paper. The learned doctor will no doubt soon herald his approach by fulminations against all and sundry things Chinese, hurled through the Evening Courier, which since his departure from Shanghai has been singularly tame in its utterances. Dr. Thin's lucubrations are generally more vigorous than elegant, more nervous than correct; but, such as they are, they have been sadly missed by the subscribers to the evening journal.

Talking of Chung How, I must not forget to tell you that a Chinaman asked me the other day how much I thought had been really paid to M. Thiers in order to secure his acceptance of the Chinese Minister's representations. I said, of course, that nothing had been paid, but it was quite evident that I thereby got the credit of lying most audaciously. However, my questioner satisfied himself by saying that if that were so Chung How's fortune was made, for he would assuredly bring in a long account of moneys expended in bribes.

The story is naught in itself, but it shows pretty clearly what the opinion held in China is, as regards official integrity in Europe, and how much credit the French are likely to gain for their indulgence in this particular case. As to its illustration of native official corruption nothing need be said. The whole subject of the Tientsin Massacre, Chung How's legation, &c., &c., is now nearly played out here, and beyond a passing notice, the Minister's return will probably elict no fresh burst of public opinion. But I have no doubt that M. Thiers's gross blunder in admitting Chung How to a personal audience, while the representatives of Foreign Powers at Peking are contemptuously excluded from the Imperial presence, will have its effect in making the Chinese more stiff-necked than ever, and will remove any doubts as to Foreign inferiority which may have been left behind by the English apology for the Formosan affair, by the French fiasco in the Corea, and by the equally ridiculous exhibition made there last year by the Americans.

In sober truth we have to blame ourselves for the greater part of Chinese "cheek." I believe that even now the big-wigs at Peking believe in the immeasurable superiority of China to all the nations of the earth as implicitly as they did in the old Canton days of Governor Lin. On our part we do everything possible to maintain that belief. Our hope—tell it not in Gath—now is that some special impertinence may be offered to the North-German Minister, and then—Bismark to the rescue! But this last is, of course, in confidence, and of course you won't think of publishing it.

Nobody who has read the Shanghai papers for the last few years can have failed to observe the constantly recurring complaints of failure of justice, according to foreign ideas, at the Mixed Court. Without pledging myself to admiration of that extraordinary tribunal, let me give an instance in which, whatever is to be said about the question of law, the question of common sense as between the English Supreme Court and the Mixed Court must be decided in favour of the latter. A batch of coolies employed in one of the newspaper offices suddenly struck work, and left at the moment when the paper was ready for delivery. The manager had the men up before the Mixed Court, one of the Consular interpreters (American, as it happened) sitting as assessor. The native magistrate, with the assessor's approbation, decreed that the culprits should forfeit a month's wages. Nothing loath, the manager refused to pay when pay-day came round. Thereupon the coolies summoned him before the English police-magistrate—a young gentleman who lately, during an absence from Shanghai of about eighteen months, scampered through enough law to obtain his call. The decision in this case was that the manager could not for any offence stop wages already earned, although, in fact, the Court to which the plaintiffs were alone amenable had mulcted them in a fine to the amount of their wages. The absurd part of the business is that then the English Police Court took upon itself to reverse the decision of the Mixed Court, a tribunal with which it has nothing on earth to do. It is due to the Mixed Court to tell this little tale to its credit.

Change and improvement in the external appearance of Shanghai are rapidly going on, although we hardly notice them unless we leave the settlement for awhile. The most noteworthy in progress at present is the gradual extension of the English bund to a line with the magnificent French bund. No extensive operations have been undertaken, but as opportunity offers the foreshore is filled in, and already a considerable impression has been made upon this eyesore.

Nobody knows what the permanent arrangements at the English Consulate will be. Mr. Medhurst is expected to resume his post about May. Meanwhile, Mr. Davenport is Acting Consul, and Mr. Alabaster actual Vice-Consul. Mr. Hewlett, also a Vice-Consul, was recently ordered here from Foochow, and rumour has it that Mr. Hughes may be sent to take charge until Mr. Medhurst's return. As the Consulate is already much over-officered, Mr. Hughes's arrival would necessitate one or two removals.

HONG KONG.

We have advices from this port to the 1st February; the P. and O. mail of 15th Dec. arrived Jan. 27.

Another of the civil cases arising out of the now notorious conspiracy" trial came on for hearing on the 29th Jan., on a petition filed by Lee A-cheong, the defendant in the first action, under Ordinance No. 3 of 1858, whereby it was prayed that Abdool Moussa, the plaintiff in the first action, should be restrained by injunction from further proceeding with the said action; that he, Lee Acheong, might be ordered to pay the sum of $7,191.36, claimed from him therein by Abdool Moussa, into Court; and that it should be referred to a jury to determine to whom the goods, in respect of which the sum of $7,191.36 claimed by the said Abdool Moussa belonged. The Acting Attorney-General objected to the application, and, after some discussion, the Court ordered that the money claimed by Abdool Moussa, the plaintiff in the first action, should be paid into Court with costs; that all further proceedings should be stayed; and that the money should remain in Court to abide the result of Writs of Foreign Attachment, if properly issued by the plaintiffs in the second, third, and fourth actions.

An official announcement of the Commission appointed to inquire into the condition of the police appeared in the China Mail of the 1st Jan., when evidence or suggestions for the increased efficiency of the force were requested. We observed, also, that the Editor of the China Mail offered his evidence on some points named in His Excellency's memorandum, and, in order to be able to give his opinion with the greater confidence, applied for copies of the "Reports and Suggestions of Messrs. Deane and Rice." The Commissioners expressed themselves as willing to receive the Editor's evidence, but they declined either to forward the documents for his inspection, or to allow him to peruse them. The question is—upon what ground this point, on which his Excellency formally invited evidence, is thus closed?

The Yacht Race for the Douglas Challenge Cup came off on the 29th Jan. The holder (Naiad) was a yacht of great power and speed, and to beat her in a strong breeze and sea was no easy task. Her competitors on this occasion were the Naomi, Loiterer, and Wave, the first-named of which proved to be the victor, the Naiad coming in second, by little more than two minutes. The first Douglas Challenge Cup was won by Mr. Hawke in the Mayflower in 1867 and 1868, and consequently became his property. The present Cup has been now raced for five times, and has been won thus:—1869, Wave; 1870, Mosquito; 1871, Naiad; 1872, Naomi.

By this mail we have received the China Mail's "Report of the Conspiracy Case," comprising the whole of the facts, the comments of the local press, and the evidence—with all of which our readers must be by this time so familiar that we need not repeat any part of it.

The following paragraphs are from the China Mail:—

Gossip is taking liberty with very high names indeed. His Excellency the Governor, it is confidently said, is going home in May, accompanied by the Hon. J. G. Austin, present Colonial Secretary, and by his (i.e, H.E.'s) private secretary, Mr. Russell. The Hon. C. Smith will, it is rumoured, succeed to the Colonial secretaryship, and Mr. Tonnochy will be promoted to the position now so well filled—as a magistrate—by Mr. Russell. Rumour is silent as to the disposal of Mr. May. The most important feature of this change is, of course, that which relates to his Excellency. Who is to be his successor?

The examination and exhibition of the Government Central School took place on the 30th Jan. Several gentlemen interested in the prosperity of the school, together with a few ladies, were present, and the pupils of the first class were examined in reading, spelling, geography, and algebra, the Rev. Drs. Legge and Eitel and Dr. Pottinger, R N., taking part. It was gratifying to observe the wonderful accuracy of pronunciation evinced by many, notwithstanding the fact that there were Japanese, Portuguese, Chinese, and Parsees, all eagerly endeavouring—and succeeding too—to overcome their national difficulties of expression and enunciation. The oral examination (which is too often the weakest and least satisfactory feature of such an exhibition) was most satisfactory, especially that referring to geographical knowledge. These latter portions of the drill were conducted by Mr. Steward, head master; by Dr. Legge; and by Mr. Willcocks, second master. Nearly the same course was followed in the Junior School, which is conducted by Mr. A. Falconer, third master; and here the translations from English into Chinese was, considering the youthful appearance of the boys, very creditable. The writing books of some of the boys in this department were exceedingly meritorious, especially one by a boy of only a year's training. H.E. Sir R. MacDonnell was present for some time during the proceedings.

It appears that, on the application of Mr. C. D. Williams (whose appointment as U.S. Consular Agent at the new port of K'uinchow in Hainan we recently noticed), to the Viceroy of Kwangtung to take the necessary steps to open that port to foreigners, his Excellency refused to move in the matter, saying he had no instructions from Pekin. News has since been received from Peking that the Imperial Government, in response to a representation on the subject by H.E. Mr. Low intimated that the necessary instructions have been sent to the Viceroy, and that no further difficulty need be anticipated.

The German members of the community have completed their new club building. A dramatic entertainment is to be given in celebration of the event. A large number of visitors have been invited, and, from all that is said, we judge we may look forward to a great treat, the talents of the German amateur dramatists being well known.

We are sorry to hear that Major McNair is so ill that his medical advisers have ordered him to seek an immediate change to a cold climate. Major McNair is well known amongst us, and the cause of his departure will be much regretted. We trust that before he leaves the Government will be alive to the necessity of taking such steps as will ensure proper supervision, during his absence, over the large number of convicts now in our jails.

We understand that a Mr. Campbell from Ceylon has been appointed by Lord Kimberley to act as Lieutenant-Governor at Penang during the absence on leave for twelve months of Lieut.-Colonel Anson. Why should not an officer of this Government have been selected to act at Penang? On the occasion of Mr. Cairns going home on leave, the Auditor-General was sent over to Malacca, and we all know that Mr. Charles Irving performed his duties as Acting Lieutenant-Governor right well. Why should he not have been appointed to act at Penang? The next thing we may look for is to find the Government searching amongst the military for ambitious sons of Mars to fill vacancies in the Civil Service; and if such should be the case, we may safely say that the public here will not pass over any such attempt to make the colony a victim to the schemes of private or party interests.

In noticing the appointment by the Secretary of State for the Colonies of Mr. W. A. Pickering as Chinese Interpreter for the service of the Government of the Straits Settlements, we were under the impression that he was merely one of the Colonial-office cadets, several of whom have already been sent out here as "interpreters." We are happy to learn, however, that the appointment under notice is an exception to the rule, and has been made solely with reference to the gentleman's qualifications and the wants of the colony. Mr. Pickering is, we are informed, a gentleman formerly in the Chinese Customs service, who resigned his appointment on account of conscientious scruples. He is an able Chinese scholar, and writes and speaks the language fluently. He went home, and was specially recommended to Earl Kimberley for the service of this Government by Mr. Douglas, an accomplished Chinese scholar, who is at present in England superintending the publication of a comprehensive Chinese dictionary.

The opium-shop murder case occupied the Court for two days, when Teo Ah Pah was indicted for the murder, on Oct. 23rd last, of a coolie, in an opium shop kept by one Lim Ah Lak in North Bridge-road. Mr. Aitken prosecuted, and Mr. Aitchison defended. This murder was committed during the riots. The principal witness was Lim Ah Lak, keeper of the opium shop. The jury returned a verdict of guilty. The verdict surprised most of those present, as the summing up was generally considered very favourable to the prisoner. As it was, the Chief Justice passed sentence of death, but we believe this was only formal.

The annual general meeting of members and subscribers of the Agri-Horticultural Society was held in the Exchange Rooms on the 6th Feb., H.E. the Administrator in the chair. The report, which was adopted unanimously, showed a balance of $603.42 to the credit of the society, and the revenue for 1872 is estimated at a similar sum. During the past year the lake has been drained, cleared, and deepened at the upper end, and the orchid house and fernery approach completion. It having long been obvious that the gardens cannot be rendered really useful to the settlements, and generally to the advancement of botanical knowledge, until they are under the control of a thoroughly qualified scientific botanist, and as the existing income is inadequate for that purpose, an application was made to Government for an increase of the grant in aid, from $1,200 to $2,500 per annum. This application was very favourably received by the Executive, but four of the un-official members of Council stated that they would not at present support any further grant to the gardens whilst so many other works of public utility were lacking funds, and it was useless for the Committee to press the matter further, though they have by no means relinquished the project.

If any positive argument were needed against the present Court-house, it was afforded on the 2nd by the undignified spectacle presented during a heavy squall, when the Chief Justice, after asking for an umbrella, was obliged to suspend the proceedings, leave his seat, and take shelter below his bench at the Registrar's table from the deluge that came pouring into the open verandah behind him, the spray from the falling rain even wetting the jurors in the jury-box. A screen has since been put up behind the Judge's chair, but though useful it is not ornamental.

The Marine Court of Inquiry into the loss of the British barque Burlington has decided that the certificate of the master, McGee, should be suspended for three months, the Court being of opinion that he had not exercised proper judgment and caution.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market was steady and fairly active. An extensive business had been transacted, especially in Grey Shirtings and Cotton Yarn. Metals were firm.

SHANGHAI.—There had been little change in the market. The business done during the week had been small, and for the most part speculative. Of Grey Goods—except T-Cloths and English Sheetings—the natives have bought very sparingly, and in T-Cloths their purchases had scarcely amounted to an average; the high prices demanded had deterred native dealers. Grey Shirtings: The rates paid for 8¼ lbs. had been irregular, ranging between Tls. 1.9.8. and Tls. 2.0.5 for Dewhurst's Eagles, according to the time of clearance. Foreign speculators had been the chief operators, and they had directed their attention almost exclusively to that chop. The natives had bought only to satisfy immediate wants. 7 lbs. to 8 lbs. had been asked for at a shade over last quotations, but few had changed hands. White Shirtings: Sales of between 7,000 and 8,000 pieces reported on the basis of Tls. 2.10 per piece for good ordinary 64-reeds. T-Cloths: High prices asked had restricted business, still a fair quantity had been placed, and the market closed with an upward tendency. The sales made give the following rates:—MT, 7 lbs., Tls. 1.60 to 1.62 per piece; 6 lbs., Tls. 1.44 to 1.46.; T, 7 lbs., 1.44 to 1.46; 6 lbs., 1.25 to 1.26 per piece; 8 lbs., no change. Metals.—Nailrod and Bar Iron: About 5,200 bundles M.M. Nailrods had been disposed of at Tls. 2.60 to 2.70, and 20 tons of Bars at Tls. 2.65. Telegraphic advices quoted higher rates ruling in England, and had caused the majority of holders to act with continued firmness.

HONG KONG.—There had been no change of importance in the market during the week.

SAIGON.—The market remained dull, no transactions of any importance had taken place, and prices were unaltered. Quotations: Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.57½ per piece; ditto, 7 lbs., $2.25 per piece. T-Cloth, 6 lbs., $1.68; 5 lbs., $1.40; 4½ lbs., $1.32; 4 lbs., $1.15. White Irishes, $1.75-77½.

SINGAPORE.—There had been no change in the market since last mail. The current quotations were: 40 Mule Twist, $125; 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, $2.62½; 7 lbs. ditto, $2.25; 5 lbs. T-Cloths, $1.45; 6 lbs. ditto, $1.72½; 7 lbs. ditto, $1.90.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been an extensive business doing, but the transactions had been almost wholly confined to the lower grades, the fine qualities being held for an advance of $3. Export from 1st July, 1871, to date, 8,551,800 lbs.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no change in either Black or Green. Settlements during the week, 2,240 chests Congou, at Tls. 12 to 12½, and 8,658 half-chests Green, at Tls. 29 to 56. Stocks reduced to 4,000 chests Congou, and9,000 half-chess Green.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Market without change; settlements for the month ending Jan. 23rd, 1,800 bales.

SHANGHAI.—The market was quiet, barely 400 bales having been settled for this mail. Prices were a little weaker, though some Silks purchased just after the departure of last mail showed an advance of Tls. 2½ per picul. The following settlements were reported:—80 bales Tsoping, at Tls. 585 for No. 3; 30 bales Gold Lion, at Tls. 560 for No. 3¼; 10 bales Grasshopper, at Tls. 552½; 50 bales Blue Elephant, at Tls. 537½; 15 bales Green, at Tls. 505. Red Peacocks were quoted Tls. 522½. The unsold stock was estimated at 1,600 bales.

COCHIN CHINA PRODUCE.

SAIGON.—Messrs. Kaltenbach, Engler, and Co. report as follows:—Rice: High prices have been ruling here since we last reported, brought about by favourable news from Hong Kong and smaller supplies of grain than usual at the same period in former years. The lateness of the rainy season alone accounts for the latter circumstance, for during the past week arrivals became already more regular, and brought prices down from $2.05 to 1.95 per picul. Tonnage in harbour is now very small, but on the other side all the ready Rice has been shipped off and fresh supplies, owing to the Chinese holidays, will again be insignificant for some time, and hardly sufficient to fill up the few vessels still left. Latest telegrams from China report $2.65, low prices here can therefore not be expected till this country is sufficiently supplied with grain. We quote to-day $1.98 equal to 8s. 1d. f.o.b. per picul. Hides: Supplies of Cowhides are very insignificant and prices firm at $13½; Buffalo are offered at $7.90 to 8 per picul. Horns find buyers at $8 good average size. Gamboge: The season is over and nothing remains on the market.

PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

(March 7th.) Mr. JAMES WHITE asked the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, whether, having regard to our increasing trade at the Port of Saigon (the number of vessels under the British flag which entered and loaded thence for various ports being—according to the London and China Telegraph—247 during last year), it is the intention to transfer to, or appoint a paid Consul thereat, in succession to Mr. Caswell, a merchant at that port, who has resigned.—Lord ENFIELD in reply stated that in January last Lord Granville pointed out to the Treasury that in view of the increasing commercial importance of the port, it was desirable to appoint another consul in succession to Mr. Caswell; but the noble earl added that he was anxious to suspend the appointment until the labours of the committee had come to an end.

MR. CALDWELL'S APPOINTMENTS AT HONG KONG.

(8th.) Mr. R. FOWLER asked the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies whether Mr. Caldwell, who was dismissed from the office of Registrar General of Hong Kong in 1862 was now a sworn interpreter in the local courts; whether in that or any other capacity he had been employed for the Crown; whether he was accepted by the late Governor as agent for the licences of the gambling monopoly; and whether he was not a proprietor of coolie barracoons. The hon. member said he understood Mr. Caldwell was charged with being an accomplice of a notorious pirate, and was dismissed from his office after an investigation by the Duke of Newcastle, then Colonial Secretary.

Mr. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN (Under-Secretary for the Colonies) said that Mr. Caldwell was a person who married a Chinese woman, and had been for many years extensively employed by the Chinese at Hong Kong. Some years ago that gentleman did occupy the position of Registrar-General at Hong Kong, and at that time charges were brought against him by Mr. Chisholm Anstey, then Attorney-General there. The charges were for the most part disproved, and ended in the discharge, not of Mr. Caldwell, but of Mr. Anstey. Sufficient evidence, however, was brought forward to call for further inquiry into the conduct of Mr. Caldwell. It turned out that he had rendered considerable services to the Government in the detection of piracy, but the story was that he got his information from a notorious pirate; and the view the Commissioners took was that Mr. Caldwell's intimacy with this man was of such a character that it was not proper he should be retained in Her Majesty's service. All the sworn interpreters in the local courts, with the exception of one Portuguese, were native Chinese; but some time ago a supernumerary list of interpreters was added, and the Chief Justice, in whose hands these appointments rested, placed Mr. Caldwell's name upon the list. Mr. Caldwell had, however, never acted in that capacity, and, indeed, the fees were so small that, having a great deal of employment from the inhabitants of Hong Kong he was not likely to take up that business. He had not been employed by the Crown in any capacity since the period of his dismissal from the service. Years ago he was employed by a Chinese firm to negotiate with the Government for the monopoly of the gambling houses; but for a long time a different system had been in vogue, and the licences had been let to the highest tenderer. Barracoons, in the sense in which the word was used at Macao, in connection with the slave trade did not exist at Hong Kong. By law a person who chartered a ship for the emigration of coolies to the British colonies was bound to provide proper depots for the emigrants, those places being under the strict surveillance of the Government, and it was possible that Mr. Caldwell might be the proprietor of one of these depots, though it was very doubtful, as no buildings were permanently so used.

Mr. EASTWICK considered the explanation satisfactory, but wished, in justice, to say that Mr. Anstey, subsequently to his recall, received a letter from the Duke of Newcastle acknowledging that he had performed a great public service.

BRITISH TROOPS IN JAPAN.

(8th.) Mr. S. AYTOUN inquired of the Government by what treaty or convention this country had acquired the right of maintaining a military force in Japan, what number of troops, if any, were now stationed there, and moved for a return of the number of troops and marines stationed in Japan during each year from the ratification of the treaty with Japan in 1859 to the 31st day of December, 1871, together with the sums expended in conveying such troops to and from Japan, and maintaining them in that country. The hon. member contended that the acquisition of territory in distant parts of the world only tended to weaken our strength as a military European nation, as it necessitated our maintaining garrisons in different countries. This it was, in his opinion, which prevented us obtaining an efficient army of reserve. There were two ways in which territory might be acquired. The first was by treaty, and the second by the indirect method, namely, by entering into some arrangement with a semi-barbarous nation, which led to complications and ended in war, the result being an acquisition of territory which it required large garrisons to enable us to retain. The treaty which Lord Elgin concluded with Japan in 1858 was entered into by the Japanese under the pressure of an overwhelming force, but there seemed to be no stipulation in it for the maintenance of an English force in that country. About six years ago the hon. member for Aberdeen had asked the noble lord now Chief Secretary for Ireland, who was then at the War Department, whether it was intended that troops should be kept in Japan permanently, and the answer was that they would be shortly removed. He (Mr. Aytoun) believed, however, that there was still a garrison there, although the House had received no intimation on the subject.

Lord ENFIELD (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) said there would be no difficulty in supplying the returns so far as the Admiralty and War-office were concerned, but he would explain the circumstances under which a British force had been stationed in Japan for the last ten years. That force, which had varied very much in number, was not stationed there under any convention or treaty, but solely for the protection of British life and property, and to see that the treaties entered into were fairly and properly carried out. This appeared from a despatch sent by Earl Russell, when Secretary of State, to Sir Rutherford Alcock, in which he pointed out the uncertainty of the state of affairs in Japan at that time. Matters had since much improved in that country, and at present the force was reduced to 300 British marines and 300 French. There was reason to hope that in a short time, perhaps in the course of next year, if the state of things continued on the same footing, our force might be withdrawn from Japan.

The motion for the returns was then withdrawn.

ALLEGED MASSACRE OF NATIVE CHRISTIANS IN JAPAN.

(8th.) Mr. A. EGERTON asked the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if any information had reached the Foreign-office in regard to alleged wholesale massacres of native Christians in Japan.

Lord ENFIELD replied that information had that day been received to the effect that sixty or seventy heads of families professing the Christian faith had been removed from the villages in the neighbourhood of Nagasaki and taken in steamers to other parts of the country. The officials at Yedo have expressed regret at this conduct on the part of the local authorities, and had sent officers to make inquiries into the circumstances of the case. The Foreign-office had no information as to atrocities or cruelties practised on any individuals.

MISCELLANEOUS.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

The Eastern Budget's correspondent at St. Petersburg writes as follows:—

"Considerable dissatisfaction has been produced here by the news that the Chinese Government has taken steps to re-establish itself in Kouldscha—a territory which Russia now claims as her own in virtue of the victory she gained there last year. It appears that the Chinese Governor of Kobdo, Yun-Zinan, has received instructions from his Government to proceed to Kouldscha, with a staff of officials, in order to take possession; and the Government paper of Peking has at the same time announced that an amnesty would be given to the rebels, adding that China would expect to be supported by that part of the population which had remained loyal to her rule. It is not yet known whether these events have come by surprise on the Government here, and if so, what course it would pursue in the matter. The Russian chauvinists are of course furious, especially as they anticipate that China will not take the slightest notice of the Russian claims, and that the Russians will simply evacuate the country without a word of objection. They strive hard to prove that such a retreat would be incompatible with the honour of Russia and her interests in Central Asia, and urge that for the sake of humanity Russia ought to maintain her position in Kouldscha so as to protect the insurgents from the vengeance of the Chinese. Moreover, it is alleged that China has so many difficulties to contend with at home, that she would find it practically impossible to maintain her footing in so distant and rebellious a province. On the other hand, the possession of Kouldscha would be in the highest degree advantageous to Russia. Her commerce would no longer be dependent on concessions by the Chinese Government, which have proved extremely unreliable, and she would be enabled to secure access for her goods into China and the whole of Southern Asia."

THE COOLIE TRAFFIC IN THE PACIFIC.

The Bill for the prevention and punishment of criminal outrages upon natives of the islands in the Pacific Ocean, brought into the House of Commons by Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen and Mr. Forster, empowers colonial courts to try and punish British subjects for kidnapping natives of the above islands; to issue commissions for the examination of witnesses; to authorise commanders of Her Majesty's ships to obtain the attendance of native witnesses, and to convey them from and reconvey them to the islands in which they live, and to remunerate such witnesses. Certain British officials in any of her Majesty's possessions are authorised to seize suspected ships, and British Vice-Admiralty Courts are to have full power and authority to try the charges upon which such vessels have been seized, and to condemn the vessel and cargo as forfeited to Her Majesty, or to order them to be restored with or without costs or damages.

THE appointment of Sir Hercules Robinson, late Governor of Ceylon, to the Governorship of New South Wales, has been gazetted.

THE appointment of Lieutenant Burn, 75th Regiment, as Aide-de-Camp to Major-General Whitfield in China, has been made permanent.

HAMBURG, March 6.

It cannot be denied that Prince Bismark possesses as fertile a conception of grand ideas as he has hitherto been fortunate in their execution. We have all heard from time to time of that great desideratum of a penny ocean postage between Europe and America, and many of us have felt much disappointment at the wet blanket thrown on it by the various Governments, whilst others looked upon it as a chimera emanating from the brain of a maniac. The German Chancellor of the Empire certainly does not deserve to be called a madman, and yet he has gone a step further and originated a plan for an international postage for the whole of the globe. I may here mention that the scheme entered his great mind nearly two years ago, but on the breaking out of the war with France he had more important and pressing work cut out for him to do, and he was obliged to postpone bringing forward his proposal till more quiet times. Though nothing of an official character has yet transpired on the subject, some particulars have leaked out in various quarters, and putting them together a rough, but imperfect, idea may be formed of the principal features of the plan, which I combine as follows:—The one single postal territory is to comprise the whole of Europe, including Russia in Asia, the Turkish possessions in Asia, Egypt, Algeria, the Spanish possessions in the north of Africa, the Canary Islands and Madeira, as well as the United States, and the British provinces in North America. The postage of a single letter from any one State in this complex to any other in the same, to be fixed at 20 centimes if prepaid, and 40 centimes if not paid beforehand; to which, however, an additional charge of 20 centimes may be added, provided the letter be conveyed more than three hundred nautical miles by sea. There are only to be two rates recognised—a single letter weighing less than fifteen grammes, and a double one from fifteen grammes up to a half-pound, as is the case now in Germany, and the states of the German postal union. Newspapers and other printed matter, as well as samples if packed according to the regulations now in force, to be charged ten centimes for every forty grammes, subject to the same addition of twenty centimes for sea-postage if above 300 miles of sea. Registered letters are admissible throughout the Union, and are chargeable with a registering fee of twenty centimes, without reference to weight. For pre-payment the stamps of the country where the letters are posted must be used exclusively, and the money so obtained is kept by each country, obviating the necessity of keeping accounts with other states. No claim for freedom from postage can be allowed, not even in the case of Government despatches or the correspondence of crowned heads and other potentates. Postage for the transit of mail matter through intermediate states to be everywhere abolished. Those states of the proposed Union running mail steamers to other countries—for instance to the Brazils—to negotiate postal treaties, in which all the other states of the Union participate equally. The above stipulations do not alter or limit the postal legislation of other states of the union, and their internal arrangements are not interfered with till the letters cross the frontiers. The above may appear crude and imperfect, and no doubt will require much alteration and have to pass through many phases before it can be said to be ripe for general acceptance; but the idea is well worthy of consideration, if found to be capable of being worked up into a tangible and definite form. The Chancellor further proposes to convene what may be termed a general Œcumenical postal Congress of delegates from all the States composing the proposed union, in order to hear their wishes and suggestions, with the view of amalgamating all the different systems into one homogeneous mass. It is said—but I know not with what amount of truth—that the Prince, before inviting the respective Governments officially to send delegates to the Congress, has instructed his diplomatic agents and Consuls to communicate the rough idea to the different Governments to whom they are accredited, and to sound their views in a quiet, private, and non-official manner.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, March 6.

The entrée of the new Minister of the War Department into Parliament was somewhat disappointing, and fears are entertained that he will adopt a policy as wavering and hesitating as that of his predecessor with regard to the important military measures, which must tend to wholly reorganise our army and means of defence. Of course, the general opinion is that Mr. Delprat has maturely considered these questions before accepting the portfolio; and the liberal and energetic measures he took to extirpate old abuses have raised hopes that we had at last obtained an energetic Minister. The answer given by him when he was interpellated about this matter has, however, created a good deal of astonishment. It was naive in the highest degree. The Minister declared in plain words that he wished to obtain the opinion of the Chamber upon the Military Reorganisation Bills before he should develop his views. I need not add that the Chamber answered that the Members' duties were to judge of the importance of Bills, but that they were not charged to do the Minister's work, excepting in cases where they took the initiative. And it was resolved that the military Bills should not be examined in the sections after the Minister had declared that, although he would adhere to the general principle laid down in them by his predecessor, he had not yet formed a precise opinion with regard to the details of the Bills. He wished that they should be examined at once in the sections, but this, as I have said, the Chamber refused, and thus the measures are postponed, which explains the general disappointment. The Chamber is now discussing the Bill regulating the right of coalitions, and several days must still pass before Mr. Heemskerk Az is enabled to revive the question of the transfer of our settlements on the West Coast of Africa.

The East India Railway Company has received by telegraph the very important news that last Friday the line had reached Djocjo, and that efforts are being made to open the line to the public on the 1st April next. If these endeavours are successful there will be daily two communications to Samarang from Djocjo in six hours. This news has caused much satisfaction here, but the particulars which we received by the last mail about the fearful inundations have occasioned much regret. Perhaps these details will tend to convince the public that their purses must be opened liberally to assist the unhappy victims. Up to this moment the subscriptions have realised only a very poor amount.

The newspapers are filled every day with accounts of the projected national festival on the 1st April. It will be a general patriotic movement. His Majesty will attend the festival in Brielle, and I hear that he will in the following month of May visit the provinces of Groningen, Friesland, and Drenthe.

H.M. frigate Admiraal van Wassenaer has left Nieuwe Diep, bound for the West Coast of Africa.

The weather has been alternately fine and wet throughout the week, but several nights have been frosty, which has had the effect of imparting a somewhat more active tone to the grain market.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Quietness has been the prevailing characteristic in almost every branch of our trade in Colonial produce since the departure of last mail, and prices of most of our leading articles have been barely supported. A change for the better is, however, to be reported for Tin, which has undergone a material advance.

COFFEE has assumed a quiet appearance. Holders display a firm tone, but buyers keep on the reserve, and confine their purchases to their most pressing wants, which causes prices to be barely supported. Sales have been closed by private treaty since my last of 1,200 bags Java (Passarocan) ex Ada; 466 bags do. ex Noach III.; 379 bags Java, ex Sourabaya packet; 799 bales Maccio ex Batavia; 500 bales Java ex Regina Maris. Total stock of Java coffee 758,400 bags; floating supplies 472,700 bags.

TEA.—212/4 chests Pekoe, bought in at the public auction on the 23rd ult., changed hands by private treaty at a price kept secret. Result of the public sale of 1,467/4, and 1,101/12 chests China held at Amsterdam on the 29th. Mark RLT, 290/12 chests finest Lapseng Souchong 119c. to 120c. Mark RKT, 200 chests finest Lapseng Souchong 126c. to 134c. Mark Holmsdale, Kaishow Congou 110c. to 111c., flowery Pekoe 180c. to 200c., Lapseng Souchong 110c. to 117c. Part of this public sale has been bought in, viz., 15 lots Souchong, 49 lots Congou, and the whole of the Pekoe, but all has since been sold by private contract on secret terms. Stock 1,800/4 chests.

SUGAR remains very dull. No transactions are reported, and there is very little on offer. Stock, 5,750,000 kilos.

TIN.—A better feeling has prevailed for this article since my last, under the influence of animated accounts from London and also by the publication of favourable monthly returns of deliveries from the Trading Company's stores, which caused a material advance of prices. Banca has sold for usual prompt at f.85 to f.88 for delivery ex the coming spring sale at f.86, and sales have been closed of Billiton for forward delivery, ex the Batavia public sale of February, at f.84¼, ½, to f.87, and for delivery ex the December public sale at Batavia at f.86. Stock of Banca on warrants 18,400 slabs; new unsold stock 49,303 slabs, floating to Holland 18,144 slabs. Stock of Billiton 4,206 slabs.

RATTANS are firm in the face of the coming public sale, and the shipments ex Ada, Medea, and County of Nairn are reported to have been sold at high prices.

RICE remains quiet, and prices are but nominally supported. The 12,538 bags Java table ex Noach III. were sold at f.12. Stock 4,000 bags.

SPICES.—The demand for Nutmegs and Mace is but limited, but no change has occurred in prices. Amboina Cloves continue to be held for advanced rates, without, however, any business doing. Stock on warrants in the Trading Company's Stores: Nutmegs, 2,318 casks; Mace, 274 casks; Cloves, 2,514 casks.

INDIGO keeps firm, but sales are unimportant. A couple of small lots came to hand for our market.

HIDES.—The demand continues active, and all parcels offered for sale meet ready buyers at full prices. Sales have been closed by secret tender of shipments ex Fairwind, Vier Gebroeders, County of Nair and Amazon, comprising aggregately 16,619 Java Cows and 18,953 do. Buffaloes.

KAPOK.—297 bales cleaned, ex Amazon, were sold at 57c. to 66c.

TOBACCO (JAVA).—Small parcels have been disposed of. Total stock 2,017 bales.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Feb. 29, at Brouwershaven, from Samarang, Willem Kroonprins der Nederlanden; March 5, at Brouwershaven, from Sourabaya, Petunia; at Texel, from Sourabaya, Esmeralda, Schoonderloo; from Foo-chow-Foo, Carmelita and Ida.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Willem Krooprins der Nederlanden, Messrs. J. Kruyt, Jut, de Vries, Miss Buckmann.

LISBON, March 2.

On the 24th February Mr. Barros e Cunha, deputy for the Algarve, expressed in the Chamber his desire for information from the Minister for Foreign Affairs concerning the claims which, from the motion made in your House of Commons by Mr. Fowler, and from the reply thereto of Lord Enfield, might be inferred to exist in connection with the traffic of coolies carried on from the port of Macao; and, in fact, the language in The Times, perhaps because The Times enjoys a Godlike irresponsibility not vouchsafed to mortal Governments, interprets as a menace that which is but a history of the difficulties with which both the Portuguese and the English Governments have struggled, during many years, against the tricks of Chinese pirates and European speculators in order to repress that shameful traffic, and at the same time to protect legitimate Chinese emigration. These difficulties might perhaps be removed if the two Governments could agree to act in concert, but, in the meantime, it is hardly fair to throw upon the Portuguese the whole of the blame for those abuses and disasters which the English, with all their power, have been unable to prevent. The Government is preparing to answer Mr. Barros e Cunha, and it seems likely, from the turn the discussion has taken, that the debate will become general.

JOINT-STOCK ENTERPRISE IN CHINA.

"THE prospectus of the new Bank has been issued." So runs the news in the North China Herald, received by last mail from Shanghai. The title adopted is similar to that started by the late MONTGOMERY MARTIN, who launched in 1865 an institution under the name of the "Imperial Bank of China," with very flourishing predictions on paper, which, it was soon found, would not bear the test of actual working. The concern was amalgamated with the "Bank of Hindustan," also one of the productions of that company mania set afloat by Mr. COSTERTON, formerly manager in China for the "Chartered Mercantile Bank of India," and who, like his bank, is now numbered with the dead, the losses on the working of the concern amounting to a million sterling. We trust that the "Bank of China" has a better fate in store. We hear that there is a difficulty respecting its registration under the Limited Act, as that could be done only at the British Colony of Hong Kong, but we think it a mistake to put these companies under the Act at all. The shares should be of such a nature as to be within the compass of all the shareholders, should misfortunes render it necessary to call up all the subscribed capital. If this condition be included in the prospectus and articles of association, viz., that the liability of the directors and shareholders is limited to the subscribed capital, no further risk is entailed by them. In the case of a Chartered Bank, such as the Oriental Bank, the liability extends to double the amount of the shares. We presume the "Bank of China" is intended to be of a local and personal character, to deal with some of the short loans daily arranged by the Chinese traders, and not for exchange operations or to encourage share speculations, which most assuredly would bring the concern to grief. The large increase of joint-stock enterprise in China has been a source of anxiety to all responsible merchants engaged in the trade. The facilities afforded to clerks and other subordinates is extremely prejudicial, and it behoves the heads of firms to strictly forbid any such operations, which are the sure forerunners of defalcations and similar disasters. We would also avail ourselves of this opportunity to caution managers of such companies, that more care should be exercised to prevent the transfer of shares to irresponsible persons. The result of the operations for the year and dividend, should also be more carefully protected against leakage and forestalling the market.

THE ABDOOL MOOSSA CASE.

THE Hong Kong Daily Press appears to have fomented its wrath against Mr. PAUNCEFOTE in reference to his management of the local cause celèbre—the ABDOOL MOOSSA conspiracy case—until it has taken shape in an article so feeble that we certainly think our other Hong Kong contemporary the China Mail need not have expended two columns and a half in demolishing it. Everybody is agreed that the conspiracy in question was one of a kind about which there could be no doubt, and the frequency of which exercises an influence most prejudicial to commerce. Mr. PAUNCEFOTE as Attorney-General took the case up with a spirit which it is to be regretted that none of his predecessors had shown in similar occurrences before. That Mr. PAUNCEFOTE rendered great public service by this course no single person has ventured to deny; for it has probably struck a death-blow to a vicious system of sham commerce and real swindling. It would be idle to reopen the arguments which we gave in our issues of December on this subject. Nevertheless, we may, perhaps, be pardoned for extracting a short passage in which the China Mail incontrovertibly "shuts up" the captious opponent who waited till Mr. PAUNCEFOTE had left the Colony before he attacked him again. It is this:—"In "the course of the civil cases he was retained in, he applied to "the Chief Justice in open court to relieve him from the double "duty he was called upon to perform, and allow the solicitor "for the creditors to take his brief, which the Chief Justice "declined to do, there being no necessity for such a course."

OUR LISBON CORRESPONDENT.

WE call the attention of subscribers to our correspondent's letter from Lisbon, which we have arranged for in the interest of our readers at Hong Kong and Macao, and to give our Portuguese friends the opportunity of relieving themselves from the odium which now attaches to them in the continuance of the coolie traffic at Macao. We trust our correspondent will not miss any opportunity of attaining this desirable end. It is evident that the Portuguese Government has been roused to action in consequence of the debate in the House of Commons. Our correspondent is in error in regard to the position of the British flag—we have stopped the traffic from Hong Kong. The Portuguese Government must at once realise the fact that it is quite impossible to stop the chicanery of Chinese brokers in procuring coolies, and that there is no way of putting a stop to this vile traffic—which is alike an injustice to the Chinese Government and disgraceful to the Portuguese—but by the prohibition of the despatch of vessels from Macao. The European speculators in this traffic in human flesh are as bad—nay worse—than the Chinese crimps they employ; and to any one who knows anything of the treatment the poor coolies receive in Cuba and the Chinchas the matter is simply horrible. Let the people of Macao rouse themselves, and shake off this foul scandal.

THE "Papers Relating to the Foreign Relations of the United States for 1871" have just been published at the Government Printing-office at Washington. So far as regards the field in which our readers are more immediately concerned, the principal subjects of interest are the American views of the Korean Expedition and the Missionary Question in China — on both of which we have from time to time given full reports. With regard to Japan, the chief points touched upon in the correspondence published are the assassination of British subjects, and the arrival of General CAPRON and his suite, with the restrictions with regard to the appointment of Diplomatic and Consular Agents (citizens of the United States) to places under Governments to which they are accredited. Mr. DE LONG'S despatch on the qualities and inequalities of Consuls is admirable. The volume contains a mass of official correspondence relating to every other country, and is a compendium of valuable information for all who are interested in the position which the United States are taking with regard to the rest of the world.

MESSRS. C. AND A. BAZIN'S "Return of Traffic for the Year 1871 through the Suez Canal" has just been published by Messrs. CORY BROTHERS and Co., of Leadenhall-street. We have from time to time given so many of the statistics contained in the present publication that it would be superfluous to recapitulate any more than the totals. These, however, will be some guide to capitalists who may be invited to take shares in the new undertaking, if, as is reported, it should be about to be Anglicised. We give the following list with the greater pleasure because it shows the preponderating importance of the Canal to the merchants of our own country. In the course of last year, 761 vessels passed through the great Canal; of which 496 were British, 67 French, 67 Austrian, 30 Turkish, 20 Egyptian, 46 Italian, 6 German, and the remaining 29 made up from all nations. This was an advance on the previous year of 270 vessels, of which no less than 177 were British.

WE refrained from publishing in our last the accounts received from Japan of the persecution of Christians, believing that the statements, which emanated from the Nagasaki Gazette, were grossly exaggerated. We now find by our correspondence by this mail that such is the case. It seems that the paper in question is under the influence of Roman Catholic priests at Nagasaki, and the converts were said to be of their order. The statement made by Lord ENFIELD, which will be found in our Parliamentary Intelligence, reveals the truth. Reference has also been made in Parliament to our troops in Japan.

THE Vice-Consul at Yedo, Mr. DOHMEN, has forwarded to the Foreign-office a letter from the Superintendent of Telegraphs, stating that the lines at present at work are as follow:—Tokeio to Yokohama, Gaimushio (Foreign-office) and Kinchi; Osaka to Kobé and the Royal Mint. The works in course of construction are:—Tokeio to Nagasaki, Nihon Bashi, Hougoo, Rioomoku, Bashi, Hasakusa, Kobashio, Akabane, and Yotsusga. The above extensions will probably be all completed in the course of six months. Further extensions have been ordered, but have not been commenced.

WE are glad to see that a remonstrance has been made by the new Chief Justice of the Straits against the condition of the Court at Singapore. Amid the extravagance which has characterised the local government, it is certainly a scandal that some portion of the large expenditure has not been devoted to the improvement of the law courts of the colony.

WE notice that Mr. WHITE has brought the matter of the Saigon Consulate to the notice of Parliament, and our friends interested may rely that he will follow up the matter. We are now waiting to know what arrangement Mr. CASWELL has made as to his successor.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £600,000 in bills on India were received on the 6th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—To Calcutta, £337,500; to Bombay, £200,000; and to Madras, £22,500. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d. on all the Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 11⅛d. will receive about 22 per cent., and on Bombay at 1s. 11⅛d. in full. A further falling off in the demand for remittances to the East is apparent.

Bar Silver shows a tendency to advance, owing to a demand for India and the absence of supplies; Fine bars are quoted at 5s. 0⅛d. Mexican dollars are scarce as regards the old coinage, and the price, therefore, is very firm at 5s. 1d. The new coinage being more offered, is easier, and may be quoted as 4s. 11⅛d. per ounce.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited) was held on the 5th inst., Sir Daniel Gooch, M.P., in the chair. The report, which was unanimously adopted, showed a net profit, including a balance of £13,776, to the amount of £122,481. Of this £22,410 has been appropriated to the payment of an interim dividend of five per cent., and £89,640, being at the rate of 48s. per share, or 20 per cent., will be divided, making, with the amount already paid, a total dividend of 25 per cent., free of income-tax, the balance, £10,431, being carried forward. The retiring directors were re-elected, and Mr. J. B. Wanklin was elected to a seat at the board, increasing the number of directors to eight.

At the meeting of the Société du Cable Transatlantique Français (Limited) a dividend of 6 per cent. was declared, making, with the dividends already paid, 12 per cent. for the year 1871. The directors were also authorised to lay a new Atlantic Cable, and to raise the necessary funds by the issue of 20,000 new shares of £20 each, and of debentures to an amount not exceeding £500,000. The shares are now offered to the present shareholders at par, but it is not the intention of the board to issue the debentures at present.

The London agent of the Great Northern Telegraph Company Mr. H. G. Erichsen, informs us that the traffic for the month of February on the Company's amalgamated lines has been as follows:—On the European lines, telegrams 32,979, revenue, 92,242 fcs. (against 29,066 telegrams, and 83,033 fcs. in 1871). On the China Japan lines 2,039 telegrams, revenue, 82,998 fcs. It is remarked that the Shanghai and Hong Kong line was interrupted during nine days in February, and the Chinese new year also occurred in that month.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The arrivals during the past fortnight have been on a very large scale, exceeding 14,000,000 lbs. of China and 500,000 lbs. of Indian growth. A large business has been transacted during the week at prices favouring buyers. The yield of season 1871-2 is now nearly all to hand, so that a steady market during the next few months may be expected. The continental demand has been limited. Deliveries have been as follows:—

	1872.	1871.
Home consumption for London from Jan. 1 to Feb. 28. ...	3,880,000 lbs.	15,509,000 lbs.
Export do. do. ...	6,670,000 ,,	3,300,000 ,,
Sent coastwise do. ...	15,871,000 ,,	5,800,000 ,,
Total delivered ...	26,421,000 lbs.	24,609,000 lbs.

Black.—Red-leaf siftings and broken, no change; good flavoury, Kaisow kinds, and Sayunne, have sold at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. per lb.; in medium to fine Kaisow still no business to report. Pakling, but few transactions. Tayshan-leaf: The arrivals have been unusually large, at least 70,000 boxes, or 1,500,000 lbs., and dealers being previously well supplied, business has only been practicable at lower rates; quotations now stand at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d. for fair quality, 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. for strong-burnt malty kinds, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. for Pekoe kinds, and 1s. 7d. to 2s. 2d. per lb. for fine and finest. Black leaf: Ordinary common at Public Sale sold at 9d. to 10d. per lb., good common is worth 11½d. to 1s.; fair to good at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. continues scarce, medium at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb., sales are on an extensive scale; fine and finest, no change. Souchong: No new feature. Oolong: Limited transactions. Scented Teas: For Canton Orange Pekoe early in the fortnight a good demand existed; with free supplies, business has latterly been at declining rates, prices showing 1d. to 2d. per lb. decline from the highest point. Capers are selling more freely, as prices rule low. Foochow Scented Orange Pekoe, fairly saleable at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. for medium quality. Green: Supplies have been on a fair scale, and prices are easier for Moyune, which, however, still commands extreme rates for fine and finest. Japan leaf: Uncoloured, low quality, old import, has sold at 4½d. to 5d. per lb.

The stock in the United Kingdom on the 29th ult. was estimated at 93,400,000 lbs, against 98,400,000 lbs., and the quantity afloat at 26,634,700 lbs., against 23,802,000 lbs. last year.

Mr. W. E. Rowlinson's Circular says:—A public sale of China Tea took place in Amsterdam on the 29th February, comprising 1,266 chests Congou, 1,101 half-chests Souchong, and 201 chests Flowery Pekoe, ex Holmsdale. Of the first break only 48 half-chests Souchong out of 290 found buyers at 1s. 7¾d., which was fair value, but of the following break 200 half-chests Souchong were sold at from 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 9½d., which was an extreme price, as was 1s. 7d. for 247 half-chests sold later, but 200 half-chests, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 6¼d. was about value, whilst 164 half-chests may be said to have sold slightly in buyers' favour at 1s. 6¼d. Of the Congous, 874 chests found purchasers; of the first lot offered only 40 chests out of 228 were sold at 1s. 6½d., which was a full price; this was followed by 219 chests at 1s. 4d., which was decidedly better value than the previous lot; only 8 chests out of a break of 204 forming the next lot were sold at 1s. 3½d., but the following one sold at 1s. 5d., which was fair value. The next break, 177 chests at 1s. 4½d., may be said to have gone very cheap, as also did 134 chests at 1s. 2¾d. which followed; the last lot, 100 chests at 1s. 5d., was slightly in favour of the buyer. The Flowery Pekoes were all bought in, prices ranging from 2s. 3d. to about 2s. 5d. being bid, but at these prices it was not considered advisable to sell.

SILK.

Since the public sales there has been an inactive market for most classes of Silk, but though it might be expected that the continued quietude would have caused a reduction in prices, such has not been the case to any marked extent, parcels offering at something under previous rates having been eagerly taken; this has especial reference to China Silk. There has been less doing in Cantons, and buyers have endeavoured to obtain a reduction upon the price of current qualities; holders, however, have remained firm, and all the business transacted has been at full rates, the best classes being even a shade higher. In Japans there has been a fair business, and the later arrivals have sold currently; in the Maibash and Sinchew classes, the Silk when clean and of firm thread is in good demand. Deliveries are satisfactory, being from the 1st to 6th inst. as follows:—China, 538; Canton, 149; Japan, 150; Bengal, 44; total, 926 bales.

Messrs. Arles, Dufour, and Co., in their Circular, dated Lyons, the 2nd inst., say:—"Consumption being supplied for immediate wants, the transactions throughout February have remained the more limited, as this time of the year is generally marked with inactivity. It must not be forgotten, also, that political intrigues of various parties, in shaking confidence in the future, have, since a month, brought depression upon trade in general. However, the opening of the spring season for the sale of Silk piece goods, if favoured with a propitious weather, and coupled with the appeasement of political questions will, we hope, give more life to business in March, and bring back more ctivity in Silk transactions."

COFFEE.

Although still quiet the market for Ceylon has assumed a firmer tone, and a large portion of the supplies at the public sales has been bought in, the prices offered being lower than sellers would accept. The business done gives the following range of prices—Plantation: Triage, 67s. to 70s.; small, 75s. 6d. to 76s.; low middling, 77s.; bold, 83s. 6d.; pea-berry, 84s. to 89s. The offers of Native have been for the most part bought in at 71s. for real good ordinary. In other East India we note sales of 191 bags Java from the Cape sold, fine yellow, 85s. to 86s.; superior brown, 94s. 6d. to 97s. 6d.; 575 bags pale Manila at 70s. 6d. to 72s., chiefly at 71s. 6d.; and 17 bags brown Singapore at 66s. A considerably quantity of Plantation Ceylon has been disposed of by private contract during the week, but the prices paid have not been permitted to transpire.

SUGAR.

The tone of the market during the week has been less depressed, and rather larger, although only moderate, sales have been effected; in prices, however, no improvement can be reported beyond an advance of 6d. per cwt. in Taal Manila. The following are the details of the business done:—

Manila.—No public sales. By private contract 2,500 bags low unclayed Taal have been sold at 21s., and 200 bags at 21s. 6d. Subsequently there has been a further sale of 4,500 bags old unclayed Taal at 21s. 6d., and 2,000 bags clayed (duty 4s.) at 27s. 6d.

Java.—In auction 561 baskets, per Windsor Castle, were bought in, low white (duty 5s. 8d.) at 37s., fine grainy yellow and grey (duty 5s. 8d.) at 36s. to 36s. 6d., good and fine yellow (duty 5s. 3d.) at 35s. to 35s. 6d.; but 350 baskets (duty 5s. 3d.) sold subsequently at 34s. 6d. to 35s. 3d. Privately 1,500 baskets washed fine grainy have been sold at 35s. A floating cargo, consisting of 500 tons No. 13, per Anita, has been sold in the Clyde for a near port at 29s. 9d.

CAMPHOR.—China: The market is firm though inactive; a small business has been done at £4 5s.; heavy arrivals are due. Japan: Nothing doing.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At public sale of 149 cases Ginger offered, 100 cases Chyloong sold at 9½d. to 10d.

CHINA SILK PIECE GOODS.—The public sales were held on the 6th inst. There was a good supply of Pongee Handkerchiefs, and fair demand. Of Plain White 800 pieces were sold, out of 840 offered, at 24s. 6d. to 25s. for good silky quality (28 inches), and of Figured White and fancy styles 566 were sold, out of 830 offered, at 26s. to 32s. 6d., according to quality and style, being full rates. There were no Shantung Pongees offered, none having arrived since last public sale.

CHINA GRASS.—The market is steady, but with only a moderate demand. About ten to fifteen tons fine white have been placed at £55 per ton; 666 bales per Ulysses were withdrawn from auction. Arrivals of 3,161 bales have taken place per Diomed, Celestial Queen, Canton, and Nestor.

CHINA ROOT.—No transactions to report.

COLOMBO ROOT.—Market quiet; small sale at auction of ordinary small, slightly wormy, at 24s. to 25s., fair bold being bought in at 30s. to 40s., and no good or fine quality being offered.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market continues dull, the large quantity afloat, 6,080 tons, against 2,110 tons at the corresponding date last year, leading buyers to expect lower prices to rule. At public sale, of 242 casks Ceylon offered 34 hogsheads fine sold at £38 10s., the remainder being bought in at £38 10s. and pipes at £38. Privately small transactions have been effected on corresponding terms, but no business has been done afloat.

COIR GOODS.—At the last auctions a good supply of Yarn offered went off without competition, and all qualities sold at rather lower prices. Of 45 tons Ceylon 37 tons sold, good common to middling, £28 10s. to £30; fair well made, £31 10s. to £31 15s. Yarn, 1¼ tons Ceylon Brush sold at £34 to £34 15s.

CUTCH continues out of demand, and prices show a further decline; fine Pegu in boxes is offered at 26s. without finding buyers; at auction an offer of 580 boxes good Penang was bought in at 26s. per cwt.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Dull; 14 cases Reed withdrawn at £10 10s. per cwt., and of block only 8 cases sold—very middling rather drossy and seedy at £5 12s. 6d.; rest retired at £5 15s. No good or fine offered.

At auction, 2,160 mats 244 bales 1,033 baskets 215 bags Cubes were offered and bought in at 23s. to 26s., and 413 bales block at 23s. per cwt. HIDES.—At the periodical sales on the 7th a considerable supply was offered. The demand was less active than has recently been experienced, especially for common and heavy qualities, and prices of those were frequently ¼d. per lb. lower; better qualities participated in the dulness, and also sold in buyers' favour, and a large quantity was bought in. Kips: Of 5,035 Singapore and Penang offered, 2,200 sold—first light brined, 7¼ lb., at 12d.; second, 11½d.; extra heavy, 12 lb., 9½d.; third, 7¼d. to 7½d.; fourths, 5½d. Buffalo: 1,530 Singapore and Penang bought in—heavy at 6d.—except 100, which were sold—light 7¾d. RHUBARB.—Market for China without change.

SAGO.—In spite of falling off in shipments, and high prices quoted in Singapore, the article remains very dull and neglected, and as large shipments are almost sure to be made ere long, it is possible that unless the deliveries increase or speculation revives, the article will again decline in consequence of the accumulation of stocks; sales privately at 17s. 3d. cash; medium grain chiefly bought in at 18s. 6d., and a small quantity of large sold at 19s. 6d. Flour: Dull; offers in auction all bought in at 16s. 6d. to 16s. 9d.; private sales at 16s. 4½d. per cwt.

SPICES.—Business limited. Cassia: Market for Lignea quiet; unworked 104s. to 105s., and pile 2 at 109s. to 110s.; at these quotations small sales are daily effected. Vera: Padang without supply; the nominal quotation for good bright fairly thin is 92s. to 95s. Japan without transactions. Buds: Value nominal, in the face of an arrival of 100 boxes. Cinnamon: Little business done since the quarterly sales reported on in our last issue; 3 cases fair China sold at 90s., being slightly mouldy. Nutmegs: Dull; at auction recently 45 cases Penang partly sold as follows:—66 to the lb. at 3s. 6d., 72 to 77 at 3s. 5d., 82 to 84 at 3s. 4d., 103 at 3s. 2d., 110 to 112 at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 2d.

SOY.—Improving; 2s. 6d. paid for China, which is now held for a still higher figure.

OILS.—Aniseed and Cassia out of demand, and prices nominal. Citronelle: The recent speculative demand has ceased, and the quotation has declined to 2¼d. per oz. Lemon Grass: No business doing; quotations nominal.

PEPPER.—Black: Penang dull and lower. The Cutwater and Commander have arrived with about 9,000 bags. In sale yesterday 550 bags dusty but heavy East Coast sold at 6 1-16d.; 206 bags sea damaged at 5⅞d. to 6d.; and a few lots good West Coast at 6¼d. White: At public sales about 1,700 bags offered, and 1,160 sold, of which 574 bags Singapore and 96 bags Penang were "without reserve." Ordinary and very common sold at 10¼d. to 10⅝d.; middling at 10½d.; fair at 10½d. to 10⅝d.; good fair at 10⅝d. to 10¾d., and 30 bags very good at 10¾d. to 11¼d. A large lot of the above was per Warrior.

TAPIOCA.—Although there is a marked deficiency in the quantity afloat, this article does not improve, and speculative purchases having ceased, sales are most difficult to effect. Flour: Dull, and freely offered. Singapore and Penang sound have sold at 2¼d., and sea damaged at 1d. to 2d. per lb. Pearl: At the last sale, when 585 bags were offered, only 200 bags were quitted at lower rates, viz., good White Bullets at 21s. 6d.; extra large at 21s.; and medium at 22s.

TIN.—There has been an animated market, and as it is now certain that the shipments from the Straits for Europe during February were only 340 tons, and it is anticipated that those during the present month will be still less, coupled with the news of riots amongst the workmen in the tin-producing districts of the Straits, and the usual shortness of water at this season, the rise in price here has been great. A large business has been done at from £143 to £145 on the spot, up to £146 for floating parcels, but these quotations are not equal to the prices ruling at Penang and Singapore, which are about £150 laid down here.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

WOOLLEN AND WORSTED GOODS.

The Leeds market for Woollens and Worsteds is without alteration. The current quotations are as follow:—

Spanish Stripes, 62 in., 19 yards, Elephant Chop, 3s. 9d. per yard for scarlet; Long Ells, 30/31 in., 24 yards, Lion Chop, 34s. 6d. per piece for scarlet; Camlets, best SS, 30/31 in., 58 yards, Elephant Chop, 90s. 0d. per piece for scarlet; Lastings, 31 in., 30/31 yards, Lion Chop, 75s. per piece for gentian; Brocades, 31 in. 29 yards, Half Moon Chop, 27s. 3d. per piece for scarlet.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

At the close of last week prices showed some irregularity, and owing to small sales of Cotton in Liverpool were slightly easier, producers being willing to accept offers somewhat below their quotations. The dulness continued up to the 4th inst., when the market assumed a steadier tone, which has since become further developed, and at the close the tone is firm but not active at the annexed quotations:—

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.—FEB. 24.

—o—

TEA.

The market has been very quiet, the agitation of the Duty question having caused an almost entire cessation of the demand. Prices are nominally unchanged.

SILK.

The market has undergone but little change. A moderate business has been done in all classes of Silk, and prices are steady, with a slight tendency to advance on scarce grades. The detention of the cargo of the steamer America, at San Francisco, by reason of the snow blockade on the Union Pacific Railroad, has caused a scarcity of the medium grades of Re-reeled Haineen and Tsatlee, and extra fine grades of Re-reeled Canton, all of which are in good request, at full prices. Usual reeled Tsatlee and Taysaam meet with improved sales, in the absence of the above-mentioned Re-reeled sorts. In Re-reeled Canton the stock is of such indifferent quality that manufacturers take of it very reluctantly, and only to supply pressing wants, and fresh arrivals are anxiously looked for. Japans: No stock; no demand.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil remains in an inactive and demoralised condition. Values are entirely nominal, the views of sellers and buyers varying as much as 1c. to 1½c. per lb. East India descriptions remain extremely quiet, and in the almost entire absence of demand from first hands quotations must be considered nominal.

CORDAGE.—Manila steady at previous rates.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 17c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $3; Cassia, $2.30 gold (duty paid).

FIRE CRACKERS.—We notice sales of 3,000 boxes Extra No. 1, duty paid, on terms not made public.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4½c. gold; the market is firm, and shows an upward tendency.

HEMP.—Another fortnight has elapsed without transactions in Manila; the nominal quotation is still 13c. to 13½c. gold.

INDIGO.—Manila quiet, at $1 to 1.10 currency.

RICE.—There is a steady and fairly active demand for Rangoon for home consumption at $6.87½ to 7.12½ currency, and we note the sale of 1,000 bags in bond at $3.15 to 3.30 gold.

SUGAR.—Market without change, a steady demand having prevailed during the fortnight. The sales of East India have been 34,963 bags superior Manila, per Monte Rosa, at 8½c., and 576 baskets Batavia, per Anna Krell, at 9½c.

SPICES.—The market is steady, and for most descriptions firm—Cloves and Pepper notably being held with confidence. The accounts by telegraph, relative to the destruction of the Clove crop of Java, has but little effect here, the yield of that island being consumed wholly in Europe. In large lots, we notice sales of 500 bags Singapore Pepper, on private terms. There continues a moderate jobbing demand at, for Mace $1.25 to $1.35, Nutmegs 97½c. to 100c., China Cassia 30c. to 30½c., prime Batavia 32c., Cloves 14½c. to 15c., Clove Stems 7½c., Pepper 17c. for Sumatra, and 18c. for Singapore, all gold.

TIN remains dull, with scarcely business enough upon which to base quotations. We have only to notice sales of 50 slabs Straits at 36c.; Straits is generally held t 36c., and Banca 41c., gold.

CASUALTIES.

The Ymuiden (barq.), of and from Amsterdam, to Batavia, went ashore on the Goodwin Sands, March 2, but was assisted off by boatmen, who proceeded with her to Nieuwe Diep, where she arrived on the 4th, with loss of anchor and chain.

The Willy Rickmers, Stolt, which arrived at New York, Feb. 17, from Shanghai, had encountered a hurricane from E.N.E. to N.W., lasting twenty-four hours, Feb. 9, off Cape Hatteras, during which she lost foretopgallantmast, mizentopmast, and sails.

The Ranavola (barque), Evans, which sailed from Shields Feb. 28, for Singapore, put back March 5, having been ashore between Souter Point and Sunderland.

A telegram received from Hong Kong, dated March 4, states as follows:—The Cissy, Spencer, from Foochow to America, with tea, was ashore at Spiteful Island, River Min, during a hurricane; she is making no water, but has returned, and will probably discharge her cargo.

The Midnight, Brock, which arrived at New York Feb. 22, from Shanghai, had encountered strong N.E. and N.W. gales from Bermuda, during which she lost sails.

The Robert Fletcher, from Hong Kong to New York, ashore at East Moriches, has been much broken up during a gale; the cargo is out and scattered along the beach; a great quantity has been saved in a damaged condition, in addition to the portion secured (about one-half of the total cargo) before the vessel broke up.

The Yarra, Orfeur, which sailed from London, Feb. 19, for Amoy, Chefoo, &c., put into Falmouth, 29th, to restow cargo.

A portion of the cargo, consisting of 762 bales of tobacco, has been discharged perfectly dry from the fore hold of the Emiliano (str.), de Larrinaga, arrived at Liverpool, from Manila and Singapore (via S.C.). It is believed that a further quantity of 250 bales (dry) is still in that compartment of the vessel. The whole of the vessel aft of the fore hold was submerged, and the cargo, particularly the tobacco, in the other compartments is much damaged.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—GOUT, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA.—These maladies are always more or less connected with disorder or disease of the digestive organs. Hence the facility with which they yield to Holloway's remedies. Temporary alleviation immediately follows the proper application of this soothing Ointment, while the Pills taken internally reduce the digestive functions to order and avert all inflammatory tendencies. Nervous invalids will derive ease and consolation from the influence of these medicaments, which are free from mercury and all noxious ingredients. Holloway's celebrated Ointment and Pills present, at a trifling outlay, the means of preserving the health or uprooting diseases which have assailed the body hrough accident, luxury, indolence, or other causes.

Secretary to the Provisional Committee.

JAMES GILFILLAN, Esq.

It is proposed to establish in Shanghai a Limited Banking Company with the above title, in the belief that there is not only room, but actual necessity, for the additional facilities which such an institution will afford to the large local, coasting, and foreign trade which centres in this port.

The great extension of steam communication both by sea and river, and the creation of telegraphic connections, since the existing local Bank was founded, have greatly added to the importance of Shanghai, until it has become the great depot or distributing point for the trade of Northern and Central China; but, while it seems desirable that Shanghai should be the head-quarters of the new Bank, and its direction on the spot where the principal interests are involved, a local committee will be formed in Hong Kong for the promotion of the undertaking there.

The success of other public companies in Shanghai and Hong Kong, and the evidence of a large sum of money seeking investment in China, encourage the belief that the proposed Capital for this Bank will be readily subscribed; many influential native merchants have already come forward as active promoters and supporters of the undertaking, and the Committee look for a very valuable constituency from Chinese sources.

The legal constitution of the Bank is engaging the consideration of the Committee, and reference has been made to London and elsewhere for the best legal advice upon the subject; and it is understood that no Shares will be allotted, nor will operations be commenced until the necessary arrangements have been completed, when further information will be laid before the intending Shareholders. In the meantime, applications for shares are invited until the 15th April, 1872, but must be on the prescribed forms, which can be obtained from the Secretary.

By order of the Provisional Committee,

J. GILFILLAN, Secretary.
